At the spring hair styling show of the Allied Beauty Association in Toronto, guest hair stylist Lawrence of Vancouver said he was delighted that the Sassoon blunt haircut was dead. He himself is introducing what he calls his Grecian Boy, to go with the long-gentle look. Long on the sides and on the crown, the hair is cut short on the top for fullness at the crown.

Also demonstrating at the show was Claude Coupal of Kitchener, Ont., a consistent winner at international hair styling competitions. He feels that the newest look is the contrast. If you have a curly crown, the sides and back must be smooth and vice versa.

The style he favors most at the moment is a modified Gibson Girl, with a high, small crown and hair massed at the sides.

Certainly there is no suggestion that women are even remotely thinking of taking up Rudi Gernreich's idea that women shave their heads and go bald.

WINS AWARD

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec chanteuse Pauline Julien has been awarded Paris' 1969 Grand Prix du Disque from the Academie de Charles Cros for her recording of Suite Quebecois.

MR. AND MRS. WILLIAM DAVIS

Davis — Hulsman

St. Patrick's Catholic Church Napanee, was the scene of the recent marriage of Lian Dianne Hulsman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hulsman, RR4, Belleville, and William Francis Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Davis, RR3, Napanee. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. J. J. O'Neil; organist was Mrs. J. O'Neil and soloist was Robert Burke of Belleville.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of white peau de soie with empire waist and A-line skirt and matching cathedral train. It also featured three - quarter length sleeves with cuff and soft rolled collar. Her shoulder length veil of Almeon lace was caught in a headpiece of satin leaves and segol pearls. She carried a bouquet of red roses.

Maid of honor was Miss Judy Hulsman, sister of the bride, wearing a floor-length gown of mauve bonded crepe. She carried a cascade bouquet of yellow and mauve mums and her floral headpiece consisted of mauve pompon 'mums.

Bridesmaids were Mrs. Shirley Slack, sister of the bride-groom, Mrs. Deanna Day and Miss Linda Jones. They were identical to that of the maid of honor as well as the flowers and headpieces.

Flower girl was Miss Kim Hulsman, cousin of the bride, dressed identically to the maid of honor. She carried a nosegay of yellow and mauve pom pon 'mums.

Best man was Bill Martin and ushers were Jim Hulsman, Bob Davis and Benny Slack.

A social hour following the ceremony was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benny Slack, Napanee.

For the reception held at the Legion Hall, Napanee, the bride's parents received the guests wearing a mint green crimp - knit semi - fitted dress with long sleeves, matching hat and black patent accessories. She wore a corsage of white gardenias.

She was assisted by the bridegroom's mother wearing a lilac crimp-knit dress with matching coat, a black bow hat with black satin accessories and a corsage of pink gardenias.

For the wedding trip to Niagara Falls, the bride chose a navy blue coat and dress ensemble with red trimmer accessories were matching red purse and shoes with a navy straw hat and her corsage was white gardenias.

Upon their return, the couple will reside at 124 Bridge St. West, Napanee.

Church Groups

CHRIST CHURCH ACW GUILD

Mrs. Horace Wright was hostess for the April meeting of the Christ Church 'ACW Guild on Tuesday afternoon. President, Mrs. Fred Laister welcomed the large group and took charge of the business portion of the meeting. A thought - provoking devotional on "Prayer" was presented by Mrs. E. Bradshaw, most appropriate as this was the day that many were offering prayer for the safety of the astronauts.

The treasurer's report showed that the Guild was in good financial position and it was decided that the amount of the rectory taxes be forwarded to the Church Warden. Mrs. Noakes reported that seven cards of sympathy and good cheer had been sent to members of the congregation during the month. Mrs. G. Livingston gave a complete report of the recent vestry council meeting. Reporting for the needs of the kitchen, Mrs. Vesterfelt moved that new kettles be purchased immediately. Mrs. Noakes reported a large amount had been contributed by members to the cost of a new perfect during March.

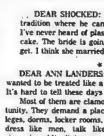
Members were reminded of the annual meeting of the ACW which will be held in Kingston on April 28. Belleville members will go by chartered bus and information regarding this may be obtained from Mrs. R. Godden. The Guild will cater to two wedding receptions in May and the president expressed the wish that all would do their share to make these events successful.

Kenneth Daley, people's warden, will speak to the Guild at their May meeting.

Mrs. F. A. Beeby outlined plans for the forthcoming "Blossom Tea" and sale in June which will feature fashions by "Georgia Anne," homecooking, sewing, toys and novelties, candy and white elephant booths and plants and flowers. Conveners and workers are busy preparing for this big event. Tickets were distributed by Mrs. M. B. Button.

Following the business meeting, many busied themselves with sewing, knitting and cutting out items for this event. They also enjoyed a hearty sing - song accompanied by Mrs. A. Jordan. Mrs. Wright, Mrs. G. Livingston and Mrs. James Wright served tea.

MAKING MUSIC



TORONTO (CP) — Children are being taught to make music at three Metropolitan Toronto public library branches. The courses, sponsored by the Young Men's Christian Association, teach the children to make music with rhythm and percussion instruments. They are also being taught to make their own instruments.

'Good Luck Tradition' Upsets Wedding Guest

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We just returned from a wedding which has left us shattered. If we had not seen it with our own eyes we would not have believed it. The bride, a charming young woman, looked heavenly in her satin gown and ivory lace veil. The ceremony and reception was the most elegant this town has seen in years.

At cake-cutting time the guests gathered around the beaming couple. A photographer was on hand to capture the beautiful moment. To the astonishment of everyone in the place, the groom took the first piece of cake and — instead of sharing it with his beloved, he plastered it against her face — completely covering her hair, eyes and nose with white, stick frosting.

ANN LANDERS

The groom then announced, "That's for good luck — a tradition where I come from."

The bride fled from the room half laughing, half crying. Her mother ran after her. In a few moments they both returned. Nothing was said. This certainly spoiled the wedding for me and for everyone else. I have never heard of the "custom" before. Have you? — SHOCKED ,

DEAR SHOCKED: The groom said it was a good luck tradition where he came from? A Mack Sennet Comedy? I've never heard of plastering the bride's face with wedding cake. The bride is going to need all the good luck she can get. I think she married a nut. .

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please tell the 16-year-old who wanted to be treated like a lady not to be so hard on the boys. It's hard to tell these days what females want.

I was brought up to believe that ladies are kind and equal opportunity. They demand a place in men's military academies, colleges, dorms, locker rooms, sports, business and industry. They also like men, talk like men, drink like men and light up cigars in public dining rooms.

I had to laugh when the girl described how the boy pushed her out of his way at the bus stop and got on first. She probably learned that shoving technique from watching his mother at a sales counter in a department store. Women can be ever so much cruder than men and somehow it looks twice as bad because they are women. — AN OBSERVER.

* * *

DEAR OB.: Manners know no gender. There's no excuse for shoving people around, male or female. But here's one thing you can count on in this ever-changing world; the battle between the sexes will never be won because there's too much fraternization with the "enemy."

* * *

Confidential to A TRUE-BLUE FRIEND: Stop being so "friendly" or you'll wind up paying her bills again. Dummy.

* * *

Confidential to THOSE WHO TALK JEWISH: I don't know anyone who "talks Jewish." There is no such language. Do you mean Yiddish or Hebrew? Tebes are two separate and distinct languages. Some Jews can speak both. Some speak neither.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

The engagement is announced of Gloria Jane Ferguson, daughter of Mrs. John Ferguson Jr. of Trenton and the late John Ferguson Jr. and Grant Richard S. Reid, son of Mrs. Helen Reid of Stirling. The marriage will take place Friday, May 15, 1970 at 7.30 p.m. in Grace United Church, Trenton.

* * *

At the recent Cannons - Gibson wedding Jeffrey and Bradley Cannons of Calgary, brothers of the bridegroom, were ringbearers.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. William Davis (nee Lynn Hulsman) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. T. Byrnes, Peterborough; a linen shower held at the home of Mrs. D. McLean, Belleville with Mrs. F. Cronin as co-hostess; a miscellaneous shower given by her co-workers at Victoria and Grey Trust Co. at the home of Mrs. K. Kerr and at another miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Shirley Slack, Napanee.

Amateur Cooks Want Chicken Hollandaise for Two

By MARY MOORE

College student Catherine W. wrote: "Thank you for Shephard's Pie for Two. For a source of amateur cooks at university here and for seldom readers of your column (me included) could you give us further recipes for two — with similar precise directions, if poss.? What cousin I Best Sellers have are sausage rolls; individual chicken and steak and other meat pies, for which sufficient prices are asked. Sincerely and gratefully Catherine W."

Some of you will remember that I suggested freezing the breasts from the chicken boiled for Mulligatawny April 14. After reading Catherine's letter I made Chicken Hollandaise with my leftover chicken breasts and served them on split Tea Biscuits Supreme made by my seven-and-one-half-year-old granddaughter (honestly!) and knew I had hit on something else for Catherine. (Incidentally I mailed her two meat and chicken pie recipes and sausage rolls.)

FOR TWO

CHICKEN HOLLANDAISE

1 cup cooked chopped chicken meat (packed)
1½ tbsps. butter
½ tsp. bottled onion flakes (or 1 tsp. minced raw)
¼ lb. scrubbed sliced mushrooms (optional)
¼ cup finely chopped celery
1 chicken bouillon cube
1 tbsp. corn starch
½ tsp. lemon juice (may be bottled)
1 cup hot water
1 egg yolk

In frypan melt butter and add onion, mushrooms, (if used), celery and bouillon cube and heat until blended and sealed with butter — not brown. Stir in corn starch and lemon juice then hot water until thick. Add chicken meat and drop egg yolk on top of it and quickly stir in—cook just below boiling. Serve over.

TEA BISCUITS SUPREME
(this is ½ recipe for 2)

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Meat Cakes with Onion Gravy; Fluffy Rice; Spinach; Celery Hearts; Banana Cake; Coffee.

NOTE: Oven should be turned on and heated to 450 deg. Fahr. before you start the Chicken Hollandaise above.

1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. cream of tartar
½ tsp. salt
1 tsp. sugar
¼ cup hard butter or margarine or chicken fat
1-3 cup milk

Sift together into mixing bowl the flour, baking powder, cream of tartar, salt and sugar. Cut in fat with pastry blender until size of peas. Quickly stir in milk. On floured board pat out to ¾" thickness and cut out with floured 2¼" cutter. Bake on unbuttered baking sheet at 450 deg. Fahr. 10 to 12 min. — but watch them. Split and serve under Chicken — Hollandaise above. You will have two or three left to eat buttered with your salad.

That ought to satisfy two hungry adult students.

Reader Still Plays Hard-to-Get

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I am a mother of a child of kindergarten age and would like to make a suggestion to our kindergarten committee. How do I do this? I'd like to suggest that a mothers' club be formed.

Can I carry out a survey about this and present the findings at a meeting or do I have to ask for permission first?

We always read you. "Doris is marvelous!" That's one of the few things my husband and I can agree upon! — Mother of One.

Dear Mother:—At the meeting, stand up and say, "I would like to make a motion to form a club for mothers with pre - schoolers". The chairman will ask for a seconder, and then will encourage discussion of your motion. You should explain just what you have in mind and why. Then a vote will be taken.

Anyone may make any kind of a survey, but if you plan to bring back facts, you could use the permission of the committee to ask questions. People usually want to know why they are being asked.

It's nice to know that in at least one household Doris is a subject of agreement rather than controversy. Thank you for the comments.

• • •

Dear Doris: There's a saying, play hard - to - get. But nowadays it doesn't work, because the boys wouldn't try that hard any more.

What does a girl do? — Deserted Dora.

Dear Dora: Well, she doesn't throw herself at the fellow she wants, and that's for sure!

It's more a matter of having your own feelings of self-worth; being friendly and ready to join in the fun, but still keeping a certain poise and self-possession.

The girl who has pride in herself holds her head up, sets her own standards, and refuses to be a pushover. If that's "hard - to - get", then I'd say it is much to be desired.

• • •

Dear Doris: I wonder if you have any ideas for entertaining 4 H, to make it more interesting? After the meeting we could play a game. — May.

Dear May: Here is a different kind of a game: Into a brown paper bag put an elastic band, bobby pin, clothes peg, empty thread spool, a penny, a plastic bottle cap, a paper clip, a small pencil — and anything else handy.

Pass the bag around. Have each guest put her hand in the bag and feel the contents. She then writes down what she thinks she felt. It isn't as easy as it sounds — and it's full of laughs.

Leaflets mentioned by Doris are available to readers for 10 cents and a large, stamped, self - addressed envelope. If you have not received my leaflet requested, it may be that you have neglected to include the necessary 'six-cent stamp.)

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Tess was such a good little eater last year. Now she doesn't eat a bite, no matter how much I coax."

Father: "She probably just wants attention, and she does snack between meals."

The 2-year-old is growing more slowly than she did last year and may not need as much food. If she is healthy and happy, don't fuss at her about eating or you may end up with a problem feeder.

Serve tiny portions of a variety of appetizing foods, and let the toddler eat what she wants of it. If there are snacks, let them be nourishing ones, such as fruit, vegetables or a cream cheese finger sandwich.

U.C.W. Meeting

MELROSE UCW

The regular meeting of the evening unit of Melrose UCW was held April 8 at the home of Mrs. Roy McLaren. There was an attendance at the meeting of 21.

The worship service was conducted by Mrs. John Eggleton then the business session followed. The balance on hand with the cost of the book case expense since the last meeting amounted to $8.75. Members were in favor of catering to two weddings and arrangements were made for a bus trip to Ottawa at tulip time in May.

Mrs. H. Neilburn was in charge of the program, based on China. A comparison of family life, family court and life we the farm was made. Mrs. Charles Bates presented the religions in China and Mrs. C. Bates jr. spoke on Chinese education.

The group was later thanked by the president.

Maoists Riot at Ottawa and B. C. Peace Rallies

"On the other hand, it was nice of him to lend us carfare home."

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The advocates of revolution wrenched the spotlight from the proponents of immediate reform in two Canadian cities during the weekend as violence disrupted attempts to hold peaceful demonstrations against the war in Vietnam.

The Maoists—followers of the revolutionary thoughts of Chinese leader Mao Tse Tung who call their organization the Canadian Communist Party (Marxist-Leninist)—fought with police in Ottawa and with anti-war demonstrators in Vancouver Saturday.

Another anti-war demonstration in Edmonton went more smoothly as a native organization joined leftists and other anti-war sympathizers to condemn the Trudeau government for "complicity" with American participation in the Vietnamese war.

Participants in the three demonstrations numbered an estimated 2,400-1,500 in Ottawa, 600 in Edmonton and 300 in Vancouver.

For about 2,300 of those demonstrators the focal point was predominantly the demand for U.S. withdrawal from Vietnam and an end to Canadian military co-operation with the U.S., on the grounds that Canada is indirectly participating in the war.

The emphasis was generally on bringing peace to Southeast Asia.

For the Maoists, who numbered between 75 and 100 well-disciplined militants in Ottawa and between 25 and 30 in Vancouver, the main theme was "escalate the war" in Vietnam and fight for an overthrow of "imperialist" and "fascist" governments everywhere.

The war they say they want escalated in Vietnam is the "war of national liberation" being fought by the pro-Communist forces in Southeast Asia.

They oppose both Nixon and Russian "fascism."

In Ottawa 18 persons were charged after a violent, bloody clash between the police and Maoists brandishing red flags and copies of Thoughts of Chairman Mao.

Charged with assaulting a police officer were: Barbara Riley, 20, Ottawa (three counts); Paul Levesque, 21, St. Jerome, Que.; Martin Bracey, 24, Ottawa (two counts); Lory Rice, 19, Sherbrooke, Que.; Rod Rupert Wilczak, 24, Vancouver, and Jean Paul Cyr, 19, Montreal.

Charged with causing a disturbance by fighting were: John Kelsey, 23, Toronto; Fred Vickerson, 28, Lachine, Que.; John Pierce, 21, Toronto; Arnold August, 25, Montreal; Robert Cruise, 27, Toronto; Barry Carlsen, 21, Winnipeg; Marcel Pleau, 21, Montreal; Robert Walker, 20, St. Laurent, Que.; and George Rousseau, 28, Ottawa.

Pierce and Howard Singer, 18, of St. Laurent, Que., were charged with causing a disturbance by using obscene language.

Protesters swung fists and the poles from their placards while police swung billies.

A number of combatants on both sides were bruised and bleeding.

The main demonstration, which was separate from the Maoist protest and which didn't arrive at Parliament Hill until the battle was over, wound through city streets from the University of Ottawa to the hill.

Keynote speaker was David Lewis, deputy leader of the New Democratic Party. The Ottawa Vietnam Mobilization Committee sponsored the demonstration.

In Vancouver rain dampened the enthusiasm of demonstrators and scuffles with Maoists effectively ended the proceedings.

After the demonstration had marched 1½ miles through the city opposing factions tried swinging with each other as they pushed up and down the steps of the city courthouse trying to gain control of the speakers's platform.

There were no apparent injuries and no arrests were reported.

Featured speaker Cy Gonick, editor of Canadian Dimension magazine an NDP member of the Manitoba legislature was forced to cut short his speech and relinquish his bullhorn.

Trucker Charged

ROCKLAND, Ont. (CP) — Maurice Gauthier, 36, of Ottawa, has been charged with having an insecure load following an accident on the Trans-Canada Highway Thursday in which three people died.

Gauthier was the driver of a truck loaded with pulp logs.

A car driven by Donald MacDonald, 34, of Montreal, struck a log on the road and collided with another car driven by 36-year-old Kuldit Singh Manjah of Ottawa.

Management Expert Speaks Out

Half Those Over 55 Should Be Fired

TORONTO (CP) — Half the employees over 55 in any company, says a management expert from Detroit, should be fired in the next three to five years.

And adds William R. D. Martin, director of the management centre of the University of Michigan and Wayne State University, half the younger employees should also be fired—but not necessarily at the same time.

Mr. Martin also told the Personnel Association of Toronto that Canadian companies should start their firings immediately, especially if they are owned by United States firms.

"If you don't . . . your U.S. parents will do it for you—and with less consideration."

Mr. Martin told employers to get rid of their Old Charlies to make way for the "young chargers," development men who must be moved in and up.

At least five U.S. corporations are engaged in this process, he said.

One member of the audience asked: "Where do all the Old Charlies go after all the generous settlement that lasts about 18 months?"

Replying that five U.S. firms are paying all social security for fired employees for 10 years in retirement, age as part of the "buying off," Mr. Martin panted his mid-section and said:

"What you can't do is let it get you here. It sounds harsh, but you'll get ulcers and that's no good."

Mr. Martin, born in St. Thomas, Ont., but a U.S. resident for several years, said studies indicate that 40 per cent of discharged employees find other work and are "happy doing bookkeeping three days a week."

An Old Charlie, he said, is someone "who has retired mentally but is still on the job."

"He has reached his level of incompetency. He is blocking promotion. He cannot be promoted."

At age 62, such a man could be tolerated as an "assistant to" but at 48 to 51 he could be given a year of direct supervision—"eyeball to eyeball and belly to belly"—before being promoted or fired.

Mr. Martin was less specific in his suggestion to fire half the younger employees, but suggested that departments might grade personnel down in five divisions.

The top 10 per cent would be kept and the bottom 10 per cent dismissed immediately, he said, and the remaining 80 per cent would be sorted according to "some sort of plan."

Mr. Martin encouraged corporations not to become "sleeping" corporations without drive or initiative or "the world will eventually will step in and do the job and charge you for it."

New Products Seen as Key To Maritime Economic Survival

HALIFAX (CP) — Ernest Bacon, a tall lean Yankee who describes himself as a gadgeteer, believes Nova Scotia's economic survival depends on the development of new products.

As the Nova Scotia Research Foundation's new products research officer, he preaches the need for "the right kind of new products" that will use the "tremendous" skills and untapped ingenuity of Nova Scotians.

He says Nova Scotians, instead of developing new products, supply captive markets with conventional ones, and experience lower profits when conventional fields become competitive.

Part of his job, as he sees it, is to get people thinking creatively so that new products can be developed here.

He has worked out some sophisticated techniques to encourage creative thinking among professional people, businessmen and plant managers.

Mr. Bacon holds "brainstorming" sessions with a group of not more than six persons at a time which a flow of ideas is encouraged. Inhibitions are broken down and evaluations are suspended. One technique is to get the group to indulge in fantasies and by use of metaphors and analogies to come up with fresh ideas and inventions.

Mr. Bacon says an hour-long group session of six persons (the ideal number) will bring forth 100 new ideas, four of which will be found to be feasible, and worth developing.

How many group sessions are needed to develop ideas depends on the group. One session was sufficient for a group of professional people who wanted ideas on what kind of new business to start.

Education has nothing to do with creative thinking, though intelligence is probably an important factor, Mr. Bacon believes. He held a session with a group of factory workers who came up with ideas as valuable as any produced by managers.

Mr. Bacon spent 15 years in the United States developing new products before coming to Nova Scotia in 1960. He joined the Nova Scotia Research Foundation, a provincial research agency, in 1967, and has been teaching creative thinking techniques since 1968.

He says it takes about five years to change the way people think and now he is beginning to see his efforts bear fruit.

He finds younger people in Nova Scotia are becoming "much interested" in motivation and creative thinking as a means of problem solving.

Mr. Bacon, who came to Nova Scotia in escape "the rat race," describes himself, not as an engineer or an inventor, but as "an idea man." He is an enthusiastic participant in several sports, including hockey and baseball and is "very much interested in people."

He believes Nova Scotia has one distinct advantage in the development of new products. In the United States, businesses watch one another for new products to copy. Because the province is off the beaten track, Nova Scotians could "sneak a new product on the market before anyone noticed."

Orangemen Protest Changes

BROCKVILLE (CP) — The Orange Lodges of eastern Ontario passed resolutions Saturday protesting Canadian government actions and proposed legislation which they claimed break the link with the commonwealth and the monarchy.

Concluding a four-day convention, the 800 delegates condemned removal of the Crown from official documents and buildings and the removal of the Queen's portrait from stamps and currency.

Another resolution opposed the changing of Dominion Day to Confederation Day.

The Orangemen also attacked the province's support of separate schools and delegates were told to contact their local MPPs to protest any extension of such aid.

Club Will Aid Leger in Work

TORONTO (CP) — The 300 members of the 25-and-up Club for single persons decided over the weekend to support projects surgested by Paul-Emile Cardinal Leger, who resigned as Roman Catholic archbishop of Montreal in 1967 to work with lepers in Africa.

Andre Vercoe, executive director of Cardinal Leger and his Endeavors, a Montreal-based foundation, told the group the Cardinal has listed 40 projects that groups could adopt.

They range from buying a jinsle for $69 to building a medical clinic for $20,000 and setting up a training centre for handicapped people in Africa at an estimated cost of $1,300,000.

Violence Solves No Problems -- Reuther

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Declaring "violence solves no problems," Walter P. Reuther told delegates to a convention of his United Auto Workers Sunday night that demonstrators may attempt to "provoke you." He urged restraint.

The convention formally opens today and runs through Saturday. There are 2,170 delegates, with alternates and observers pushing attendance close to 4,000.

Reuther, the UAW president, named two groups as likely to picket the convention: The Dodge Revolutionary Union Movement (DRUM), which he said is "a handful of revolutionary black workers who want to destroy this union" and the Weathermen, an organization he described as "totally mad."

DRUM is made up of dissident members of a Detroit Chrysler union of the UAW. The Weathermen include ultra-militants who split off from Students for a Democratic Society.

"Avoid them," Reuther urged after saying he had reports the two planned to picket Convention Hall, where the UAW is meeting to frame its demands for 1970 contract bargaining with General Motors, Ford, Chrysler and American Motors.

He said the UAW has 300,000 blacks among its 1,600,000 members and that "no group can find answers alone—we've got to find them together."

Earlier Sunday, about 1,500 people, most of them UAW delegates, demonstrated on the boardwalk in support of making the union's number one new contract demand: Retirement after 30 years service regardless of age at a minimum pension of $500 monthly.

Reuther was nominated for a new two-year term as president on the slate of the caucus.

Blues Put Freeze on Penguins to Draw First Series' Blood

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Coach Red Kelly blamed a brief letdown by his Pittsburgh Penguins in the second period for their 3-1 loss to St. Louis Blues in the first game of the Stanley Cup semi-final Sunday night.

"We had a five-minute letdown and that was the game right there," Kelly said after the penalty-filled game. "It started with the power play."

The powerplay that killed the Penguins came early in the second period, Gary Sabourin of the Blues was off for charging when the Penguins also took a minor penalty.

Sabourin stepped out of the penalty box, took a quick pass from Jean-Guy Talbot and fired a hard shot from 30 feet out to beat goalie Les Binkley.

Centre Phil Goyette made it 2-0 less than a minute later when he backhanded the puck past Binkley from a goal-mouth scramble, and centre Red Berenson completed the rout when he swatted in a bouncing puck.

Ken Schinkel scored the lone Pittsburgh goal early in the third period when he got the puck at the side of the net with goalie Glenn Hall out of position and fired into the open goal.

The Blues, National Hockey League West Division champions, held the Penguins in check for most of the game and climbed on the Pittsburgh squad in several fights during the scoreless first period.

"They were trying to intimidate us right off the bat," said Kelly.

"That Noel Picard tried to run over our little men. Picard never picks on anyone his own size."

Picard tangled with the Penguins' Jean Pronovost in the first minute of the game and the ensuing battle saw four players go to the penalty box. Picard among them with a five-minute major.

Another fight erupted midway through the period when the Pittsburgh subs and four players went off with majors—Jim Roberts and Al McDonald of the Blues, and Tracy Pratt and Bryan Hextall of the Penguins.

A third scrap in the last minute of the period saw Hextall go off again with a minor, major and an automatic misconduct while Barclay Pilgon of the Blues got a minor and major.

The game took a quieter turn after that with no further bad-ies until the final buzzer, when several scuffles broke out and another handful of majors and misconducts were handed out.

In all, referee Art Skov assessed 134 minutes in penalties.

"I don't know why we started fighting so early," Picard said in the dressing room. "I think the guys were a little tense."

He said Pronovost had given him a high stick which seemed to start the first fight. Pronovost wound up shirtless and Picard took a slight cut on the bridge of his nose in the scrap.

Esposito Gets 3

Bruins Win Brother Act

CHICAGO (CP) — Phil Esposito was the hero and his kid brother Tony was the victim of the heroics Sunday as Boston Bruins took the home-ice advantage away from Chicago Black Hawks.

The Bruins defeated Chicago 4-3 in the first game of their best-of-seven, Eastern-division Stanley Cup hockey final.

The second game goes here Tuesday night, then the series switches to Boston for two games.

Esposito scored three of the Bruins' six shots that eluded brother Tony.

The first was a backhander and Phil said "I could have passed off, but the ice was bad."

"I don't terrorize anybody with my backhand—nor with my forehand for that matter."

Esposito scored both goals to send Boston into the second period leading 2-0. When the Bruins came out of that period, they were ahead 4-2 and Esposito had a triple, his second of the playoffs.

The other Boston goals came from Johnny Bucyk, John McKenzie and Ken Hodge.

Dennis Hull, Jim Pappin and Stan Mikita scored for Chicago.

Phil Esposito said he was "concerned about him." when he saw Tony felled by a puck fired by Hodge. The goalie was patched up and continued in the game.

"I don't like to see anybody get hurt, especially my brother," Phil said.

Tony said he was "stunned for a moment," but didn't blame the first-period injury for his poor play.

"I was just lousy," Tony said.

For the rookie goalie, winner of the Vezina Trophy and holder of the modern shutout record at 15, it was his worst peppering since Minnesota North Stars got to him for eight goals during a regular-season game.

Chicago coach Billy Reay had his own theory about his team's loose, uncoordinated play.

"We were like the referee and weren't very alert," Reay said.

"We sat around here for a week and everyone was telling them how great they were and that's just how they played—thinking they were great. Boston is a great hockey club. We must have had eight shots in the first period before they got one. But there's went in and that's what counts."

Phil Esposito said after the game it didn't matter who he was shooting against "when there's money riding on it."

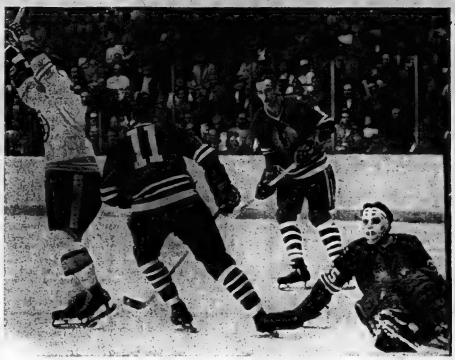
He said his first goal went in off his brother, the second was skying for ice—"any time I get a pass from Bobby Orr I shoot" —and on the third goal "Tony came out, he always does, and he expected me to shoot hard, but I lobbed it over his shoulder."

Boston coach Harry Sinden was elated that his club got the opening game jump on the Hawks.

"We hoped to get through the first period no more than a goal behind and we were hoping for a tie. Then we jump in front by two goals. When you can kill off a couple of penalties early in the game like we did, it gives you a big lift."

Two of Boston's goals came on the power play: Chicago got one while the Bruins were short-handed.

Boston was fresh from its six-game war with New York Rangers, in the eastern semi-final. Chicago appeared disorganized after the week-long layoff which resulted after they defeated Detroit Red Wings in four consecutive games.



Derek Sanderson, target of the capacity crowd most of the night, said later: "I don't know how many face-offs I got."

"I counted 18 in the first period and then quit counting. If you win every face-off, you're going to win the game because you are in control of the puck."

But il was t he brother-against-brother element that caught the imagination of the capacity house.

Not since Ken and Terry Reardon met in the 1946 Stanley Cup series had brothers faced each other in playoff action.

The last time a goalie was involved in a Stanley Cup brother act was in 1929 when Tiny Thompson guarded the Boston net against brother Paul, a forward with New York Rangers.

'My Own Brother!'

Chicago Black Hawks' goalie Tony Esposito, right, appears bewildered after Boston Bruins scored against him for first time in first period of Eastern playoffs in Stanley Cup Series. Tony's brother, Phil Esposito, not shown, of Boston, scored the goal. Raising his stick is John Bucyk (9) of Boston. Other Black Hawks are Doug Mohns (11) and Bill White (2). (AP Wirephoto)

CAMPERS CAN ENJOY MANY EXTRAS

Lavalee Tent and Trailer Park offers many extras in camping facilities which are rarely found in private or government camping areas. So popular has this area become that camp grounds and facilities are again being expanded to accommodate the ever growing demand.

Fortunately, there is plenty of room for expansion. Located on beautiful Lavalee Lake, the area spreads over 3,000 acres and includes several smaller lakes. With this large area, there are no unusual number of camp sites located at the water's edge — the most popular site for campers.

At Lavalee one can enjoy relaxed, informal camp life at its best with picnic tables, free fire wood, a safe sand beach, good fishing with bait and boats available, clean flush toilets, water and electrical connections for trailers.

Whether you're young or old there's always something to do. There are regular movies, nature trails and a 9 hole par 3 golf course. Other "extras" include a complete automatic laundry — a convenient store stocked with groceries and sundries — a dining lower — boat launching facilities — Sauna steam baths and hot showers — and a resident physician.

Lavalee Park is 22 miles from Belleville on the lower Faraday Road and is only 11 miles from Bancroft. Unlike most camp areas, you can make a reservation in advance. Write to Harold Scott, R.R. 3, Coe Hill, Ontario.

Jaster Earns One-punch Decision Over Dodgers' Davis

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Two blossoming no - hitters were broken up both ways Sunday in the National Hockey League — early and late.

Wayne Simpson lost his chance in the first inning but Tom Griffin let the suspense build a bit before losing his in the seventh.

Simpson, Cincinnati Reds' sensational rookie, shut out San Francisco 1-0 in a Sunday afternoon finale to Griffin's baffling Saturday, the Mets clobbered Philadelphia 7-0, St. Louis thumped Pittsburg 6-1, Chicago downed Montreal Expos 8-7, Houston nipped San Diego 4-3 and Los Angeles edged Atlanta 5-4.

Simpson, who has created quite a stir with two shutouts and three straight victories, surrendered a two-out first-inning double to Ken Henderson and nothing else. He struck out nine but experienced some control problems, walking seven.

Houston's Griffin gave up a first - inning run to San Diego on a walk, a stolen base and two ground outs, and then held the Padres hitless until Clarence Gaston doubled with one out in the seventh.

Simpson and Griffin increased to four the number of shutout pitchers in the NL in the last five days. Mike Torrez of St. Louis did it last Wednesday against Montreal and Nolan Ryan of the Mets turned one in Saturday against Philadelphia.

Wes Parker clouted a two-run homer and Ted Sizemore cracked three straight hits, giving a 14-hit Los Angeles attack that carried the Dodgers past Atlanta. Alan Foster rode the heavy hitting to his second victory in three decisions.

The battle between Jaster and Davis broke out in the eighth inning.

Davis was backed away from the plate with a close two-strike call. Davis exchanged down the first base line. As the ball rolled foul for the third strike, Davis exchanged words with Jaster and then punches.

After taking less punch, Davis sprinted away from Jaster and into the Dodger dugout as both benches emptied.

"I accused him of throwing at me deliberately," said Davis.

"When he ran," said the pitcher, "I just gave up."

* * *

The Phillies ended a seven-game losing streak, pushing over two 100-inning runs in beat New York and Jerry Koosman in the first game of their doubleheader. Hits by Larry Hisle and John Briggs drove in the runs and Rick Wise, went the distance for the victory.

Don Clendenon drove in four runs — three on a homer — as the Mets blitzed Philadelphia in the nightcap. Winning pitcher Jim McAndrew kicked off a six - run rally with a double, and a single.

Brant Alyea, delivered four runs for the Twins at Oakland with a double and his fourth homer. Jim Perry checked the Athletics on six hits on the way to his third victory without a loss. Reggie Jackson homered for the hosts.

Welsh Pose Problem

LONDON (CP) — England's defending champion World Cup team ventured into Wales for the start of the British soccer championship Saturday and were held to a 1-1 tie. The English team, only two weeks away from a South American tour prior to the World Cup competition, produced a dull and disappointing display. It was only saved from its first international defeat in Wales in 15 years when Francis Lee scored the tying goal 19 minutes from the finish. In the other international clash, Scotland beat Northern Ireland 1-0 in Belfast on a goal in the 38th minute by John O'Hare. Irish winger George Best was ejected in the 44th minute for spitting and throwing mud at the referee.

Filion in Clutch

MONTREAL (CP) — Canada's Herve Filion won the first world harness driving championship Sunday with a clutch victory in the final race of the series at Bennets Raceway. The 30-year-old driver from Angers, Que., collected 15,813 points by winning the ninth race on the card and picking up 50 points. Filion collected a total of 472 points for the championship. George Sholty of Old Westbury, N.Y., collected 418 points for second place.

Johnson's Jam Sweet

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — "How sweet it is." That was reminiscent Jimmie Johnson's remark today after landing in a three-way tie in the $125,000 Greater New Orleans open golf tournament. Johnson, assured of at least $11,250, won second as official tour victory since 1959 when he won the Baton Rouge, La., open. Ready to battle big today in a sudden-death playoff for the $25,000 first prize were Miller Barber and left-hander Bob Charles, who birdied three of the last five holes to sport into the three-way tie at 10-under 278. Will Homemulk of Winnipeg shot a 72 Sunday after a 69 Saturday and finished with a 284 total. He won $1,813. Wayne Vollmer of Vancouver shot a 75 Sunday after a 74 Saturday and had a 290 total, good for $775.

Apps Does Damage

OMAHA, Neb. (CP-AP) — Omaha Knights won the Central Hockey League championship Saturday night, defeating Iowa Stars 7-5 and taking their best-of-seven final playoff series 4-1. Forward Bert Wilson scored his second goal of the night at the 18:20 mark of the third period to break a 5-5 tie and Syl Apps got an empty-net goal 10 seconds later to give the Knights possession of the Adams Cup. Apps' goal was his 16th during the playoff series, which tied the CHL record.

Kidd Joining Marathon Field

BOSTON (CP) — Canada today fielded one of its strongest distance teams in the Boston marathon as more tha 1,000 athletes representing 13 countries left suburban Hopkinton at noon and headed over rolling hills today Back Bay, Boston.

Toronto's Jerome Drayton, one of 91 Canadian entries, is expected to battle England's Ron Hill for first place in the 74th running of the marathon.

Drayton, who emerged as a world-class competitor at the 26-mile, 385-yard distance when he beat Hill at Fukuoka, Japan, last december, heads a seven-man Canadian Track and Field Association team, coached by Paul Poce of the Toronto Olympic Club.

Other CTFA team runners are Bob Moore of Toronto, fifth here a year ago; the Sarnia, Ot., pair of Ray Will and Andy Boychuk; University of Western Ontario student Wayne Yetman from Townsend, Ont.; members of the Hamilton Athletic Club and Ron Wallingford of Hamilton and Sudbury first.

Moore, third in last fall's first Canadian National Exhibition marathon, also is in position to challenge the Boston leader. Wallingford, formerly of McMaster University and now with the Laurentian University faculty, is a perennial Boston threat who has placed four times ago.

Bruce Kidd, making a comeback after recovering from heel surgery, is entered for the Toronto Olympic Club along with Lorne Buck, Charles Saxon, Peter Lever, Bob Fahy and John Mowatt.

Montreal has the biggest Canadian delegation with 21 runners, followed by 16 from Toronto, nine from Quebec City and six from Deep River, Ont.

Japan's Yoshiaki Unetani, who in 1969 sped to a Boston marathon record of 2:13.49, including marks at all six checkpoints, left most of the attention centred on the renewed confrontation between Drayton and Hill.

When the two tangled in Japan, Drayton posted a career-best time of 2:11.2, 41 seconds and 20 yards in front of Hill, the two-time Olympic and defending European marathon champion.

"Let's say I have a personal score to settle," the Englishman said.

Stewart Fans Flames

MADRID (AP) — Jackie Stewart, reigning world champion from Scotland, won the Spanish Grand Prix Sunday, driving to victory through flaming gasoline after a two-car collision and a gripping duel with Jack Brabham for 25 laps.

Stewart, driving a March, had an average speed of 87.16 miles an hour on the 190.38-mile test on the Jarama Circuit. He was timed in two hours, 10 minutes 38.2 seconds. Bruce McLaren of New Zealand was second in a McLaren Special while Mario Andretti of the United States, in a March, was third.

The 16 racers had only reached the second bend when the Ferrari of Belgium's Jacky Ickx and Jackie Oliver's BRM were involved in a collision.

Both cars burst into flames, spewing burning gasoline over the track. Oliver escaped unhurt; Ickx had multiple burns but doctors said his condition is not serious. He was strapped in his car and had to be pulled clear.

The drivers had to negotiate their way through flames for five laps before firemen brought the fire under control.

Brabham, who took the pole position at the start, was overtaken by Stewart in the 11th lap and the Scot never lost the lead again.

Lucy Casper Says:

THE "SQUARE" CHIP

Chip shots—those from five to 15 yards off the green with no intervening hazards—should be made very much like a long putt. I would recommend you use whatever putter stance and stroke you ordinarily do for a putt of 30-feet or more.

Keep in mind that the club face of—44 be square to the intended line throughout the stroke. I strive to maintain this square face and past impact. As in today's illustration, the face stays square to my wrist; don't turn over in the impact area. I know that by doing this the face will remain square at all times during the stroke.

Angels Sing Spriggs' Praises . . . Until Charity Ends at Home Plate

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

California Angels figured they had found a good friend in the Kansas City outfield Sunday, but then discovered charity ends at home for George Spriggs.

California and Kansas City were locked in a 1-1 standoff when Spriggs, the Royals' right fielder, lost Chicago Ruis' 11th-inning fly ball in the sun. It fell for a double, and when Joe Ascue followed with a single to right Ruiz confidently sprinted homeward with the apparent winning run.

But Spriggs nailed him at the plate with a perfect throw, killing the threat, and then contributed a key bant single as Kansas City scored three runs in the 12th for a 4-1 victory over the Angels.

In other American League action, New York Yankees divided a doubleheader with Baltimore Orioles, winning the nightcap 8-5 after a 4-3 setback, and Minnesota Twins downed Oakland Athletics 6-3. Bad weather in the midwest forced postponement of the Chicago - Milwaukee and Washington- Cleveland twin bills and the Boston - Detroit game.

Saturday, Cleveland - downed Washington 9-4, Baltimore nipped New York 5-4, Detroit thumped Boston 5-1, Chicago defeated Milwaukee 8-3, Minnesota whipped Oakland 11-5 and California walloped Kansas City 7-1.

The Royals broke the extra-inning deadlock at California Sunday on a passed ball by catcher Ascue in the 13th after a walk, a hit batsman and Spriggs' safe bunt filled the bases with none out. Amos Otis' double and Bob Oliver's single delivered two insurance runs.

Angels shortstop Jim Fregosi, whose run-scoring single in the eighth gave the Angels a 1 - 0 edge, committed a throwing error in the ninth, allowing Spriggs to score the tying run from second base.

Horace Clarke ripped five of New York's 17 hits in the nightcap at Baltimore and the Yanks wiklexed ninth-inning homers by Andy Etchebarren and Chico Salmon. Pete Ward's two-run triple was the Yanks' only extra base hit.

Mike Cuellar pitched a four-hitter in the first game and Dave Johnson drove in three Baltimore runs with a homer and a single.

"REPRESENTING THE EMPIRE LIFE INSURANCE CO. FOR MANY TYPES OF LIFE INSURANCE PLANS" by

Maurice Switzer

Sports Editor

Not many people have nice things to say about the National Hockey League expansion.

So Larry Mavety would just as soon say nothing at all.

"That's a bad question to ask," quipped the lanky Belleville junior "jr" graduate as he began his four-month hockey layoff.

What makes the question a "no-no" to Mavety is the fact he is coming off his best-ever season in three Western Hockey League outings. His 16 goals and 46 assists made "Mav" the Western League's top-scoring defenceman and an class in consideration for the "big time" as he has been in his three-year pro career.

LARRY MAVETY
Very Good Year

Denver coach Rudy Pilous put a temporary damper on Mavety's NHL aspirations when the Spurs bought him outright midway through the season.

"I didn't think so at the time but Rudy said that was the best thing that could happen to me," says Mavety, who had hardened hopes of moving up with the NHL's Los Angeles Kings. The Kings have a working agreement with Denver.

Although he won't be eligible for this June's NHL draft, beginning next year Mavety will have a better chance to catch an NHL roster, since Denver can now sell him to the club of their choice.

Mavety admits the kind of season he had this year bodes well for his big league hopes likewise.

"Yep. That's the best year I've had. Who can say why. It's just one of those things. But it still takes a few breaks to make it to the NHL.

"There are some guys up there that shouldn't be there, and others not there who should be.

"I could pick fellas in our league — like Rezmne and Sadlapic for Vancouver — but they might not even end up in the NHL next year with their own club, I guess anything can happen."

Mavety just missed being part of the Canuck powerhouse that impresses him so much today. He played his first pro season in Vancouver 12 goals, 23 assists, 164 penalty minutes) before they were the peasant-of-the-Western League power they proved to be this year. That year's Canucks missed the playoffs by one point.

A trade to Denver kept Mavety out of the playoffs the following season, and again this past winter although the Spurs came within three points of a berth.

His last taste of post-season action came in 1965-67 when he walked off with 75 scoring points and the International League's most valuable defenceman honors with Port Huron Flags.

This year's point outburst helped Mavety shed the villain image he had acquired around Western League rinks. "It's the same in any league," he mused. "Some players are the good guys, and some are the bad guys."

"The referees get on you until you show them you're out there to play hockey, too. Look at a guy like Howe. He gets away with an awful lot because they KNOW he can play hockey."

Nearly 400 penalty minutes in 290 Western League games no doubt contributed to Mavety's notoriety.

This summer holds local softball and possibly another session at Kingston's hockey school in store for Mavety, who this year won't have a senior baseball team to catch or hit .400 for.

Next winter's plans do not, repeat DO NOT call for a senior hockey stint in Belleville. In the wake of his best pro season, that rumor was sheer humor for Mavety.

"My wife told me that one when I was home for Christmas," he chuckled. "But I think I've got a few years left."

However many years as a hockey journeyman do remain, Mavety, only 23 next month, is already taking all his eggs out of one basket.

"Rudy (Denver coach Pilous) is coming up to see me after the June draft to talk about future plans. The Denver club has made about two million dollars in education and are starting a program to get the players involved.

"I think it'd be a good idea to take a business course."

Determined Dave Turns Attentions to 880

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

While Moira Secondary School athlete Dave Grant stands only 5 feet, 9 inches and tips the scales at a somewhat less-than-robust 135 pounds, he has managed to counteract the deficiency quite nicely by being slow, not too strong and possessing no special abilities such as an outstanding shooting touch in basketball.

Despite the fact that its peculiar blend of natural skills would seem to make him a prime candidate for school liberalism, Grant has used hard work and determination to make himself into an outstanding competitor in track and field, basketball and cross - country.

"I'd say that his biggest assets are determination and hard work", claims Moira "phys-ed" instructor Gord Smith. Both qualities were in evidence at the Bay of Quinte qualifying meet last year, as the Moira runner was the top performer in the senior division with first place finishes in the 440, 880 and two - mile events.

Grant went on to place second in both the quarter and half - mile to Trenton High School's Pat Lavcy, who was a standout this year with the University of Guelph track team.

This season, the 18-year-old grade thirteen student plans to concentrate on the half - mile and has shaved a good deal running the distance in under two minutes. His best previous effort was a 2:02.2 at the Central Ontario AAU championships in Toronto last summer.

Says Trojan coach Brian McKenzie: "Dave's always had good speed and endurance for a half-miler. We're working on building up his strength now."

Dave has been working on weights for the past three months in an attempt to build up his upper body strength. "I've been doing repeats with light weights," he says. "I'm never going to end up with bulging biceps, but I hope the training will help my running style. When one part of your body breaks down it ruins your form."

He credits coach McKenzie with much of his current improvement. "Before I just went out and ran long distance," he says, "but he (McKenzie) started me running things like 220 sections, which has really improved my speed."

As a forward on the Moira basketball team, Grant combines adequate offence with outstanding defensive skills and surprising rebounding ability. He's got good strength in his legs and he surprises a lot of people by really getting up for rebounds" says senior basketball coach Dan Leiter.

"His biggest drawback is a lack of confidence. You have to convince him that he should take the easy shot rather than passing off."

"He's like a dam crab out there," claims one opponent, referring to Grant's scuttling movements on the floor and tenacious checking.

The Belleville native h a s pointed towards the 880 event this year by running cross country for conditioning and doing a large amount of speed work as a member of the Kinsmen Track Club last summer.

"I think one of the main benefits from the track club is the chance to run against really top notch competitors," he says. "It gives you a chance to study the styles of some of the best runners in the province."

Asked to compare the half-mile to the 440 and longer distance events, Grant offers: "I think the quarter is the toughest event to run — it's just as bad it's as all - out sprint for the whole distance. In the half you generally run the first lap for position and then sprint the second time around. Distance races involve more strategy, but you don't have the sustained kick that you get in the half-mile."

Dave said he is returning to Moira next year to pick up two grade 13 credits and then plans to enroll in the physical education course at Waterloo University.

Self-Starter

Moira Secondary School track star Dave Grant warms up before a practice session in preparation for the upcoming spring meets. After taking three firsts at Belleville's sectional meet last year, Grant has set his sights on the Bay of Quinte half-mile title. In addition to track, the grade thirteen student competes in basketball and cross country.

Prince Charles Sweeps Net Titles

Prince Charles girls followed the lead of their male volleyball - playing counterparts, as they captured the Girls' Invitational Volleyball Championship at Harmony Public School Saturday. Earlier, the boys' team had swept the title at the Parkdale Public School Volleyball Tournament.

The girls' championship team faced only one stiff challenge, edging Prince of Wales 15-13 in the final game. In previous contests they had beaten Queen Mary, Sir Winston Churchill and Holy Rosary.

Other entries in the 10-team, double elimination tourney were Bayview Crescent, GSD, Parkdale and Harmony. Harmony physical education teacher, Ruth Spencer supervised the event.

Midgets Plan Tuesday Workout

Belleville midgets, who hope to make a giant - size contribution to minor baseball association action this summer, will hold their first practice Tuesday at 6 p.m. on the Parkdale ball diamond.

Coaches Ron Lopresente and John Emerson will be putting their charges through their pre - season paces in preparation for the season opener, less than a month away. They emphasize that the workout will be open to any interested midget - age players from Belleville and the surrounding district.

Both coaches are confident of coming up with a top-flight contender in the 11 - team Eastern Ontario Baseball Association midget division. "We should have a good number of midget returnees and bantam graduates", says Emerson. "We're also hoping to lure two or three good players out of brief retirements and add some new blood."

Competition in the enlarged midget grouping will come from Oshawa, Peterborough, Whitby, Cobourg, Port Hope, Keene, Newcastle, Orono, Kendal and Deseronto.

Wheat Council Reports

Gloomy Future Seen For Grain Marketing

LONDON (CP) — A gloomy future for world grain marketing is forecast by the International Wheat Council in its latest study of consumption trends.

It figures that for the next five years, at least, the marketing trend will be downward, with consumers in the wealthier countries switching more to meat instead of cereals.

In the developing countries the consumption trend is upward for wheat and other grains but new seed and new production techniques suggest that most of this expansion will be met from domestic production.

The most dynamic growth will be in use of grains, including wheat, for animal feed but for the most part that growth is unlikely to offset the over-all marketing decline for cereals, says the study prepared by the council's secretariat and published today.

Certain specific types of wheat, such as Canadian hard varieties, may escape from the over-all decline. But the most that can be predicted for these exceptions is that the breadmaking needs for hard wheat in northwest Europe "is likely to remain relatively constant."

This forecast is based mainly on trends in the non-Communist world. The council, which administers international grain agreements, says that little is known about consumption trends in these "central-planned countries "but any increase in their imports of grains is unlikely to outweigh the falling requirements of the other economic groupings.

"Hence, the decline in world grains trade from the high levels of the mid-50s, which had become apparent by the end of the decade, would not be expected, on the basis of current consumption trends, to be wholly reversed in the near future."

The great world demand for meat indicates a sharply higher market for feed grains and wheat so far has played a limited part in this, world market because of its high price especially in relation to corn.

Powers Thinks Oswald Gave Tip on Spy Plane

NEW YORK (AP) — Francis Gary Powers says information supplied by Lee Harvey Oswald, identified by the Warren Commission as the assassin of President John F. Kennedy, may have made it possible for the Russians to shoot down his U.S. spy plane in 1960.

Powers was captured and imprisoned by the Russians after parachuting from his U-2 plane which had been shot down. He was released in 1962 in exchange for Rudolf Abel, who had been convicted in the United States of spying for the Soviet Union.

The story of Powers' experience is told in "Operation Overflight," a book to be published May 1 by Holt, Rinehart and Winston.

Some newspapers, including the Philadelphia Bulletin and Chicago Today, have published the first instalment of a serialization of the book.

The Pentagon had no comment when asked about the story Sunday.

Oswald, a former marine radar operator, defected to Russia in October, 1959, and that same month appeared at the U.S. embassy and announced his intention to renounce his U.S. citizenship.

Powers notes that Oswald, according to the Warren Report on Kennedy's assassination, told the American diplomats that he had offered to give the Russians any information he had on marine corps operations. They intimated that he might know something of special interest."

Powers says in the book that it is "tantalizing" that one document among the Warren Commission papers, in the National Archives, No. 231 dated May 13, 1964, remains classified as top secret—a document entitled "Oswald's Access to Information about the U-2."

The uproar that followed the shooting down of Power's U-2 by the Russians led to the collapse of a summit conference about to start in Paris between President Dwight D. Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

"That dog just doesn't have refined tastes—these Doggie-Yummies taste much better with strawberry jam than they do plain."

SAC Training Flights Protested in West

NORTH BATTLEFORD, Sask. (CP) — About 200 demonstrators gathered at the North Battleford Airport Sunday to protest the United States Strategic Air Command low-level training flights by B-52 bombers over Saskatchewan and Alberta.

The young demonstrators came from Prince Albert, Regina, Saskatoon and Moose Jaw. A small number of North Battleford residents took part in the march and picketing of the SAC ground installations, which contain the radar and computers for electronic scoring of the training flights.

A group of counter-demonstrators argued with the protesters and removed signs placed on the vans containing the equipment.

Former Dictator Wins Presidency in Colombia

BOGOTA (AP) — Former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla appeared today to have been elected president of Colombia, thanks to divisions in the conservative-liberal coalition formed 11 years ago to end his dictatorship.

The unofficial tabulation with 95 per cent of the vote counted showed the 70-year-old retired general ahead of Misael Pastrano Borrero, official candidate of the governing National Front, by 34,000 votes. Pastrana had 1,464,000 votes, Pinilla 1,440,000, moderate leftist Belisario Betancur 455,000 and rightist Evaristo Sourdis 174,000 votes.

Official results so far put Rojas in the lead by nearly 22,000 votes, with 1,117,902. Pastrana had 1,095,146, Betancur 353,697 and Sourdis 157,438.

Rojas's apparent victory was a major setback for the divided National Front and President Carlos Lleras Restrepo. Both Betancur and Sourdis ran as breakaway candidate from the National Front, taking the margin of victory from the official candidate.

Rojas proclaimed himself president-elect for the four-year term starting Aug. 7 and said he was elected because of resentment against "exploitation by the oligarchy."

Government Minister Carlos Augusto Noriega said the government would not accept the outcome "until the last vote is counted."

Rojas's daughter, Maria Eleta, 37, managed her father's political comeback campaign on a populist platform promising to lower taxes, revalue the peso, reduce inflation, and nationalize the import trade.

U.S. Nuclear Tests 'Threat to Freedom'

OTTAWA (CP) — U.S. nuclear tests are a greater interference with freedom of the high seas than Canada's proposed 100-mile pollution protection zone, the Canadian government told the U.S. last week in a note.

A summary of the diplomatic note, tabled in the Commons Friday by External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp, said Canada takes the view that a danger to the environment of a state constitutes a threat to its security.

The Canadian Arctic waters pollution prevention legislation was to meet such a threat "and is of a different order from unilateral interference with the freedom of the high seas such as, for example, the atomic tests carried out by U.S.A. and other countries which, however necessary they may be, have appropriated to their own use vast areas of the high seas and constituted grave perils to three who would wish to utilize such areas during the period of the test blast."

It referred specifically to the 50-mile area cordoned off for the test at Amchitka Island off Alaska in October, 1969.

Eight Businessmen Robbed of Luggage

MONTREAL (CP) — Quebec Provincial Police have issued a warrant for a man who allegedly lured eight businessmen out to a Laurentien resort hotel on a false business venture and then stole valuables worth $70,000.

A QPP spokesman from the St. Jerome area, 40 miles north of Montreal, explained the man's operation this way:

He placed an advertisement in The Wall Street Journal asking for a U.S. executive willing to head a Canadian industrial development to be constructed in the St. Jerome area. He listed a Montreal business office and telephone.

Through the advertisement he was in touch with eight businessmen and invited them to a hotel for a business conference, asking that they bring their wives along.

He paid expenses such as air fare, rented cars, food and hotel rooms. He also hired a security guard, to watch over the groups' valuables.

When the businessmen arrived they were informed that the man had been unable to acquire a sufficient number of rooms and he would drive them to another nearby hotel by rented limousine service.

As there was not enough room in the limousines for their luggage, they were told a local taxi would take the luggage, accompanied by the man himself to insure its safety.

The man and luggage disappeared.

Most of the items stolen were furs and jewels the women had brought with them along with a large number of credit cards.

Scotland Yard's Grey Fox Is Dead

LONDON (Reuters) — Detective Chief Superintendent Tommy Butler, The Grey Fox of Scotland Yard who tracked down Britain's Great Train Robbery gang, died in a London hospital today. He was 57.

Butler retired Dec. 31, 1963, less than two months after he captured Bruce Reynolds, last of 15 men wanted in connection with the 1963 robbery of the Glasgow-to-London mail train, which netted £2,500,000 (then $7,500,000).

Butler was admitted to London's Westminster Hospital last month, suffering from a chest ailment.

Butler took over the case five days after the robbery and twice postponed retirement to stay on the trail.

The only one of the gang still on the run is Ronald Biggs, who escaped while serving a 30-year sentence for his part in the robbery.

Butler caught Ronald Edwards in 1966, then two years later recaptured Charles Wilson near Montreal.

Later in the same year he arrested Bruce Reynolds in the English resort town of Torquay and saw him sentenced to 25 years in prison.

As news of Butler's death spread through London's underworld, one of the men who had feared Butler for 30 years said: "Mr. Butler—criminals always called him 'Mister'—was a hard man but straight. He was a gentleman."

A colleague at Scotland Yard once described him as a walking criminal records office. "He had a phenomenal memory for faces and could melt into the background in a pub and call there matching faces to criminal record files."

It was this ability to melt into the background and his uncanny instinct that earned him the nickname The Grey Fox.

His police career began at 22. Four years later he joined the criminal investigation division and four years later became a detective sergeant. Within 10 years he was detective chief superintendent, in command of all detectives in west London.

Toronto Reunion Is Staged By First World War Flyers

TORONTO (CP) — The First World War Flyers' Reunion ended Saturday but not before 225 veterans renewed acquaintances and exchanged thousands of words about flying in those early days of the air age.

W. F. Hendershot, 73, of Harrow, Ont., and Cecil Moore, 70, of Bermuda, who flew together with the 19th Squadron, Royal Flying Corps, and hadn't seen each other for years, said they never stopped talking since the reunion began Friday.

They recalled, for example, Oct. 31, 1916, when nine of the canvas-covered escort planes went out to accompany the Distinguished Flyers.

"The Germans came at us with 50 to 60 machines and only three of us got back," said Mr. Moore. He was one of the youngsters at the reunion at which the average age was 75.

One of the highlights of the gathering was a visit to the de Havilland aircraft plant where the veterans saw a Sopwith Pup take off and land.

"It made me remember my own Sopwith Pup," said Alex C. McCallum, 76, of Niagara Falls, Ont. "But we landed in a field. There was no pavement like now."

"They were a very lovely machine," said Mr. Hendershot.

"We trained in them."

Asked what he thought of the changes in aviation since his flying days, Mr. Hendershot said "I haven't done any flying since the war, so I can't compare.

Harold Ireland, 81, of Dundas, Ont., who flew with the Royal Naval Air Service after learning to fly in San Antonio, said the planes of the First World War were not as flimsy and unsafe as modern experts say.

"You see things now about how frail those buses were, but we didn't think so."

Mr. Ireland, who was shot down once, said he saw action almost every day and shot down only two, maybe three enemy planes.

At the reunion, he said he recognized only a few people.

Normal Mail Delivery Still Weeks Away in Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Despite the hiring of 182 new mail truck drivers, normal delivery will not return for about three weeks, a post office spokesman said Saturday.

The spokesman said in an interview the post office could not hire and train 300 men in only three days.

Only 94 of the newly-hired drivers were to be on duty today and the post office was to continue using rented trucks until all the new men were fully trained.

The spokesman said there could not be normal delivery until some letter boxes, damaged by vandals, are returned to the streets.

In addition, delivery trucks were able to make only one run a day to substations.

Except for a brief demonstration by some former postal drivers outside a downtown hotel Sunday, no other incidents occurred in the dispute between former G. LaPalme Inc. drivers and the post office over the weekend.

At the reunion, he said he recognized only a few people.

Chretien Thinks U.S. Will Abide by Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — Northern Affairs Minister Jean Chretien expressed confidence Saturday that the United States and other countries will abide by Canada's assumption of pollution jurisdiction in the Arctic.

Mr. Chretien appeared on the CBC public affairs show Encounter.

Referring to the United States, he said "it's true that if they come up there with . . . hundreds of warships and tell us to go to hell, they can do that."

But, said Mr. Chretien, "there is common sense in the United States and they will recognize that there is a danger."

If American warships did come, he said, "we can try that too."

"I don't know if we will win with what we have as an army. They come up there with . . ."

Weather Mixed

Above-normal temperatures are expected in most of the prairie provinces and northern Ontario in the next 30 days, according to the long-range forecast of the United States weather bureau. Below-normal readings are forecast for the Maritimes and southern British Columbia. Precipitation will be light in Quebec and northern parts of Canada and moderate in most other areas. The outlook is not a specific forecast and changes may occur.

Employment News

By J. R. STAVELEY

The local employment picture during the past week showed the following labor demand trends as represented by job vacancies listed with this office by employers.

The overall demand for all clerical workers was slightly stronger than that during the previous week. There was an improvement in the labor requirements from construction activities, with a continuing demand from the service field. A weak area of the labor market is the decreased demand from the community industrial complex. This attention applies to both the male and female worker seeking industrial plant employment. Moreover, it is of serious concern to those plant workers who have been laid off as a number of local plants.

The local farmers are now becoming very busy at their spring grain planting. In this connection, Mr. M. Collins is the Manpower Counsellor at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre who looks after agricultural requirements. An yfarmer having such a requirement is invited to contact Mr. Collins by telephoning 962-9561.

It is drawn to the attention of all employers that, at the present time, a considerable number of persons, both men and women, are registered at the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre immediately available for, and seeking work. These persons have a wide range of skills and potential to offer an employer.

Employers who have a labor requirement or who will have one in the immediate future are invited to contact this office at 324 Church St., Belleville or telephone 962-9561 at their earliest convenience.

Augmenting this present labor supply will be the increased number of students who will be looking for temporary summer work this year. The initial influx of university undergraduates has already commenced in our community. In the next two weeks, practically all of these young men and women will have returned to their homes to look for any type of temporary work. Later in the season, there will be the students from the local high schools and the community colleges. It will be a difficult summer for many of these students.

In view of the present labor market, the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre will operate a separate Student Employment Centre located at 370 Pinnacle Street. Belleville from May through to August, entirely for student summer work. This Student Employment Centre will be operated by two young undergraduates. This arrangement means the experienced Manpower Counsellors at the regular Canada Manpower Centre, located at 324 Church Street, Belleville, can devote their attention and services to their regular clients, which include the family bread winners.

The role of the Belleville Canada Manpower Centre in the wellbeing of the Community is a close one. It is also your service, and we invite you to use it.

Passengers Are Injured As Jetliner Explodes

ROME (AP) — A Scandinavian DC-8 jetliner with 75 persons aboard exploded into flames shortly after beginning its takeoff run at Fiumicino Airport here Sunday. Twenty-three passengers and three crew members were hurt, some of them suffering burns as they slid down a flaming escape chute.

Seventeen of the injured were admitted to a Rome hospital. The others were treated and released.

The explosion ripped through the No. 1 engine on the airliner's left side, shooting off shrapnel-like pieces of metal that punctured one of the two main fuel tanks, said the captain, former RAF pilot John Boden.

MEMBER NAMED

HALIFAX (CP) — Brian Flemming, Halifax lawyer and lecturer in international institutions with Dalhousie University's faculty of law, has been appointed to the newly-formed commission for strategic and international studies. The commission is to plan a series of academic projects or programs to be carried out by members of academic communities across Canada. Flemming is the only member from the Atlantic provinces.

Rubber Workers in U.S. May Go Out on Strike

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Threat of a possible country-wide rubber workers strike loomed today, with negotiators for the four big rubber companies facing a midnight contract expiration deadline.

Members of the United Rubber Workers Union have given their leadership strike authorization if there is no progress by the time the old contracts expire.

There has been a complete blackout on negotiations, but no indications of progress were reported in talks Sunday. Talks continue today.

Companies affected include Uniroyal, Firestone Tire and Rubber Co., B. F. Goodrich Co. and Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co.

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange were down moderately in light mid-morning trading today.

On index, industrials were down .65 to 177.72, western oils 1.42 to a new low for 1970 of 171.40, golds .47 to 168.53 and base metals .15 to 113.56.

Losses outnumbered gains 141 to 77 with 187 issues unchanged.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 324,000 shares, compare with 482,000 at the same time Friday.

CDP Investors was up ¼ to 5. GTS Corp. of New Orleans has offered to acquire CDP shares at the rate of four GTS shares for seven common CDP shares.

Trading in CDP was halted until 10:30 this morning while regulations governing the proposed move were checked.

Husky Oil, which is discussing a possible merger with Santa Fe, was up ¼ to 11¼.

Steico, which announced at its annual meeting that first-quarter earnings were up compared with the similar period last year, was unchanged at 23¼.

Consumers Gas, which announced settlement of a five-week strike, was unchanged at 15¼.

Genstar Ltd., which has offered to trade up to 992,854 of its common shares on a 2-for-1 basis for BACM Industries shares, was down ¼ to 11¾.

BACM did not trade.

Mini Locomotive

When Sidney Weeks of Trenton worked for the Grand Trunk Railroad in pre-World War I days, he fired a Hudson locomotive. Now retired, he has reproduced the early engine in model form, built to scale and fully functional under steam power. He would like to give this model to Trenton High School for permanent display.

Former Railroad Man Builds Own Engines

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON — The steam locomotive may be passe in Canada, but not in the McCann Street home of Sidney Weeks.

Mr. Weeks' basement workshop houses two replicas of actual locomotives and tenders (coal cars) which were constructed on the scale of three quarters of an inch to a foot.

Actually the replicas are much more than replicas — they are mini trains that work.

The steam engines in each of the models are delicate instruments which build up 125 pounds pressure per square inch compared to the 100 to 200 pounds per square inch for the engines in the locomotives they are patterned after.

"They work exactly like the real locomotives used to," explained Mr. Weeks — one, an American freight locomotive of the type used by the Hudson railway in 1925 and the second, the "Britannia", a British passenger variety still in use in England

"They are not toys they could blow up any minute, so you must keep water in them and treat them like the real thing," Mr. Weeks added.

Limited space and the sheer weight of the locomotives (the American model weighs 300 pounds, the British one 200 pounds) have prevented the 76 year old Mr. Weeks from operating his mini trains in recent years.

However he exhibited them at the Milton Steam Show six years ago and more recently at a Hobby Show in the Belleville Armories.

Using scrap iron and steel, stove pipes, taps and dyes and other necessities, Mr. Weeks began the five year task of building the American model back in 1938 during his spare time.

Making the fine parts on his steel lathe and drill press was an exacting task even for Mr. Weeks, who is both an engineer and a machinist.

The second model, the "Britannia", became Mr. Weeks' project in 1960 when he began his retirement.

This model, which took him three years to complete, is a "more polished product" and even has ball bearings in each of the three drive wheels.

It is interesting to note that although he was 66 at the time, Mr. Weeks constructed all the train's springs from his watch springs.

"He's loved engines all his life," Mrs. Weeks said of her husband who came to Canada from England when he was 12 years old and became a steam engineer at the tender age of 16.

Mr. Weeks' first practical railroad experience came in 1914 when he fired boilers in the Canadian Pacific Railroad's Trenton roundhouse.

He left the roundhouse where he worked 11 - and 13 - hour shifts for only 17 cents an hour. Moving to Belleville and the Grand Trunk Railroad, he earned $2.54 for a 100 - mile passenger run, or $2.75 for a 100-mile freight run.

"It was counted as a 10-hour trip to Mimico, but it always took 12 to 14 hours," said Mr. Weeks.

He also noted that at the same time, firemen in the switching yard were earning 25 cents an hour.

While with the Grand Trunk, Mr. Weeks worked on the Hudson freight locomotive, which he would later reproduce in model form.

Mr. Weeks left the railroad in 1916. He obtained a stationary engineer's licence and in October, 1921, became the youngest first-class stationary engineer in Ontario.

Mr. Weeks, who had lived in the Trenton district most of his adult life, has turned down an offer of $1,500 for his Hudson locomotive.

His intentions are more community spirited. He would like to donate one of his locomotives for permanent display at Trenton High School then "make another one before I quit."

Pollution Big Theme This Week

By JERRY BUCK

NEW YORK (AP) — The muck and mire of our polluted planet will be scrutinized in a variety of programs devoted to Earth Day activities Wednesday.

Every network has special programs examining man and his environment and covering nationwide activities of the environmental teach-in.

National Educational Television will devote its entire schedule to Earth Day. Three regular programs for children — Sesame Street, Misterogers Neighborhood and What's New — will deal with ecological themes.

NBC's Today show is spending the whole week on an in-depth examination of environmental problems.

ABC shows off its coverage tonight with Peace, No Return at 10.30 p.m. EST. Wednesday it has Earth Day: SOS for Survival at 11 a.m. EST. Friday night, the network will show Mission: Impossible, They Care for the Land at 10 p.m.

CBS's A Question of Survival at 10 p.m. EST Wednesday looks at the activities of the day.

NBC will cover many of the parades, demonstrations, folk sing-ins and prayer meetings live in a two - hour program beginning at noon Wednesday.

Beginning Sunday, May 3, NBC will inaugurate In Which We Live, the first regular series devoted entirely to ecology, to be seen at 3.30-4 p.m. EST.

Lauren Bacall Edges Kate Hepburn for Tony

NEW YORK (AP) — Lauren Bacall beat out favored Katharine Hepburn to win the Tony award Sunday night as best actress in a Broadway musical comedy this season.

"Oh, my goodness!" Miss Bacall gasped as she ran to the stage to accept the statue for her starring role in Applause, which also won the prize as best musical comedy of the year.

"It's the first prize I've ever gotten," said Miss Bacall.

Her rival, Miss Hepburn, won rave reviews for her performance in Coco, although most critics did not like that musical.

The Tony awards — Broadway's Oscars — were presented in ceremonies sponsored by The League of New York Theatres.

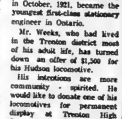
Cleavon Little won as best actor in a musical for his role in Purlie.

Tammy Grimes was named Broadway's best actress for her role in Sir Noel Coward's 60 - year - old British comedy Private Lives.

Fritz Weaver was named best actor for his part in Child's Play, which also won best director of the year for Joseph Hardy.

Borstal Boy, a dramatization of the memoirs of Brendan Behan, won as best play.

Barbra Streisand was awarded a special Tony as "star of the decade" by television personality David Frost, who commented that she already had "an Emmy, an Oscar, a Grammy, and now you have everything."



Rex Field was named best choreographer and best director of a musical for Applause.

Blythe Danner was named best supporting actress for her performance in the comedy Butterflies Are Free. And Ed Howard won as best supporting actor in Child's Play.

Melba Moore was named best supporting actress in a musical for her role in Purlie, and best supporting actor in a musical went to Rene Auberjonois for Coco.

Sir Noel Coward was awarded a special Tony for his 60 years as actor, playwright, producer, director, lyricist and composer in the theatre.

Hints on How to Avoid Trouble With Automatic Transmissions

By ROY STAPLEY

Never place the automatic transmission in gear when the engine is revving up too fast. I have seen many drivers start the engine, speed it up to the equivalent of 20 mph or more, then slam it into gear.

This is injurious to such parts as the universal joints, rear end assembly and the automatic transmission. In addition, fantastic pressure and heat are generated which can destroy the fluid, leading to a burned out transmission.

Fear of stalling seems to be the main reason for this abuse, but if an engine is at operating temperature and in proper tune, this is not necessary. It is also a bad practice, to hold a car with automatic transmission on a hill by revving up the engine. Use the brake.

While stopped in heavy traffic in hot weather, it helps to put the transmission into neutral and rev up the engine slightly to speed up circulation of the cooling fluid through the radiator. This aids cooling of both engine and transmission.

The question of when to change the automatic transmission fluid seems to be a source of great controversy. This can vary considerably depending on year, model and make of car. To be absolutely certain, it is essential that the instructions spelled out in the owner's manual are strictly adhered to. The fluid may deteriorate in time and will do so more quickly when overheated by abuse, such as savage acceleration or rocking the car back and forth in snow or mud.

Just like us, the automatic transmission has to breathe. Many an automobile has been resealed, overhauled or exchanged at high cost when, in fact, all that was needed was to clean the breather, allowing just plain air to enter or escape the unit.

If your automatic transmission fluid level drops suddenly, or if you see spots of fluid underneath the car, make absolutely sure the transmission has been checked before authorizing expensive repairs. Normal operating temperatures and fluid expansion build up pressure, and if the breather becomes plugged with dirt or other foreign matter, the fluid will be forced out of the dipstick tube or through the seals.

When the fluid leaks out, it can be very damaging to the transmission components and can even set the car on fire if it pours over a hot manifold.

I recall towing in a customer's car which had burst into flames on the highway. Everything under the hood was burned and the explosion was ruled. The total cost of repairs was well over $500. Examination showed the transmission breather to be plugged with mud — a problem that could have been solved in a few minutes at little cost.

Automatic transmission fluid can sometimes disappear mysteriously, leaving no trace of a leak under the car. On many cars there is a vacuum-operated control attached to the transmission case. If the diaphragm in this unit ruptures, fluid can be drawn out of the transmission and into the engine. As well as draining the transmission, this can cause rough gear shifting, blue smoke from the tailpipe, rough idling, heavy carbon deposits in the engine and ignition knock or ping.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Fainting Caused By Overbreathing

Hyperventilation is becoming a more recognizable term. A few years ago patients had no idea that it means overbreathing.

Often patients do not know they overbreathe. Unconsciously they breathe either too rapidly, too often or too deeply. Many sigh a lot or yawn a lot, losing greater amounts of carbon dioxide than normal.

This upsets the normal oxygen-carbon dioxide balance in the blood and causes such symptoms as nervousness, dizziness, apprehension, rapid pulse, palpitation, numbness, tiredness and acute anxiety.

Often, just being aware that one overbreathes is the first step to cure. The following letter from a youngster is interesting and informative:

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I would like to say something about your column relating to the 14-year-old with fainting spells. My symptoms were exactly the same, and they were due to hyperventilation.

Six years ago when I was in junior high school, it was an almost-unnoticed fad for kids to make themselves "black-out" by hyperventilating and then holding their breaths and tensing their abdominal muscles. (Now it's drugs that produce a similar effect.)

I never did this with other kids, but later I began it as an escape from difficult or unpleasant situations. I did well in school, had friends and all the other good things in life. "Adjustment," but I was always looking for escape from — well, anything or just diversion or maybe attention.

First it was pretty mild, but then it started to scare me. But I could not make myself stop breathing fast and deep. I'd get hysterical, numb in my hands and feet, and cry out with horrible headaches. When someone heard me, my pulse was really scrambled and I couldn't talk.

My folks sent me to a neurologist who took a brain wave tracing (EEG). He centered my hyperventilation, which can be a totally unconscious reaction. My doctor prescribed tranquilizers.

At times I'd have to rebreathe for a few minutes into a paper bag to stop the extreme spells. Now I'm okay since I am able to control my rapid and deep breathing. — Miss O.

• • •

For Mrs. T.: As a result of severe emotional upsets children have been known to keep picking at their hair until they were almost completely bald, and without eyebrows or eyelashes. Sending your daughter will not help.

I suggest that you have your family doctor recommend a psychiatrist who specializes in children's disorders. It is not a hopeless condition. I have seen a number of similar patients improve, regaining all their hair.

• • •

For Miss R.: The fact that you invariably break out a cold sore whenever you eat wheat products seems to indicate that your trouble may be allergy to wheat. Let your doctor check on this.

Meanwhile, try staying away from wheat products like wheat bread, wheat cakes, macaroni, biscuits, cake, etc. for anything you know is made from wheat flour.

Instead, substitute rice, corn or oatmeal products. Later on, after abstinence for a long while, you may find that you are again able to handle small amounts of wheat products without breaking out. Some patients lose their extreme hypersensitivity to foods.

Ontario Considering Full Pay to Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government is still considering paying 100 per cent of doctors' bills under the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan, Health Minister Thomas Wells said Sunday night.

"We haven't arrived at any definite answer yet," he said on the CFRB radio show Let's Discuss It. "I can still think of as many reasons for paying 100 per cent as (the present) 90 per cent."

He said most of OHSIP's problems have been ironed out and 75,000 claims are processed, daily.

Even if only one or two per cent go sour we have 10,000 to 15,000 people complaining. And we hear from them."

Mr. Wells said lack of standardization in doctors' billing procedures is a big problem but the government is not prepared to enforce "dictatorially" a standard pattern.

Mr. Wells said the government feels the present trend, expansion of medical care in rural areas because the majority of people belong to OHSIP. But he said the best solution would probably be clinics serving areas with a 75-mile radius, rather than the old-fashioned family doctor.

The provision of nursing home care is "a matter of urgency," he said, and the government has two committees working on it.

Colleges Cite Phony Costs

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

One of the phony and misleading standards I have learned to turn the spotlight on is the recurrent refrain by U.S. private colleges and universities that student tuitions and fees cover only a third to a half of the total cost of educating the students.

These figures are true only if you compute the total amount spent by the colleges for all its multifarious activities, most of which have little to do with genuine education or the pursuit of knowledge.

U. S. colleges and universities are gigantic custodial institutions. They involve a wide variety of functions besides teaching — and many of these functions exist far more for the sake of the faculty, the administration, the parents, the trustees, the alumni and public image than they have to do with the education of the students, who are low man on the academic totem pole.

Naturally, these functions and activities are terribly expensive, ranging from immense football stadia to elaborate research facilities, from publicity and promotion campaigns to proms and receptions and all kinds of freeze-out hoop-la that perplex and astonish European students and businessmen they may come into contact with the American college scene.

All this has absolutely nothing to do with getting or giving an education; and most of it, in fact, interferes with the primary purpose of a school — which is to instill a lifelong love of learning in the student. And it promotes triviality, false values, a decreasing level of unreality, and in Bob Hutchins's immortal phrase, provides "nothing but a sheepskin to cover the graduates' intellectual nakedness."

I would estimate that about the same percentage of a college's budget goes directly for education as the percentage of a government's budget that goes directly for rearming. That is to say, much if not most of it is drained off in self-serving activities that keep the faculty .r administration happy, tend to attract prospective donors, or make the parents feel that their children are being kept busy, quiet, amused, sanitary, and injected with higher earning power upon graduation.

Stephen Leacock, that wise and witty professor of economics at McGill, once said that if he were given a limited sum to start up a college, he would begin with a "common room" where the students could talk and drink beer. Then, with a little more money, he would build a good library. Only then, if he had more money, would he put up classrooms. Beyond that he would not go. Good talk, good books, and good teaching is what education is all about; and these altogether cost less than the massive new buildings that are mere memorials to vanity.

Final Week of Quebec Election Campaign Is Getting Rough

QUEBEC (CP) — Party leaders for Quebec's general election swing into their final full week of campaigning today after grueling weekend tours which featured accusations of dirty politics and disruption of meetings by separatist hecklers.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand pooh-poohed two polls which placed him third in popularity behind the Liberals and the separatist Parti Quebecois.

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa said he would make "no deal at any price" to form an alliance with the separatist party, no matter what the outcome of the election April 29.

Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, told voters to help him get rid of the Liberals, "that other old gang" he says he considers the main threat to his election hopes.

And Creditiste Leader Camil Samson was busy Sunday night waging verbal battle with separatist hecklers while accusing his political opponents of "hitting below the belt."

All four leaders met with enthusiastic crowds in their weekend campaigning, with Mr. Levesque getting the largest turnout in Arvida where 5,500 persons jammed into an arena.

Mr. Samson ran second-best on turnouts as close to 2,000 Creditiste supporters listened to campaign speeches in an east-end Montreal sports centre. Both Mr. Bourassa and Premier Bertrand averaged about 400 supporters at meetings near Quebec City and the Eastern Townships.

Mr. Bertrand accused the Liberals of being "lackeys of Ottawa," the separatists as "deceivers of youth," and the Creditistes as false prophets.

The 53-year-old Union Nationale chief, campaigning in his first election as party leader, scorned the popularity polls published in two French-language dailies Saturday and said:

"I would rather that the other parties won the consensus polls . . . while I win the election."

Mr. Bourassa, also heading his party as a new leader, said the polls, which placed him first, "are a strong indication that Quebecers are dissatisfied with the present government."

Mr. Levesque, also in the role of new leader and campaigning in the separatist party's first election, said the polls indicate one thing:

"The Union Nationale is finished . . . and now we must get rid of that other old gang, the Liberals."

Mr. Bertrand said the Creditistes, a wing of the federal party also campaigning for the first time in a provincial election, "are conducting a hoax in this election.

"Certain party members are trying to use scapular medals around their necks and religious parades to sell their wares. It is not by hanging a crucifix on every wall in our school system we will have 100-per-cent Catholics."

He also blasted Prime Minister Trudeau's statement in the Commons last Friday that blamed the present unemployment crisis in Quebec on the Union Nationale.

"It's the anti-inflation policies of the federal government which are responsible for unemployment here," Mr. Bertrand said.

Mr Bourassa expressed confidence everywhere his party will form a majority government after the election. But there would be no considerations of forming an alliance with the separatists.

He continued to hammer a pro-federalist stand and said "true federalism is Quebec's best hope for survival and growth."

He was met by separatist hecklers at one of his stops.

Mr. Samson, on the other hand, met with greater persistence by young separatist hecklers at his Montreal meeting and a shouting match ensued.

The separatist staged a well-organized demonstration as they hooted spectators and chanted separatist slogans.

At one point Mr. Samson told the audience:

"That's the kind of freedom they are offering you. That's their concept of democracy."

Real Caouette, the flamboyant federal Creditiste leader, also took the speaker's stand and said young people are intelligent "but they are being taught revolutionary ideas in Quebec schools by foreign teachers."

Ottawa Walk Kicks Off Miles for Millions

PUNCH

"Perfectly fair, Madam . . . It wouldn't harm a flea."

OTTAWA (CP) — Between $5,000 and 40,000 enthusiasts used their feet to raise money for projects in underdeveloped countries Saturday in Canada's kick-off Miles for Millions march.

A colorful crowd consisting mostly of young people left Parliament Hill early Saturday morning in an attempt to walk the march's 40-mile course.

By early Sunday morning, when checkpoints closed down, nearly 7,700 had completed the course.

Walkers are usually sponsored by friends and neighbors, and some of them earn up to $50 a mile.

Proceeds for the Ottawa march will go to 25 development projects overseas, ranging from family planning clinics in India to school construction in Honduras.

Receipts from the march will not be known for weeks. Sponsors pay according to the durability of their walkers.

Last year the Ottawa march collected $438,000, and this year organizers think they had at least as many as 1969's 37,000 participants.

Walks under Miles for Millions' auspices will be held in different Canadian centres during the spring, most of them on the weekend of May 2-3.

African Ancestors

On the West Indies island of Jamaica, only five per cent of the people are not descendants of African or mixed African ancestors.

Among the finishers this year, as last, was a 75-year-old grandmother, Mrs. J. R. MacGregor, who said she felt the briskness of the weather slowed her down . . . she took 13½ hours to complete the course this year, compared with 12 hours last year.

Lucien Bigras, an elderly gentleman who resides in a Vanier City nursing home, went all the way in a wheelchair.

He was pushed by Gilles Ethier, who works at the nursing home, and collected four dollars a mile from other residents who sponsored him.

Winter Ice Slows Manhattan's Voyage

ABOARD ST. LAURENT (CP) — Heavy winter ice has slowed the progress of the United States super tanker Manhattan and their Canadian ice-breaker on their voyage through the Northwest Passage.

The ships, working in tandem for the second day to ease the pressure of the 3½-foot-thick ice, covered only 10 miles in three hours before noon Sunday.

The Manhattan cut through ice twice as thick last year but has found the winter ice tougher than the summer ice encountered in its first trip through the arctic waters.

The two ships tied together overnight to transfer fuel and water from the Manhattan to the St. Laurent. Canadian divers took advantage of the tie-up to check the tanker's propellers, finding no damage.

The Manhattan is operating under full power and requested the St. Laurent, using two of its three turbines, to travel alongside.

The ships at times were less than 60 feet apart.

The ice, covered with up to a foot of snow, encircles the ships for as far as the eye can see.

Delite last summer when the Manhattan, accompanied by the Canadian icebreaker John A. Macdonald, always encountered some open water, the crews have found the ice presents evident this trip as the track opened by the ships closes within a mile astern.

Despite its full power, the American tanker has been halted by the ice each time the St. Laurent backs up for another charge.

Parking 'Ticket' With A Message

TORONTO (CP) — A motorist waving a yellow ticket stormed into a Toronto police station during the weekend, claiming he put money into the parking meter.

Then he calmed down enough to read the wording of the official-looking-but-phoney ticket:

"This is not a ticket, but if it were within my power, you would receive two. Because of your bull-headed, inconsiderate, feeble attempts at parking, you have taken enough room for a 20-mule team, two elephants, one goat and a safari of pygmies from the African interior.

"The reason for giving you this is so that in future you may thing of someone other than yourself. Besides, I don't like domineering, egotistical or simple-minded drivers and you probably fit into one of these categories.

"I sign off wishing you an early transmission failure — on the expressway at about 4:30 p.m. Also, may fleas of one thousand camels infest your armpits."

A traffic officer, between chuckles, denied the phoney ticket was the work of the police, but said: "The way some people park, I sort of wish it were."

Fugitive Train Robber Say Four Still Loose

LONDON (AP) — Ronald Biggs, fugitive member of the $7,000,000 Great Train Robbery gang, says Scotland Yard still hasn't arrested four men who took part.

Biggs makes the disclosure in a 28,000-word story of the 1963 robbery of the Glasgow-London express to be published beginning today in The Sun, a London newspaper.

Each page of the manuscript, it was reported, bore a thumb print of the 38-year-old fugitive from a 30-year prison term.

A spokesman said Scotland Yard's commissioner had "voiced concern that criminals and their associates should be seen to profit from their crimes." He declined further comment.

Reports said The Sun got around this objection by putting the purchase price in a trust fund for Biggs' three children. The newspaper dealt through an intermediary.

Biggs, reported seen last year in Melbourne, Australia, escaped from Wandsworth Prison in England in July, 1965. Another London newspaper, The News Of The World, said Biggs underwent plastic surgery in Paris before going to Australia.

Other known members of the gang are in British prisons serving terms up to 30 years.

Four Black Panthers Claim Police Assault

DETROIT (CP) — Four salesmen for the Black Panther Party's newspaper said Saturday they were abducted, assaulted and robbed Wednesday by four Detroit police officers.

Police Inspector Richard Boutin said Sunday the department would conduct a full investigation as soon as a formal complaint is made, but none has been made yet by the four black youths.

However, the four, speaking at a news conference, said they refused to file a formal complaint because police would take no action against fellow officers.

Billy Phillips, 17; Elesia Williams, 17; Michael Cunningham, 16, and Harriet Walker, 19, said they were returning to the party's offices, located in the core of Detroit's slums, when they were stopped by three police cars.

Mr. Phillips said the boys were told to get in one car and the girls in another. He said they were driven to the Grosse Point area, a wealthy white suburb about 10 miles east of Detroit's inner city.

He said the officers were white, all had removed their badges and one was a sergeant.

He said his arm was injured, Miss Walker suffered injuries to the head, and the others had minor injuries after they were assaulted in Grosse Point.

He said they were released and walked home after the officers took $37.50 from him and $11 from Mr. Cunningham.

If all your rugs are unusually clean, you already own the Eureka Regulator

Why are we so convinced the Eureka Regulator is the best upright cleaner on the market? We'll let the product speak for itself.

The Eureka Regulator adjusts to different pile rugs. So you can go way down for thin patio carpeting. Way up for the thickest shags. Or anywhere in between.

And the Regulator has its "one of a kind" adjustable control up on the front of the cleaner. And that makes a lot of difference. Unlike back-wheel-control cleaners, the Regulator puts the cleaning end of the machine parallel to the nap. So the suction takes everything in.

We make it like it's the only way to make an upright vacuum cleaner.

Well, isn't it?

Cong Guns Found

'Hold it! I was here first!'

SAANG, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian riflemen marched a group of Vietnamese civilians carrying a white flag into the teeth of Viet Cong automatic weapons fire today at the order of a Cambodian general.

Reuters news agency said there were more than 90 hostages.

The Vietnamese were told to ask the Viet Cong in the village 18 miles south of Phnom Penh to go away and let them live in peace. The Viet Cong opened up on the group, wounding at least two of the Vietnamese.

Gen. Sosthene Fernandez, military commander of Cambodia's Second Military Region, told reporters:

"It was a good way to discover where the Viets have their automatic weapons. Now we know where they are so the mission was an extremely fruitful one for us."

Buses brought the Vietnamese to Saang, the village on the Bassac River which the Viet Cong took over Sunday. The Cambodians said the Vietnamese were residents of Cambodia who had volunteered to "talk some sense" to the Viet Cong.

The Vietnamese were mostly Roman Catholics—men, women and children. Many prayed as they walked up the road.

In the middle of the afternoon the group set out on a road leading from the last Cambodian position through no man's land to Saang. Every 40 yards the group stopped and appealed to the Viet Cong by a portable bullhorn. They also planned to distribute leaflets in Vietnamese and Cambodian.

When the group reached a bridge just before the first structures in Saang, the Viet Cong opened fire. The Vietnamese and reporters with them scattered into banana fields as Cambodian troops answered the Viet Cong rounds. The Vietnamese and the reporters were caught in a crossfire.

Just Peace in Sight He Says of Vietnam

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (Reuters) — President Nixon signalled wider U.S. disengagement from the Vietnam war by announcing Monday night he will bring home 150,000 troops in the next 12 months.

But at the same time he warned Hanoi that it would be taking grave risks if its troops jeopardized the safety of the remaining U.S. forces while the withdrawal is taking place.

But at the same time he Nixon, speaking in a televised address from the California White House, said he is confident in the ability of the South Vietnamese army to replace U.S. forces in the front lines.

The U.S. withdrawal rate, between now and next spring, he disclosed, will take place at an average rate of 12,500 men a month—only slightly faster than the pace in three previous withdrawals totalling more than 119,000 men since the "Vietnamization" program began in July, 1969.

But the president sprang a major surprise by committing himself a year in advance instead of for quarter periods of three or four months.

While stressing that no progress had been made at the Paris peace talks over the last four months, Nixon said:

"The decision I have announced tonight means that we finally have in sight the just peace we are seeking."

His announcement meant that troop levels will have been dropped under his administration by 265,500 men by next April or May. Since the highest authorized troop ceiling was 549,500 when Nixon entered the White House, the new effective ceiling after the 150,000 pullout will be 284,000 men.

The president said he is clearly aware of the risks involved in his withdrawal program because of Communist military activity in Laos and Cambodia and stepped-up attacks by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam this month.

He then went on to repeat warnings he gave in announcing troop cuts in November and December. "If I conclude that increased enemy action jeopardizes our remaining forces in Vietnam, I shall not hesitate to take strong and effective measures to deal with that situation."

White House officials dropped remarks designed to suggest that the president had brushed aside reservations by the joint chiefs of staff and Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, who has been urging him to go slow and delay the next troops withdrawal.

Asked if Abrams had approved the president's new plan, the officials replied that it was not easy to persuade military leaders to believe they were as well off with 150,000 fewer troops than they were before.

While House officials said that the new program is irreversible under foreseeable conditions.

They reported that North Vietnam still is infiltrating troops and war material into South Vietnam and is capable of mounting serious attacks, chiefly to test the ability of South Vietnamese replacing American troops.

But they do not believe that the Communists have the strength to launch a massive military operation on the lines of their Tet offensive in February, 1968.

Nixon coupled word of his new withdrawal plan with an appeal to the Soviet Union to co-operate to settle the Vietnam war and turmoil he said was caused by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese military activity in Laos and Cambodia.

Castro Claims Nixon Ordered Cuba Invaded

HAVANA (CP) — Premier Fidel Castro charged Monday night that President Nixon has ordered the Pentagon to send mercenaries into Cuba.

Speaking at the funeral of five soldiers killed in clashes with counter-revolutionary forces in Eastern Cuba, Castro said:

"Nixon has now assigned the Pentagon, sadly known for its crimes in the world, the organization and recruitment of mercenaries for new Aggressive plans against our country."

Castro made the charges as Cuban troops and militia continued to hunt in the Sierra Del Purial mountain range for forces which landed in eastern Cuba Friday.

Castro claims these forces came from U.S. territory and he warned that they would suffer worse defeats than the Cuban exiles, backed and equipped by the United States, which conducted the Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961.

Four Billion Price Tag For Pollution Fight Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter Hickel said today the $4,000,000,000 the Nixon administration plans to spend on its program to curb water pollution is a reasonable price.

"We do not exaggerate the problems and we are not asking for a commitment of resources beyond what is needed and can be used effectively," he said.

Objections to the money figure have risen from some members of Congress who feel it does not commit enough federal funds soon enough and long enough to do an adequate job.

Outlining the administration's program before the air and water pollution subcommittee headed by Senator Edmund S. Muskie, Hickel said in prepared testimony the $4,000,000,000 figure, to be spread over four years, is all that can reasonably be spent.

Police Carry Daffodils So Seattle March Orderly

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Police said it with flowers and officials hope the results may start a new trend in crowd control.

As 6,000 marched through downtown Seattle Saturday, police armed with 450 daffodils watched but didn't have to do much.

In spite of earlier predictions of trouble, the crowd was orderly.

Acting Seattle Police Chief Frank Moore, who claimed credit for the daffodil caper, said Monday: "I'm sure the daffodils eased the tensions."

Moore said police across the country seem to be learning to laugh at themselves more easily.

In Washington, D.C., Moore said, police wear shoulder patches with a pig on them and the current in-thing among some of the boys in blue is sweatshirts and posters displaying a pig with a police hat, encircled by the words "Pig is beautiful."

Astronauts Will Relate Story of Their Ordeal

News Conference on TV

HOUSTON (AP) — The three Apollo 13 astronauts tell the world tonight the story of their space adventure—the oxygen tank explosion that crippled their spaceship and a four-day fight for survival to return safely home.

Earlier, they meet with the head of a review board named to investigate the accident that aborted the $375,000,000 moon-landing mission.

James Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert make their report at televised and broadcast news conference at 7:30 p.m. EST. They'll also narrate a film and slides they took in space.

Lovell already has given an indication of the feelings of the astronauts during their moments of peril, when he told a welcoming ceremony in Houston Sunday that there were times they felt they wouldn't make it back to earth.

The review board head, Edgar Cortright, flew to the Manned Spacecraft Centre Monday night. He will meet with the astronauts today, launching a lengthy investigation to determine exactly what went wrong 202,000 miles in space and what could be done to correct the problem.

Until a solution is found, all future Apollo moon flights will be grounded. While experts analyse the trouble, preparations moved ahead at Cape Kennedy for the planned Oct. 1 launching of Apollo 14.

"We'll proceed on a routine schedule until we're told to do otherwise," a space agency spokesman said.

Lovell, Haise and Swigert began Monday an extensive debriefing on the mission in a tape-recorded session with space experts.

Astronaut chief Donald K. Slayton and Air Force Maj. Lloyd Reeder, an astronaut training specialist, listened for eight hours as the spacemen recounted their trip, including the moment when an oxygen tank erupted, depriving the command ship of precious oxygen and power and forcing them to use the lunar module systems to save their lives.

Additional eight-hour sessions are scheduled each of the next nine days as the astronauts recall every aspect of the journey. They'll go over systems in the command and lunar ships, discuss medical details, assess the rescue procedures that got them home and make personal observations and recommendations.

Viet Cong Rejects French Peace Plan

PARIS (Reuters) — The Viet Cong guerrillas of South Vietnam Monday rejected a French proposal for new broad negotiations on Indochina.

Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the Viet Cong's self-styled provisional revolutionary government, told a news conference that the key to solving the problems of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos is for the United States to end "aggression" and let the people of these countries settle their own affairs.

"We think the proposition of the French government in these conditions cannot settle these problems," she said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: While a weakening storm centre hovered over Lake Superior, showers again spread into southern sections of the province. This weather pattern is likely to persist during the day. However, there is a good chance that the shower activity will taper off in southwestern areas this afternoon. Little change is indicated for central and northern regions on Wednesday but along the lower lakes some sunshine can be expected.

Brezhnev Urges Curb in Arms Race

MOSCOW (CP) — Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev today pledged the Soviet Union will work to curb the arms race and settle other international issues by negotiation.

"We shall continue our active effort to halt the ruinous arms race, secure disarmament and settle outstanding issues between states on a reasonable foundation, by negotiation," Brezhnev told a meeting opening the Lenin centenary celebration.

At the same time the party leader assured 6,000 dignitaries in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses that the Soviet Union will continue to strengthen its defences and to equip its army with the "most up-to-date weapons."

Brezhnev drew heavy applause when he said that only a Communist system could keep a steady flow of aid to North Vietnam and when he claimed that the "U.S. adventure in Vietnam is experiencing failure."

The delegates also gave him a ringing ovation when he accused Communist China's leaders of "breaking with Lenin's teachings" and said the men in Peking have "revealed themselves as renegades."

Four Billion Price Tag For Pollution Fight Defended

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter Hickel said today the $4,000,000,000 the Nixon administration plans to spend on its program to curb water pollution is a reasonable price.

"We do not exaggerate the problems and we are not asking for a commitment of resources beyond what is needed and can be used effectively," he said.

Objections to the money figure have risen from some members of Congress who feel it does not commit enough federal funds soon enough and long enough to do an adequate job.

Outlining the administration's program before the air and water pollution subcommittee headed by Senator Edmund S. Muskie, Hickel said in prepared testimony the $4,000,000,000 figure, to be spread over four years, is all that can reasonably be spent.

Police Carry Daffodils So Seattle March Orderly

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — Police said it with flowers and officials hope the results may start a new trend in crowd control.

As 6,000 marched through downtown Seattle Saturday, police armed with 450 daffodils watched but didn't have to do much.

In spite of earlier predictions of trouble, the crowd was orderly.

Acting Seattle Police Chief Frank Moore, who claimed credit for the daffodil caper, said Monday: "I'm sure the daffodils eased the tension."

Moore said police across the country seem to be learning to laugh at themselves more easily.

In Washington, D.C., Moore said, police wear shoulder patches with a pig on them and the current in-thing among some of the boys in blue is sweatshirts and posters displaying a pig with a police hat, encircled by the words "Pig is beautiful."

Cong Guns Found

'Hold it! I was here first!'

SAANG, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodian riflemen marched a group of Vietnamese civilians carrying a white flag into the teeth of Viet Cong automatic weapons fire today at the order of a Cambodian general.

Reuters news agency said there were more than 90 hostages.

The Vietnamese were told to ask the Viet Cong in this village 18 miles south of Phnom Penh to go away and let them live in peace. The Viet Cong opened up on the group, wounding at least two of the Vietnamese.

Gen. Sosthene Fernandez, military commander of Cambodia's Second Military Region, told reporters:

"It was a good way to discover where the Viets have their automatic weapons. Now we know where they are so the mission was an extremely fruitful one for us."

Buses bought the Vietnamese to Saang, the village on the Bassac River which the Viet Cong took over Sunday. The Cambodians said the Vietnamese were residents of Cambodia who had volunteered to "talk some sense" to the Viet Cong.

The Vietnamese were mostly Roman Catholics—men, women and children. Many prayed as they walked up the road.

In the middle of the afternoon the group set out on a road leading from the last Cambodian position through no man's land to Saang. Every 40 yards the group stopped and appealed to the Viet Cong by a portable bullhorn. They also planned to distribute leaflets in Vietnamese and Cambodian.

When the group reached a bridge just before the first structures in Saang, the Viet Cong opened fire. The Vietnamese and reporters with them scattered into banana fields as Cambodian troops answered the Viet Cong rounds. The Vietnamese and the reporters were caught in a crossfire.

Castro Claims Nixon Ordered Cuba Invaded

HAVANA (CP) — Premier Fidel Castro charged Monday night that President Nixon has ordered the Pentagon to send mercenaries into Cuba.

Speaking at the funeral of five soldiers killed in clashes with counter-revolutionary forces in Eastern Cuba, Castro said:

"Nixon has now assigned the Pentagon, sadly known for its crimes in the world, the organization and recruitment of mercenaries for new Aggressive plans against our country."

Castro made the charges as Cuban troops and militia continued to hunt in the Sierra Del Purial mountain range for forces which landed in eastern Cuba Friday.

Castro claims these forces came from U.S. territory and he warned that they would suffer worse defeats than the Cuban exiles, backed and equipped by the United States, which conducted the Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961.

Just Peace in Sight He Says of Vietnam

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (Reuters) — President Nixon signalled wider U.S. disengagement from the Vietnam war by announcing Monday night he will bring home 150,000 troops in the next 12 months.

But at the same time he warned Hanoi that it would be taking grave risks if its troops jeopardized the safety of the remaining U.S. forces while the withdrawal is taking place.

But at the same time he

Nixon, speaking in a televised address from the California White House, said he is confident in the ability of the South Vietnamese army to replace U.S. forces in the front lines.

The U.S. withdrawal rate, between now and next spring, he disclosed, will take place at an average rate of 12,500 men a month—only slightly faster than the pace in three previous withdrawals totalling more than 110,000 men since the "Vietnamization" program began in July, 1969.

But the president sprang a major surprise by committing himself a year in advance instead of for shorter periods of three or four months.

While stressing that no progress had been made at the Paris peace talks over the last four months, Nixon said:

"The decision I have announced tonight means that we finally have in sight the just peace we are seeking."

His announcement meant that troop levels will have been dropped under his administration by 265,500 men by next April or May. Since the highest authorized troop ceiling was 549,500 when Nixon entered the White House, the new effective ceiling after the 150,000 pullout will be 284,000 men.

The president said he is clearly aware of the risks involved in his withdrawal program because of Communist military activity in Laos and Cambodia and stepped-up attacks by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam this month.

He then went on to repeat warnings he gave in announcing troop cuts in November and December. "If I conclude that increased enemy action jeopardizes our remaining forces in Vietnam, I shall not hesitate to take strong and effective measures to deal with that situation."

White House officials dropped remarks designed to suggest that the president had brushed aside reservations by the joint chiefs of staff and Gen. Creighton Abrams, the U.S. commander in Vietnam, who has been urging him to go slow and delay the next troops withdrawal.

Asked if Abrams had approved the president's new plan, the officials replied that it was not easy to persuade military leaders to believe they were as well off with 150,000 fewer troops than they were before.

White House officials said that the new program is irreversible under foreseeable conditions.

They reported that North Vietnam still is infiltrating troops and war material into South Vietnam and is capable of mounting serious attacks, chiefly to test the ability of South Vietnamese replacing American troops.

But they do not believe that the Communists have the strength to launch a massive military operation on the lines of their Tet offensive in February, 1968.

Nixon coupled word of his new withdrawal plan with an appeal to the Soviet Union to co-operate to settle the Vietnam war and turmoil he said was caused by Viet Cong and North Vietnamese military activity in Laos and Cambodia.

Tass Says U.S. Continues War

MOSCOW (Reuters) — The official Soviet news agency Tass said today the number of U.S. troops remaining in Vietnam even after President Nixon's newly-announced withdrawals shows that Washington plans to continue the war.

Viet Cong Rejects French Peace Plan

PARIS (Reuters) — The Viet Cong guerrillas of South Vietnam Monday rejected a French proposal for new broad negotiations on Indochina.

Mme. Nguyen Thi Binh, foreign minister of the Viet Cong's self-styled provisional revolutionary government, told a news conference that the key to solving the problems of Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos is for the United States to end "aggression" and let the people of these countries settle their own affairs.

She think the proposition of the French government in these conditions cannot settle these problems," she said.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: While a weakening storm centre hovered over Lake Superior, showers again spread into southern sections of the province. This weather pattern is likely to persist during the day. However, there is a good chance that the shower activity will taper off in southwestern areas this afternoon. Little change is indicated for central and northern regions on Wednesday but along the lower lakes some sunshine can be expected.

Brezhnev Urges Curb in Arms Race

MOSCOW (CP) — Communist party chief Leonid Brezhnev today pledged the Soviet Union will work to curb the arms race and settle other international issues by negotiation.

"We shall continue our active effort to halt the ruinous arms race, secure disarmament and settle outstanding issues between states on a reasonable foundation, by negotiation," Brezhnev told a meeting opening the Lenin centenary celebration.

At the same time the party leader assured 6,000 dignitaries in the Kremlin Palace of Congresses that the Soviet Union will continue to strengthen its defences and to equip its army with the "most up-to-date weapons."

Brezhnev drew heavy applause when he said that only a Communist system could keep a steady flow of aid to North Vietnam and when he claimed that the "U.S. adventure in Vietnam is experiencing failure."

The delegates also gave him a ringing ovation when he accused Communist China's leaders of "breaking with Lenin's teachings" and said the men in Peking have "revealed themselves as renegades."

Stirling Footwear Workers Support Campbellford Strikers

At a meeting last night of the Boot and Shoemakers Union of America, Local 754, Stirling, and Textile Workers Union of America, Local 740, Campbellford, it was decided that the future of the town of Campbellford was at stake due to the textile workers' strike.

Marcelyn Robillard, International Representative for the Boot and Shoemakers Union predicted that, "due to the tremendous response shown by the Campbellford strike by merchants, clergy, city officials and the general public, the future of that town depends upon the decision of the union being met by the Campbellford Cloth Company."

In negotiations held last August, it was pointed out that many of the workers in the textile plant were making less than a living wage. Because many cases where men with large families are still taking home pay of $51 per week, some under $50, explained Mr. Robillard.

"We wouldn't want to return to conditions such as we had in 1939," said Ken Scott, and a Canadian Director of the Boot and Shoemakers Union, "where a man was making an average of ten cents an hour. We have heard that if he were seen talking to the union representatives, he was told that the next day would see him out on the streets."

"Brothers and sisters, I hope it never has to come to that," announced local 754 president Roy Lake, "and I ask at this time for anyone to move from the floor that we increase our monthly donation to Campbellford from $10 to $25, and I only wish we could do more."

The motion was made and seconded and the vote was pushed through.

Members of the clergy, local businessmen and interested citizens have joined the Campbellford strikers on the picket lines. According to union officials, even the manager of the plant has left his turn on the picket.

The strikers receive $15 per week strike pay from the International Union headquarters. They've been out since March 16, 1970.

Said Mr. Scott, "I don't know how long these workers in Campbellford's first legal strike can hold out. It's well known that the pay is so low that a worker can only afford to put away a few small dollars and these can't last long."

The union has been seeking an across - the - board increase of 70 cents an hour, a six per cent wage increase for 18 - year employees, and eight per cent for 15 year employees; increased insurance, hospitalization and pension arrangements; a shift premium of ten cents per hour for afternoon and 15 cents per hour for night shifts; a cost of living bonus; work done on Saturday, Sundays and statutory holidays to be raised to double rate for hourly employees and piecework-ers, among other demands.

In negotiations last August, the Campbellford Cloth Company agreed to some proposals, some in part and disagreed with others.

The company offered no increase in present wages in reply to the accusation by the board increase demand; no change in the present welfare plan in makeup or basis of payment with reference to life insurance, weekly indemnity, Ontario Hospital Plan and OHSIP; shift premiums of seven cents per hour for afternoon and 12 cents per hour for night shifts was offered; no cost of living bonus; no change in the rate of overtime payment and will offer no premium payment for hours worked in excess of 40 hours or for hours worked on statutory holidays.

It was agreed at last night's meeting that most of the members of Stirling management in the Elaine Footwear Plant were willing to be unionized. It was the hope of the members that by allying themselves with the Campbellford workers their own negotiations in August would not have to result in a strike.

In appeals to community and union allies, financial representative for Local 754, Keith Wallace reported donations received in excess of $2,000. "This has come from outside unions, old age pensioners, citizens of the town and businessmen," he announced.

"It is getting more and more difficult for the textile industry," said Mr. Scott, "It's well known that textile workers are the worst paid workers in Canada and with 50 percent of Canada's goods being imported from Europe and Asia, it isn't making your case any easier."

The Stirling union pledged every further support other president Roy Lake offered to make available the $54 required to send him to Chicago to meet with the International Representatives and send just one Stirling member, J. J. Acres.

It was his opinion that Mr. Acres would be able to bring back the information required to help settle their contract for acceptance in their August suggestions.

At the close of the meeting, Mr. Lake announced to the international and Campbellford representatives, "the 150 members of Stirling 754 stand behind you 100 per cent; I can guarantee that."

To Extend Cancer Campaign

The campaign for funds by the Belleville and District Unit of the Canadian Cancer Society is "a little bit ahead of last year's" since the canvass began on April 1.

Dr. R. R. Brain, campaign chairman for this year's canvass, explained that previous hopes of getting all returns in by April 15 had been squashed but this was practical.

"We'll be going into May and a little into June," he said, explaining that returns were late coming in.

As a result of late canvass returns, no progress is yet available by the Cancer officials.

"If a cure for cancer is to be found it will be because the volunteer giver wants it to be," he said.

The local objective for funds is $20,000 and will contribute to the provincial objective of $3,200,000 of a total national objective of $6,- 320,000.

"About 85 per cent of the total funds to be spent on research in Canada this coming year has to come from this campaign. Research is the most important of all our activities."

Dr. Brain pointed out that the society also carries on a vigorous program of public education about cancer and makes help available to cancer patients.

The annual campaign in Belleville and in Canada continues until April 30.

Elementary French Classes

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Prince Edward County school trustees are considering the introduction of French classes in elementary school l e v e l s from grades 5 through 8. During a board meeting last night, Prince Edward County director of education John McNeil reported that he has consulted with region chairman, Kingston, and looking province-wide recommends the implementation of French for the remainder of the county's schools. Ameliasburgh's elementary pupils already are studying this language in their curriculum.

Mr. McNeil observed that students could receive French instruction through an itinerant teacher in North Marysburg elementary pupils at Athol townships. In Sophiasburg Central School, Picton, Wellington and Queen Elizabeth schools French could be introduced without hiring additional staff.

New Administrative Organizati on for Hastings County Schools

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Division of Hastings county into four geographic areas for school administrative purposes has proved unworkable and is now being replaced by a "school group" administrative set-up.

The county board of education last week approved the new system of administration, based on groupgs of secondary schools and their associated "feeder" elementary schools.

The four area superintendents have been renamed "associate superintendents" and given different areas of supervision.

Robert Horwood, formerly superintendent of the southeast area will now supervise Moira and Quinte secondary schools and their 15 elementary feeder schools.

J. M. Cousins, formerly in charge of the southwest area, will now supervise Centennial and the new composite school at Bayside after it is built. He will have 12 elementary schools under his jurisdiction.

Frank Tate, area superintendent for the centre Hastings area will continue to supervise Centre Hastings Secondary School in Madoc and its four feeder schools, and will also be in charge of Trenton High School and its seven feeder schools.

Glen Watson, superintendent in Bancroft, will continue to supervise that high school and its nine feeder schools and will also take on BCI in Belleville and its three feeder elementary schools.

Mr. Watson has been requested to move to Belleville, "closer to the nerve centre". In the words of director of education Eric Runacres.

The reorganization was first suggested by the new academic organization committee under the chairmanship of trustee Mrs. Jean Hutchison.

The moves had been under discussion by the director and his three superintendents at the board office, who had found flaws in the geographical area system during the first year of the county-wide board's operation.

A communications breakdown was the main difficulty with the geographic area set-up, Mr. Runacres told the board.

Area superintendents were unable to take part in of administration, and often were not made aware of new policies as soon as they should have been.

An trustee Everett Fairman put it: "There has been a decided weakness in communication between the school principals this year, and if this re-organization improves it, I'm all in favor."

One of the chief problems, the board learned, was in the northern section of the county.

"Mr. Watson was isolated in the north," Mrs. Hutchison remarked.

"No matter which way you slice it, there will be problems," Mr. Runacres added. "This is a beginning, and there's no way out of it."

The re-organization will also equalize the work load of the associate superintendents, since the number of pupils and teachers varies greatly from one area to another.

Under the new system, the associate superintendents will form curriculum committees for each school group. The committees will be composed of elementary and secondary school teachers, who will advise on courses of study in their schools and co-ordinate the efforts of both the elementary and secondary systems.

Task forces, organized last spring to advise on the vocational needs and wants of the public, will also be the responsibility of the associate superintendents. The first task forces are now disbanded, but new ones are to be set up, composed of trustees, Home and School representatives, pupils, teachers and "other key persons".

Although Mr. Watson will be leaving the Bancroft office, a staff will remain there to handle business matters and transportation.

Mrs. Stella Culhane, manager of the Belle Theatre since 1967 shares hearty congratulations with retired Belle Theatre manager, George Forhan, 1929-1967, on the eve of Famous Players' 50th anniversary. Mr. Forhan best represents theatre history, having begun managerial services in Toronto in 1916. Also present at last night's celebration featuring a special 50-cent admission, were Belleville Drive-In manager since 1967, Ron Scott, and Park Theatre manager since 1969, Ron Brown. Unable to take part in the birthday evening was retired Park Theatre manager Tom Mascaro who also represents the 50 years in theatre, having joined theatre service in 1918 in Toronto, and moving to Belleville in 1939 as manager of the Capitol, now the Park. Celebrations by Famous Players were held all across Canada and will continue throughout the year.

Provincial Finance Team To Visit Trenton April 28

Quinte voters can debate tax and finance issues with Ontario Treasurer Charles MacNaughton and Revenue Minister John White next week.

Both provincial cabinet ministers will be in Trenton April 28 to participate with the public in a two-way talk session organized by Dr. Richard Potter, MPP Quinte.

The event is designed to inform on government measures and air suggestions and any complaints from the public.

It is the second such session, organized by Dr. Potter in an attempt to better communication between his constituents and the provincial government. Last year, a similar forum held in Belleville with Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough drew an active public response.

The Trenton session is booked for the town's Community Gardens at 8 p.m. next Tuesday.

20-Mile Walkathon For St. John Ambulance

Several hundred area residents, augmented by a few walkers from out of town, will take to the road Saturday to raise money for the St. John Ambulance Association.

Their object is to buy an ambulance and snowmobile for the district unit. The Piston Pushers Motorcycle Club is sponsoring the 20 - mile walkathon. The Piston Pushers are the only motorized unit affiliated with St. John's brigade in Canada, and are part of the communications division of the Emergency Measures Organization.

The trek is drawing supporters from a distance. A woman employee of Eaton's in Toronto is taking part, and she is sponsored by her fellow workers. Dr. John Hart and Dr. Bruce Crook will jog around the route and are looking for sponsors.

A unicycle will be making the trip and Jerry Dafore of Foxboro will ride his 1918 motorcycle around the route. The Hastings and Prince Edward Cadet Corp is marching in a body.

The route for the walkathon is a new one for such events in the Quinte district. It starts at the Quinte Exhibition Grounds and heads north on Sidney Street, west on the old road just north of 401, north on the Wallbridge Rd. to Wallbridge village, east to Foxboro and south to Belleville by highway 37 through Corbyville.

The 20-mile route will be supervised by Belleville and Ontario Provincial Police. Rest rooms and first aid points have been arranged along the route and official cars will cruise the roads to pick up walkers needing a lift.

Walkers have been warned by Ian E. Reilly, chairman of the walkathon, to accept rides only with drivers who display official car signs of the color and design on display at the start of the walk.

Anyone wishing to sponsor a walker can still have his pledge registered by telephoning 968-5478.

More Than 16 Rooms

PICTON (Staff) Members of Prince Edward County board of education last night expressed concern over a press report indicating a 15-room school complex might be built in Ameliasburg township.

A board spokesman said today the proposed project definitely will be larger than 16 class rooms.

He added a total of 16 rooms at no time was discussed by the board in relation to the size of the proposed elementary - secondary school.

More on Pollution

The menace of pollution is finally getting to the North American public.

Newspaper and magazine articles, meetings between Canadian premiers and United States governors, the continuing emphasis on the theorem that mankind can expect through destruction of the environment (The Star Weekly's pictures of blighted beaches, litter and the like were a good illustration of what we mean), the estimate of only a decade or so before the very means of life — the air we breathe and the water we drink — will be annihilated unless drastic steps are taken, are all making an impression on the public.

Many unfortunately transgress in small ways which in aggregate contribute to the overall mess of litter and pollution — like the teenage girl we observed recently dropping a candy wrapper on a supermarket lot and the driver of a late-model car on Highway 14 opening his window to toss out some bits of paper.

Generally speaking though the public is beginning to realize the seriousness of the problem and to appreciate the fact that each individual can — and must — play his part in curbing the problem.

In any other circumstances it might be regarded as obstruction, but the students of Stonington, Connecticut, high school recently hit on an effective plan to demonstrate the hazards of pollution when they refused to ride the school bus. Instead, they walked as far as five miles while others rode horses, bicycles and even a pony-drawn cart, tieing up traffic on U.S. Highway 1 in the process.

We think the number of the highway is symbolic, representing man's beginnings, and now the dawn perhaps of a new era of awareness of this great problem.

The best example of public involvement we have encountered yet was the spring cleanup of highways in the State of Vermont. This brought thousands of volunteers out for a massive attack on litter that ordinarily would have cost the State thousands of dollars.

The Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce in a recent report on this threat to the environment called it "A matter of life," and said the problem "is how to order man's activities so that the earth is not rendered uninhabitable."

Let us all play our part in ensuring that our world does remain habitable.

Both Have Rapport with the Young

Trudeau, Stanfield, and the Potential Youth Vote

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — In Parliament's legislative mill this very Session is a bill to lower the voting age from 21 to 18.

And while not quite the "showbest" the PM has always been, Opposition Leader Stanfield is coming on surprisingly strong.

Although he may be a ripening 51, Pierre Elliott Trudeau, with his mod threads, his Canary-style hair-do and that swinging image of the skin-diver, skier, judo lesson buff, Caribbean Negroes rhythm dancer, and all that jazz, has had the "youth syndrome" going for him from the very first.

It gives him a head-start — but not such a big one as you might think — over Robert Stanfield, who, at 58, is only five years older than the trendy Trudeau, but said only recently has come through as a very senior citizen from another generation altogether.

This is the season when service clubs and other civic-minded groups bring thousands of students to the National Capital by train, bus, and airline to see Parliament at work and view the parliaments, monuments, museums, galleries.

Part of the routine is a pep-talk on the parliamentary process usually by a pair of Conservative and Liberal — of regional MPs or, with luck, by the Prime Minister or Bob Stanfield.

You should see the PM at work on such occasions.

Beautiful.

It might not bewitch the taxpayers, but it sure enchants the teens.

He'll stand up at the top of the great curved marble stairway inside the VIP entrance to the Centre Block, bat his eyes, wave and smile amid the joyous uproar, take a carnation or rose from his lapel and plant the petals one by one, tossing them in the approved "she-loves-me-she-loves-me-not" fashion into a forest of upraised arms.

Bob Stanfield can't do this.

If he tried it, he might get laughs, but adoration never. They simply won't swoon for him.

But this doesn't mean he has not got "pow" for the young crowd.

He has — and newly developed — at a dramatic clip.

It may be completely lacking in sex appeal, but he pays the kids the compliment of having heads as well as hearts.

He can't romantically entrance them, but he can interest, amuse and entertain them. And hold them think.

Watch him work and he reminds you of that standup comedian on TheVee, Myron Cohen, who lowers one eye-lid in dreamy slow-motion and drawls, deadpan, his wry commentary on the ways of the world.

He's absolutely first - class in his quiet contributions of communication through mercifully, low-key conversation in answering questions.

They don't jump up and down and scream "I love you."

But man, they listen.

What does he think about pot, grass, marijuana? they ask.

He considers it, as if for the first time, and allows that "as my age, I have no personal interest in the stuff . . . when, women and song are about all I can handle."

That's not bad, and everybody chuckles. Bob Stanfield, still hilariously dead-pan, looks as if he doesn't begin to get what they are laughing about, lowers his eye-lid again and acts a wise senile ghost with his so-solemn face.

What about student violence? they wonder.

Juvenile temper tantrums, he tells them, counselling that "to occupy university or high school buildings, tear up the seats or trustee offices, or smash computers is the surest way to get everyone uptight and prevent any orderly reform or educational change."

And those voters - in - the-next-election, thinking it over, nod fair enough.

A 'Vicious Document'

White Paper Will Destroy Public's Initiative to Save

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The White Paper, a vicious document, is based on a statedictated, socialistic philosophy. It could only result in the stagnation of our young vibrant country. Canada can only be developed by Canadians, if personal and corporate initiative, to work, to save and to gamble on the future are justly rewarded. The alternative is to transform our Country into the inherent decadent society of socialism.

The White Paper is not greatly concerned with the poor and it does little or nothing to reduce poverty. It is mainly concerned with the confiscation and extraction of money from the public, so that the federal government can continue into the 1970's its orgy of public spending of the 1960's, which has so greatly contributed to the present sad state of our rampant inflationary economy.

Morally and economically, a capital gains tax in Canada cannot be justified. To kill the initiative to save, to confiscate savings and profits by taxation — (so vitally needed to develop our natural resources, our manufacturing and service industries) is a betrayal of Canada by the Trudeau government.

Canadians now need the moral courage they had during the 1939-1945 war years, — to launch a massive attack on the philosophy of the White Paper and to utterly repudiate it. The public complacency during the past 25 years has made it possible for a handful of senior civil servants who are socialists at heart, and a few influential politicians with dictatorial leftist feelings to effectively control parliament and initiate legislation for which they seldom had general public requests or mandates. Only an aroused public can stem the tide of destruction as outlined in the Carter Report and White Paper.

Costs Up and Not Down As Result of Post Office Closures Says Columnist

Brockville Recorder and Times

Many village post offices in Leeds and Grenville have recently been closed or are about to be closed — those at Algonquin, Forfar, Fairfield, New Dublin, Philipsville, Crosby and Harlem, among others — as part of Postmaster - General Kierans' economy drive. But these shutdowns will actually result in an increase in costs, not a decrease, according to Heward Grafftey, whose column on Canadian affairs is carried in several Canadian newspapers.

Mr. Grafftey writes:

"Mr. Kierans, in the name of efficiency, has decided to close down hundreds of rural revenue post offices. The excuse: to save money. Incredible as this may sound, the move is going to cost the taxpayer millions of added dollars while, I believe, efficiency will be harmed. For years now, the deputy postmaster general has settled successive ministers in close these revenue offices. In doing so, the deputy was virtually acting as a spokesman for many of the civil servants in his department. Why?

"Let us say Town A has a population of 4,000 people. Its local post office is owned by the federal government and staffed by federal civil servants whose salaries and classifications are determined by the annual revenue turnover at that post office. Five miles away, we may find Parish B with a population of 300 people. The revenue post office can be found in the local general store. The owner of the general store is not a civil servant but merely has a contract with the government to provide premises and mail deliveries.

"One by one these offices are being closed without the local people being consulted, and in the vast majority of cases hurriedly convened local protest groups and hurriedly signed petitions have proved to no avail. "The People" want the revenue offices kept open. When they are closed, invariably, those affected will be served by a rural route contractor.

"In place of the costs for the old revenue post office, the government will be saddled with two costs. One, the contract price for the rural route contractors to serve the area previously served by the revenue post office and two, (here's the rub) these new rural route contractors will work out of the federal government post office in Town A. The revenues from these routes are credited to this office and the classifications for the local staff automatically go up with the resultant increase in salary.

"People in this part of the world truly believe the 'post-master general is not aware of this and has swallowed a "ball of goods" from his bureaucrats. One thing is certain, almost unbelievable: In the name of purely theoretical efficiency he has unwittingly paved the way for "increased" — not "decreased" federal costs for postal services."

Focus on Minor Sport

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Since the departure of the old Minor Sports executive, it now seems the Belleville Recreation Director has taken over complete control of the Belleville Minor Sports Association, which is not enough over the past few years for him to try to dictate to this volunteer group, but up until now he had some opposition.

Because of his interference in a situation he did not understand, a special meeting was made necessary, at which was attended by his superior, the Chairman of the Arena and Recreation Committee who by his own statement, calls the Recreation Director a "Professional" and the co-ordinator of Belleville Minor Sports Association because the City's outlay of some $12,000 annually on recreation facilities,

"Professional" we will go along with, he gets paid for what he is doing but the experts are the ones who are elected as officers in their particular sport; these are not professionals and recent hiring dictated to, especially in the area of the cost of registration for the individual participant, or what to charge an individual who is only too happy to invest a few dollars as a contribution to a worthwhile team.

Our own Association was told to raise registration fees from $1 to $2, it is not generally known as yet, but it is understood that the hockey group registration next season will be $5. When the People Action Committee for a new Children's Arena approached the city to obtain aid and co-operation for their building, I understand the first stipulation was that if it was built, the city would control and administer same. Co-ordinator has a lot of connotations. It would be the writer's opinion in this area of recreation that this would mean making available the necessary facilities required for the particular sport and helping schedule same and supplying the necessary office services. Further to this the Hockey Arena and Recreation Chairman stated that was only his opinion and he could not speak for the rest of the board, if a group decides to become independent and set aside necessary funds, which was attended by his superior, the Chairman of the Arena and Recreation Committee who by his own statement, calls the Recreation Director a "Professional" and the co-ordinator of Belleville Minor Sports Association because the City's outlay of some $12,000 annually on recreation facilities,

Club Disbands

It is sad to observe a club with as distinguished a background as the Canadian Club of Belleville calling it a day. The group is being disbanded despite a membership of 110.

The club's program of talks has always met a consistently high standard, both as to subject matter and the quality of the speakers. Perhaps it was this very emphasis on the intellectualism to which many aspire, to some degree at least, which was the club's undoing. Could it be that diversity and greater participation in a variety of activities would have maintained the interest which, of late, apparently has been lacking?

In any event, after 56 years in the city the organization is being disbanded. However, a continuing committee will hold the club's assets for a period of three years, in case the group should decide to re-establish.

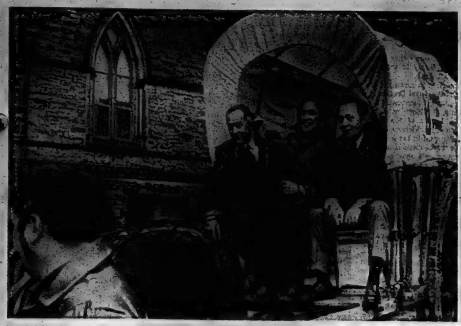
This is a sound provision and Senator J. H. Prowse's message, at the club's final meeting last week, was appropriate. He spoke of people, of Canadians and of pride in ancestry and in home and family. Whatever our racial background, he said, there is room in Canada for all, and for the same values.

We hope perhaps the Canadian Club of Belleville may find it possible one day to regroup, for it is in such organizations that the best ideals of the nation are enshrined.

Women Realtors

When it comes to selling real estate, women have a special aptitude by reason of their traditional role as homemakers. That is not to say that men are not pretty good too, but there is no doubt that the profession increasingly is one in which the knowledge and sales talents of the fair sex are being recognized.

In this regard a firm has established a branch in Peterborough with an all-woman staff of eight. It is a first for Peterborough as well as a new departure for the firm concerned.



Could it be that it is a first for Canada as a whole? Other offices have women staffers, but are there any with a large, all-woman group like this?

Certainly this is one profession where the degree of male domination is less than in most. The only other precedent we can think of besides teaching is the radio station in Brampton which has an all-female staff of announcers, and not forgetting the village of Tweed which once had an all-woman council.

Keep it up ladies!

Municipalities Can Levy Tax Of $25 Per University Student

TORONTO (CP) — A bill authorizing municipalities to tax universities up to $25 a year for each full-time student was introduced in the legislature Monday by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough.

The move, the first step toward eventual removal of the universities exemption from municipal taxation, will affect 17 municipalities.

Mr. McKeough told the house full taxation of universities will have to await completion of the province's assessment of all property across Ontario, expected to take until 1977.

The interim provision of $25 in taxes applies to universities and teachers colleges—34 institutions—but not to community colleges or Ryerson Polytechnical Institute.

A sum of $2,500,000 has been provided to permit provincially-supported universities to make tax contributions to municipalities.

Some municipalities affected are Toronto, Ottawa, Waterloo, Kingston, Guelph, Thunder Bay, St. Catharines, Sudbury, Peterborough, Sault Ste. Marie and North Bay.

In other business:

—Premier Robarts said the government is considering making it mandatory for school boards serving Indian communities to appoint Indian representatives to the board. At present, school boards providing schooling to Indian children by agreement with the federal government are permitted to name an Indian representative to the board.

—Attorney-General Arthur Wishart said the government is considering legislation to abolish civil juries in Ontario. He also said his department is considering legislation to permit

Municipal-Provincial Parley Will Be Held This Week

TORONTO (CP) — More than 450 municipal and provincial representatives are scheduled to meet Wednesday in what the Ontario government calls the first in a series of conferences to discuss municipal problems.

The official delegates include mayors of municipalities of more than 15,000 population; wardens of counties; 25 delegates each from four of the major Ontario municipal organizations, 22 cabinet ministers and the leaders and two members of the two opposition parties. These number about 205.

All other members of the 117-member legislature have been invited as members of the 238 official observers for the three-day talks.

The government is expected to defend its policies on regional and municipal planning and tax reform and hammer Ottawa for fiscal policies Ontario feels are discriminatory against the province and the municipalities.

Municipal speakers will have their chance each day, usually after a cabinet minister has spoken.

Ministers Don't Like Working on Sundays

HAMILTON (CP) — A United Church minister told the Ontario Law Reform Commission Monday that while ministers are obliged to work Sundays, they would prefer being at home with their families.

Rev. Walter Davis was one of three St. Catharines ministers presenting a brief to the commission opposing extension of business activities on Sundays. The commission is investigating Sunday observance legislation.

Auto Workers Union Is Worried About Drug-using Members

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Top officials of the United Auto Workers Union are quietly worried over reports of widespread and increasing use of narcotics by workers at auto plants and other factories around the United States.

"Our shop stewards are finding the evidence in restrooms—the sweet smell of marijuana, needles and other paraphernalia for drug injections, guys with become ill on the job," said Douglas Fraser, an international executive board member of the union and head of its Chrysler department in Detroit.

"It's both marajuana and hard drugs," Paul Schrade, executive board member from Los Angeles, said of the increasing evidence reported by local union officials.

They spoke in separate interviews.

Drug use has risen sharply in the last three years and "it will probably get more serious as time goes on," said Fraser. Most of it occurs on the second shift, usually 3:30 p.m. to midnight, he added.

One major worry is the safety of workers who could be injured on the job while intoxicated with drugs, Fraser said.

There are no figures on such cases or on how widespread drug use is among workers, but the union is receiving increasing numbers of reports from both management and its own shop stewards, he said.

Schrade said the problem is compounded in some plants where company nurses give depressants or pep pills to workers on the assembly line who complain of nervousness or fatigue. It would be better to send such workers home on sick leave, he said.

The largest number of reports of drug use on the job are coming from plants in California and Detroit, but "if it's happening there, you can also assume it's happening in Cleveland, Syracuse and other parts of the country," Fraser said.

Rescue Mission Led to Sinking of CN Ferry

NORTH SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — Twelve men—four officers of the CN ferry Patrick Morris and eight fishermen of the herring seiner Enterprise—are dead after their vessels sank in a Cabot Strait storm.

Forty-seven men, all members of the Morris' crew, Monday were safe aboard the ore carrier Rhine Ore, en route to Port Cartier, Que.

The 10,000-ton Morris sank Monday during an attempt to rescue the fishermen, whose Newfoundland-based seiner went down Sunday in turbulent seas and winds with gusts to 70 miles an hour.

"She was gone down when we got there," said Captain Charles Brown of the CN ferry Ambrose Shea, one of the vessels which responded to the Morris' call for help.

He said there was "just debris coming up . . . and an oil slick."

The Morris, with a replacement value of $10,000,000, went down within 35 minutes of sending out her distress call.

The body of 54-year-old Captain Roland Penney of the Patrick Morris and that of an unidentified seaman, believed from the seiner, were recovered later in the day by the Sterling trawler Gulf Gerd and landed here.

Ships in the area reported sighting seven other bodies late Monday but were unable to recover them because of high seas.

The other three men lost from the Patrick Morris were identified as Chief Engineer David Reekie, 53, of Montreal, Second Engineer Joseph Henry Slayman, 48, of St. John's, Nfld., and Third Engineer Ronald A. Anderson, 44, of North Sydney.

The only sign Monday of the Enterprise was a piece of the ship's wheelhouse found floating in the area. An empty liferaft, thought to be from the seiner, floated ashore later near New Victoria, N.S.

Aboard the Enterprise were Captain Olaf Olsgaard and Bruno Cervis, both of Vancouver; Zennis Dolron of Carsquet, N.B.; and Blanchard Collinshaw, Charles Abbott, John Hansforth, Emmanuel Lovell and Wilson Green, all of Isle aux Morts, Nfld.

Cause of the Patrick Morris sinking was not known. But it is believed bodies of survivors of the smaller vessel were sighted by the Patrick Morris and that a huge sea broke in the stern doors of the railcar ferry and filled her with water when she was being positioned to take them aboard.

The Patrick Morris, formerly owned by the West India Fruit and Steamship Co., went into service here in 1965. She had been out of service for several weeks because of ice conditions in the strait.

Rasminsky Says Curbs Must Stay

TORONTO (CP)—Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, said Monday that the federal government must maintain restraints on credit and spending until Canadians learn their demands for higher incomes will damage their living

He told the Canadian Club of Toronto that the best chance of a prosperous future lies in a steady reduction in the rate of pay and price increases.

Mr. Rasminsky said rising unemployment should be regarded as a cost of inflation, not the result of measures to contain inflation.

While authorities must guard against forcing the country into an outright recession, "I believe there is no doubt that the most serious risks lie in allowing inflationary pressures to regain their strength."

Both those whose primary worry is unemployment and those who are anxious about inflation are concerned about people, he said, but the latter are sideralions into account.

Dief Urges Pollution Teach-in TORONTO (CP) — Former prime minister John Diefenbaker proposed Monday a national teach-in on pollution that would include every university and secondary school in Canada.

Unless action is taken, both nationally and internationally, it "means Doomsday by the year 2,000," he said in a speech to the Data Processing Management Association.

He also suggested that the federal government declare a National Environmental Week with education programs.

A third suggestion was that the federal government, in cooperation with the provinces, take a national environmental ecological education program through public schools secondary schools and universities "so that all Canadians will be better informed and willing and able to meet the threat."

a word to the wise

It happens to most of us, sometime . . . we check and double-check our income tax return before mailing it in . . . and then a week or so later we realize we've forgotten to include something important. The thing to remember is that while income tax returns are mailed to Ottawa, your enquiries, phone calls or letters are handled by the district taxation offices. Forgot to send in a T4 slip or receipt? Mail it to your district taxation office, with a brief note giving your name, address, S.I.N. number and Taxation account number, if possible. Realize you have made a sizeable error that should be corrected? Same procedure — contact your district taxation office. Please do not file a second return. You've received your assessment notice already and don't agree with it? Write your district taxation office or phone for an appointment to discuss the problem. You'll find us very approachable.

MR. AND MRS. STEVEN CHRISTOPHER

Christopher – Findlay

St. Margaret's on the Hill Church, Belleville, was the scene of the recent marriage of Sandra Lynne Findlay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer W. Findlay, Belleville and Steven Roger Christopher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Christopher, also of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. J. A. Dunlop.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of nylon organza over peau de soie with an empire style bodice, sheer bishop sleeves and a wedding band collar. Vertical rows of daisy appliqué enhanced the gown. Attached at the waist was a chapel train trimmed with the same daisy appliqués. The three-tier veil of silk illusion was attached to a crystal flowered headpiece. She carried a cascade bouquet of white daisies and pink stephanotis.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Dianne Steunenberg of Streetsville, cousin of the bride. She wore a gown of Paris blue. The bodice of Chantilly lace featured a slightly scooped neckline and bouffant sleeves. The sheer skirt was imported nylon organza over taffeta. She wore matching accessories and the matching headpiece was a short veil attached to a lattice-work crown dotted with maroon boveulla. Her bouquet was pink and white daisies.

Bridesmaid was Miss Heather Grant of Holloway dressed identically to the matron of honor. She carried a bouquet of blue and white daisies.

Best man was Bryan Heslip and ushers were David Christopher, brother of the bridegroom and Brial Kilcup, cousin of the bridegroom.

For the reception held in the Gold Knight Room, Sur Valley Motor Inn, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a gold and turquoise flowered brocade dress and coat ensemble including a matching hat and corsage of pink roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore a mint green ensemble of silk shantung with beige accessories and a corsage of pink and yellow rosebuds.

For the wedding trip to Montreal and the Laurentians, the bride wore a navy pinstripe dress with matching jacket, black accessories and a corsage of pink carnations.

Upon their return the couple will reside at 1 Carl St., Apt. 10, Belleville.

Guild Discusses 'the Law'

At the meeting of the city Women's Study Guild held at the home of Mrs. G. E. Adams, "The Law and You", a booklet compiled by Maurice J. Arpin, Q.C., was used as the basis of discussion by Mrs. R. Settle and Mrs. S. Elsie. This booklet contains 13 radio talks that were broadcast in Trans - Canada Matinee in 1968, and with some revisions and opinions gathered more recently by the discussion leaders, provided the Guild with facts of the law as it concerns the individual.

Mrs. Settle introduced the topic by giving a brief history of the development of laws from the early primitive societies. She then mentioned the many improvements and additions made by the Greeks, the Romans and the English during the following centuries. The story of the rise of English Common Law based on decisions of travelling judges proved most interesting as this is the basis of our Canadian laws.

The differences between Statute Law and Common Law, Civil Laws and Criminal Laws were defined. The ideas of punishment and penalties appear to be changing, and a system of reform and rehabilitation is the new trend. Particular reference were made and discussion ensued on marriages laws, and on the laws and penalties on the non medical use of drugs.

Mrs. Elsie spoke on the "Perils of Being a Good Samaritan". According to Common Law, there is no legal obligation for anyone to offer assistance to another person in an emergency situation unless he has ever bound together by a business or family relationship. Furthermore people who do go to the assistance of others in distress may be sued for negligence should some injury occur in the performance of it. Definite cases were cited to illustrate the above situations. What is the lesson of all this? As far as the law is concerned, the parable of The Good Samaritan may be an edifying story, but it does not displace the 11th Commandment — "Mind your own business."

"Despite all this, we Christians live by a greater law,— we are not only our brother's keeper, we are our brother's brother, and so instead of minding our own business, we should do all in our power to get antiquated laws changed, to help and protect the Good Samaritan", she concluded.

Mrs. Rose Kincaid, in her devotional, quoted from an excellent address on "Justice". A newsletter telling of the work of the Save the Children Fund organization in Nigeria - Biafra was read by Mrs. R. Ellis.

Two Provincial Museums Will Co-sponsor Showing of Chintz

TORONTO (CP) — That chintz that cheers up your bedroom window has an ancestry that dates back at least 300 years. It got to your home partly because people on the Malay Peninsula in the 17th century wanted Indian cottons in return for their spices.

Mrs. K. B. Brett says chintzes were part of a three-way trade in which European ships carried Indian dyed and painted cotton to Malaya and Malay spices to Europe.

Eventually some of the cottons found their way to Europe also and became such a rage that they were banned in England and France for a while because they represented a threat to the textile industries there.

Mrs. Brett is curator of textiles at the Royal Ontario Museum, and co-author of The Origins of Chintz with John Irwin, keeper of the Indian section of the Victoria and Albert Museum in London.

The two museums are co-operating on a show of chintz being held at the ROM until May 25.

Early designs have only a slight family resemblance to today's chintz, Mrs. Brett says Europeans objected that the first patterns imported were "too Indian" and too often on "sad red grounds."

They sent patterns to India to be copied for European use. Indian artists followed the patterns in outline, but added intricate, delicate designs within them.

The fabrics were used on furniture and as wall hangings, much as chintz is today. They were also used in dresses, in men's waistcoats and morning coats that were worn as lounging robes over clothes.

Mrs. Brett says the ROM collection was donated in the 1920s by the late Harry Wearne, an English textile designer.

"It was a designer's collection and used as inspiration for his own designs."

She says clothes and fabrics survive 300 years because they are treasured, as a trousseau dress might be, or just by chance. If something was too good to throw out, there was room to store it for generations in big homes.

She says she does not know what will survive the present mass-production era, by choice or by chance.

"It is frightfully difficult to assess what should be saved when one is in the middle of an age. You never know when a fabric will be a passing thing. You don't know what are the styles that are going to be typical of an era.

"It never occurred to us to save a pair of nylons 30 years ago.

"We grabbed a couple of paper dresses, though what they'll be like in a few years, we don't know.

"We have no idea of the lasting qualities of synthetics.

"Now we feel we must have some teen age stuff—but try to extract it from people. They think you're out of your mind."

CHINTZ ON SHOW — Mrs. K. B. Brett, curator of textiles at the Royal Ontario Museum in Toronto, displays a chintz quilt which will be part of a collection of chints on show at the museum. The museum is co-operating with the Victorian and Albert Museum of London to put on the show. (CP Photo)

A Determination To Be Married

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — Herbert Schaefer and his bride arrived late at the local registry office and couldn't get a special licence for their wedding. With the minister and the reception guests waiting, they borrowed a magistrate to return to the registry office. The special licences were locked away in a safe, so they checked three changes of address to find the clerk who had the key and got her to unlock it. One and a quarter hours after the wedding was to take place, the special licence was signed and ready. Five minutes later, Schaefer was married to his fiance.

Ann Landers

No Way to Establish Paternity of Unborn

DEAR ANN LANDERS: If I don't get some answers soon I'll go crazy. Please, Ann, do your best for me.

I am a married woman with children. I had an affair with a man of another race. We hated four months.

I am now about ten weeks pregnant.

I love my family and I am heartsick over what I have done to my life. There is a possibility that the child I am carrying belongs to my husband. I am afraid, however, that it belongs to my lover. If such is the case I will surely have to leave home.

Is there any way to determine before birth who is the father of a child? Please hurry your answer. I'm going out of my mind with worry. — GEORGIA.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR GEORGIA: There is no way to establish the paternity of an unborn child. If you have not confided in your doctor I hope you will do so immediately.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I'm an executive secretary, age 28, in a large firm. For eleven months I've been going with a 32-year-old man who is handsome, bright, fascinating and mysterious.

Mr. Charming has a beautiful apartment but he cannot be reached on weekends. He has changed his phone number three times since we met.

We eat at my apartment Mondays and Wednesdays. On Thursdays we eat out, but never in a nice restaurant. He loves quaint little places nobody can find — except the cockroaches. His weekends, he says, are reserved for his mother.

Whenever I mention marriage he changes the subject. He has never suggested that I meet his family. They live 22 miles south of here. He couldn't be with me the night of his office Christmas party because he had to escort his boss's widowed secretary. I've never met anyone he works with.

I'm beginning to think there is something phony about Mr. Charming. Comment, please. — CINDY.

DEAR CINDY: Sounds as if Mr. Charming is leading another life on Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Tuesday. Send him his hat and stop being a fool.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What's the matter with me that I have had such rotten luck? At 18 I fell in love with my teacher. He was married and strung me along for nearly a year. He never did get a divorce like he promised. I was a fool to believe him. At age 17, I quit school and joined a magazine crew. We travelled the Dakotas, Iowa and Nebraska. I went crazy over man in Sioux Falls. We went together for seven months. Then he told me his wife was catching wise and we'd better cool it. That was the end of him.

Now I'm in love again. This time it's an executive with quite a lot of money. The trouble is his wife is emotionally unstable and he's afraid she might do something irrational, like shoot me. He gave me a nice going-away present last night ($300) and said, "Good-by, Honey."

I'm a decent girl who falls in love easily and gets hurt a lot. Please help me, Ann. I want a husband. — LOLLY.

DEAR LOLLY: The key to your problem appears in your last sentence. Lay off the husbands and try to find a nice single man.

Confidential to TURNED OFF: Wipe the egg off your face. What she describes as the key to her heart sound like the keys to your Cadillac. The cash register is making so much noise I can't hear the wedding bells.

Successful Living

Mental Activity Will Add Life to Your Years

By DORIS CLARK

Don't ever let anyone tell you an old dog can't learn new tricks. If your mental abilities rot when you are older, it won't be from age but from disuse.

Recent letters have mentioned how a middle-aged or elderly person has learned to play a musical instrument. When a family grows up and away there may well be time for relaxation and enjoyment that there never was before.

The choice is yours. You, either stimulate your brain with a new challenge or prepare for a lifeless old age by doing nothing.

One magazine for seniors is called "Adding Life to Years". There's a whole sermon in those four words.

* * *

Dear Doris: We approve of our daughter's boy but now he has shocked us by joining a religious sect of which we do not approve and neither do his parents. Our daughter has tried time and again to talk him out of it. He says he cannot break away from it, but he also says he cannot live without her.

She has now refused to go out with him, but every time they meet by accident they are together and this one obstacle is gnawing them again. How can we make them understand how unhappy she will be in this religion in later years? — Anxious Mother.

Dear Mother: I feel for you. There are enough things to argue about and get in stress in any marriage, without adding a fa-out religion.

Give your daughter all the moral support you can muster. Suggest she learn what she can about her boy friend's new allegiance and think about her own religious feelings; then assure her that whatever she decides you will stand behind her. It's tough, but that's life.

Dear Doris: Do you have the reading about a Jewish wedding where they threw spaghetti instead of confetti? — Mrs. F. M.

Dear Mrs. F. M.: No I don't. Sounds a bit rash. Anybody?

Two-fold Purpose in Making Bread

By MARY MOORE

BREAD DELICATE WITH HERBS

My assignment for my sister's Sunday buffet supper for eight was a hot bread. Old fireborne rose to that challenge and made two lovely loaves. They were cut on boards at the table and everybody had their fill.

I have to say that this bread is really white but so delicately flavored with herbs that it will please the gourmets and the very hungry. I know I constantly coax you to make bread and the reason for this is that it is an economical way to make a high scoring reputation as a gourmet cook.

Do any of you notice that I am diligently doing my bit to 1) use up Canada's wheat surplus and 2) fight inflation?

DELICATE HERB BREAD (2 loaves)

1 pkge. granular yeast
½ cup lukewarm water
1 tsp. sugar
¼ cup scalded milk
¼ cup sugar (second amount)
2 tbsp. salt
½ tsp. basil
¼ tsp. thyme
¼ tsp. oregano
½ tsp. nutmeg
2 eggs
5 cups sifted all-purpose flour (divided)

In large bowl soak yeast and sugar in lukewarm water 10 min. To scalded milk add sugar (second amount), shortening, salt, herbs and nutmeg, stir to melt shortening. When cooled to lukewarm add to risen yeast liquid along with two cups of the flour and the eggs and beat for 5 min. (I used my electric dough hook). Then add 2½ cups flour (reserve ½-cup for flouring board later) and mix as well as you can. Scrape down sides of bowl, cover and let rise until doubled. (I did this at night so refrigerated mine overnight and let it warm up and rise at room temperature for 4 hrs. next morning.) Punch down dough and knead 100 times on board floured with remaining ½ cup. You will knead it all in. Cut dough in half, shape in two loaves and place in buttered loaf pans. Let rise until three rims of pans and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. about 30 min. or until deep gold and crisp-crusted all over. Cool on racks. Serve warm carefully sliced with saw-edge knife.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Father: "I'm disgusted with the grades on your report cards. There won't be any TV or Saturday movies until you bring those grades up."

Son: "I'm not hungry. I don't like what we're having tonight."

Scolding creates tension and spoils the meal. It also does little good, as it's difficult to make your point when children are hungry.

Lectures and criticism do not make for a happy dinner hour. Postpone such discussions until later and try to dine in an atmosphere of conscientiousness. This is usually the only time of day for family companionship.

Agency Voted $10,000

Belleville city council yesterday voted to grant the United Community Services $10,000 to hire a paid director to co-ordinate its social services program.

But the amount still could have to be okayed by the council budget committee before the money is paid.

The request for the $10,000 was made earlier in the year to city council and was referred for consideration by the budget committee.

But yesterday Alderman Ben Corke and Mrs. Jean Smith brought in a recommendation asking for assurance that the money would be available. They said an early decision was necessary in order that the position of director be advertised.

Direction of the United Community Services social program has been carried on by Mrs. Harry J. Fast and Mrs. Freeman Burrows since the resignation last year of Robert Porter.

Mrs. Fast and Mrs. Burrows have now tendered their resignations as volunteer program directors and it is felt that a paid director is necessary.

Ald. Smith outlined the many social programs carried on by the United Community Services.

Ald. E. A. Orr noted that the request was for $10,000 for the balance of this year.

"Does this mean that there will be a request for $20,000 next year?" he asked.

Ald. Corke replied that the original idea was that the director would also head up the community United Community Fund and enough additional money would be raised to pay his own way.

"We may not use all the $10,000 this year," he said.

But Mayor J. Russell Scott said people were asking questions about the various agencies offered and wondered if there was duplication of services.

"People are asking what is about the day nursery, what about the YMCA and whether an empire is being set up," he said.

He also said that there must be a closer look at community cheat member budgets.

Ald. Donald Soutter admitted the need of a professional director for the United Community Services but said people were not clear on the line of demarcation between this body and the United Community Fund.

He said a survey was needed to determine whether the right job was being done and to assure that the United Community Services was on the right track.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey stressed the need of a professional to co-ordinate the social work of the United Community Services.

She said the city couldn't afford to let the volunteer services lapse or the municipality would be faced with paying all the cost of services now filled by volunteers.

Last year the United Community Fund fell short of its campaign goal and since then a special names canvass has been conducted to raise funds for member agencies.

This year it is proposed that the United Community Fund conduct a lottery to help raise funds. Council has passed the necessary bylaw permitting lotteries, but so far no official application for the lottery has been made to the city.

Chamber Asks for $12,600 To Promote Quinte Tourism

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce is asking city council for $12,600 for a four-part promotion program to boost the Quinte area as a tourist attraction.

The money would be spent in the production of a tourist brochure, operation of the Chamber office during the months of July and August as a seven - day - a - week tourist bureau; the production of a television promotion kit and a special package for the promotion of the city as a convention centre.

The request to council was presented by Chamber president Harry J. Fast and vice-president Frank Murray.

Mr. Murray said that every citizen benefits from the jobs created and the tax revenue derived from the tourist industry, and suggested it was the responsibility of the city to provide full financial support for tourist promotion efforts.

He said the Chamber had carried out a tourist promotion program with financial support from the city for many years. Approximately 25 per cent of the working time of two office personnel and a similar percentage of other office costs was devoted to tourist promotion.

Mr. Murray proposed that a new tourist brochure be produced that is uniquely about Belleville, featuring watercolor drawings of local attractions by local artist Frank Johnson. Cost of printing 50,000 brochures estimated at $5,000.

He said the Chamber office should be open seven days a week during the summer season as a tourist bureau. Signs directing tourists to the Chamber information bureau would be posted at all major highway entrances.

The promotion kit would consist of color slide pictures of local attractions and with script would be presented over television.

"Television stations, both in Canada and the U.S.A. are always looking for holiday information," said Mr. Murray.

The Chamber vice-president urged that the brochures and promotion kit be used to encourage conventions to the city. An information desk should be set up at the three of convention registration and bus loaers organized for the wives of delegates.

The Chamber request was referred to the city council budget committee for consideration.

Concrete Construction

Arena Site Ok'd; Plans to Be Drawn

The Belleville Recreation and Arena Committee proposed to construct a second covered artificial ice rink in the city gained another step forward yesterday.

City council approved a committee recommendation that the Harder Drive site be used for construction of the proposed arena and to enter into negotiations with the Hastings County Board of Education for a lease of the site.

Council also approved of a recommendation authorizing the committee to have working drawings and specifications drawn for the rink at a cost not to exceed $850.

Both recommendations to council were passed by the recreation and arena committee at a special meeting last week.

At that time the committee decided that a concrete block building with a prestressed concrete slab roof would be best.

Yesterday Ald. Jack Ireland questioned the committee's decision approving a structure with a prestressed concrete roof.

He said he had hoped that council would be able to consider all types of structures—steel frame, wooden frame, and concrete.

Ald. Donald Soutter, as chairman of the recreation and arena committee, said his committee had gone thoroughly into the matter and had come up with the decision that the concrete structure was the cheapest possible for the type of building required.

"What we are trying to do is to get all the information necessary to council," he said.

Ald. Ireland said there were firms manufacturing pre-engineered rinks who would supply plans free.

Ald. Soutter agreed, but said if the plans for any particular structure were not used, the company expected payment for the plans.

He said the committee proposal was to have Wilson Concrete Ltd. prepare the plans, following which tenders would be called on a subtrade basis.

Estimated cost of the structure is in the area of $230,000 with this figure to be reduced by $22,000 already raised by the Quinte Action Centre Committee. The Ontario Home Builders have offered to co-ordinate subtrades, while the city engineer will give supervision.

It was emphasized that the proposed new ice surface is an entirely different project including an $1,800 retainer fee paid to local lawyer Ralph Gresham for prosecuting meter violations.

Net revenue from meter violation fines last year after deducting expenses was $8,942.

Ald. Donald Soutter said it was "shocking" to learn that it cost the city more than $9,000 to collect $13,000 in meter fines.

"Maybe there is something the matter with ticketing cars. Surely there should be a greater net revenue," he said.

The report by city hall officials noted that Mr. Gresham is retained by the city about 15 years ago to prosecute violations of the city's traffic act.

The committee said that the parking authority had not required the services of Mr. Gresham during 1969 and that since April 1969 Mr. Gresham had been dealing mainly with prosecutions under the Highway Traffic Act from which the city receives no revenue.

Payment for legal services in respect to prosecutions under this Act was said to be the responsibility of the provincial government.

As Mr. Grahsem's services were not being used to any great extent, it was recommended arrangements between Mr. Graham and the city be ed that the city solicitor's contract be enlarged to include prosecutions under the city's traffic act.

The report and recommendation of the committee was accepted by council.

Parking Authority Gets Revenue

Sidewalk Building Priorities Questioned by Residents

A delegation of Victoria Ave. residents has questioned the priority of sidewalk construction agreed on by members of council.

Yesterday Mrs. Ina Bellstedt, 525 Victoria Avenue, acting as spokesman for a group of area residents, asked that priority be given to the construction of walks on both sides of Victoria Ave., between Farley Ave. and Parrot Drive.

She said there are many children using this section of the street going to and from school. Much construction was going on in the area and heavy trucks were constantly on the move.

Mrs. Bellstedt said sidewalks had been originally requested in September, 1968, and again in April last year.

Since that time, the construction program in the east end of the city has doubled, if not tripled and the traffic problem has become steadily worse.

She noted that last May council had passed a recommendation asking for further consideration of sidewalks on Victoria Ave. under Section 8 of the Local Improvement Act but priority had been given for construction of walks elsewhere.

Members of the city traffic committee defended their action in giving priority this year to sidewalks in the West Bridge Street and Palmer Road areas where a large new housing subdivision and senior citizens' apartment were going in.

"That doesn't help the delegation request," commented Alderman Donald Soutter.

Alderman Donald Soutter said sidewalks would be a continuing problem for city council with delegations coming before council asking for priorities for their area. He suggested some kind of a formula be arrived at for establishing sidewalk priorities so that decisions would not be made on an emotional basis.

The city's five-year capital works program calls for sidewalk construction on Victoria Ave. from the latter years of the program and Alderman Gerald Joyce suggested consideration be given during next year of the proposed East Bridge Street walk to allow the Victoria Ave. walk to go ahead in 1971.

Council was told that the 1969 Victoria Ave. petition had not been sufficiently signed and to help speed matters it was suggested there be a new petition asking for construction under Section 7 of the Local Improvement Act which does not require advertising and a possible OMB hearing.

Dundas Street Bridge To Open Late This Year

Belleville's new Dundas Street bridge over the Moira River is not likely to see any traffic use until late in the year.

This was indicated yesterday to council by City Engineer Wilbur Purcell in answer to a question by Ald. Gerald Joyce.

Mr. Purcell said use of the new bridge was dependent upon reconstruction of Dundas Street West from the river to the top of the Devil's Elbow Hill.

He said plans for the roadway construction were nearly but property acquisition was still not completed and he did not expect a construction start until mid-summer or later

Construction for the new bridge and laying of the pre-stressed concrete girders was completed last year and pouring of the bridge deck is now underway.

The mud and west side approaches to the bridge will be put in as part of the contract for the Dundas Street roadway reconstruction.

City Council Vote Permits Gulf Oil Sewage Dumping

Belleville city council has voted to allow Gulf Oil Canada Ltd. to dispose of sewage wastes from its Thurlow township service station and restaurant north of Highway 401 at the city sewage disposal plant.

But the permission is conditional and calls for truck equipment used and the routes and times of transport to be approved by the city. In addition approval must be given by the Ontario Water Resource Commission.

On a recorded vote, council voted 7-4 to allow the Gulf Oil request. Opposing the motion were Mayor J. Russell Scott, and Ald. Keegan, Corke and Smith.

The original request from Gulf Oil first came before council about two weeks ago when it was tabled for more information. Then the matter was referred to the city traffic and light committee which came up with stringent conditions to be applied should council grant the request.

The committee asked that the sewage from the township-based service station be dumped directly at the sewage plant instead of through a manhole; that the dumping be through a closed valve type of receptacle, that the sewage be transported in a vehicle approved by the committee and that the route and times of transport be registered with the city.

The committee also wanted a more accurate estimate of the amount of sewage to be disposed of.

Ald. Donald Soutter couldn't see why the matter should been referred to the traffic and light committee, claiming it had no say as what dumping took place at the sewage plant which is owned by the Ontario Water Resources Commission.

But Mayor J. R. Scott countered by saying that in spite of the city's technical built authority, from a moral and public relations standpoint the OWRC would not allow dumping at the plant without permission from the city.

Ald. Robin Jeffrey said possible pollution was of major importance but urged that the city must be considered.

"If we stop Gulf from dumping then we must stop all building in the city," she said.

One of the arguments against Gulf dumping sewage was that the local sewage plant is already overloaded.

Ald. Jean Smith said the city should take the lead in pollution control and claimed allowing the dumping would only be in the best interests of the city.

Both Mayor Scott and Mrs. Smith noted that Gulf had an alternative to dumping in the city, namely the company could dump at its service station on Highway 401 west of Trenton.

Ald. E. A. Orr and Jack Ireland moved that Gulf be allowed to dump subject to conditions listed by the traffic committee, and the motion carried on the recorded vote.

Belleville Harbor Officially Open

Navigational markers are still to go out, but commercial navigation in the Bay of Quinte has now commenced for another season.

Harbormaster Don Barrett reported yesterday that the oil boat Bay Transport moored into the Belleville harbor early Monday and left again for Montreal after pumping out 4,900 barrels of furnace oil for Liquitank Ltd.

The Bay Transport with the same captain officially opened navigation into Belleville almost exactly one year ago to the date.

Mr. Barrett said the Department of Transport buoy tender "Ennalt" was expected up the bay within the next few days to place navigational aids.

A Rotten Thing to Happen

Weather has taken its toll on sections of the visitors' dock on the Victoria Park side of Belleville Harbor. Yesterday, parks board work crew began task of replacing rotted timbers in preparation for new boating season.

New York Passes Off-track Bet Bill; Ontario Passes Buck

ALBANY (AP) — The New York state legislature Monday approved a bill that would permit off-track betting on flat and harness horse races run in and outside the state.

The measure, which Governor Rockefeller is expected to sign, would set up a statewide system of betting parlors at which patrons could wager and receive their winnings.

New York City government leaders have been pressing for an off-track betting bill for several years to raise more money for the city. Legislative fiscal aides said the bill could mean at least $30,000,000 for the city in the next fiscal year.

Just how soon the parlors could be in operation has not been determined.

TORONTO (CP) — Ontario had a tacit no comment Monday on the hot issue of off-track betting and passed the buck to the federal government.

Provincial officials were asked in committee action earlier Monday by the New York legislature permitting off-track betting on standardbred and thoroughbred races run in and outside the state, Ontario was the site of Canada's original off-track betting headache and the shops first blossomed last year when a Welland magistrate found that Robert Grohl and Howartt Brenton were not acting as bookmakers by transporting bets from their downtown office to the Fort Erie racetrack.

The Ontario Appeal Court concurred and betting shops began springing up in other parts of the country. They spread to Quebec, Alberta and British Columbia before the federal government acted.

Royal assent was given June 27 last year to a bill making it an indictable offence to transport bets for a paying client and the shops gradually started to close as police cracked down.

But several operators in Ontario decided to contest operations and wash the legalization of off-track betting. More than 30 shops were still going last month, getting around the federal ruling by not charging for transporting bets to the track.

Instead of a charge—which the Criminal Code amendment passed in 1969 capped at 5 to 10 per cent of a bet—the operators made purchase of a racing form voluntary for customers using the service. The operators hoped the 10-cent form would help allay expenses.

Attorney-General Arthur Wishart declined comment on the New York legislation and said:

"You'll have to ask Mr. Turner (federal justice minister) about that."

Three Tonight?

Schmidt Has Streak To Settle in Chicago

CHICAGO (CP) — The way Mike Schmidt looks at it, he has a streak going and he would like to extend it tonight.

Mike is general manager of Boston Bruins, who toppled Chicago Black Hawks 6-3 Sunday. The victory gave the visitors a 1-0 lead in the best-of-seven encounter for the playoff championship of the National Hockey League's East Division.

Schmidt was a part of the famed Kraut Line for the Bruins, sharing the distinction with Woody Dumart and Bobby Bauer.

"I played my last game right here in Chicago," Mike said Monday. "I recall we won it, but don't ask me the score."

"That sounds like you've got a win streak of two games," a Chicago reporter remarked.

"Could be," Mike said. "Glad you look at it that way. Maybe we can streich it a little."

Boston took the home ice advantage away from the Hawks with their Sunday punch. After tonight's game, the series switches to Boston for two games.

Both teams worked out Monday but both excused their stars from action, although the goalies worked.

Neither coach—Harry Sinden from Boston nor Bifty Reay from Chicago—would name their starting goaltender for tonight's game.

Sinden rarely names his goaltender in advance, but he is superstitious about relieving a man who is winning.

"They liken until they lose," has been his motto and if he sticks to that, Gerry Cheevers will get the nod again over Ed Johnston.

Cheevers has won five of the six playoff games he has appeared in this season while Johnston lost his only start.

For the Hawks, it will likely be Tony Zero, the Chicago nickname for Tony Esposito, who was in goal for the Sunday game and suffered his worst shellacking since Minnesota North Stars benched him for night goals last December.

Tony counted 15 shutouts during the regular season, a modern record. His backup man is Gerry DesJardins.

Billy Reay didn't single out Esposito for criticism, but said "We played the busiest game defensively we played all year."

"Hard work is what put us where we are and we didn't have it from everybody on Sunday."

Esposito's particular cross Sunday was brother Phil, who scored three of the Bruins' six goals.

And it was Phil, expressing concern over the fact that his brother was hit on the temple by a puck early in the game, who got off the best line of the series so far.

"I hate to see anyone hurt," Phil said, "especially my brother."

Then, he added:

"After all, blood is thicker than water."

Marathon Banter Loses Drayton Grudge Match

BOSTON (CP) — Ron Hill of England talked Toronto's Jerome Drayton out of contention Monday on his way to a record-setting victory in the Boston marathon and avenged a defeat by the Canadian last December in Japan.

Generally, I don't say anything to anybody who might be running near me, but today it was an exception," Hill said after winning the race in two hours, 10 minutes and 30 seconds.

"Wherever Drayton pulled up to me, I'd talk to him. . . . As far as pacing is . . . I'll let you decide that."

There was little doubt the 36-mile, 385-yard race was a grudge match.

Drayton, who changed his name from Peter Buniak after the 1968 Olympics, moved into international prominence last year by pacing his best time of 2:11.02a at Fukuoka, Japan, to defeat Hill by 200 yards and 61 seconds.

He predicted record times for himself at Boston in preparation for this summer's Commonwealth Games at Edinburgh and Hill made no bones about seeking revenge.

This led to a natural confrontation and Hill, the first Englishman to win the famous race, lived up to his words.

Emon O'Reilly of the U.S. was second in 2:11.12, while Pat McMahon of Boston was third in 2:14.53 and Pentti Rummakko of Finland followed in 2:15.59.

The day, dampened by rain and temperatures in the low 40s, was not a total loss for Canada, however, and a seven-man Canadian Track and Field Association team coached by Paul Pero of the Toronto Olympic Club won the club championship, repeating its 1965 success.

Three CTFA team runners finished among the first 10 to claim the title.

Toronto's Bob Moore led the way in seventh place in 2:30.07. Only 39 seconds behind in eighth was Ralph Schalk of Sarnia, Ont., followed by Toronto's Wayne Yetman, 10th in 2:32.32.

A fourth Canadian, Vancouver's Garry Harrison, was 11th in a time of 2:33.18.

The Hill-Drayton duel was terminated after 13 miles. The German-born Toronto runner, gunning to become the first Canadian to succeed at Boston since Gerard Cote gained his last of four wins in 1948, dropped out with leg cramps.

The two rivals struggled head-to-head in the early stages before the sudden end. With Drayton recovering in his hotel room, Hill described the challenge's history.

"I laid back at the start of the race," Hill said, "but after a couple of miles I decided to force the pace a little.

Kelly Foresees Rugged Series

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Coach Red Kelly isn't looking for any more trouble when his Pittsburgh Penguins meet St. Louis Blues tonight for the second game of the Stanley Cup semi-final, but he admits it could turn out to be a rough, tough series.

The two clubs piled up a total of 169 minutes in penalties in the first game of the best-of-seven series Sunday night when the Blues took a 4-1 victory.

"I think it'll probably continue as a rough series," said Kelly, who in his first year as Penguins' coach brought the club up from two successive years of finishing in the National Hockey League's West Division cellar to their first-ever playoff series.

Penguins' left winger Val Fonteyne also saw the possibility of more fights.

"It could very well turn out that way," said Fonteyne. "They're a big, tough team, but we showed them that we can take care of ourselves.

"I think they thought they could run us off the ice but our guys stood up to them."

Tracy Pratt, 185-pound defenceman, was one of the Penguins who stood up to the division champions and took 22 minutes in penalties for his trouble.

"At least we let them know we're here," said Pratt.

Kelly said after the game that he thought the Blues were trying to intimidate his club. Scotty Bowman, St. Louis manager and coach, did not agree with Kelly's charge.

"It's just one of those things that could happen in any game," said Bowman. "I know one thing though, we've got to play a lot better."

The Blues, despite their victory, suffered several defensive losses during the game and only the hot hand of veteran goalie Glenn Hall and the Penguins' inability to finish off their plays kept St. Louis in front.

"We had good chances and didn't capitalize on them," said Kelly.

The Penguins did catch Hall out of position once as the Blues' goalie came out to try and clear the puck away from centre Bryan Hextall.

But Hall had a different version of the story when he joked with reporters after the game.

"You thought I was after the puck when they scored?" he said. "I was really heading for the fallout shelter but somebody closed the gate.

"When I heard that boom. I knew that there were better places for Old Dad to be than standing out there on that ice."

The boom that Hall referred to was an explosion which demolished a small factory near the arena.

Unger Loses Tonsils

DETROIT (AP) — Garry Unger, the sensational 22-year-old centre with Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League, underwent surgery Monday for infected tonsils. Unger, who scored 42 goals and had 28 assists this season, is expected to be released from the hospital within a few days.

Knicks Make Final

NEW YORK (AP) — New York Knicks ended a 17-year drought Monday by whipping Milwaukee Bucks 132-96 to win the National Basketball Association finals against Los Angeles Lakers. The victory gave the Knicks the semi-final series four games to one. The Knicks haven't been in the NBA final since the 1952-53 season.

Islanders Trounced

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec Remparts trounced Charlottetown Islanders 10-0 Monday night to take a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-final hockey playoff series. The sixth and seventh games of the series are scheduled for Charlottetown Wednesday and Thursday but Remparts officials are still undecided whether they will make the trip. Remparts are protesting that the first two games of the series, played in Charlottetown "lacked adequate police protection," and called on the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association to hold the final two games in neutral territory.

Swimmer Sidelined

EDMONTON (CP) — Susan Smith, a member of Canada's British Commonwealth Games swimming team, underwent surgery Monday for removal of gall stones. Miss Smith, named last week to the Canadian team which will take part in the Games this summer in Edinburgh, Scotland, holds four Canadian records. She will not be able to take part in any swimming competition for four or five weeks.

Super Bowl Re-play?

MINNEAPOLIS (A-P) — Aaron Brown and Joe Kapp met socially for the first time Monday night, and they were all smiles about the Sept. 20 meeting between Minnesota Vikings and Kansas City Chiefs in the 1970 National Football League opener.

Brown, you recall, was the 6-foot-5, 265-pound Chief defensive end who knocked Viking Kapp out of the Super Bowl last January with a crunching tackle in the second half.

It was just part of Kansas City's 23-7, shellacking of Kapp and the Vikings in New Orleans. Kapp left the game with a separated shoulder.

The two got together before featured talks at a pro football dinner and posed for pictures.

It just so happens the NFL schedule was released Monday, and the Vikings get a chance to avenge their Super Bowl loss in the first game against the Chiefs in Minnesota's Metropolitan Stadium.

"If we win it won't increase the magnitude of our Super Bowl victory," said Brown, a Minneapolis resident in the off-season, "and if we lose it won't diminish it.

"We'll be looking at it as our first game of the season . . . just like we looked at the Super Bowl—a game we had to win."

Billy Casper Says:
USE WRISTS WITH WEDGE

It is a pendulicity, if that's the word, of golf that the more abruptly you swing the clubhead into the ball, the higher it will fly. This is true with all clubs. But it's only with the shorter irons, especially the lofting wedge, that this move becomes critical.
The purpose of this club is to fly the ball high with a great amount of backspin so that it will land and stop quickly on the green. To achieve this, determine to use your wrists freely with that fairway wedge. As you bring the club back, your wrists should break rather early (see illustration). Then, as you whip the clubhead through the ball, your wrists should again become active.
Don't just flip the clubhead into the ball with wrist-action only. The ball, especially should be firm at impact.

John Garrett was full of surprises all year. Now, it's his turn to have one.

The Trenton native, town of Paipersenagh after a banner rookie season with the OHA Junior A entry, hadn't been an skater since the Peies were eliminated in the first round of league playoffs by London Knights.

For the 18-year-old Garrett, it was, he thought, an unconscionable end to a highly successful winter. In his rookie season, he had helped put the Peies into second place in the ten-team Junior 'A' standings by posting a 2.86 goals-against-average.

That wasn't only good enough to win him the Pinkey Trophy, but also made Garrett one of a handful of OHA Junior 'A' goalkeepers to dip below the 3.00 mark for a season.

The Peterboro coach'n have been more pleased — or surprised — with their acquisition from Trenton's Junior 'B' Golden Hawks.

JOHN GARRETT
In COSSA Days

Friday it was Garrett's turn for pleasant surprises. A telephone call from Montreal Junior Canadiens' coach Roger Bedard sent him scrambling for the nearest suitcase with an offer to be substitute goalie for the odd-on Memorial Cup favorites.

Garrett dressed for last night's opening Eastern Canada semi-final 6-2 win by the Baby Habs over Sault Ste. Marie.

"I won't likely get in unless Wayne plays badly," Garrett said from the Sault this morning. "And he (Montreal regular Wayne Wood) looked pretty good."

Wood only had 22 shots to handle, but he had to be sharp in the opening 20 minutes when the hyper-keen Greyhounds poured on the coal against Montreal's OHA powerhouse.

"But I think we'll be going all the way so maybe I'll get a chance," added Garrett.

Today he got his first chance to practice with the Junior Canadiens in preparation for Wednesday night's second game. Then it's back to Montreal for Friday and Sunday encounters before the rabid Forum supporters who sniffed a Memorial Cup when the Little Habs steamrolled past the Toronto Marlboros.

How does it feel to travel in the company of such promising hockey talent as Gil Perreault and Richard Lemieux?

"They're a great bunch of guys," says Garrett. "And they're pretty well all bilingual."

One allowance had to be made for the unexpected playoff series: Garrett's studies as a first-year arts student at Peterborough's Trent University.

"I got my exams postponed until a couple of weeks after I'm done playing hockey," Garrett explained. "I'm majoring in English."

Meanwhile Trenton High School principal John Garrett, Sr., proudly waxed paternal: "I think he wants to major in goaltending more than anything!"

Defending Commercial Champs

Juniors Get Edge on Opposition

Richard Ellis Juniors, defending Commercial Softball League champions are coming out swinging for this year's campaign which begins May 19.

While most of the seven league teams have yet to reach the stage of knowing just who will be present on the opening day lineup card, the Juniors have been working on a conditioning program for the last month.

Meeting Monday night in the police gymnasium, the Ellis crew has been plying their athletic skills at volleyball, basketball and pounding the boards of the indoor track, with an eye towards perhaps stealing an early season edge on the rest of the league.

The Juniors edged City Hall and league MVP Bob Ebbitt 14-9 in the seventh game of the championship series as Ellis hurler Scott Reid fired a three-hit shutout. Their semi-final series with pennant winning Point Anne was also a real barn burner, with the Juniors winning the final contest 5-3 in 11 innings.

Coach Harold Reid expects to meet equally keen opposition this season. "I think just about everybody will be improved this season," he says. "Some of the bottom clubs like Corby's should be a lot better."

At least two regular spots have been left open with the loss of regular catcher Wes May and the team's leading hitter, centrefielder Terry Wellesley. The fleet Ellis outfielder his for a .333 average, good for fourth place in the league statistics.

The infield seems pretty well set at the present time with lanky Paul Goodfellow on first, Steve Ling on second, Wayne McTaggart at third and Dale Duvall in the short field.

Duvall placed second in the league with 34 hits, while compiling a .379 average and leading the club in runs scored and RBI's. Goodfellow, a versatile glove man, was the league's MVP in 1968.

Already progress has been made towards plugging the holes left by departing players. The team has acquired the services of City outfielder

SCOTT REID
Ellis Ace

Rod Ridley, who was the second most productive run producer for the Hotelmen, despite hitting for a .190 average. Another promising newcomer is Brian Hardee, a veteran of the Thurlow-Sidney District League Softball ears.

Despite the loss of hurler Mark Sheridan, who has passed the junior age limit, the mound corps still appears in good shape, with last year's ace Scott Reid and newcomer Ted Watts splitting the honors. Reid was 9-3 last season, including a no-hitter, while Watts compiled a 5-6 record for Point Anne.

Soccer Sagging

Belleville Minor Soccer Association officials are pondering "the case of the missing players" after player registration Saturday turned up only 250 customers. Last year there were 370 boys enrolled in the program, which was the fastest growing minor sport in Belleville.

"It's tough to get," says secretary - treasurer Fred Keane, "the league isn't confined to one spot groups and many of our best players come from the rural areas."

To add to the mystery approximately half the players registered for newcomers to the sport.

Players who missed the Saturday deadline will be allowed to register at the recreation Centre, Pinnacle Street until Friday night.

'New Blues' Key to Success

By STERLING TAYLOR
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Three years after, the National Hockey League expanded by six teams, statistics indicate there were really only enough adequate players available to create three new clubs.

The six teams that did buy in for $2,000,000 each in 1967 received at least one top-notch goaltender, a maximum of six adequate players and the right to wear a big-league crest.

In fact, the available talent was spread so thin that it now appears the clubs best able to deal off and replace their original hand-me-downs have been the most successful on the ice.

St. Louis, the only club of the six which appears to be on a competitive level with the last-place club in the Eastern Division, has only two full-time defencemen and one forward of the original 18 skaters.

Two others are commuting between St. Louis and the minor leagues and the other 13 have been either traded, retired or returned to the minors.

Glenn Hall, the Blues' original choice of goaltenders, still is with the team, although Don Caley is no longer in the NHL.

The 1969-70 Western Division final standings point up the fact that the clubs which have been most successful in replacing those original draft choices have been the most successful in other respects.

Pittsburgh Penguins, who finished second, have only three skaters and one goaltender of the original 18 skaters and two goaltenders.

Nine other $100,000 bargains are no longer in the league and the remainder have been traded.

About 55 of the original 108 skaters selected and 11 of the 12 goaltenders taken from the established six clubs in the expansion draft of 1967 have remained in the big league.

The goaltenders were all top who still play under the NHL banner, were considered good and talented players who were just a step behind the 16 top competitors on each of the six old clubs at the time."

Included in this 55 were pocalibre, of course, and the 55, tentially good but untried young players, specialty players such as penalty killers and a sprinkling of adequate veterans who were retained by each of the old clubs for emergencies.

Considering that there were also a few veterans such as Andy Bathgate, who were capable of performing well until the new clubs were able to replace them with talented youngsters, it appears there were only enough players in the pool to create three new teams.

The great mistake was in spreading the available talent so thinly that each of the six new teams wound up with a handful of untried but potentially talented youngsters, a few adequate veterans who were not quite good enough to win a berth on an established club and half a team of minor leaguers.

The NHL will expand by two more clubs next season.

Vancouver Canucks and Buffalo Sabres will get their chance to pick up 20 players each for $300,000 each in the bargain-basement draft in June.

Providing 50 per cent of their choices are good enough to stay in the NHL; the total price of each player who makes it will be approximately $600,000.

Bird Belters

Junior public school birdbelters batted it out for badminton supremacy in the city Saturday at a tournament held by the Belleville Garrison Badminton club.

Larry Wilson took the boys' singles title over Nick Barrett, while Gaetan Bellefeuille defeated Debbie Fradette in the girls' singles championship.

Singles consolation winners were Tom Wilkinson and Jean Cowie.

Wilson combined with Dan Ladouceur to win boys' doubles title, with Mark Potts and Bob Glover as the consolation champions.

In the girls' doubles championship, it was Susan Wilson and Debbie Fradette capturing the title.

Finals in the Senior Tournament are slated for May 2 at the Belleville Armories.

Game Club Meets

The Belleville Fish and Game Club will hold its monthly meeting at the Canadian Legion Hall, Pinnacle Street Wednesday night at eight o'clock.

Bill Bittle of the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests department Tweed office will be showing a film on wolves as well as expounding on the fish and game situation in the Quinte area.

Royal Perseverance Wrecks Odom

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Perseverance is becoming the Kansas City Royals' greatest virtue—and a saving grace for California Angels, too.

The Royals overcame a 2-0 Oakland lead on Bob Oliver's two-run ninth-inning homer Monday night and went on to defeat the Athletics 4-2 in the 11th—with Oliver socking another homer—for their second overtime victory in as many games.

California, which blew a 1-0 ninth-inning lead Sunday and finally bowed to the Royals 4-1 in 13 squandered bases-loaded threats in the eighth and ninth innings, then clipped Milwaukee Brewers 5-4 on Roger Repoz' bases-loaded single in the 10th.

In the only other American League activity, New York Yankees pounded Washington Senators 11-2 and Baltimore Orioles edged Boston Red Sox 3-2 in a game halted by rain after six innings.

Oakland's John (Blue Moon) Odom blanked the Royals on two singles and struck out 12 through the eighth inning, but couldn't hold a two-run lead built on homers by Dick Green and catcher Dave Duncan.

After picking up his 12th strikeout to start the ninth, Odom yielded a single by Ed Kirkpatrick, got the second out on a leaping catch by shortstop Roberto Pena and then was tagged for Oliver's tying homer.

Kansas City reliever Moe Drabowsky worked out of a bases-loaded jam in the bottom of the ninth and the Royals finally broke the deadlock in the 11th.

With one out, Ed Kirkpatrick tripled and Amos Otis walked. Otis stole second and when Duncan's throw sailed into centre field, continued to third as Kirkpatrick scored the lead run.

After flubbing a squeeze bunt attempt on which Otis was nailed at the plate, Oliver provided an insurance run with his second homer of the game.

The Angels, trailing 3-0 after six innings and bitless against Gene Brabender after a leadoff single by Sandy Alomar in the first, knocked out the Milwaukee starter with a four-run flurry in the seventh.

After the Brewers' Danny Walton, who had delivered two earlier runs with a double and his fifth homer, singled home the tying run in the eighth, California won it on Repoz' third straight single.

Danny Cater and Rose Woods slammed three-run homers to pace the Yanks' attack at Washington. Cater also doubled and singled, and Thurmon Munson, stroked three hits, driving in a pair of runs.

Boog Powell drove in two Baltimore runs with a single and his second homer while right-hander Jim Palmer held the Red Sox to five hits in the rain-curtailed game at Boston.

and Stargell hit one downtown.

Tony Perez slammed his seventh homer and Johnny Bench and rookie Hal McRae added round-trippers as the homer-happy Reds won their sixth game in seven. The loss was the fourth straight for Atlanta.

"I beat everybody in the league last year except these guys," said the Reds' winning pitcher, Jim Merritt. "This one is some kind of sweet victory."

Merritt, who won his third game in four decisions, scattered six hits. His only trouble was in the ninth, when Rico Carty hit a two-run homer.

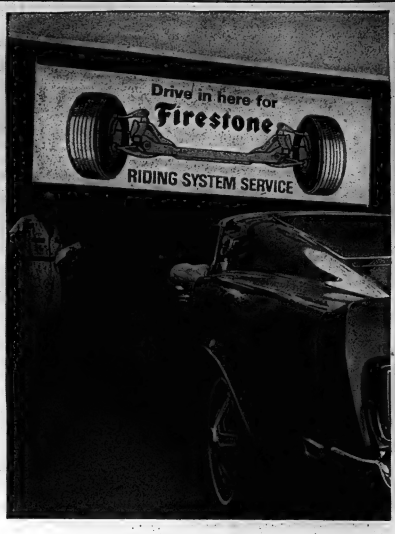
Trims ff Mates



at the end of the regulation 27 holes Sunday.

They teed up Monday morning under a burning sun at the 7,080-yard Lakewood Country Club course.

Johnson and Charles were both off the fairway on the first hole of the sudden-death playoff but recovered to make par four. Barber knocked his drive down the middle, was on the green in two and just slipped past the hole on his try for a birdie.

Charles had to recover after slicing his tee shot badly while Barber and Johnson were on the 550-yard, par-five second hole with their third and were going for birdies. Johnson missed his 18-foot birdie attempt by inches but Barber slapped his putt into the back of the cup and he was $35,000 richer.

Johnson and Charles divided second and third money with each pocketing a shade better than $11,000.

At Firestone we have a system—to save you more money on tires.

Riding System Service makes your tires last longer. There's a lot of miles built into every Firestone tire. And we want you to enjoy every one of them. That's why we offer this specialized care of your entire riding system.

Here's how it works.

Bring in your car for a free Riding System Analysis. We'll check the wheel alignment and balancing. The shock absorbers. The brakes. And other riding system components that affect tire wear.

We may find that a few dollars spent on a wheel alignment or balance can save your tires from wearing out too soon. And that's a mighty good investment.

There can be other savings too. The components of your riding system all work together. If one is out of kilter, it can lead to trouble in others. So you can save a lot by spending a little. So far we've been talking about saving money. That's important, of course.

But money isn't everything.

There is also safety. And comfort.

Nothing means so much to your safety and comfort as your riding system. That's what holds your car on the road. Stops you in time. Cushions the bumps. So, quite apart from long tire life, there are good reasons to see us for Firestone Riding System Service.

How about tires?

What if a Riding System Analysis shows that you need new tires? You are under no obligation to buy ours, just because you've had a free Riding System Analysis.

But our people can show you that you're ahead with Firestone. Ahead for mileage. Ahead for safety. Ahead for comfort. Ahead for value.

And when you get your new Firestone tires, please come back from time to time for Riding System Service.

That way, you will always get everything out of our tires that we put into them. And that's saying a lot.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — Prices on the Toronto Stock Exchange were mixed in light mid-morning trading today.

On index, industrials were up 0.10 to 178.03 and western oils .77 to 172.42. Golds declined 0.35 to 161.85 and base metals .81 to 141.21.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 600,000 shares, compared with 327,000 at the same time Monday.

Losers edged out gains 128 to 118 with 159 issues unchanged.

Inco was up ⅜ to 47¾. The company said it expects 1970 will be the best year in history for nickel sales.

Tight nickel supplies in the free world were said to be an indicator of higher market prices for the metal.

Cralgold Mines was down ¼ to 12½ despite company predictions of higher earnings this year compared to 1969.

IBM was up 2¼ to 347¼ despite an announcement today by Xerox Corp. that it had filed a patent infringement suit against IBM.

The suit concerns use of Xerox processes in office copiers, the company said.

Husky Oil, which is discussing a possible merger with Santa Fe Industries of Chicago, was unchanged at 11.

Genstar Ltd., which has offered to trade up to 962,854 of its common shares on a 2-for-1 basis for BACM Industries shares, was unchanged at 11¼. BACM was up ¼ to 22.

Monday, the market posted a fractional loss in the lightest trading session so far this year.

Volume was 1,264,000 shares, compared with 1,268,000 at the same time Friday.

Investors appeared reluctant to trade during the market's predominantly downward trend.

Monday was the third consecutive day of declines. The market rose slightly Wednesday and interrupted a nine-day successive downward trend.

On index Monday, industrials fell 1.17 to 177.85, western oils 1.19 to 111.82 and golds .90 to 188.10.

The base metals decline was the sharpest this year.

Western oils dropped to a low for 1970 of 109.82 at 2 p.m. but advanced in later trading.

Declines outnumbered advances 308 to 129 with 320 issues unchanged.

CDP Computers was up 50 cents to $5.00. GTS Corp. of New Orleans has offered to acquire shares in the Calgary-based company at the rate of four GTS shares for seven CDP shares.

Trading in CDP was halted until 10:30 Monday morning while regulations governing the proposed acquisition were checked.

Husky Oil, which is discussing a possible merger with Santa Fe was unchanged at a low for the year of 11.

Magna Electric, which said it will seek to acquire a controlling interest in Erie Diversified, was up ¼ to 21¾, Erie was unchanged at 8¾.

Triad Oil was down 5 cents to $3.65. The company said it would seek to purchase for cancellation all outstanding 6½-per-cent notes of Triad in addition to a 5½-per-cent note of a subsidiary company.

Xeleo, which announced at its annual meeting that first-quarter earnings were up for 1970 compared with the similar period last year, was down ½ to 22. No earnings figures were released.

RIDE BIKES

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Bicycle riding is "spreading like wildfire and the increase is mainly among adults," said Clifford L. Franz, California head of the League of Wheelmen. "The anti-pollution preachers have jumped on the bandwagon," Franz said, because unlike cars bikes don't pollute the air. Franz says recent surveys show that 60,000,000 Americans ride bicycles.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P., Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Guilt - laden letters still come in from readers who have placed their aged parents in nursing homes. The following letter from a minister in Akron, Ohio, should bring them comfort:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I would like to offer a word of encouragement to the dear lady who is so overcome with guilt at having to place her aged mother in a nursing home.

I am a minister and visit the county home here in our city the first Sunday of each month. The only real heartbreak that I have witnessed among the residents there was not the fact that they were placed there, but that they were literally abandoned de- forsaken by loved ones once they had been confined.

I am sure your writer does not fall into the category of ignoring the visitation privileges now that her mother is in the home. One thing she must come to see for her own peace of mind, I believe, is that even if Mother complains of being forsaken and not being wanted any more, this is merely old age talking.

I'd like to relate an incident from my own life to explain this. When my own mother was near death and my sister and I were caring for her in her own home, her mind was sometimes clear and at times quite confused. The week she died she requested, one morning, that we sing for her. We struggled through her requests of "Mansion over the Hill Top" and "The Blood That Stained the Old Rugged Cross."

Then she said, "Please sing one more." We expected another hymn, but her mind wandered a little and she said, "Sing about the mountains in Tennessee. Oh, you Davey Crockett!"

With this I burst into laughter and we sang Davey Crockett. I afterwards felt ashamed for a while because I had laughed but then I realized it was that same sweet mother with whom we had laughed so often and that had she been herself she would have laughed the heartiest.

So to this reader I say the compassion and love you feel now was certainly taught you by your mother. Her job is your training was well done, so relax, visit her often but don't allow what she may say to hurt you. She'd never feel this way if she were really alert.

Go with her as far as you can, to the side of the grave, at last and trust Someone Who loves her even more to lead her out the other side where she will know as you do that you've done your very best. Mothers may be shut in, but never shut out. (In His service, Rev. B.)

For Mrs. L.: One of the common reasons for surgical removal of the spleen (splenectomy) is rupture of the spleen due to accident. Sometimes there are medical reasons.

Can a person live normally without a spleen? Yes. The spleen is a storage depot for some blood cells and a factory for the production of others. When it is removed other organs in the body take over these functions.

* * *

For Mr. T.: It is true that abnormal amounts of uric acid in the blood, found in gouty patients, often predisposes to the formation of kidney stones. The uric acid crystals settle in the urinary system as they do in the joints.

Treatment is directed towards lowering the uric acid in the blood with such drugs as colchicine, probenecid and others. To help "wash the excess away" it makes good sense to drink large quantities of fluid daily.

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 22

Your birthday today: Your best achievement this year is in those areas where you figure out the methods and do most of the work yourself. Natural limitations on whatever you attempt will force simplification, concentration on essentials, thrifty management.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Purchase useful articles if you know what you want and have an immediate use planned. Other matters run into confusion or delay.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Correspondence, definite commitments are not favored now. Your tendency is to over-correct small differences.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Take one thing at a time today. In every situation there seems to be somebody willing to bicker — either you are in such a mood or are the target of somebody else's peevishness.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Your creative ideas lead into curious byways and blind alleys.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): A great deal of discussion is inevitable. Much has to be aired and compared and digested for a general understanding.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): With patience and careful listening you can work out some very good and satisfying matters today. Just start from the beginning and keep at it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Business and commercial matters are uphill all the way and require much care. Personal matters, romance for the eligible, thrive in a most pleasantly surprising profusion.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): There seems much more discussion than you believe is needed, but actually some of the people whose consent is essential will come along only with a complete review.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Throw more thought to your own physical welfare, protection of your health. Your opinions are not necessarily helpful in a general discussion or dispute — wait until your own interest is involved or until somebody asks.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — JAN. 19): Deal gently with your friends: there's much at stake, and something you don't know about their problems. Your own work is rather arduous at the moment.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Your personal and family affairs run into conflict with your career and the duties you have set yourself to fulfill.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): You center some of your energy but much is achieved nevertheless. Put in a full day: keep notes to avoid further confusion.

Announce New Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissue.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved . . . actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

Among these case histories were a variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. Relief even occurred in cases of long standing, and most important of all, results were so thorough that this improvement was maintained over a period of many months.

This was accomplished with a new healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination painful. It helps prevent infection which is a principal cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H. Suppositories or Preparation H. Ointment. (with a special applicator).

Satisfaction or your money refunded.

Opposition Favors Davis as Pollution Boss

THE LITTLE WOMAN

"Did you read this article on air pollution?"

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition speakers claimed Monday that Fisheries Minister Jack Davis should be the one and only champion of clean water in Canada.

The demonstration of confidence in the minister came in defiance of amendments to the Fisheries Act which he presented for second-reading debate in the Commons.

The amendments give the minister tough new powers to prosecute industrial pollution of practically all Canadian waters except for such bodies as are covered by other proposed anti-pollution legislation.

While supporting the amendments, which later received second reading and now will be studied in committee, the opposition speakers took the occasion to renew their attacks on the Canada water bill and to demand that it be dropped in favor of the fisheries legislation.

One clause of the amendments bars Mr. Davis from surrendering any of his powers in areas covered by the Canada Water Act. These areas are to remain under the direction Energy Minister J. J. Greene.

The amendments would also be limited by the northern waters bill which would be administered by Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien.

Ran Harding (NDP—Kootenay West) said such restrictions meant many water bodies within Canada would lose the services of Mr. Davis and his staff of experts in the fisheries department.

It was, he maintained, the department best suited to deal with pollution in the government and should be given preferred power to deal with the problem.

The fisheries amendments would enable the minister to establish national standards of water purity wherever the water bill would permit a variety of standards under different commissions and would permit "pollution havens" to continue, he said.

Arguing along similar lines, James McGrath (PC—St. John's East) confessed that Mr. Davis is fighting a losing battle within the cabinet for control over pollution.

He said the fisheries minister should have greater powers to fight the threat, and he dismissed the water bill as little other than window-dressing by the government.

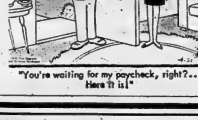
Lloyd Crosse (PC—South Shore) put down the provisions of anti-pollution bills to "unrest in the cabinet."

The government, he said, is willing to sacrifice the fight against pollution to allow several ministers to have a say in pollution control. He noted that Transport Minister Don Jamieson has said he will be introducing anti-pollution amendments to the Canada Shipping Act.

In opening debate on the amendments, Mr. Davis stressed Ottawa would make it impossible for any area to go sort on pollution to attract industry.

They empower the minister to order a halt to construction of a plant which has not complied with orders by the fisheries department on pollution safeguards. They also raise limits on fines to $2,000 from $1,000, with provision for daily fines of $5,000 where anti-pollution regulations are deliberately ignored.

The amendments, Mr. Davis claimed, will be equipped to deal with the main sources of industrial pollution. Pulp and paper mills alone were responsible for 39 per cent of the waste flowing into Canadian rivers. One mill equalled the waste from a city the size of Ottawa.



He added that the new amendments will "put the law behind us" when officials look at industries such as the new oil refinery at Come-by-Chance, Nfld. He said the failure to make adequate provision for control of pollution probably cost the Electric Reduction Co. of Canada $2,000,000 as a result of suits by fishermen involving phosphorous pollution of Placentia Bay in the same province last year.

More Fishermen May Get Help

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis told the Commons Monday that consideration is being given to compensation for fishermen in Lake Erie and Lake Winnipeg whose livelihood has been affected by mercury pollution.

Such compensation has already been announced for fishermen in the Lake St. Clair area.

"You're waiting for my paycheck, right? ... Here it is!"

Ontario Will Back Fishermen In Suits Against Polluters

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Resources Minister George Kerr said Monday the Ontario government will support fishermen's groups in any legal action against water-polluters.

"It's a wonder major polluters of Ontario waters haven't been sued by fishermen's associations or other organizations concerned with natural resources," he said.

Mr. Kerr said a bill will be introduced at this legislature session incorporating fines for water pollution to $5,000 a day from $1,000.

The minister visited Dryden Monday, where mercury contamination from a chemical plant has been blamed for closure to fishing of the Wabigoon River and Clay Lake.

Mr. Kerr said he found criticism from the Patricia regional tourist council "a little surprising".

The council has complained that the Wabigoon River downstream from Dryden has been polluted and unfished for years, but publicity associated with the fishing ban is damaging the tourist industry throughout the area.

Mr. Kerr said he wondered why the tourist group didn't make "a bit of an issue about pollution when it was in progress."

Lake Erie Perch Are Served In Fish Fry at Queen's Park

TORONTO (CP) —More than 300 politicians, reporters and civil servants dined Monday on 200 pounds of Lake Erie perch fillets at a fish fry at Queen's Park.

It was organized by Donald Paterson (L—Essex South) and Rene Brunelle, heads and forests minister, to promote the edibility of Lake Erie fish, and also featured Ontario wine.

Reports last month of mercury pollution in adjacent waters knocked the bottom out of Lake Erie commercial fish sales, and the fish fry was conceived to offer proof that the lake's perch is not only fit to eat but delicious as well.

Although all tests proved that the mercury level in Lake Erie fish was well within safety levels, a prohibition on fishing in nearby Lake St. Clair, the St. Clair River and the Detroit River dropped the price of Great Lakes perch to 10 cents a pound from 23 in a matter of days.

Catches from Lake Erie were seized by federal fisheries authorities, but released for sale and export to the United States once tests showed the fish was edible without danger to health.

A fish distributor said prices already have recovered, but not soon enough to prevent severe hardship for commercial fishermen on Lake Erie.

Chatham Man Charged With Torturing Children

CHATHAM (CP) — Bertrand Henry Robert, 33, of Dover township pleaded guilty Monday to five charges of assault causing bodily harm, attempted wife torture and beating of his five children.

He was remanded in custody for sentencing May 4.

His housekeeper, Mary Depatie, 33, pleaded not guilty and her case was adjourned to April 27.

The children, ranging in age from 3 to 11, were taken to hospital after their condition was discovered last Wednesday, the court was told. Three needed extensive treatment.

Robert and Miss Depatie specifically were charged with burning and generally assaulting the children.

Evidence against Robert included an allegation he forced the children to sit on hot stove elements several times between Jan. 1 and April 18. He did not deny the accusation when questioned by Provincial Judge C. E. Perkins.

In a statement to police, the youngsters also said they were beaten with a board and belt, and that the youngest girl, Janet, 3, was tied with string and refused water. The court was told William Patrick, 11, had been placed alternatively in scalding and cold water and was limping when taken to hospital.

Bruises and burn scars were found on all the children, said Crown Counsel Blake Ward.

Sydney J. Harris Says...

George Patton Honest General

I was sorry to miss a preview screening of the new film, "Patton," because I want ad to see how this unique general was depicted. Although I did not like Patton, or what he stood for, I respected him as one of the most honest generals of our age.

He was totally free of cant and self-deception that afflict almost all his military colleagues. He liked fighting, he enjoyed war, and he made no sentimental obeisances to peace.

Patton was practically 150 per cent military leader. I have heard who refrained from the customary gush about "defence" and "security" and "we can't have peace unless we have a strong fighting force."

He enthusiastically accepted the fact that armies are for fighting and for killing, not for keeping the peace. He was restless and unfulfilled out of battle, and felt himself fully alive only in warfare.

This is why men go into the army, and rise in the ranks. They like to command, and they can command best in combat. They want victory, honor, decorations, authority, and life-and-death decisions to make. This is their form of self-expression.

Barbarous as we may find this, it is at least a far more honest attitude than the public utterances of most military leaders, who pretend that they find peace preferable to war.

Military men, like politicians, are the same the world over, and have more in common with one another (even though they wear different uniforms) than they do with their own countrymen. A "patriotic" U.S. military general would be just as "patriotic" a Russian general if he had happened to be born there.

The combative temperament like the political temperament, is a supranational trait: it may take on the coloration of its country, but the aim of the general is to win, just as the aim of the politician is to get and stay in office. In both cases, the ideology is subordinate to the conflict. Patton, I dare say, might have been just as happy fighting with the Nazis as against them, and would have found adequate reasons for justifying his role. Generals are not natural democrats.

Indeed, military men often feel themselves "obstructed" under a democratic form of government, and they thrive much better in nations where civilian control has been weakened or usurped. U.S. Founding Fathers understood this quite well when they stipulated that a civilian President should be the commander-in-chief of the armed forces.

What is tragic is, that the profession of arms must be militant in its very nature, and as Patton must be militant in order to succeed at killing rather than of leading us in conquest of our common enemies — disease, famine, flood, and, most menacingly, that pervasive prejudice that may eventually conquer us all.

Mercury Levels Safe

TORONTO (CP) — Mercury levels found in urine samples of 71 Ontario residents tested after they are polluted fish were well within the bounds of safety, a provincial government spokesman said Monday.

Dr. Ernest Mastromatteo, director of the environmental health branch, said the highest level found was .26 milligrams per litre.

"We regard anything up to .50 as within the normal range."

To satisfy some scientists who argue blood and hair samples are better indicators of the mercury level, those samples from the 71 are still undergoing tests.

CHERRY NUT LOAF
(Cereal Flakes)

2 cups all-purpose flour
4 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
1 cup cereal flakes
1 cup glace cherries, halved
¾ cup sugar
1 egg well beaten
1 cup milk
2 tbsps. melted butter or shortening
Blanched almonds (optional)
Glace cherries

METHOD: Grease an 8 x 5 x 3" loaf tin thoroughly.

Sift together flour, baking powder, and salt into mixing bowl. Add cereal flakes (any variety) cherries and sugar. Mix well. To beaten egg add milk and melted fat and combine with flour mixture. Mix until just blended. Turn into greased loaf tin, decorate with halved almonds and cherries, and allow to stand for 20 min. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 55-60 min. Turn out on wire rack and cool for several hours before slicing.

A Summer Buffet Meal!

A complete meal for summer is set out here — salad, a macaroni casserole with tomato slices and tasty hamburgers served with dill pickles.

Hard-Cooked Eggs

Hard - cooked eggs, either plain or devilled are a popular item in a carried lunch. If by chance breakfast has been skipped or skimped, a mid - morning snack for student or worker could be an energy - packed, peeled ready - to - eat cooked egg. Tuck it into the carried lunch or, if one is not toted, make up a small package containing the egg, some salt and pepper and a thin slice of buttered bread or a couple of crackers, if desired.

A medium - sized egg packs a nutritional bonus that far outweighs the few calories (less than a 6-ounce cola drink) that it adds.

Imagination and These Mean Tasty Treats

CINNAMON BUNS

¼ cup shortening
¾ cup milk
1-3 cup white sugar
1½ tsps. salt
2 pkgs. or cakes yeast
½ cup warm water
2 eggs well beaten
4 cups all - purpose flour
Melted butter
¾ cup brown sugar
1½ tsps. cinnamon
½ cup melted butter
½ cup brown sugar
½ cup chopped nuts

METHOD: Scald milk. Add white sugar, salt and shortening, cool to lukewarm. Dissolve yeast in water with 1 tsp. white sugar. Stir in lukewarm milk mixture. Add eggs and 2 cups flour and beat until smooth. Stir in remaining flour. Turn dough out on lightly floured board, and knead until smooth and elastic. Place dough in greased bowl and brush top with soft shortening. Cover. Let rise in warm place 85 deg. Fahr. until double in bulk about 1 hr. Divide dough in half. Roll out each half in oblongs 14 x 8". Brush with soft butter. Combine ¾ cup brown sugar and cinnamon, sprinkle evenly over the two oblongs. Roll up like jelly roll. Cut each roll in nine pieces. Pour ½ cup melted butter into two 9" layer pans. Combine brown sugar and nuts, sprinkle over melted butter (or margarine), in pans. Place rolls cut side up in pans. Let rise in warm place until double in bulk about 1 hr. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 min. Invert pans and allow pans to stay over rolls for a minute so syrup can run down on rolls.

Remove from pans. Makes 18.

Mrs. Pauline Lambert,
90 Isaac St., Tweed.

FRESH PLUM BREAD

(2 Loaves — 1 to Freeze)

3 cups sifted all - purpose flour
4 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. salt
1 cup white sugar
2 cup nuts (almonds, walnuts, or pecans chopped)
2½ cups coarsely cut pitted but not peeled red plums — about 8
2 egg
¾ cup milk
1-3 cup orange juice (may be fresh or fresh frozen reconstituted)
2 tbsp. grated orange rind (from 1 large orange)
3 tbsps. cooking oil or soft butter melted

METHOD: Into a large mixing bowl sift together the flour, baking powder, salt and sugar. Add nuts and plums and carefully mix. In a smaller bowl beat egg, then add milk, orange juice and rind, oil (or butter). Mix. Add to sifted dry ingredients, stirring only until blended.

Turn into buttered medium-sized loaf pans, making a slight depression at centre. Cover with foil and let stand on counter 20 min. Still covered with foil, bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 30 min., then remove foil and bake 50 min. longer. Cool on racks. Slice one for current meal, freeze wrap second loaf and freeze.

Margaret Skinner,
87 Dunbar Street.

RAISIN BREAD

(Two Loaves)

1 pkge. yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
2 tsp. sugar
1 cup scalded milk
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
1½ cups plumped and dried seedless raisins
6 cups all purpose flour
1-3 cup sugar (second amount)
2½ tsp. salt
1 cup cold water

METHOD: Scald milk. Into a large bowl add the yeast, add lukewarm water and 2 tsps. sugar and let stand 10 min. Meanwhile add to scalded milk the butter (or margarine), 1/3 cup sugar and salt and stir to dissolve. Then add cold water, mix and add to risen yeast liquid, along with the dried raisins. Add 2 cups of the flour and beat 3 min.

Add 2 more cups flour, mix as well as you can then cover and let rise until tripled in size. Punch down dough, spread liberally with flour and knead until all flour is kneaded in. Cut dough in half, shape into 2 loaves and place in buttered loaf pans. Let rise, until ¾" above rims of pans. Bake at 450 deg. Fahr. 5 min, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. After loaves are golden on top, brush each with milk. Bake 45 min. in all. As soon as loaves are removed from oven brush with milk again to make them shine. Let stand in pans 5 min., then cool on rack.

Mrs. Frank Selrya,
130 Herchimer Ave.

LEMON BREAD

½ cup shortening or margarine
1 cup white sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1½ cups flour
3 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
Grated rind of 1 lemon
½ cup chopped nuts (if desired)

METHOD: Cream shortening, add sugar and cream again. Add beaten eggs. Add sifted ingredients alternately with milk. Add the nuts and rind. Bake in loaf pan at 350 deg. Fahr. 60-65 min. While hot spoon over ¼ cup white sugar mixed with juice of the lemon.

Salads Can Be Dieters' Delight

SALMON AND EGG MOLD

1 - tbsp. gelatine
2 tbsps. cold water
3 tbsps. butter
3 tbsps. pastry flour
¼ tsp. salt
Dash of mace, pepper and paprika
2 cups hot milk
2 cups canned or cooked salmon flaked
½ tbsp. lemon juice
4 hard cooked eggs

METHOD: Soak the gelatine in cold water for 5 min. Melt butter in saucepan, mix in flour and seasonings. Stir gently over low heat 3 min. Add hot milk, stir and cook till smooth and thick. Add soaked gelatine, stir until dissolved and add the salmon and lemon juice.

Shell the eggs, remove whites from yolks. Sieve yolks for serving. Add the finely chopped whites salmon mixture. Pour into oiled loaf pan 9 x 5 x 3". Chill until firm. Unmould on a bed of lettuce and frost with mayonnaise. Press the yolks through a sieve over the dressing. Decorate with long narrow leaves cut from green pepper or sweet pickle. Serve with whole wheat bread and a salad bowl. Serves 6.

Mrs. Percy Lancaster,
75 Dundas St. East.

GINGER ALE FRUIT SALAD

1 pkge. (3-oz.) lemon jelly powder
1 cup hot water
Dash of salt
¼ tsp. paprika
1 cup chilled ginger ale
½ cup canned black cherries (drained)
1 cup pineapple tidbits, drained
1-3 cup almonds, blanched and slivered

METHOD: Dissolve jelly powder in hot water, add salt and paprika. Cool. Add ginger ale, chill until partially set. Stir in fruits and nuts. Pour into quart mould. Chill until firm. Unmould on crisp lettuce and garnish with cherry.

Mrs. James Thompson,
RR1, Stirling.

CUCUMBER LIME SALAD

3-oz. lime jelly
1 cup boiling water
2 tbsps. vinegar
1 tbsp. minced onion
1 cup minced cucumber (use 2 unpeeled cucumbers with seeds removed) ¾ tsp. salt
½ cup mayonnaise

METHOD: Dissolve jelly in water, add vinegar and cool until partially set. To minced cucumber and onion, add salt and let stand a while before combining. Whip jelly until fluffy and fold in mayonnaise and cucumber. Mold and serve with cold cuts or fish.

VARIATION: add 1 cup cottage cheese

Fruit or Vegetable, Salads Are Nutritious

BEAN SALAD

This salad can be made with canned beans or can be made with leftover beans (cooked) — green or yellow (approx. 3 to 4 cups)

3 cans drained beans or cook your own
1 small green pepper chopped
½ sweet red pepper chopped
½ small Spanish onion (chopped)
2 cup sugar
1 cup vinegar
¼ cup salad or vegetable oil
½ tsp. salt
Dash pepper
Dash paprika

METHOD: Heat sugar and vinegar until sugar dissolves. Stir together oil and seasonings, and add to vinegar and sugar solution. Pour mixed liquids over the vegetables and let stand overnight in the refrigerator.

Mrs. Audrey Karsikas,
23 Joyce Crescent.

FARMER'S CHOP SUEY (Salad)

1 onion chopped
1 cup cucumber, sliced
1 cup radishes sliced
4 tomatoes quartered
1 cup green peppers chopped
1 cup cabbage shredded
Pinch of salt

SOUR CREAM DRESSING

2 tbsps. vinegar
1 tsp. salt
2 tbsps. sugar
1 tsp. dry mustard
A little paprika
1 cup thick sour cream.

METHOD: Add vinegar and seasonings to sour cream and pour over vegetables.

Mrs. L. E. Leavitt,
Wooler.

CHICKEN SALAD

with homemade mayonnaise

4 cups diced chicken
1 cup diced celery
2 hard boiled eggs chopped
1 tsp. salt
1 cup chopped sweet pickle
1 cup homemade mayonnaise
¼ tsp. pepper

METHOD: Mix all ingredient together. Chill and serve on lettuce.

Mrs. James Thompson,
RR1, Stirling.

(Ed. Note: See Salad Dressing section for recipe for making homemade mayonnaise.)

MOUSER SALAD

(Use one half-section of a canned pear for each serving. For 6 servings use the following)

6 halves of canned pears
6 tbsps. cream cheese
1 tbsp. preserved ginger, chopped fine

METHOD: Mix cheese and ginger and fill cavity of pears with this mixture. Place on lettuce leaf cavity side down, decorate pear with half an almond for each ear, small clove or Cassia bud for each eye, small end of clove for nose to form face and a bit of parsley for a tail. Serve with a fruit salad dressing.

This makes a nice conversation piece. Walnut meats can be added to filling if desired.

Mrs. Byron Emmons,
Shannonville.

SOUR CREAM SALAD

1 cup miniature marshmallows
1 cup drained pineapple tidbits (10-oz. can)
1 cup mandarin oranges
1 cup commercial sour cream
1 cup coconut
1 small orange jelly

METHOD: Dissolve jelly according to directions. Reduce cold water slightly. Whip sour cream until in very fine pieces. Add to hot jelly. When partially set, add marshmallows, pineapple, oranges and coconut. Pour into a mold. Decorate with mandarin oranges.

Mrs. R. A. McCurdy,
RR2, Belleville.

LIME JELLY SALAD

1 pineapple jelly powder
1 lime jelly powder
1 cup crushed pineapple, drained
1 cup chopped nuts
2 cups cottage cheese
1 cup celery (chopped fine)
1 small jar pimientos
¾ cup salad dressing
1 cup whipped cream or whipped topping

METHOD: Dissolve jellies in 1 cup boiling water. Add all other ingredients, except cream, mix well, then add cream, mix well, then add cream and blend together. Let set until firm before serving.

Mrs. Barbara Martinson,
636 Bridge St. East.

Salads

CRUSHED PINEAPPLE and CARROT MOLD

Drain one 20-oz. can crushed pineapple. Add enough water to pineapple syrup to make 1½ cups. Heat to a boil.

Add 1 pkge. lemon gelatin; stir until dissolved. Add ½ cup sugar, ¼ tsp. salt, and 2 tbsps. lemon juice. Chill until slightly thickened. Add pineapple and 1 cup finely grated carrots. Whip ½ pt. whipping cream stiff, fold into gelatin. Pour into 8" ring mold (1¼ qts.); chill until firm.

For easy unmolding, make salad a day ahead of serving so it will be thoroughly set.

Margaret Skinner,
87 Dunbar Street.

VEGETABLE JELLY SALAD

1 lemon jelly powder
1 cup boiling water
½ cup pineapple juice
½ cup salad dressing
2 tbsps. vinegar

Dissolve jelly in the water, add vinegar, juice and salad dressing. When cool add

1 cup shredded cabbage
1 cup crushed pineapple, (drained)
½ cup chopped celery
1 red apple cubed (unpeeled).

Chill and serve.

Mrs. Arnold Wessels,
116 West Moira Street.

No Meal Complete Without Meat Dish

SWEET and SOUR SPARERIBS or PORK CHOPS

Cut into 2" pieces 2 lbs. spareribs or 1 lb. boneless pork chops.

Wash spareribs briefly and dry.

BATTER

In medium size bowl beat together:

1 egg
¼ cup milk
Salt and pepper
¼ tsp. baking powder

Add enough flour to make batter. Dip ribs in batter and fry in hot oil on both sides until brown. Drain ribs by placing on paper towelling.

SWEET AND SOUR SAUCE

½ cup sweet pickle vinegar
¼ cup water
¼ cup maple syrup
1-2 cup ketchup (thickened with cornstarch)

METHOD: Combine above ingredients and cook over med. heat, stirring constantly until transparent. Cut ½ doz. sweet pickles into small pieces and add to sauce. Pour sauce over cooked ribs.

Mrs. Garth Bracken,
33 Meadowvale Ave.

FRENCH MEAT ROLL

Preheat oven to 425 deg. Fahr.

MEAT FILLING:

½ lb. ground beef
¼ cup chopped green peppers
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 unbeaten eggs
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup chopped celery
¼ cup chopped onions
¼ cup catsup
¼ cup rolled oats or bread crumbs

Combine above and mix well together. Prepare biscuit crust topping as directed on package. Add 1 tbsp. chopped parsley, 1 tsp. dry mustard, ¼ cup less 2 tbsps. water. Mix lightly. Knead dough gently 8 to 15 times on a lightly floured surface. Roll to a 10 x 12" rectangle. Spread meat filling to within ½" of the border. Roll up like a jelly roll; start from long side of rectangle. Dampen edges and seal, tucking ends of roll under. Place on a greased cookie sheet; bake in preheated oven 30-35 min.

Serve with a sauce made from undiluted tomato or celery soup, or with beef gravy and sliced mushrooms.

Makes 6-8 servings.

Mrs. Kirk Downey,
81 West Moira St.

STEAK ROLL-UPS

2 lbs. thinly sliced round steak or flank steak
2 cups bread stuffing
2 tbsps. shortening
1 can mushroom soup
½ cup water
½ cup sour cream if desired

METHOD: Pound steak with meat hammer or heavy saucer. Cut steak into 8 pieces, long enough to roll. Place about ¼ cup stuffing near edge of each piece of steak; roll pinwheel fashion; fasten with toothpick or skewer. In large skillet, brown roll-ups in shortening. Add soup and water. Cover and cook over low heat 1½ hrs., or until tender. Spoon sauce over meat occasionally during cooking. Remove roll-ups from pan. Stir sour cream into sauce; heat and serve.

Makes 4 generous servings.

Mrs. Kirk Downey,
81 West Moira St.

EASY OVEN POT ROAST

3 lb. chuck or pot roast
1 10½ oz. can cream of mushroom soup
1 cup Burgundy or other red dinner wine
1 large onion, finely chopped
1 small clove of garlic, crushed
2 tbsps. finely chopped parsley
Salt and pepper
4 med. sized potatoes
4 med. sized carrots

METHOD: Place meat in Dutch oven or small roaster. Blend soup and wine; pour over meat. Add onion, garlic, parsley, salt and pepper. Cover and bake in moderately slow oven (325 deg. Fahr.) 3 hrs. During last hour, add potatoes and carrots. Serve with garlic bread, tossed green salad and gelatin dessert with fruit.

Mrs. D. Williams,
12 Westmount Dr.

BARBECUED SPARERIBS

4-6 servings 3 lbs. lean spareribs cut in serving pieces.
1 lemon, sliced
1 large onion, sliced
1 cup catsup
1 cup water
1-3 cup Worcestershire sauce
1 tsp. salt

METHOD: Preheat oven to 400 deg. Fahr. Place ribs in shallow baking pan, meaty side up. Place a slice of lemon and onion on each piece. Bake 30 min.

Combine remaining ingredients in a bowl. Mix until blended. Remove meat from oven. Pour off pan drippings. Spoon sauce over all. Reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. and continue baking 45 min., or until ribs are tender basting occasionally with sauce.

Mrs. L. Zandbergen
370½ Pinnacle St.

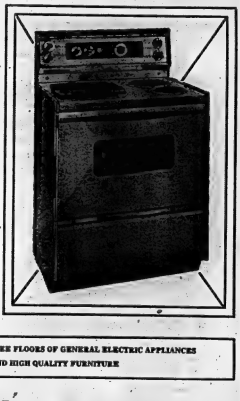
Locally Owned And Operated

THIS IS ALL THERE IS TO OVEN CLEANING

WHEN YOU OWN A

RANGE WITH SELF-CLEANING OVEN



This G.E. Model 850 Medallion does away with scouring, scrubbing and the time of cleaning your oven forever.

And it does it all electrically. Just set the control to "Clean", set timer. Move heat shields into place, and in less than three hours your oven is virtually as clean as new. Only C.G.E. electrically cleans the ENTIRE oven. Plus oven shelves. Plus inner oven door and windows. Plus the surface element drip pans. And you know how dirty they can get!

There's no need to be home. The easy-set Oven Timer starts, times and stops oven automatically. And you have an oven that looks virtually new again. All you have to do is wipe up the few ashes that remain.

As long as you own your C.G.E. self-cleaning range, it will always clean itself. No wall treatment to wear off. No factory re-treatment needed. No matter what food soils your oven, the C.G.E. self-cleaning system will remove it.

Fast, complete and safe. Door automatically locks as temperature rises. What could be easier?

G.E. SELF-CLEANING RANGES START AT ..... $339. w.t.

DON KELLER CONSTRUCTION

65 PALMER ROAD BELLEVILLE

DUNDAS ST. W., BELLEVILLE

Everyday ingredients are used to make this out-of-the-ordinary dish of ground beef, rice, tomato sauce and cheese a family favorite, an inspiration for the housewife caught with nothing to do on a rainy day.

Main Dishes with A Difference

SAVORY SUPPER RING

Biscuit Ring:
2 cups sifted flour (all purpose)
2 tsps. baking powder
½ tsp. salt
4 tbsps. shortening
⅔ cup plus 2 tbsps. milk

Cheese Sauce:
2 tbsps butter
2 tbsps. flour
1¼ cups milk
1 cup grated cheese
½ tsp. salt
Shake of pepper
6 hard cooked eggs

METHOD: Sift dry ingredients together, add shortening and cut into small pieces with pastry blender or two knives. Add milk all at once and mix until milk is absorbed. Spoon into well-greased pan (lightly floured) make about six mounds in a ring mold. Bake 20 min. at 450 deg. Fahr. unmold on serving dish.

Melt butter and blend in flour. Stir and cook 1 min. add milk slowly stirring constantly. Cook until thick. Boil eggs and make devilled eggs, saving 2 or 3 halves to decorate top.

Fill centre of ring with deviled eggs, pour white sauce over eggs and decorate with olive slices, pimento, parsley and devilled eggs. You can use macaroni and cheese in place of egg but make it a little bit on the thin side.

Mrs. Hudson Ketcheson,
RR2, Belleville.

BEEF STEW DINNER

Roll 1½ lbs. beef cubes in 2 tbsps. seasoned flour. Brown in 2 tbsps. shortening in heavy pan. Add 1 can tomato soup, 1 can water. Cover, simmer 1½ hrs., stir now and then.

Add 6 onions, 6 carrots (cut in half) 3 to 6 potatoes (quartered). Cover, cook 1 hr. or until vegetables are tender. To thicken, cook uncovered for last 10 min. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Mrs Francis Rivers,
44 Metcalfe St., Tweed.

HAMBURG SCRAMBLE

1½ lbs. hamburg
2 raw peeled potatoes, shredded or grated
2 raw carrots, shredded or grated
1 med. onion chopped
1 can cream of mushroom soup
½ soup can of water
½ cup of frozen green peas
Salt to taste

METHOD: Cook hamburg and chopped onion for 20 min. on med. heat. Drain any grease off. Add soup and water and simmer for 5 min. Mix hamburg mixture with shredded potato and carrot. Add peas and turn into a casserole dish that has a lid. Sprinkle with a little pepper and salt and parsley flakes. Cook for half an hour in 325 deg. Fahr. oven. Serves 6 to 8.

Mrs. Orlene Lott,
9 Bradley Crescent

RANCH STYLE STEW

1 tbsp. cooking oil
1 lb. hamburg
1 med. onion chopped
Salt and pepper

METHOD: Cook together until browned. Add
1 15½-oz. can spaghetti with tomato cheese sauce
1- 16-oz. can pork and beans
Simmer 15 to 20 min. longer.

Mrs. Charles Irvine,
RR3, Stirling

Preserves, Pickles Provide Home Made Touch

BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

6 qts. unpeeled cucumbers, sliced thinly
9 medium large onions sliced
4 green sweet peppers chopped
3 red sweet peppers chopped
¼ cup mustard seeds
Alum size of 3 peas

METHOD: Boil together vinegar and white sugar. Add turmeric and mustard seed. Let boil again, thicken with 1 cup of flour. Add alum. Pour over vegetables in sterile jars. Seal while hot.

Nora Rogers,
RR3, Tweed

EASY PEACH JAM

3½ cups mashed ripe peaches
1 cup mashed ripe bananas
½ cup drained, chopped maraschino cherries
2 tbsps. lemon juice
2 box Certo crystals
6 cups sugar

METHOD: Measure peaches, bananas, cherries and lemon juice into large saucepan.

Stir in pectin, mix well, cook over high heat, stirring until mixture comes to a rolling boil. At once stir in sugar and boil hard 1 min., stirring constantly. Remove from heat, skim and stir 5 min.

Immediately ladle into hot sterilized jars. Seal at once. Make 7 cups.

Contributed.

HEAVENLY JAM

½ cup water
5 cups cut up raw rhubarb
5 cups white sugar
3 20-oz. can crushed pineapple.

METHOD: Combine, cook 20 min. Remove from heat, add 2 pkgs. strawberry jelly powder. Stir well. Bottle while hot.

Grace Cox,
413 Bridge Street E. Apt. 1

LAZY HOUSEWIFE PICKLE

4 cups white sugar
¼ cup salt
1 qt. vinegar
1 pint water
20 slices of onions
2½ tsps. celery seed
2½ tsps. dill seed
5 pieces alum half as large as large peas
5 qts. cucumbers (dill size or smaller)

METHOD: Place 4 pieces of onions in bottom of each quart jar. Slice cucumbers on top. Heat vinegar, water, sugar and salt to boiling point. Pour over cucumbers. To each jar add ½ tsp. celery seed and ½ tsp. dill seed and a small piece of alum. Seal while hot.

Mrs. L. E. Leavitt,
Wooler.

CORN RELISH

10 to 12 ears of corn (remove from cob)
1 qt. chopped ripe tomatoes
1 pt. chopped cucumbers
1 pt. chopped onions
3 chopped red peppers
1 pt. white sugar
½ tsp. celery seed
2 tbsps. salt
1 tsp. turmeric
Vinegar (1 pt. or less)

METHOD: Combine ingredients, cook until corn is tender and mixture is thickened (about 1 hr. or more if necessary). Stir occasionally, as it won't stick.

Pour into sterile jars while hot, and seal.

Nora Rogers,
RR3, Tweed.

GREEN TOMATO RELISH

4 qts. green tomatoes chopped fine

METHOD: sprinkle with salt, let stand overnight. Drain and cook in a weak vinegar for ½ hr. Drain and add:

2 red peppers chopped
3 green peppers chopped
2 onions chopped fine
2 lbs. brown sugar

Add 1 cup vinegar and cook until clear and tender.

Seal in sterile jars.

Mrs. Leonard May,
75 Cedar Street.

FREEZER JAM

(N.B.: This recipe is from the Certo recipe pamphlet.)

2 cups strawberries
1 box Certo crystals
4 cups or 1½ lbs. white sugar

METHOD: Crush fully ripe fruit. Measure 2 cups. Add sugar and ¼ cup lemon juice to fruit; mix well and let stand. Combine ¾ cup water and Certo crystals in small saucepan. Bring to a boil and boil hard 1 min., stirring constantly. Stir into fruit mixture. Continue stirring about 3 min. (There will be a few remaining sugar crystals.) Ladle into glasses. Cover jam with tight lids. Let stand 24 hrs. Store in freezer (or in refrigerator if used within 3 weeks.)

NOTE: Raspberry Jam is made the same as above.

CONTRIBUTED

SUNSHINE PICKLES

Cut small cucumbers in half and in the middle. Pour on hot brine made of 1 cup salt to a pail of hot water. Let stand over night.

In the morning drain and put cucumbers in quart sealers. Add 1 cup white sugar into each sealer with ½ tsp. turmeric, 1 tsp. pickling spices and alum the size of a bean.

Fill sealers with cold vinegar and seal. Turn upside down in hot sun for ¼ day, or until sugar is dissolved. Shake now and again while in sun. Store pickles as usual.

Mrs. Martha Golka,
112 Pinnacle Street.

CUCUMBER LUNCH

12 large green cucumbers, (peeled)
6 large onions

Cut cucumbers in small pieces. Cut up onions (about ¼", pieces — no smaller). Put in pot and sprinkle with ½ cup coarse salt and let stand overnight. Drain well. Make sure there is no water left on them.

Put into 3 large bottle and cook ½ hr. with 3 cups vinegar and 2 cups white sugar. It will come quite clear. In a small bowl put:

1 cup white sugar
1 tbsp. dry mustard
1 tsp. turmeric
1 tsp. celery seed
1½ tbsps. flour

Mix well. Make sure flour and ingredients are well mixed. Add enough cold vinegar to make a paste and add it to cucumbers. Cook until flour is cooked. This isn't really thick until it cools. Makes approximately 7 pts.

Mrs. Leo Soucy,
38 Great St. James St.

SWEET DILL PICKLES

Put 3 slices of onion in bottom of quart jar. Fill the jar with dill size cucumbers, putting a sprig of dill in the centre and 3 slices of onions on top.

1 qt. vinegar
1 cup sugar
¼ cup salt (scarz)

Cook liquid 5 min. Pour over cucumbers and seal. Ready for use in 2 weeks.

Mrs. L. E. Leavitt,
Wooler.

CARROT-PINEAPPLE MARMALADE

12 carrots
5 oranges
2 lemons
20-oz. can crushed pineapple
Sugar (see below)

METHOD: Peel oranges and lemons and cover peel with cold water. Let soak overnight. Drain and put peel through food chopper. Clean carrots well and put through food chopper, or dice. Cook carrots and peel in as little water as possible until tender.

Measure the mixture and add 2 cups sugar to each 3 cups of carrot and peel. Return to kettle with orange and lemon cut finely and pineapple. Cook slowly, until fruit is clear and marmalade is thick. Seal in hot sterile jars or pour into glass jars and cover with paraffin.

Mrs. Albert Jones,
RR3, Trenton.

HARVARD BEETS

12 small beets, cooked, skinned, sliced
½ cup sugar
½ tbsp. corn starch
½ cup water
¼ cup vinegar
2 tbsps. butter

METHOD: Mix sugar and cornstarch add vinegar and water and cook 2 min. Add beets to hot sauce and allow to stand 30 min. When ready to serve reheat and ad dbutter.

Mrs. Albert Jones,
RR3, Trenton.

Vegetables Add Spice to Every Meal

BATTERED POTATO SCALLOPS

Peel and slice thinly 4 med. potatoes. Mix 1 cup prepared pancake flour with a little water (not too thin). Dip the potato slices in this mixture and fry in deep fryer using cooking oil. Have everything ready, as you have to work quickly — they do cook fast. Use a fork to turn them over. Drain on paper towel.

Mrs. E. J. Morris,
94 Wallbridge Crescent

CORN PUDDING

2 eggs
2 cups canned whole kernel or cream style corn
1 cup milk
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
1 tsp. sugar
2 tbsps. butter, melted

METHOD: Beat eggs in 1½-qt. casserole. Stir in corn, milk, salt and pepper, sugar and melted butter. If you wish, sprinkle with paprika.

Bake in preheated moderate oven, 350 deg. for 45 min. or until tip of knife inserted in centre comes out clean. Serve piping hot.

NOTE: The pudding will have an extra good texture if you bake it in a water bath. Place casserole in a baking pan, then pour boiling water into pan to a depth that is one half the height of the casserole.

Mrs. John Platt,
RR3, Frankford.

FESTIVE CARROT RING

2 cups mashed cooked carrots
1 cup cracker crumbs
1 cup milk
¾ cup grated sharp cheddar cheese
1 1-3 cup grated onion
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
⅛ tsp. cayenne
3 eggs
Garnish — two 10-oz. pkgs. frozen peas cooked as pkge. directs.
Parsley

METHOD: Combine carrots, crumbs, milk, cheese, butter, onion and seasonings. Beat eggs until lightly puffy. Fold into carrot mixture. Pour into well-greased 1¼-qt. ring mold. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. 40-45 min. Turn out onto warm platter. Fill centre with cooked peas. Garnish outside of ring with parsley.

Makes 8 to 12 servings —about 2 lbs. fresh carrots cut up and cooked until tender makes 2 cups mashed.

Mrs. L. E. Leavitt,
Wooler.

SCALLOPED POTATOES SUPREME

8 potatoes (med.-size, sliced)
¼ cup green pepper (chopped)
2 tsps. salt
1 10-oz. can cream of mushroom soup
1 cup milk
¼ cup minced onion
1 tsp. pepper
1 tbsp. butter

METHOD: Put alternate layers of potatoes, green pepper and onion in greased 2-qt. baking dish. Season each layer with salt and pepper. Mix mushroom soup with milk and pour over potatoes. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 1¼ hrs. (Serves 8.)

Mrs. James Thompson,
RR 1, Stirling.

CAULIFLOWER SCALLOP

1 med. cauliflower, cooked and drained
1 can cream of celery or mushroom soup
1-3 to ½ cup milk
½ cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese
½ cup buttered bread crumbs

METHOD: Separate cauliflower into flowers; place in a shallow baking dish (10 x 6 x 2"). Blend soup, milk and cheese. Pour over cauliflower. Top with buttered crumbs. Bake in mod. oven at 350 deg. Fahr. about 30 min. or until bubbling.

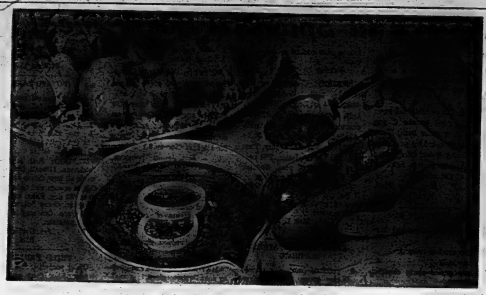
Makes 6-8 servings.

Mrs. Kirk Dowley,
81 West Moira Street.

POTATO CAKE

2 cups mashed potatoes
1 cup flour (all-purpose)
1 egg
2 tsps. baking powder
1 tsp. melted butter
½ tsp. salt
3 tbsps. sugar

METHOD: Roll out to ½" thickness. (Dough like mixture when all ingredients are mixed). Cut in scones and bake in a hot oven 400 deg. Fahr. until golden in color. Serve hot with butter and syrup. One way to use left-over potatoes.



Mrs. Garfield Evans,
RR5, Belleville

FRIED PARSNIPS

Clean parsnips, and boil until tender. Slice them and dip the slices in a batter such as you would make for pancakes. Fry in hot lard until brown. Add pepper and salt.

Mrs. Leonard May,
75 Cedar Street.

Zippy Potato Salad!

A perfect choice for summer buffet meals are these juicy tomatoes filled with a zippy potato salad and served with hot dogs and hot dog sauce.

A Pot-Pourri of Interesting Dishes

PIZZA DOUGH

2¼ to 2 cups unsifted flour
1½ tsps. sugar
2 tsps. salt
1 pkge. active dry yeast
1 cup very hot tap water
2 tbsps. salad oil

METHOD: In a large bowl thoroughly combine 1 cup of the flour, sugar, salt and active dry yeast. Gradually add very hot tap water and salad oil to dry ingredients and beat 1 min. at low speed with electric mixer, scraping bowl occasionally.

Stir in enough additional flour to make a soft dough. Turn out onto a lightly floured board; knead until smooth and elastic, about 8 to 10 min.

Place dough in a greased bowl, turning to grease top. Cover and let rise in a warm place, free from draft, until doubled in bulk, about 45 min.

Punch dough down and divide in half. Press each piece of dough into a greased 12-inch pizza pan, forming a standing rim of dough. These may also be shaped on a greased baking sheet, forming a standing rim of dough.

Fill with desired filling and bake as directed.

Makes enough dough for 2 pizzas.

Gail Tweedy,
Carrollton.

HONEY DIPPED DONUTS

Prepare 1 pkge. yeast in ½ cup warm water, 1 tsp. sugar. Stir.

Scald
½ cup milk
¼ cup sugar
1½ tsps. salt
1-3 cup shortening

Cool to lukewarm. Add 2 eggs and beat well. Add 1 tsp. vanilla and yeast. Add 2 cups flour, beat until smooth, work in another 2 cups or so of flour. Knead until smooth; place in a greased bowl. Let rise 1 hr. Knead again; let rise again. Knead, then roll out and cut. Place on greased sheet for 1 more hr. then bake in hot grease till golden brown.

SYRUP FOR DONUTS

1 cup white sugar
1 cup icing sugar
½ cup milk
2 tbsps. butter
2 tsps. vanilla

METHOD: Combine, cook for 5 min. Let donuts get quite cool, then dip them in this syrup. Drain.

Mrs. Martha Golka,
112 Pinnacle Street.

SAUERKRAUT
(Made in Jars)

Remove outer leaves of firm heads of cabbage, core and shred finely into a large bowl. To each 2 qts. of cabbage, add 1 tbsp. pickling salt and 1 tbsp. sugar. Mix well and leave over night so that a brine will form. Pack cabbage and brine into sterilized jars.

Set jars in a large pan that will catch any brine that runs over top. Adjust tops of jars and allow cabbage to become fermented in a warm room. This takes about 4 weeks. As water evaporates from jars, fill them with cold water. Before storing tighten jar tops. This sauerkraut does not need processing, as in the crock method. Store in a cool place. It will keep several months.

Mrs. Martha Golka,
113 Pinnacle Street

MOTHER'S FRIED CAKES

2 tbsps. soft butter
½ cup of sugar
2 eggs
½ cup milk
1 tsp. vanilla
1 tsp. salt
¼ tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg
2¼ tsps. baking powder
3 cups self-rising flour

METHOD: Cream butter and sugar. Add eggs and beat well. Sift together dry ingredients and add to creamed mixture alternately with the milk. Mix into a soft dough. Spread ¼ cup flour on counter. Turn dough on top and knead for 1 min. taking up just what flour is needed so the dough is not sticky. Refrigerate 1 hr. Roll out dough on lightly floured board. Pat out dough to desired thickness and cut with floured cutter. Fry in deep hot shortening—375 deg. Fahr. about 1½ min. on each side. Cool and store. Heat slightly to serve. Makes about 2½ doz.

Grace Ehler,
386 MacDonald Avenue

UNCOOKED FUDGE

2¼ cups sifted icing sugar
4 oz. white cream cheese
Speck salt
2 squares unsweetened chocolate melted
½ cup nuts

METHOD: Cream the cheese well then begin adding sifted icing sugar slowly, while creaming. Stir in the melted chocolate, salt and chopped nuts.

Mix very well until all additions are smoothly blended.

Butter a small pan and pat fudge mixture in to ¾" thickness. Chill 1 hr. before cutting into squares.

Mrs. Amy Gatcum,
36 St. Charles St.

CHEESE SOUFFLE

¼ cup minute tapioca
1 tsp. salt
1¼ cups milk
2 cups grated cheddar cheese
4 egg whites
4 egg yolks

METHOD: Combine tapioca, salt and milk in a saucepan. Cook and stir over medium heat until mixture comes to a boil. Remove from heat, add cheese stirring until melted. Allow to cool slightly while beating eggs. Beat egg whites until stiff. Add tapioca mixture to beaten egg yolks, mixing well. Fold into egg whites, mix well. Pour into 1½ qt. baking dish and bake 40 min. in a moderate owen (350 deg. Fahr.).

Sandra Roach,

Sidney Hen Produces Double-header Egg

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

How does a chicken like its eggs?

Like anyone else Dawson Douglas can't account for poultry tastes — except when it comes to size.

After yesterday's events on his farm on Sidney township's second concession, just west of Belleville, he has more than common knowledge of eggs and their dimensions.

A symbol of his superior experience today is an egg deposited by one of the Douglas chickens for which Dawson claims a measurement of 8¼ inches in oval girth.

The egg, complete with yolk and white, actually was a double-take, Inside, nestled a second normal-size egg.

Deliverer of the spectacular achievement, more and beyond the demands of egg-grading inspectors, was a year-old hen.

Until yesterday it had placidly been producing about 200 eggs annually.

Third of Group Casualties In Experiment in Cambodia

OUTSIDE SAANG (Reuters) — About 60 survivors of a group of Vietnamese civilians, ordered by Cambodian troops to march toward Viet Cong positions, were driven back to a detention centre Tuesday night after one-third of the group was killed or wounded in Viet Cong and Cambodian crossfire.

About 30 of the Vietnamese, including children, women and old men, were unaccounted for after they were caught in the crossfire near Saang, 18 miles from the capital of Phnom Penh.

The horrified civilians were ordered to march toward the Viet Cong, in what a local Cambodian commander described as "a very new experiment to appeal to the consciences of the other side."

No sign of any dead or dying could be seen Tuesday night from forward positions of the Cambodian army just outside the town, which was captured by the Viet Cong Sunday.

The Vietnamese were brought here on trucks at noon Tuesday. A loudspeaker broadcast the Cambodian troops' intentions to the Viet Cong, who were believed to be occupying a wrecked school and other buildings about 300 yards away.

The Cambodians gave leaflets to the Vietnamese appealing to the Communists to leave Cambodia, then ordered them to march toward the town under a white flag.

One eyewitness said a Viet Cong raised himself from cover and held up a hand in a halting gesture as the group of Vietnamese approached.

A shot was fired, and both sides opened up, with the civilians in the direct line of fire.

Bot, Brig.-Gen. Sonthene Fernandez, commander of Cambodia's Second Military Region, said the action had enabled the Cambodians to discover the positions of the Viet Cong.

Since Prince Norodom Sihanouk was deposed March 18 by Gen. Lon Nol, there have been three reported mass killings of Vietnamese living in Cambodia.

South African Whites Vote After Hot Contest

JOHANNESBURG (Reuters) — South Africa's white minority voted today in an election that seemed certain to endorse another five years of apartheid under Prime Minister Vorster.

Vorster, whose National party has ruled since 1948, is confident of retaining all the seats held in the 166-seat House of Assembly and has said "the night of April 22 will be a beautiful night."

The country's silent majority —11,700,000 Africans—watched from a distance, denied a say in the country's future.

The 2,200,000 whites witnessed a bitterly fought campaign, pitting not only white against white but Afrikaner against Afrikaner.

Vorster called the elections a year early, mainly to test the strength of the breakaway extreme right-wing Herstigte (Reconstituted) Nationale party. Known as the HNP, its presence has led to a rough and rowdy campaign.

In a bid to win back possible defectors to the HNP, Vorster has taken a hard line on apartheid issues in the closing stages of the campaign.

One example was a proclamation prohibiting black servants living in the backyards of European homes from receiving visitors between the hours of 10 p.m. and 8 a.m. The ruling was aimed at keeping urban areas "white by night."

Four U.S. Planes Lost in Laos

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. command announced today the loss of four American planes over the lower panhandle of Laos and three helicopters in South Vietnam. It was one of the highest aircraft tolls reported at one time in the war.

The command said one American was killed, three are missing and three were injured in the crashes.

A total of 9,583 U.S. planes and helicopters worth more than $6,000,000,000 now have been reported lost in the war.

Informed sources said more than 400 American aircraft, mostly fighter-bombers, have been shot down over Laos since U.S. bombing began there in 1964. Since the U.S. command began disclosing its aerial losses in Laos March 10, it has reported 23 aircraft lost.

The U.S. command announced that B-52 bombers and smaller tactical fighter-bombers kept up heavy raids today along the Ho Chi Minh trail. U.S. fighter-bombers also continued attacks on North Vietnamese forces threatening Laotian government troops near the Plain of Jars in north-central Laos.

The B-52s also made some of their heaviest raids of the war on targets in South Vietnam, dropping some 1,500 tons of bombs from just south of the demilitarized zone to within 26 miles of Saigon. The raids near Saigon were the closest to the capital in 4½ months and shook buildings in the city.

In the major ground action reported, a 2,000-man South Vietnamese force refused to cross the Cambodian border Monday for a sweep of Viet Cong-North Vietnamese base camps reported that it had killed 187 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese and seized more than 800 weapons.

Sources said 22 of the South Vietnamese troops have been killed and 82 wounded in the operation northwest of Tuyen Binh, about 55 miles west of Saigon.

Exiles Back Cuban Raid

MIAMI (AP) — Cuban troops combed mountainous Oriente Province for anti-government raiders today while a militant exile group in Miami demanded U.S. aid and official recognition that the Caribbean island is in a state of war.

An official of the organization, called Alpha 66, said the group is demanding "all the necessary moral and material support" for the two-pronged invasion mounted last week in an attempt to overthrow the Fidel Castro regime.

"The welcome and reception of Cubans living in and around the landing spot were out of the expected proportions," the spokesman said, "and scores of fellow countrymen joined the invasion forces on their way into the hills."

Meanwhile, the head of the Cuban army in Oriente province said over Havana radio his troops had surrounded the invasion forces and "within 48 hours they will be completely exterminated."

The number of invaders has not been disclosed.

Capt. Raul Menendez Tomadevich said in the radio interview monitored in Miami that government soldiers had the raiders pinned down near Baracoa on Cuba's eastern tip.

Alpha 66 said there had been two clashes since the invaders' landing last week ad "our men came out victorious against the Castro-type armed forces."

Havana radio reported two raiders had been killed and three captured, and that five government soldiers had been killed.

The raiders are led by Capt. Vincente Mendez who learned guerrilla fighting as an officer in Castro's revolutionary forces against dictator Fulgencio Batista.

Plaza Decision Still Awaited But Is Made

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The long-awaited Ontario Municipal Board ruling on the northend plaza issue still is just that to Belleville today — long-awaited.

The decision has been made. But this morning it still had to be communicated.

Monday, OMB chairman J. A. Kennedy said the ruling was being printed and would be mailed to city hall.

Today in Toronto, R. G. Ellingwood, treasurer of Cambridge Leaseholds, developer of the plaza project, said the ruling was still to be mailed by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Crux of the plaza issue is an OMB decision on an application for Belleville to rezone a site west of North Front Street near Highway 401 to permit a regional shopping plaza.

Rebellious Soldiers Turn Back Police

PORT OF SPAIN (CP) — Shooting broke out again today in the business district of this Trinidad capital as authorities sought information on the whereabouts of rebellious elements of the island nation's 800-man army.

Three deaths were reported in the Tuesday night violence that grew out of arrests of 14 black Power movement leaders.

A rebellious soldier was killed by a coast guardman as he tried to flee the army camp six miles from Port of Spain, a 16-year-old youth throwing rocks from a rooftop was felled by a policeman's bullet and a fireman was killed when he was hit in the chest by a fire bomb.

The U.S. Defence department in Washington reported a helicopter carrier, the Guadalcanal, had been dispatched from San Juan Puerto Rico, "heading in the direction of Trinidad." It declined to give further details. The Guadalcanal normally carries about 2,000 marines and 15 helicopters in addition to its crew.

The violence broke out when police tried to bring the arrested Black Power leaders to the military camp at Tibouron Bay in order to ship them aboard coast guard boats to Nelson Island, a small detention prison off the coast.

But when they arrived at the camp, police were turned back at its gates by army guards and forced to take their prisoners back to town, reports said.

Reports pieced together from witnesses indicated the following chronology of events:

An estimated 200-300 soldiers of the Trinidad and Tobago Regiment sympathetic with the Black Power leaders charged toward the camp gates, but in doing so passed the quarters of the 100-man coast guard, which remained loyal to the government of Prime Minister Eric E. Williams.

A 28-year-old army private was killed in the skirmishing as the rest of the rebels surged out of the camp and headed for the hills around Port of Spain.

Unconfirmed reports said some of the soldiers had commandeered a plane and escaped to the island of Monos, a Trinidadian territory off the coast of Venezuela.

Most of Trinidad's 2,000-man police force remained at their posts in the barracks at fields, and the rest withdrew from the streets and took up positions guarding police headquarters and the Red House, containing the Parliament chambers and the high court.

About 1,000 youths surged along the main thoroughfare, Frederick Street, in defiance of a dusk-to-dawn curfew imposed by Williams. They shouted "Power! Power!" and gave the Black Power clenched-fist salute as they heaved rocks through store windows and did some looting.

Police moved in on the crowd and dispersed it after 45 minutes, firing shots over the youths' heads. An unknown number of persons were injured.

Williams and his cabinet met late in the night, to discuss the situation.

Williams earlier in the day proclaimed a state of emergency and clamped a dusk-to-dawn curfew on the city.

Police set up road blocks and stopped all traffic. Trinidad's Piarco Airport was closed during the curfew, with incoming flights diverted to Barbados, some 200 miles to the northeast.

Police are still hunting Geddes Granger, former president of the students' guild of the University of the West Indies and Trinidad, and the recognized top man in the Black Power movement.

Trinidad's 1,000,000 predominantly Negro population has English, Canadian, East Indian, Chinese, Portuguese and Spanish minorities.

There has been a black government since independence in 1962. But the Black Power militants contend that the white minority still controls the economy.

Moira Lake Pollution Not Caused by Madoc

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Domestic wastes entering Moira Lake from the Madoc sewage system play a minor part in the pollution of the lake, the Ontario Water Resources Commission says.

The statement comes from D. S. Caverly, general manager of the OWRC, in a letter to Clarke T. Rollins, MPP for Hastings.

Mr. Caverly presented figures in his letter "clearly disproving the allegation made h. the Madoc area in the past that sewage from Madoc can be held responsible for the algae problem in Moira Lake".

"It should be noted that Moira Lake is rich in nutrients (nitrogen and phosphorus) which explains the frequent occurrence of excessive blooms of algae which impair the recreational value of the lake," Mr. Caverly noted.

The OWRC estimates that 61,800 pounds of phosphorus and 393,000 pounds of nitrogen drain into Moira Lake each year.

But only 3,500 pounds of phosphorous and 8,700 pounds of nitrogen, or four and three per cent respectively of the total annual quantity, enter the lake from the village of Madoc.

"If people in Madoc adopt the use of phosphorous-free detergents sometime in the future, the estimated phosphorus contribution by the village could possibly be reduced to an insignificant amount," added Mr. Caverly.

The OWRC general manager's statements refute charges made in the past that Madoc village is the major polluter of the lake and that the addition to Centre Hastings Secondary School, raising the enrolment to 1,200 students, will increase the pollution.

The controversial sewer running under the school is a natural watercourse draining the north-east area of the village and is encased at the point where it enters the school grounds. Storm and sanitary sewers in the village are separate from each other.

At present, Madoc sewage drains into Deer Creek, which in turn feeds into Moira Lake.

J. H. McLeod, secretary-treasurer of the Moira River Conservation Authority commented that Madoc sewage is "dumped raw" into Deer Creek, where the coliform counts (indicative of the presence of raw sewage) "are in the hundred thousands".

"But it is interesting to note that by the time the water reaches the southern outlet of the lake into the Moira River, the counts are down in the hundreds, "Mr. McLeod stated. "It indicates how this type of pollution is dissipated through aeration of the water."

Mr. McLeod attributes the heavy nutrient pollution of the lake to runoff of commercial and natural fertilizers from farmlands in the watershed above the lake.

"The phosphate run-off from the application of fertilizer is far greater than the amount reaching our watercourses from detergents," said Mr. McLeod, speaking of the general picture across the province.

He noted that commercial fertilizers have been available for only 50 years, and "it takes time for farmers to understand their proper use and methods of application."

Reeve Thomas Burnside of Madoc, on the other hand, says the OWRC intimated to him that most of the nutrient pollution entering the Moira Lake comes from natural decay of vegetation (swamps and forests) along the watershed above the lake.

Reeve Burnside sponsored a resolution in county council a year ago, calling for banning of phosphorous detergents.

"Cutting phosphate content of detergents by 20 percent by the end of August is not enough," asserted the reeve.

A new sewage treatment works in the village is scheduled for construction by the end of the year, and both Reeve Burnside and the OWRC manager noted that it would provide "a significant improvement in water pollution control."

After it goes into operation, no un-treated wastes will be discharged into the nearby surface waters during the recreation season.

Moira Secondary's Big Night April 28

This year heralds a new concept in Moira Secondary's Annual display night program.

Roman Lachman, head of the geography department and chairman for the April 28 program, explained that colors would be widely used in this year's display. "All the different courses and the related information charts and booklets will be separately shown by use of a different color," he explained.

"Flow-charts and visuals covering the student school years from kindergarten to grade 12 will be the focal point of the evening."

Moira, as yet the only high school to hold a display evening in Belleville, will throw open its doors at 7.30 p.m. on Tuesday, April 28 to allow parents the chance to see what their youngsters are learning, and what futures are available for them.

Combining the themes of Communications, Arts, Applied Science, and Social Sciences, the completely visual displays will offer the visitor a complete look at this modern, non-grade credit system school.

The requirements and standards of schools are being upgraded all the time and Robert Henderson, head of the Moira Secondary, Guidance department feels it is important for everyone to realize the potential that education has to offer.

"These days industry requires more and more education and the schools are trying to meet these requirements with new and improved courses," he explained.

Also included among the evening's displays will be booths set up by various universities, local colleges, Ontario Department of Labor trades and apprentice division and Ontario Department of Hospitals, which will offer 110 related careers. For those interested in acquiring immediate jobs, members of local businesses and professions will also be in attendance.

County Government Predicted by Reeve

PICTON (Staff) — "Unless we form a county government within five years they'll form one for us," Picton reeve Bernard Hepburn told members of county council last night.

His remarks were prompted during a discussion sparked by South Marysburg reeve Allan Railley, who with county warden Gordon Lloyd, heard an address on regional government delivered in Lennox and Addington County by Minister of Municipal Affairs, Darcy McKeough.

Mr. Railley indicated that he does not favor the concept of regional government as it has been laid out by the province. He expressed concern over the regional government setup proposed by the Minister of Municipal Affairs.

Mr. Hepburn reminded fellow councillors that it will be necessary for them to take action in forming a county government.

Anti-Litter Bylaw Has Teeth

The city now has an enforceable anti-litter bylaw that has some teeth.

This was the welcome news heard Monday by city council from after being told only a few weeks ago that its bylaw "to require and regulate the filling up, draining, cleaning or clearing of any grounds, yards or vacant lots" was all but useless.

Directions were given to take the matter up with the city solicitor and come up with a bylaw that has some teeth.

Now, council was told last night in the opinion of the solicitor the bylaw was valid with the exception of one paragraph. So a new bylaw was written deleting the one paragraph and this has been duly passed by council.

Under the bylaw, the city has authority to order an owner to fill up any pit or excavation deemed to be a hazard; to order the draining of any swamp or pond deemed to be a health or safety hazard, and to clean up any refuse, garbage, rubbish or junk, all to the satisfaction of the city works department.

One of the main targets of the bylaw is to get rid of the many abandoned cars which clutter up backyards.

And here Alderman Gerald Joyce feels there might be a sticker.

"Who is going to say when a car is junk or rubbish?" he asked.

Mayor J. Russell Scott said that to help out in the city's anti-litter campaign, a local wrecker had offered to tow away free any abandoned car.

In any event this is clean-up time in Belleville and this week a bit of unexpected cooperation is being offered in the campaign.

The co-operation is coming from city schools were spare periods are being put to good use by students in clean up the school grounds.

This effort on the part of students came in for commendation by city Alderman Robin Jeffrey, council's most outspoken critic of litterers.

With one exception, all city high schools have got in on the act and the alderman said she was going to do a little prodding there to get action.

IN MEMORIAM

GONE BUT NOT FORGOTTEN

LACHAPELLE — In loving memory of our dear wife, mother and grandmother Eva Lachapelle, who died away April 22, 1968.

We little knew the day we woke that soon
The shadow of death would bring,
The call was sudden, the hour short notice,
And we were left to mourn.

To part with one we loved so dearly
Sometimes it's hard to understand,
Why some things have to be,
In His wisdom God has planned.

—Sadly missed by all the family.

—Lovingly remembered by wife Madeline and children Reg, Gerald and Ruth.

REID — In loving memory of a dear father, mother and grandmother Eva Reid who died away April 22, 1968.

You never failed to do your best,
Your heart was warm and tender,
You loved your life for those you left behind,
And those you loved remember.

—Sadly missed by all the family.

Talk Strap In Council

PICTON — Members of county council last night wrestled with the ancient adage of "spare the rod" while discussing a resolution forwarded from Lambton council urging retention of the strap in schools. Strongly opposing this resolution South Marysburg reeve Allan Ralley said, "Sometimes bullets in the child who is repeatedly strapped. It is my feeling that I would not want my children strapped in school. If there was a problem I would want to hear about it and do the strapping myself if it seemed necessary." Mr. Ralley, who is a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, added that in his ten years of teaching he has never wanted to use the strap to discipline a student.

Asked Hallowell reeve George Vincent: "Do you have good discipline now?" Mr. Ralley replied that he felt that he did. Continued Mr. Vincent: "My wife is a supply teacher and she has met some difficult situations. By strapping some of the biggest nitwits, boys of 16 or 15, over her knee she has restrained them before their classmates and kept order. Any teacher who thinks he can say 'Oh, Johnny, don't do that' will correct the problem is a nitwit too. It's time you threw your goody - goody idea books away and got the hard facts of life."

Countered Ralley, "Whom do we strap? The dropout? It's too late — the elementary pupil? He requires an opportunity, an either-or. The pupils' parents must discipline them and you are on cloud nine if you think the strap can control lack of parental discipline. I feel that you are not really with the times if you are going in school, said Ralley before moving not to endorse the motion.

He was the sole member of council opposing the resolution to abolish corporal punishment in the schools. During a discussion of the proposal about 75 per cent of the members of county council recalled receiving strappings in their school days. Said Ameliasburg deputy reeve Norman Peet, "The boy in this county ever received the strap more than I did and it didn't hurt me. I never got a licking I didn't deserve — maybe I was a little bellow."

Summarizing his opinion Mr. Post commented, "Our children today are going backward through a lack of discipline at home and at school."

Special Services Co-ordinator Proposed for PE Schools

BLOOMFIELD (Staff) — Members of the Prince Edward County board of education have agreed to advertise for a special services co-ordinator to work with students requiring extra classroom assistance. Noted county education director John McNeil, "I feel someone is urgently needed in Prince Edward County to give us everyday contact with our schools. Someone should be there in the schools daily working in the direct problem of education. Let's dig to the point where we can get things going instead of saying "too busy" or "write it out 50 times" to the child with a slight impediment."

Emphasizing that, initially, the program for the special services co - ordinator would extend from kindergarten to grade eight, Mr. McNeil added that eventually the co-ordinator would stretch to grade 13.

Among the duties of the special services co-ordinator are the co - ordination of referrals and decisions concerning which pupils should be referred to special classes. He must also have knowledge of trades and remedial reading. "Our need," said Mr. McNeil, "is multiple, for we require a comprehensive person to deal with pupils needing a little more classroom assistance."

Forwarding his report to the trustees at last night's meeting of the Prince Edward County board of education, Mr. McNeil explained that the need for special education has been under study for period of several months. He referred to a brief recently presented to board members by Larry Richardson, a teacher at Prince Edward Collegiate Institute, noting that a special services co-ordinator was among 8a recommendations.

Questioned about the salary range for such a teacher Mr. McNeil observed that this point would be discussed when job applicants state their expected salaries. The education director suggested that applicants with backgrounds certifying them as qualified elementary school inspectors should receive preference.

Drop-In Centre 'Prospering'

Plans are in full swing for a continuance of activities at Belleville's prospering drop - in centre on Front Street, The Second Stage.

Roland Belanger, who, with Syron Casselman and Ian Rutherford, manages the club, said this morning that upcoming activities could run into the summer months if there is proper supervision and support by Belleville's young people.

The Second Stage, now entering its second year of operation — a feat in itself considering the tradition of shortlived history in such organizations — is operating on a break - even basis and, consequently, is a success.

Mr. Belanger explained that several Coffee runs by the Second Stage have been successes and that there were two more planned for the future.

May 2 will see a dance at the Ben Brocker Auditorium featuring Mackinaw and Mizenze, two bands from Toronto and Ottawa.

The Belleville Arena is the chosen site for a four - band, six - hour musical extravaganza on May 22.

But the success of the dances and the ensuing financial gains are not the only achievements of the drop - in centre. Chiefly, the centre has realized its aim of being a place for Belleville's young to go.

Without special events scheduled, the Second Stage will see an attendances of 30 to 50 young people any night of the week. Special activities serve to increase that figure to 200 young people.

"There are always 30 or 40 kids every night," Mr. Belanger said.

Summer plans for the Second Stage have been confused to some degree by the fact that the centre's manager, Ian Rutherford, is leaving at the end of June.

"We'll be playing the summer by ear," Mr. Belanger said. "We don't know how to do it as yet although we have some ideas. We'll work something out if we find a new supervisor and the crowds stay."

And Mr. Belanger feels he has only one more problem with the centre to alleviate.

"We would certainly like to change some of the opinions of adults about the drop-in," he said. "They should realize the benefit of the centre and they should realize that most of the stories they hear about it are not true."

Pollution Is Threat To PE County Economy

PICTON (Staff) — Strict controls governing industrial pollution could threaten the economy of Prince Edward in the opinion of county warden Gordon Lloyd.

Addressing members of county council last night he remarked, "I am concerned with pollution by industries here. One canning factory will be forced out of business in a year's time because of strong pollution controls. What can be done to help the canners?"

Mr. Lloyd added that the canning factories reportedly contribute to stream pollution. He noted that if factories in Prince Edward are closed, the farm industry will receive a blow. "I don't think it's fair" observed Lloyd.

He also mentioned that several county cheese factories have shut down recently, influencing the farm industry. "Fishermen in the province are being aided and I think we should seek aid too, for if these industries are closed, Prince Edward County's economy will be affected.

Soup Mix Believed Dangerous

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has initiated the voluntary removal from the market of 13,900,000 servings of a well-known soup mix because of the danger of food poisoning.

Also since January, it has spurred industry recalls of 234,000 pounds of popcorn packed by a Milford, Ill., firm; of 24,000 nationally-distributed frozen strawberry pies manufactured by a Columbus, Ohio, baker; and of 2,000 cases of a name-brand candy. All were contaminated with insect or rodent material; or both.

Another food items recalled in the past three months because of contamination include dried eggs, anchovies, noodles, raisins, frozen fried chicken, peanut butter, pimentos, pizzas and cooked mushrooms.

The most spectacular recall this year has been the 13,900,000 servings of nationally distributed, cartoned, Lipton soups.

The soups were contaminated with a bacteria called salmonella that can cause food poisoning.

Lipton is recalling the mixes from retail shelves, but the FDA estimated that between 15 and 20 per cent remained on the market as of last week.

Tuesday night the FDA warned against eating a brand of prepared pizzas distributed by the Roman Inn Pizza Co., throughout the upper U.S. Midwest.

The FDA said mushrooms in some of the 80,000 "Roman Deluxe Italian Brand" pizzas produced this month are suspected of causing botulism, an acute food poisoning that can be fatal.

Tourists Injured By Grenade

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Six foreign tourists—three of them Americans—were among 21 persons injured in a grenade blast in the town of Nablus on the occupied west bank of the Jordan River today.

The other three foreigners injured were two South Africans and a West German.

Earlier a ministry of tourism spokesman identified the tourists as South Americans.

Eleven of the injured were local Arab residents of Nablus, three new immigrants to Israel and one an Israeli Arab, the military spokesman said.

None of the tourists were seriously injured, he added.

A spokesman for the tour bus company which took the tourists to Nablus identified them as Sylvia Kaplan, Hava Leibel and Lilly Kalman from the United States, Hanna Tobias and Lyan Smith from South Africa and Maria Levinger from West Ger-

Industrial Accountants Meeting

At a meeting Monday night at the Sun Luck Gardens restaurant of the Bay of Quinte Society of Industrial Accountants, Robert Mattice, Provincial Registrar for the SIAC from Toronto was guest speaker.

He spoke to the local students who are writing exams to receive their Registered Industrial Accountants certificate following their five year course.

Once known as cost accountants, the RIA is described as a "Management Accountant whose function is essentially to be able, through a disciplined and analytical approach, to provide the facts, figures, and forecasts upon which management can base decisions for future action. His basic characteristics include an analytical and inquiring mind, the ability to see beyond the obvious and the ambition to assume the responsibility of sharing in the management function".

The course offered by evening lectures or correspondence, covers accounting; fundamentals in the principles of debit and credit; industrial legislation such as mercantile law, contracts, and wages; managerial statistics; report writing; industrial organization and management; cost accounting and systems, auditing; and cost and management accounting.

Mr. Mattice stressed the importance of careful reading of the exams, the inclusion of rough work for possible part marks, carefully allocated time for each question, the completion of the questions which the writer feels most competent in answering, and a detailed plan of attacking the questions.

One of the aims of the society is the removal of the idea that a management accountant is of the green eyeshade variety. As is stated by the society, "The demand for management accountants currently exceeds supply by an estimated 8,000 in Canada alone. And this need continues to grow faster than qualified men become available."

This year marks the 30th anniversary of the Society and marking it will be their Anniversary Conference to be held at the Royal York Hotel June 17, 18 and 19. Among noted guest speakers will be John Kenneth Galbraith, Arthur J. R. Smith, Jean-Luc Pepin, Jacques Maisonrouge, and Maurice Strong.

SET UP EXCHANGE

WOLFVILLE, N.S. (CP) — The schools of education of Acadia University here and the University of Maine set up an exchange program this year. Four Acadia education students studying for their master of education degrees visited Orono, Me., to take part in special seminars, visit several of Maine's secondary schools and take a close look at counsellor preparation. Four doctoral students from Maine will return to Acadia to take part in similar activities.

Indian Band Representative 'Welcome to Join Board'

A representative from the Tyendinaga Indian band would be welcomed on the Hastings county board of education, but the Indians themselves are undecided on the value of such representation.

"We haven't discussed the matter yet, but it's sure to come up in the future," remarked Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga, after hearing that the Kent county board of education in western Ontario had refused to seat an Indian representative on its board.

"But I don't know if representation for us would be worthwhile," the chief added.

Trustees of Hastings county board have discussed the matter — in caucus, soon after the minister of education announced that an Indian representative could be appointed to any board of education in Ontario at its discretion.

"We would welcome an Indian representative to sit with us on our board if the Band Council wishes to send one," said board chairman James Clarke this morning. "But we decided we should wait until the Band approached us with the suggestion."

Mr. Clarke added that meetings and discussions with Chief Hill and the Band Council and trustees and administrators of the county board "are an ongoing matter", and that board and Council maintain close contact on issues affecting Indian children in Hastings schools.

The federal department of Indian affairs and northern development purchases education for about 130 reserve children in Belleville schools at the regular per pupil cost.

Since 1967, grade 7 and 8 pupils from Tyendinaga have been bused to Belleville elementary schools at the rate of about 30 pupils in each grade. At first they were unveiled in Harry J. Clarke School, but this year they were moved to Douglas Aitken and Sir Mackenzie Bowell schools.

In the opinion of one city educator, this moving from school to school was "a disturbing factor" for the children and plans for next year call for all Tyendinaga pupils to be permanently enrolled at Harry J. Clarke.

Moira Secondary has an enrolment of 66 Indian students, or about six per cent of its total student population.

"The relationship is excellent," says Moira principal Linton D. Read, noting that two Indian students serve on the Student's Council, several have won the M award for non-athletic activities and Indian students have excelled on the wrestling and track teams.

But the people of Tyendinaga prefer to keep their pupils on the reserve for all their elementary schooling.

Following submission of a petition on the subject two months ago, Chief Hill and the Band Council was officially informed that a school addition to accommodate all elementary school pupils is included in the federal government's capital works budget for 1972-73.

The official announcement climaxes the efforts of the band over a period of many years to close the present three one-room schools on the reserve and consolidate all pupils in an addition to Quinte Mohawk school.

"We won't bring any pupils back from Belleville," said Chief Hill. "But after the addition goes up in 1972 or 1973 we will cease sending Grade 7 and 8 pupils off the reserve.

"We have stricter discipline here than in the provincial schools," the chief remarked. "One of the reasons the people of Tyendinaga want to keep their children on the reserve centres on the increased awareness of their cultural heritage among Indians.

"We expect to begin teaching the Mohawk language in elementary schools next year and the children will learn more about their culture here," the chief said.

Care Urged in Selecting Wig

EDMONTON (CP) — In Western Canada, a woman wants to walk into a store, buy a wig, put it on and walk out looking beautiful, says a leading wig manufacturer.

However, it's not that easy, said Jack Eberandt of Toronto, owner and president of the Classic Wig Centre.

"When a woman goes shopping for a wig she should shop for it in as many places as she would when looking for clothes," he said in an interview.

In Edmonton to promote sales of a synthetic-fibre wig he designed, Mr. Eberandt said women should go to a hairdresser to help set the wig and touch it up for the first few months after she buys it.

"But after a while it becomes as easy and natural for her to look after it as her own hair."

He said a woman's own hair is always more beautiful than a wig, but the hairpieces are extremely useful for emergencies and for travelling.

He cautioned that there are many cheap, synthetic wigs on the market—as well as many good ones—and it is for this reason that shopping carefully is essential.

"Some wigs you can spot a mile away. A woman should look in the mirror . . . and if the hair looks wiggish she should take it off."

A woman should look for a wig made of dynel of the modacrylic fibre, he says.

"You can sleep with these on, throw them in a bag, even wash the floor with them and, with a little light brushing, put them on your head."

Synthetic wigs became popular in Canada about a year ago and now sales have reached about 40,000 a week —and this with a $35 to $40 price tag.

He said that human-hair wigs are more expensive to buy than synthetics and that only a professional hairdresser can look after them, at a cost of $18 to $18 a time.

The synthetics, on the other hand, can usually be washed at home although he warned that heat damages them.

"I always say to wash them in cold water. If I say 'cool' water, women are likely to use warm. And, for heaven's sake, if you are wearing one, don't stick your head in the oven to take out the roast. If you do, the heat ruins the wig and you might as well throw it in the garbage."

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. James N. Taylor of Belleville announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Bonnie Lee, to Konrad Stuart Kapsa, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jan B. Kapsa of Don Mills. The marriage will take place at St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, Saturday, May 16, at 3:30 p.m.

WEDDING

McCOBB — PAREEN

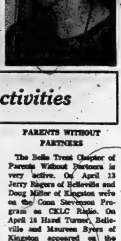
MARMORA — St. Andrew's United Church, Marmora, was the scene of an early afternoon wedding on Saturday, April 18th, 1970, of Margaret Rose Parkin, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Parkin and William Gary McCobb, son of William McCobb and the late Mrs. McCobb. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Douglas Miller and wedding music was by organist, Mrs. Helen Killins.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose a floor length gown of Legoh crepe with rolled collar and empire bodice of Venice lace, which framed the elbow length sleeves and edged the detachable chapel train. Her four - tiered illusion bouffant veil was held with a cluster of lily-of-the-valley, and she carried a cascade of red roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. John Moore, and bridesmaid was her sister, Mrs. Brian Goodchild, who wore floor length gowns of romance silk cotswool cord in spring mist and cologne yellow respectively. Their headdresses were matching flowers and they carried baskets of shasta daisies to match their gowns.

Best man was John Moore, and ushers were Brian Goodchild and Terry Rushnell.

At the reception in the church hall, guests were received by Mrs. Parkin, and Mrs. Ethel Anderson, grandmother of the bridegroom.



For their trip to points west, the bride travelled in a spring green forirel dress and coat ensemble, and her corsage was of white carnations.

On return they will reside in Marmora.

OBC Principal President of ACCC

Miss Audrey Brown, Principal of Canada Business College in Belleville, was elected president of the Ontario Chapter of the Association of Canadian Commercial Colleges this past weekend. Private business colleges from all over Canada were represented at the meeting held at the Royal York in Toronto.

The ACCC is a group of private business college people who join together to promote the interests and welfare of business colleges in Canada. Their aims are to increase the standards of business colleges curriculum and to promote research in business education as well as fulfilling the changing needs of the business community. They keep in constant communication and there are luncheon meetings held at which time speakers are invited to address the group.

Miss Brown, who has been Principal of O.B.C. since 1963, was chosen primarily because of her keen interest in business education. She mentioned that today there is a great need for specialized courses such as special reading classes and the colleges are being encouraged to offer summer courses in typing, shorthand and special reading for many university students. O.B.C. is now offering these courses during the summer period.

Club Activities

BELLEVILLE HORTICULTURAL SOCIETY

Special guest speakers at the April meeting of the Belleville Horticultural Society were Lloyd Cowle, landscape teacher at Napanee Collegiate; Jack Rodgers of Ontario School for the Deaf in Belleville and Larry Johnston, a local nursery man. The meeting was held at Nicholson College, Tuesday, April 14.

Robert Patterson, moderator for the panel, called first on Mr. Cowle who gave a talk on the fundamentals of landscape gardening. He said that one should consider lot size, house style, location, drainage and activities. The focal point should lead to the front door. When selecting plants, one should consider their purpose and size at maturity.

Mr. Rodgers spoke on plantings for the north or shaded areas. Plants will blossom up to three weeks later and have less blossoms with a paler color than those planted in the south. Water does not evaporate as quickly so the ground is damp much longer. Hardier plants are required for northern exposure because of cold winds. Some plants that do well in the shade are ferns, lily of the valley, peonies and begonias.

Larry Johnston gave many pointers on planting and pruning of trees and shrubs. One should prune in early spring or when new growth hardens in the fall. Evergreens should be protected from the sun and wind and should be watered heavily in the fall before it freezes. Mr. Johnston also showed slides on foundation planting.

Questions from the floor were answered by the speakers.

PARENTS WITHOUT PARTNERS

The Bella Trent Chapter of Parents Without Partners is very active. On April 13 Jerry Rogers of Belleville and Doug Miller of Kingston were on the Cam Stevenson Program on CKLC Radio. On April 16 Hazel Turner, Belleville and Maureen Byers of Kingston appeared on the CKWS T.V. Almanac Program. Both of these programs were an attempt to inform the public of the work and words of P.W.P., a non-profit organization dedicated to the welfare and interests of the single parent and his children.

The regular meeting was held April 16 at King St. Church, Trenton with two new members present. Dr. T. Woodger of Belleville gave a message on first aid.

All single parents are invited to attend. The next regular meeting will be held Thursday, May 7 at 8.15 p.m. at the Belleville Recreation Centre.

MOUNT - PLEASANT

The Messengers convened recently at the church hall under the direction of Mrs. Raymond McConnell and her assistants Mrs. Stanley Williams and Mrs. W. Graff.

In charge of the devotional were David Jeffs and David Graff; Kenneth Hoard, Dale Harry and Kathy Sharpe.

It was noted that a pot luck supper will be held at the hall on May 3 for everyone in the community.

After the entertainment period, the rest of the time was spent completing craft work.

LOT OF MILK

It takes 10 pounds of milk to make one pound of cheese.

Fruited Lamb Chops An Economical Meal

By MARY MOORE

In tropical countries fruit served with meat is common to every household. Canadians occasionally accept and prepare pineapple with ham and apples with pork and duck with orange. That's because those meats are high in calories and fat and the fruit is a counterpoint.

So since fresh frozen lamb is comparatively cheap I decided to give it the fruit treatment.

FRUITED LAMB CHOPS
(Serves 4—can vary below)

Four 1" thick shoulder lamb chops (2 lbs. or more)
1 cup apple or cranberry apple juice
½ tsp. salt
One 11-oz. can Mandarin orange sections, drained

Trim excess fat from chops and rub heavy frypan with it then discard it. Heat pan and add chops and sear until golden. Add apple or cranberry apple juice and sprinkle over salt and simmer covered one hour. Just before serving time add drained Mandarin orange sections and heat through. Transfer to preheated platter, being sure each chop has its share of orange sections on top. My guests thought the beauty of this dish alone made it worthwhile.

I served ours with

BUTTERED NOODLES WITH POPPY SEEDS
(Serves 4)

3 cups medium noodles (uncooked down)
2 cups boiling water
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup butter
1 tbsp. poppy seeds

In large pot cook noodles in boiling water with salt ½ hr. until very tender. Drain through colander. Return to pot and gently stir in butter and poppy seeds over low heat until heated through. This makes a different and attractive meat if accompanied by a tomato and lettuce salad.

Note: The above recipes can be divided in half easily and makes an ideal meal for two (you could use the leftover ½ can orange sections in a fruit cup the following day).

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Baked Stuffed Veal Hearts with Pan Roasted Potatoes; Green Beans Topped with Cheese Whis; Cole Slaw; Fruit Cup; Fresh Frozen Strawberries, Sliced Bananas, Chopped Orange; Date Squares; Coffee.

Points for Parents

By MARY ERTSON

John: "You were out by a mile. How can you say the umpire was wrong?"

Dan: "You don't know what you're talking about."

John: "You're the one who doesn't know anything."

Mother: "John is right and you might as well admit it. Dan. Stop bickering about it."

Mother: "Don't be yelling at each other out here. You'll disturb the neighbors. Go inside where you can discuss the game without bothering anyone."

John: "Sorry, Mom, we didn't realize we were getting so loud. Let's go indoors, Dan."

The wise parent doesn't take sides when youngsters argue, unless one child is taking advantage of a weaker, younger one. However, she should request children to remove their bickering to an area where it will not be annoying to others.

Successful Living

Sunflower Seeds Are Not for Dieters

By DORIS CLARE

Dear Doris: I am 32 years old and 50 pounds overweight. I have begun to count calories and am trying to limit myself to 1,000 calories per day, hoping to be back in shape by summer.

I have always enjoyed roasted and salted sunflower seeds and now that I am dieting I find myself turning more to nibbling sunflower seeds for pastime while watching TV; for dessert, or whenever I need to keep occupied to refrain from eating something more fattening. I use about two eight-ounce bags per week (in the shells).

But I'm wondering if they have many calories. I can't find them listed in any of my calorie lists. — Uncertain.

Dear Uncertain: Alas, the calorie count of a sunflower seed is terrific. Sixty-five percent by weight is oil. If you are eating two eight - ounce bags of sunflower seeds (weighed in the shell) each week you are getting four ounces of oil each week — a generous contribution to a weight problem.

So pure and highly concentrated is sunflower seed oil that it is used to make butter substitutes. It is one of he highest priced better flavored oils on the market.

Find a less expensive nibble-food.

Dear Doris: Do you have any information that could educate me on the reactions of a hysterectomy? I do not know if it because of this operation (at 37 years) that I am having such a bad time: poor sleeping, confused and nervous.

Does one still go through the stages of menopause after this operation? — Bad Nerves

Dear Nerves: The glandular parts of us have to readjust when reproductive organs are removed. They symptoms may be like menopause; they may happen suddenly or take a long while.

You have a right to some answers from your own special doctor about your individual state of health. Write down your questions when you are going to see him. My 10-cent leaflet "Facing Forty?" is no its way to you and may provide a few clues.

* * *

Dear Doris: Please send "Seventy-Plus and Swinging".

There is a lot to learn for your readers in the column. They say, "If the shoe fits wear it." We wish more people would read Dale Carnegie's books: One of them is "How To Stop Worrying and Start Living" and "How to Make Friends and Influence People."

We get 14 newspapers and magazines and yours is the best. — P.B. Jr.

Dear P. B. Jr.: I couldn't agree more that we hold it in our own two hands whether we drift with the tide or do something about ourselves. Nobody is born knowing everything — and we can all learn.

I have seen many, many people take hold of their lives and build something exciting out of what looked like failure. Thank you for the kind remarks.

Ann Landers

Husband of Alcoholic Has Extra Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You frequently advise women who are married to alcoholics who refuse to help themselves to "throw the bum out."

What do you advise when the drunk is a wife? My life has been pure hell for 11 years because my wife is a boozer. The law won't let me kick her out. My lawyer says if I leave, the courts will give her half of everything I have. I know this is true because a friend of mine walked out on his alcoholic wife. She now lives in a $50,000 home and he is holed up in a dump. He has to give his wife half of everything he makes. Is this justice? — TRAPPED IN GEORGIA.

ANN LANDERS

DEAR GEORGE: When a man marries he has a legal obligation to support his wife. The divorce laws in some states, however, are grossly unfair to husbands. I believe they should be changed. When the wife is better equipped to make a living for reasons of health and training, and when no children are involved, the wife should not get half of whatever he earns, come hell or high water, for the rest of her natural life.

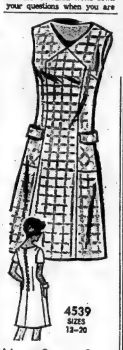
* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a divorced woman with an 11-year-old daughter. The man I am going with is also divorced. He was married to my first cousin. My daughter looks so much like my fiance's ex-wife it is wild. Everyone remarks on it. He dislikes the girl which is easy to understand. She senses his feelings, of course, and when he comes to the house she stays in her room and refuses to come out, even for meals.

I love this man and he loves me. My daughter is our only problem. He says we should not let her stand in our way and ruin our chances for a good life together. He keeps telling me that in a few years the girl will go away to school and we will be alone. I don't know what to do. Can you help me? — HUNG UP.

* * *

DEAR UP: I've said it before and I'll say it again — the principal cause for failure of second marriages is children by a previous spouse. If you think your love can surmount the problems, which I can promise you will be considerable, go ahead. Forewarned is forearmed.



* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am a girl, 14. Last summer when our family went on a holiday, I met a great bunch of teenagers. No smoking, drinking or pot. Just good, clean kids. A certain boy in the crowd (age 16) took a liking to me. We have been corresponding ever since. Last week Eddie wrote that he had saved his money and was coming to see me. He has a friend in town and had arranged to stay at his house. I was very excited and told my parents.

Yesterday Mom was acting very strange. I knew something was wrong. Finally I got it out of her. She had sent Eddie a telegram telling him to cancel his trip because I wasn't interested and signed my name.

I'm very upset. Eddie was a friend, not a sweetheart. Mom says she did it for my own good because he is too old for me. I'd like your opinion. — UNFAIRLY TREATED.

DEAR U.T.: Your signature is also my opinion. Your mother should have told you of her displeasure and you should have decided together what was best.

Lady Crowe Writes Book On Folklore

TORONTO (CP) — The wife of the British High commissioner to Canada does get away from the teas and socials every once in a while—long enough, for instance, to compile and write a book encompassing the legends and folklore of North American Indians and Eskimos.

Lady Crowe, American-born wife of High Commissioner Sir Colin Crowe, has written nine books as Peter Lum—her nickname plus her Scottish maiden name.

Her latest attempt is a compilation of stories from research into the many serious books already written on North American native folklore. She does not, she notes drily, "sit in an igloo with an interpreter and a notebook."

She has found that Eskimo legends are unlike those of any other people she has studied. They're grim.

"Eskimos are concerned chiefly with such things as cannibalism, incest, demons and evil spirits. There are no princesses, no princes."

She found this surprising, since her travels to Arctic settlements have convinced her that "the Eskimo is the gentlest of people, with the most beautifully brought-up children."

She finds that legends all over the world—two of her books concern Italian and Barbary Coast legends and fairy tales—are concerned with such things as the origin of the sun and the moon.

All have a Great Flood, she's learned. "Even the Eskimos had a flood, but it wasn't very big."

Expo Bazaar Busy Spot

OSAKA (CP) — Japanese fair-goers are crowding into International Bazaar to buy Toonguz, an Eskimo doll supposed to bring luck, and to eat pancakes at the British Columbia Crepry.

The International Bazaar, with 39 shops and restaurants from all over the world, is one of the busiest spots at Expo '70 because fair-goers are inveterate souvenir hunters and snackers.

Toonguz is a Canadian, mass-produced, three-eyed, three-legged doll billed as the "interpretation of a timeless Eskimo spirit that will bring success to its owner." At 75 cents apiece, Japanese are snapping them up at a Montreal-operated concession bearing the red Maple Leaf insignia.

No one ever linked B.C., famous for apples and salmon, with crepes or pancakes but visitors to the Crepry are paying up to $2.25 a portion for them.

At a Japanese concession, you can buy everything from pearls to cloth-bagged bottles of Japanese whisky that tastes just like Scotch at 75 cents for about two good Canadian-sized drinks.

Russia is selling vodka and amber and France has perfumes and parasols. Hong Kong specializes in ball-point pens and wigs. A United Nations booth sells various issues of UN stamps. Britain has real Scotch, up to $25 a quart here, and English biscuits.

Each of the fair's seven plazas has souvenir shops too and at three of them branches of Nippon Kangyo Bank even sell raffle tickets.

UCW Meetings

COLLEGE HILL UCW

At the April meeting of College Hill UCW the president dealt with several items of business. The members voted to pay their membership to Hastings Manor Auxiliary which any member may attend on the third Monday of the month. Some volunteered to help in the coffee shop. Donations were also requested to go towards refreshments for walkers in the church walkathon May 2.

A bake sale will be held at a later date and a request was made for old nylons. The office of vice-president was filled by Mrs. J. McLaren.

In charge of the devotional period were Mrs. A. Dickens and Mrs. R. Neal. Their theme was "God Calls and We Offer Ourselves."

Mrs. C. Treverton and Mrs. Daisy Colden were in charge of the program. It was conducted by Mrs. Veasey and Mrs. Randall and girls from their C.G.I.T. A film on V.D. was shown and pamphlets on the subject were distributed. A discussion followed and Mrs. Randall explained some facts.

Colorful Slides Shown at Horticulture Meeting

STIRLING — The Stirling Horticultural Society convened Monday, April 20 in St. Paul's United Church with an attendance of 28 people. Mrs. George H. Hogle presented a travelogue with colorful floral and scenic pictures of her recent holiday in Pennsylvania and Florida. At the close Mrs. Morley Barlow thanked her and presented her with a gift.

Items of interest for gardeners were read by Miss Spry, Mrs. M. Ward and Mrs. A. Brooks. In charge of the meeting was Mrs. Raymond McConnell, vice-president. It was announced that the annual plant sale will be held Saturday, May 16.

Steam Best Method

TORONTO (CP) — Velvet should be steamed, not pressed, to remove wrinkles. Steaming may be done by turning your iron upside down and covering the sole plate with a wet cloth. Allow steam to rise through the fabric from the back, and brush lightly to raise pile. Handle carefully to avoid finger marks and allow to dry completely before brushing.

Opposition Claims Liberals Stifling Auditor General

OTTAWA (CP) — The government denied Tuesday that it has criticized Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson for carrying out his duties. But cabinet ministers said the opposition is jeopardizing Mr. Henderson's objectivity by dragging him into partisan politics.

Treasury Board President C. M. Drury said the Commons public accounts committee, under Conservative Chairman Alf Hales, had instructed Mr. Henderson to judge policies laid down by Parliament.

Mr. Drury referred specifically to Mr. Henderson's criticisms of spending on the scrapped Northumberland Strait crossing.

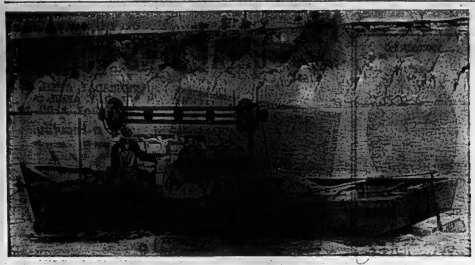
If Mr. Henderson was asked to give an opinion on matters that had been "thoroughly debated in the House, he runs the risk of being drawn into such a debate in a partisan way."

"I suggest this would place him in the dangerous position of losing the reputation for that objectivity which I think is essential to this high office."

However, Conservatives, New Democrats and Creditistes said it is the government that is trying to silence or get rid of Mr. Henderson.

The subject had been simmering for several weeks after Mr. Henderson was criticized by government members following publication last month of his 1969 report. More than 200 items of government spending were raked over the coals in the report.

A non-confidence motion by Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield condemned the government for criticizing Mr. Henderson for carrying out his duties according to the law—a charge Mr. Drury and Privy Council President Donald Macdonald denied.



The motion reasserted support of "the principle of unfettered parliamentary scrutiny of government expenditures," which Mr. Drury and Mr. Macdonald said they support.

The Conservative motion was defeated 118 to 77 with 37 Conservatives, 14 New Democrats, five Creditistes and Independent Perry Ryan (Toronto Spadina) voting against 118 Liberals.

Standing in the 264-seat Commons: Liberal 153, Conservative 72, NDP 23, Creditiste 12, vacant 1.

An NDP amendment also went down 118 to 77. Introduced by NDP Leader T. C. Douglas, it commended Mr. Henderson for "drawing Parliament's attention to the improper concession of $180,000,000 to motor-vehicle manufacturers by order-in-council." Liberals carried the tariff rebate—$172,000,000 to Ford Motor Co., the rest to small-parts manufacturers—was proper.

Mr. Stanfield said the prime minister claimed it was wrong of Mr. Henderson to criticize the $180,000,000 rebate—"presumably on the ground that this was a deliberate decision. . . ."

Martial Law Imposed in Colombia

BOGOTA (CP) — Colombia was under martial law today with a curfew blanketing main cities after two days of demonstrations by crowds charging that the government is stealing the presidential election from former dictator Gustavo Rojas Pinilla.

The civil registrar's office reported that after tabulation of 98 per cent of the votes, Rojas was trailing by nearly 50,000 votes, with 1,571,349 counted for the candidate of the governing National Front, Misael Pastrana Borrero, and 1,521,267 for the former military strongman.

Police and riot troops in Bogota used tear gas and cavalry charges for the second night in a row Tuesday to clear the streets of thousands of Rojas supporters. Ten persons were reported injured, most of them policemen hit by rocks.

President Carlos Lleras Restrepo Tuesday night imposed martial law, a state of siege and a curfew from 9 p.m. to 5 a.m., declaring that Rojas's followers were plotting "a subversive movement that is the gravest in the history of our nation."

The president also imposed press censorship on radio and television stations and banned meetings of more than five persons.

"We are going to prove that no coup can be staged against institutions. . . . We are not going to let ourselves be oppressed by a small group of agitators," he said.

Rojas's daughter and campaign manager, Senator Maria Eugenia Rojas de Moreno, called for an armed uprising to defend her father's "victory" and said:

"We have constituted a revolutionary command to take power. The country is on the verge of civil war. Zero hour has come to begin the fight."

Lleras said he had the complete backing of the armed forces and the police. He said the state of siege will be in effect indefinitely.

He denied Rojas's charges that the election was rigged but said he was appointing a commission to check the election returns.

Rojas's Popular National Alliance party announced plans for massive demonstrations today to paralyze Bogota "by force if necessary."

Ignore Free Press

NEW YORK (AP) — William F. Schmick Jr., president of the American Newspaper Publishers Association, said Tuesday that many United States politicians, including Vice President Spiro T. Agnew and Attorney-General John N. Mitchell, are less than ardent supporters of the First Amendment to the U.S. constitution which guarantees freedom of the press.

In a speech to the 84th annual meeting of the ANPA here, Schmick said the "drift and tone of Mr. Agnew's speeches—the thirst...to borrow his word—can hardly be squared with an instinctive, unqualified respect for freedom of the press; nor can Attorney-General John Mitchell's statement following attempts to subpoena newspapers, films and unedited files and reporters' notebooks."

Schmick, publisher of the Baltimore Sun, said he did not regard Agnew's criticism of newspapers as "a deliberate attack on the freedom of the press."

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

Battery, starter and ignition system failures were the cause of 34 million automobile breakdowns in 1969, placing electrical troubles on top of the list of annual motor vehicle operating difficulties, the American Automobile Association reports.

American motorists found their cars disabled 81,310,000 times last year, an increase of six per cent over 1968.

Motorists' woes involving 16 million cars that were stuck in snow, mud or sand, or had mechanical failures serious enough that they had to be towed to a garage for repairs ranked second on the list of troubles. Severe weather conditions of the past winter in some sections of the U.S. are partially reflected in these figures.

AAA also reports that flat tires, which for many years were the second most frequent cause of breakdowns, dropped to third place in 1969, with 14.5 million flats recorded.

AAA's annual study of automotive operating problems is a projection based on reports from its affiliated motor clubs and the 26,000 automotive service stations under contract to AAA to render emergency service to the organization's more than 12 million members.

AAA estimates that its 850 motor clubs and branches answer one call every three seconds around the clock from members in need of automotive assistance.

Nearly five million motorists caused their own inconveniences, as three million allowed their cars to run out of gas and another 2.7 million locked themselves out of their cars or lost their car keys.

Other items on AAA's list of motoring ills include fuel system problems, which occurred 3.6 million times, and brake troubles, numbering 1.5 million.

Additionally, there were more than six million breakdowns covering miscellaneous difficulties too varied to categorize.

1969 registrations of passenger cars in the U.S. in 1969 numbered 86,500,000.

QUESTION: Is it necessary for me to obtain an international driving permit, while driving in Europe this summer?

ANSWER: In most cases it is advisable to obtain an international driving permit, while driving in Europe. It costs $3 and is obtainable at the Ontario Motor League office, 125 Front St., Belleville.

Requirements are that the applicant must be 18 years of age or over, must have an up - to - date driving licence and must provide two passport photos. These permits can be processed immediately in the OML office.

Promises, Promises in Final Week of Quebec Campaign

QUEBEC (CP) — With the Quebec general election seven days away, party leaders continued hammering out their election promises Tuesday, calling for an economic and socially stable Quebec, unattached to federal apron strings.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said the entry of federal Liberal into the campaign for the April 29 election "would be the best thing" for his Union Nationale party.

He told a news conference in Mont Joli in the Gaspe he would welcome participation by the federal Liberals "because the citizens of Quebec . . . never put all their eggs in the same basket."

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa said in an interview that the Quebec election is strictly a provincial affair and he is not soliciting the support of the federal Liberals "and I do not anticipate their entry in the campaign.

"I do not wish to comment on rumors, but it would surprise me to see them join in, except on an individual basis."

Published reports earlier this week speculated that federal Liberals, concerned over the apparent rising popularity of the separatist Parti Quebecois, were reconsidering their hands-off attitude.

Meanwhile, Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, told 350 persons jammed into a school basement that "on the day Quebec becomes a country, all its citizens will become legal citizens of Quebec, even if they've only been here three months.

"They'll be Quebecers the same as we are . . . with the same rights, the same benefits, the special privileges."

And, Roland Morin, leader of the Quebec New Democratic Party, told a meeting of workers that planned economic development is the main instrument for the cultural and social fulfilment of Quebec.

"Quebecers should first use money that is available in Quebec to develop our economy . . ."

He said: "Foreign investment must allow for a sufficient control by a Quebec government . . . and this investment must offer no risk of defeating the objectives of economic independence here."

The NDP has 14 candidates in the election while the Union Nationale, the Liberals and the Parti Quebecois each has a full slate of 108. The Ralliement Creditiste has 26.

Mr. Bertrand later criticized the federal government for parachuting the Creditistes into the election "to take away votes from the Union Nationale in certain northern ridings."

And, he warned that if the Parti Quebecois took power following the election, a dictatorship would be imposed by it because Rene Levesque is unable to control "varied elements" within its ranks.

He said the intolerance of the separatist party indicates that the Parti Quebecois would abolish democratic liberties . . . "because there really are revolutionary elements in its ranks."

Mr. Bourassa also attacked the separatist party at a meeting in Montreal, accusing it of misleading the voters by failing to reveal the problems and the economic consequences of independence.

Later in Quebec City, he reiterated an earlier statement that he would retire if he did not make a substantial dent in unemployment in Quebec.

Mr. Levesque, campaigning in his riding of Montreal Laurier, which he first won as a Liberal in 1960, appealed to English-speaking Quebecers to abandon their "old, stupid Liberal ghetto.

"We are a majority and we call ourselves a people," he said in English, "and you'll have to accept it. Whoever respects us will be himself fully respected."

Mr. Levesque pledged that English-speaking residents of a independent Quebec would be dealt with "fairly . . . but not as a privileged minority."

The author deals with "keeping house" whether you have many years experience or are new at the job. The first chapter, Do You Run Your House or Does It Run You? gives you some idea of the content of this book with the emphasis on schedules which are adjustable and short cut methods, plus full use and care of today's modern appliances. Some of the points discussed are washday procedure, stain removal, carpet care, health and safety, to name only a few of the chapters in this up-to - date informative book

PATIOS, TERRACES, DECKS, AND ROOF GARDENS by Alice Upham Smith

Now is the time to plan that patio, terrace, or sun deck. The author of this book is a landscape architect with 20 years experience in this field. She begins her book by telling the reader how to select the best site in keeping with the architecture of the house. Photographs and drawings are included to further help you to make the fullest use of your property for outdoor living.

THE NEW HOW TO KEEP HOUSE by Mary Davis Gillies

The author of this book is a professional design consultant formerly an editor of MCall's Magazine. Her book is based on the premise that a house is a home and should be thoroughly lived in and enjoyed. Good planning and knowledge of what is important in a particular family should be considered, before purchase of a house or apartment. Mrs. Gillies discusses everything from mortgages, cleaning, decorating, running a home efficiently, to budgets, entertaining and most of all, how to achieve a relaxed atmosphere in your home.

GARDEN SMARTLY by Nancy Runicka Smith

Whether you are a beginner or a seasoned gardener, this book will inspire you to do marvels with your garden. The author emphasizes informality in garden plan. The book contains all essential information such as how to start a new lawn, pruning, how to utilize existing plants and shrubs, also basic information about plant disease and pests. The principles set out in this book are easy to follow and even the most experienced gardener can learn how to use his time most profitably in the garden.

AROUND THE HOUSE LIKE MAGIC by Jean E. Laird

Mrs. Laird has for many years written newspaper and magazine articles on helpful hints for homemakers. This book is a collection of at least a thousand of these. There are pointers on cleaning, storage, decorating, health hints, how to make do with what you have on hand if you should run out of commercial products. The author believes in making practical use of almost anything, from empty match folders to be made into purse-size sewing kits to worn sheets tinted and made into curtains and cushion covers, to brighten a basement room. The ideas in this book are endless and very simple.

PLANNING AND REMODELING BATHROOMS by the Editors of Sunset Books

Are you thinking of remodeling or remodeling your bathroom? This book contains many new approaches to this problem. New materials are discussed, and there are charters on such things as powder rooms, saunas and sunner house bathrooms. The book is beautifully illustrated throughout, including several basic floor plans, and a wealth of ideas is there for you.

AMERICA'S HANDYMAN BOOK by The Family Handyman Magazine

This is a book every home owner will want to read, it tells how to mend and fix up any part of your home. The main part of this book is devoted to the interior structure of a house, the floors, ceilings, wall plumbing, heating and electrical wiring, how to maintain them and remedy common mishaps. There are charts and illustrations to simplify each task, as well as chapters on use and maintenance of tools including power tools. This book has been exclusively researched and is well written and easily understood.

DECORATING IS FUN by Dorothy Draper

This is a revised edition of Dorothy Draper's original success Decorating is Fun! The author emphasizes that decorating can and should be a joy, with so many new materials on the market to work with. She combines the basic concepts of good decorating with new approaches and full use of new materials and ideas. Part one of this delightful book deals with the basic elements of decoration, paint, wallpaper, rugs and furniture. Part two covers individual rooms and areas of a house or apartment, and there is a chapter especially for the bride and her first home, with lists of the essential items for each room and how to decorate on a budget.

WALKS AWAY

TORONTO (CP) — A frustrated gunman fired a shot into the ceiling of a milk store here and then stalked out in a huff after the manager refused to hand over any money. Police said David Bishop, manager of the store, was not injured and there was no struggle.

'Rather Large Bang' Told Astronauts Their Space-ship Was in Bad Trouble

HOUSTON (AP) — "A rather large bang" and rapidly failing oxygen pressure and electrical power told the Apollo 13 astronauts they were in serious trouble 202,000 miles from home, the spacemen say.

"My oxygen was increasing all the time," mission commander James Lovell said Tuesday. "It went from 7 wonder what this is going to do to the whole landing? So 7 would be if we can get back home again," he Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert told of their brush with death in space during a televised and broadcast news conference.

The astronauts didn't know what caused the No. 2 oxygen tank in their service module to explode, but they thought the cause would be discovered and rectified for future flights.

"I foresee that we can get this incident over with and can charge ahead," Lovell said.

A board investigating the accident met for the first time Tuesday night, hours after the board chairman, Dr. Edgar Cortright, had announced the names of other members.

They include Neil Armstrong, first man to walk the moon, seven officials of the space agency, the air force and Atomic Energy Commission, legal counsel, a technical support man, three observers and sixteen men for Congress and the press.

"It is my hope we can reach an adequate, effective determination of what happened within three or four weeks," said Cortright.

The explosion crippled the spacecraft, forced cancellation of its moon landing and hampered the lives of the astronauts for four days while they fought to bring their craft back to earth safely.

When the trouble started, Swigert said, "I felt a vibration accompanying the bang—not a large vibration, a shudder."

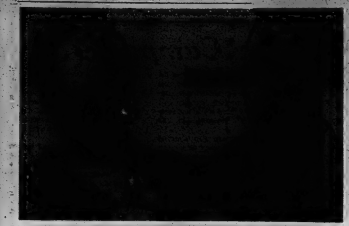
"Survival now became a matter of batteries and hopefully," Lovell said.

"The only way to survive the situation was to transfer to the LM (lunar module). It was our only chance to get home."

"There were moments when I didn't know whether we had enough consumables (oxygen, water and electricity) to get home," Lovell said, "in a situation like that there's only one thing to do. You just keep going."

Asked whether they felt an awareness of "the Infinite Power," watching over "you," Swigert replied: "If you're asking whether I prayed, I certainly did."

All three of the astronauts said they suffered from the cold of space traveling the spacecraft after the warming systems were off.



"I think just prior to re-entry it was down to about 38 degrees," Lovell said.

"I recall that we went in there to put some hot dogs one day and it was like reaching into the freezer for the food."

As the astronauts approached earth, they jettisoned the service module, the supply section of the spacecraft where the explosion occurred. They saw and photographed the damage.

"I couldn't see exactly what was damaged," Lovell said. "I could see material hanging out from the interior."

Getting the Message Across

Dick Gregory (left) and Leon Bibb both use their talents to fight for the cause of the American Negro. Gregory, a 37-year-old comedian, left the nightclub circuit to spend most of his time lecturing to college students, using both comedy and straight verbal blasts. Leon Bibb, a folksinger and actor, uses music and dramatic readings to get his messages across. (CP Photo)

Camp David Talks Friendly

OTTAWA (CP) — Former prime minister Lester B. Pearson contributed a footnote to history Tuesday.

He told the Commons external affairs committee that a famous confrontation he had with former U.S. president Lyndon Johnson at Camp David, Md., in 1965—after Mr. Pearson had publicly questioned U.S. Vietnam policy—was really conducted in a friendly manner.

And it resulted, he said, in a useful exchange of letters on Vietnam between the two leaders after Mr. Pearson had returned to Canada.

Previous accounts of the meeting have generally pictured it as stormy, with the president scolding Mr. Pearson for daring to suggest in a Philadelphia speech the previous night, April 7, 1965, that Mr. Johnson should order a pause in the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam.

Contract On Receipt Held Faulty

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Contract arrangements on the back of parking lot receipts, railway tickets and store receipts are "worth about as much as the paper they are written on," Judge Donald Scott said Tuesday.

He was commenting in a division court suit against a clothier by a customer who tried unsuccessfully to take back a coat she bought her son for Christmas, because it did not suit him.

Judge Scott ordered Iiz Caplan of Mr. Iiz Styles for Men to return the $131.25 Pauline Mason paid for the coat and to pay court costs.

Mrs. Marino's lawyer Roger Lewandowski said, it is necessary for the vendor to point out the conditions on the back of a store receipt and the purchaser to agree before there is a contract.

Judge Scott said unless both parties agree to the terms there is no contract.

Indians Exposed To Disease

MISSOULA, Mont. (AP) — The University of Montana cautioned Indian agencies in 19 states and officials of three Canadian provinces Tuesday that Indians who attended a conference in Missoula last weekend may have come in contact with diphtheria.

The action came in the wake of at least one death in Missoula due to the disease. School officials said about 2,000 Indian students and leaders attended the conference.

Health officials in Missoula said a second person remained in serious condition with diphtheria and that another person who died last week may have had the highly infectious disease.

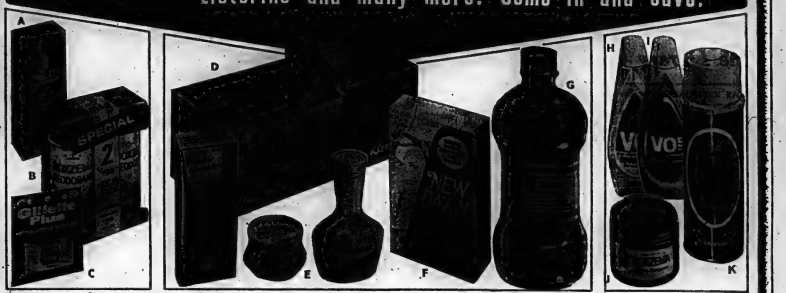
The victims all had frequented two Missoula bars, officials said, and advised all conference participants who frequented either of the bars—the Oxford or Eddies Bar—to get immunization shots.

Conference delegates represented 19 states and Alberta, Ontario and Saskatchewan.

Nutrition Survey To Get Test

OTTAWA (CP) — Wellington and Dufferin counties in southwestern Ontario have been selected for a four-day test in June of the methods to be used in the national nutrition survey, a reliable source said Tuesday.

The three-year national survey is to obtain data on the nutrition status of 21,000 persons from coast to coast. Main surveying begins in the fall. Estimated cost of the project is $1,730,000.



Four areas in the two Ontario counties, divided as to income level and population density, will be surveyed in the test run. Blood and urine samples, body measurements and eating habits are among the data to be taken.

A preliminary interview with each person surveyed will be followed a week later by medical and dental examination and sample collection.

Fewer Men Fishing But---

Newfoundland's Frozen Fish Output Climbs

BURIN, NFM. (CP) — Despite the fact that Newfoundland fishermen have greatly decreased in numbers during recent years, the production of frozen fish products in the province continues to climb.

Statistics released by the fisheries department show total groundfish production for the first two months of 1970 amounted to 17,300,000 pounds compared with 15,000,000 pounds for January and February last year.

In February alone end production was up to 8,000,000 pounds as against 4,000,000 pounds for February, 1969. Plaice and greysole production rose from 2,300,000 pounds to 3,500,000 pounds.

Groundfish catch in 1969 totalled 220,000,000 pounds, exceeding by 8,000,000 pounds the previous mark of 212,000,000 pounds established in 1968.

Last year the catch rose to a high of 230,000,000 pounds, up 9,000,000 pounds over 1968. Freezing plants utilized about 60 per cent of cod landings, an increase of three per cent over 1968.

Frozen cod products accounted for 49 per cent of frozen groundfish production, flounder 23 per cent, redfish 14 per cent and the remainder was made up of miscellaneous species.

The over-all fish landings in the province in 1969 increased 6.7 per cent to 1,015,000,000 from 951,000,000 in 1968. Gross landed value was $28,300,000, up 1.1 per cent from $27,900,000 in 1968.

The department says that the number of commercial fishermen in the province fell to 18,159 in 1969 from 19,355 in 1968.

Although it is still early in the season, there are indications that 1970 will be another record year.

Harvey Mauger, manager of Booth Fisheries Ltd. plant at Harbor Breton, said "all our dragnets have been bringing back good catches during the winter, with a record catch landed by Captain Arch Evans and a 15-man crew from the trawler Arlene R. Mellon." The vessel brought in 600,000 pounds of fish, up from a previous record of 570,000 pounds.

Charles Martin, manager of Atlantic Fish Processors Ltd. at Marystown, said in one week four of his company's stern trawlers landed 1,300,000 pounds.

Joseph Meaben, manager of Fishery Products Ltd. at Burin, said the good catches and increased fish prices are bringing record earnings to fishermen.

Oil Spilled in Canal

TORONTO (CP) — Lands and Forests Minister Rene Brunelle Tuesday confirmed that there had been an oil spill in the Welland canal but assured the legislature no lasting damage had been done.

He told Georgi Scheter (L—Niagara Falls) that the Ontario Water Resources Commission had investigated after receiving an inquiry from the Committee of 1,000, a Niagara pollution-fighting group.

A plant breakdown cut off a pump and 300 gallons of oil escaped into the canal within three minutes, he said.

Trenton Students Can Plan Future At Careers Night

TRENTON — Students of Trenton High School and East Northumberland Secondary School at Brighton have an opportunity to gain some insight into the future Wednesday night.

The occasion is the annual Careers Information Evening to be held at Trenton High School.

Sponsored jointly by the Trenton Rotary Club and the Trenton Business and Professional Women's Club, the evening provides students from grades 10 to 13 with free advice of 40 counsellors from such widely varied fields as medicine, industry, commerce and public service.

Individual booths for each counsellor will be set up in the cafeteria and gymnasium and a directory will be provided so that students and parents can feel free to visit whomever they wish.

Representatives from Loyalist College, Queen's University, Ryerson Polytechnical Institute and Carver Academy as well as engineers, lawyers, doctors, dentists, accountants, retailers, merchants, the Department of Lands and Forests, Royal Canadian Mounted Police and the Ontario Provincial Police will be among those providing counselling services Wednesday evening.

"It's a growing thing, the number of students attending is climbing every year and we expect a turnout of between 350 and 400 Wednesday," said Rotarian Gerrit Bruinsz.

Carver night, which runs from 7 to 10, is also open to former students and interested adults as well as parents.

Piasecki Future Still Cloudy

PICTON — Mayor H. J. McFarland has declined comment concerning the reported closing of Piasecki Aircraft Ltd., here.

Although he talked last weekend with Mr. Richardson speaking to Mr. Bird, the mayor says he was told that Walter Symmons, resident company representative here since last summer, has been dismissed.

He has been replaced by Prince Edward county draftsman Gordon Fox and office operations will continue as before.

The mayor said that in updating him on Piasecki activities, Mr. Bird noted no word has been received regarding the company's bid for a government contract for light military helicopters.

Edward Alexander has returned home after spending the last week as a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

All Is Forgiven Return the Books

TRENTON — Long overdue books are normally a costly proposition, but not this week thanks to the courtesy of the Trenton Memorial Public Library.

The library is staging a "Forgiven Week" at both branches of Quinte and Mac-Mann Streets to allow members to return long overdue books at no charge.

"I don't know what to expect but this has worked in other libraries so we might just as well try it," said chief librarian Miss Mary Sainsbury.

Books can be put in boxes just inside the front door of either library or dropped through the letter slot at each location, Miss Salisbury explained.

Annual Meeting Held

CAMPBELLFORD — Trustees of Campbellford Memorial Hospital and their wives recently enjoyed a dinner at the Riviera Inn. They later returned to the hospital for the annual meeting.

Campbellford hospital has been under renovation and construction since 1962 due to numerous setbacks. However, the building is expected to be completed by the end of this year. It will be equipped with larger and more efficient service areas including laboratories and housekeeping services as well as a new sterilizer.

There are 115 full and part time employees at the hospital.

A new physiotherapy department has been added and it is hoped conference will be held with social and welfare agencies of the town and surrounding areas.

Dr. T. A. Cunningham, chief of medical staff, spoke enthusiastically of the new facilities and congratulated the hospital.

The Campbellford Hospital has a fully qualified surgeon and is able to give quicker surgery service. Two new operating and two new recovery rooms are also part of the additions. New surgeons have also expressed an interest in working at the hospital.

Reptiles Aid Education

Jack Owens, 23, teacher at O'Neill Collegiate in Oshawa uses a boa constrictor to liven up his science class discussion. His once-small collection has now grown to include 18 varieties of tropical birds, fish, reptiles and mammals such as the groundhog and muskrat. Mr. Owens believes students will want to learn if the class is interesting.

U.S. Starts Lake Erie Cleanup

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Secretary Walter J. Hickel initiated Tuesday what he called a massive campaign to clean up Lake Erie.

Hickel said in a statement his action was prompted by reports of lethal discharges of mercury from industrial plants into the lake and the Detroit River which empties into the lake.

The secretary said he is distressed by the economic losses and possible health hazards caused by the mercury, which contaminates fish and could be harmful to humans who eat the fish.

Hickel announced an enforcement conference on Lake Erie will be reconvened in Detroit, followed by enforcement workshops in Toledo, Cleveland, Lorain, Sandusky and Ashtabula, Ohio; Erie, Pa., and Lackawanna, N.Y.

Disclosure Law Made Easier

OTTAWA (CP) — The government moved Tuesday to soften the impact of its corporation law amendments on privately-owned corporations.

Ron Basford, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, introduced amendments in the Commons finance committee narrowing the requirements for companies to make public disclosure of their financial affairs and opening a way for them to get exemptions from the law.

Originally, all federal-incorporated firms were to be required by make public financial statements if their gross assets or annual sales exceeded $3,000,000 a year.

The new amendments now set the requirement at $5,000,000 in assets or $10,000,000 in annual sales.

Another new proposal is to authorize a provincial chief justice or acting chief justice to grant an order exempting a firm from having to make public its sales or gross revenue figures. A company would have to apply each year for such an exemption, and give notice to the corporate affairs department so that it could intervene in any such court hearing.

Judge Refuses To Hear Appeal

TORONTO (CP) — An Ontario Supreme Court justice refused Tuesday to hear a Toronto motorist's appeal against his impaired driving conviction.

Alexander Stewart Craig appealed his Feb. 18 conviction by Judge Donald Graham, contending that the breath-test law on which the conviction was based is invalid.

Mr. Justice Neil Fraser adjourned the appeal Tuesday until two days after the Supreme Court of Canada has ruled on the breath-test law.

YOUNG EDITOR

DUNCAN, B.C. (CP) — Not many of the 2,500 subscribers to Aerospace Journal, Canada's only magazine devoted to space technology, realize the editor is a 17-year-old high school student who puts the quarterly publication out in his spare time in his room at home. Garry Oyen, who gets most of his material from NASA, hopes profits from his currently advertisement-thin publication will put him through university soon. Subscribers include half a dozen prominent Canadian universities and scientific establishments.

Inequities Ironed Out

New Rent-to-Income Scale Proposed

OTTAWA (CP) — A new break on rents for public housing tenants was announced in the Commons Tuesday.

Robert Andras, minister in charge of housing, said the proposed new rent-to-income scale will iron out inequities in the present structure. He also called measures to encourage and enable tenants to take part in administering public housing projects.

The revised rent scheme, which Mr. Andras said has already got favorable response from the provinces, would:

—Reduce to 25 per cent from 30 the maximum proportion of a tenant's income to be paid in rent, and lower the minimum proportion for tenants at the bottom income level to 16.4 per cent from 18.7 per cent;

—Reduce the rents of large families by $3 a month for each child after the first two;

—Increase to $800 from $250 the amount a working wife may earn before her income starts counting as part of family income total used in figuring the family's rent;

—Permit one-parent families to deduct $600 from the annual income used to determine rent;

—Require tenants to declare income only once every two years, in effect grandmother them a maximum rent rate, while permitting downward adjustments if their income drops.

Mr. Andras said the provincial governments have already shown "a substantial measure of agreement" with the new scheme. Provincial authorities will also have a say on the level of federal assistance for better social and recreational facilities, tenants' associations and training programs in public housing management.

The new scheme would reduce to 160 a month from 220 rents paid by a family with five children and an annual income of $4,000. The rate would drop to $45 a month for a one-parent family with five children.

Conservative housing critic Lincoln Alexander (Hamilton West) said Mr. Andras's statement was a long-awaited change, but NDP critic John Gilbert (Toronto Broadview) complained it didn't touch the central problem of 180,000 families unable to obtain needed subsidized homes.

Mr. Andras said that, through federal-provincial agreements, the Central Mortgage and Housing Corp., the federal government was committed to building 27,500 low-income units in 1969 and 35,000 in 1970. The total, he said, is equal to 75 per cent of all production in the past 20 years.

Policy Working -Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson told the Commons Tuesday that government policies to fight inflation are gradually working.

However, "nobody likes the very high rates of unemployment in the country" that accompanies the battle, he told New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas.

The rate of unemployment in March, 1970, had been equalled or exceeded in eight of the last 14 years, Mr. Benson said. The record was in March, 1961, under a Conservative government.

Prime Minister Trudeau told Mr. Douglas the government has policies for areas affected by high unemployment. Mr. Douglas had asked whether the government would end inflation restraints in cities hit by high unemployment.

Replying to George Hees (PC —Prince Edward-Hastings), Mr. Trudeau said the government is fighting inflation to prevent greater unemployment.

Mr. Hees had asked whether the government would be willing to give some consideration to tax incentives to spur employment.

"Our first thoughts were sober," Mr. Trudeau replied. "Perhaps he honorable member isn't used to this."

Trent System Park Needs Cabinet Decision

Federal and Ontario governments likely will give advance study to a scheme that will eventually turn the Trent Canal system into a national park.

The date has yet to be set when the 240-mile waterway — reaching from Trenton to Georgian Bay — becomes part of the national parks system.

In fact, certain basic administrative requirements have yet to be met, before the change takes place.

For one, responsibility for the waterway now lies with the transport department.

As a national park, its jurisdiction must be transferred to the northern development department.

(It was Northern Development Minister Jean Chretien who announced April 10 at Peterborough that the Trent system would become a national park.)

Transfer of departmental responsibility is subject to a federal cabinet decision, a government spokesman said in Ottawa yesterday.

He was commenting on a press report that the changeover already had taken place.

The spokesman said changes on the Trent likely would be subject to a federal-provincial study. A comparable study now is under way on the Rideau Canal system.

"National park jurisdiction eventually would see the Trent turned into a series of camping and picnic areas, boating and hiking facilities.

Mr. Chretien already has emphasized that such canal systems now are used almost exclusively by tourists.

"These waterways in the past have been used mainly for transportation, but now they will be used in the future more and more for recreation. We want to keep them for the national parks system where we will develop them for conservation and recreation purposes," he said.

Lawyer And MD In Dispute

KINGSTON (CP) — A Kingston pediatrician warned Tuesday that a baby taken from his care in Kingston General Hospital April 2 "could be dead," but a Toronto lawyer representing the child's mother said it "is doing great."

The baby girl, then 2 days old, was taken from the hospital by her mother, Mrs. Antonina DeWaal, a Jehovah's Witness, after doctors said the child needed a blood transfusion to prevent death or permanent brain damage. The Jehovah's Witnesses believe that the Bible forbids blood transfusions.

Dr. D. C. Delahaye said the baby "could be dead, entirely well, or in danger or permanent brain damage," but that there is "a good chance it is dead."

He said that Glen How, the Toronto lawyer who reported on the baby's condition, does not have the medical training "to offer an opinion in this case."

Mr. How has been spokesman for Mrs. DeWaal who has been in hiding with the baby since April 2.

Niekro Bears Brunt

Rampaging Reds Clout 7 More Homers

By DICK COUCH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Cincinnati's rampaging Reds tagged Phil Niekro for four of their seven home runs Tuesday night and thumped the Atlanta Braves 13-8 to go 6½ games ahead of the pack in the National Baseball League West Division.

"If Cincinnati is this good," mused Braves Manager Luman Harris, "they can just go on to the World Series."

Only three weeks having gone by in the regular season, the Reds have a 13-4 season mark and 20 home runs, the last 10 of them in two victories at Atlanta.

The Braves, meanwhile, have dropped into the West Division cellar.

In Tuesday's other NL action, Pittsburgh outlasted Houston 9-8; the Chicago Cubs downed St. Louis 7-4 and San Diego tripped the New York Mets 5-2. Rain washed out the Los Angeles-Montreal and San Francisco-Philadelphia games.

Tony Perez, the majors' hottest hitter, crashed his eighth homer and three singles to pace the Reds' 17-hit assault against Niekro, 0-4, and four Atlanta relievers. Rookie Bernie Carbo slammed two homers and Johnny Bench, Bob Tolan, Pete Rose and rookie Dave Concepcion hit one apiece.

Atlanta homers by Rico Carty, Orlando Cepeda and Felix Millan brought the two clubs within one of the single game National League record.

Niekro, the knuckleball artist who won 22 for the Braves last season, carries a 7.77 earned run average after four starts this spring and has been the victim of 11 homers in 14 1-3 innings.

Perez' (4-for-5) night boosted his batting average to .484, tops in both leagues. The Cincinnati third baseman also is acting the pace in home runs, RBI (22) and hits (30).

Roberto Clemente's first homer of the year capped a five-run flurry in the sixth inning, sending the Pirates ahead 8-4, and they hung on to shade Houston. Jim Wynn delivered five runs for the Astros with a bases-loaded double and his fourth homer.

Billy Williams' three - run homer and Johnny Callison's two-run blast, both off Bob Gibson in the seventh inning, carried the Cubs past the Cardinals to their sixth straight victory. The homers were the first of the season off St. Louis pitching.

San Diego, beaten 11 straight times by the Mets, scored twice in the ninth to snap a 3-3 deadlock. Clarence Gaston knocking in the go-ahead run when center fielder Tommie Agee misjudged his liner and it fell for a double. Nate Colbert hit his sixth homer for the Padres.

In 18th Year, Kaline Still Packs Wallop

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A slick pair of Tiger rookies supplied the batting punch but it was old professional Al Kaline who softened up and then delivered the knockout blow in Detroit's latest victory.

The East Division leading Tigers, rallied for two ninth-inning runs, nipping Cleveland Reds 5-3 Tuesday night to run their winning streak to six.

In other American League contests, Washington Senators stopped New York Yankees 7-5, Minnesota Twins topped Chicago White Sox 4-3, Oakland Athletics trimmed Kansas City Royals 4-3 and California Angels downed Milwaukee Brewers 8-1.

Kaline, the 35-year-old right fielder, in his 18th major league season, had kept the Indians even in the eighth inning, with a sensational, leaping catch at the fence, robbing Ted Uhlaender of a home run.

In the fourth inning, Maddox' first major league hit—a single —had tied the game, capping a three-run inning. Kaline triggered the rally with a single.

A two-out error by Yankees shortstop Gene Michael, followed by Bernie Allen's three-run homer, put the Senators in front to to stay at 5-3.

Casey Cox went 7 1-3 innings for his third triumph without a loss while New York ace Mel Stottlemyre, rapped for 11 hits in six innings, took his third defeat. Lee Mays stroked four hits for the Senators and scored four runs. Danny Cater drilled three hits for the Yankees.

Harmon Killebrew's three-run homer in the sixth inning provided the Twins with their winning margin. It was Killebrew's second of the season and 469th of his career. He also scored his 999th career run. While Sox starter Tommy John stumbled his fourth loss of the young season.

Don Mincher rapped a two-run homer in the eighth inning, giving the Athletics their victory after helping the Royals take a 3-2 edge earlier in the inning with a throwing error.

Tom Murphy, 3-1, with sixth-inning relief help, scattered three hits, striking out three and walking three and opened the decisive three-run third inning for the Angels with a single.

The Angels' triumph kept them in a first-place tie in the W while the Brewers were losing their sixth consecutive game.

Charlton Celebrates 100th

LONDON (CP) — Bobby Charlton fired a goal in the 79th minute Monday night to give England a 3-1 victory over Northern Ireland and also to celebrate his 100th appearance for England in international soccer matches.

Martin Peters scored for England, the reigning World Cup champions, in the fifth minute and George Best levelled in the 49th minute for Northern Ireland.

Geoff Hurst sent England into the lead again, with a header in the 55th minute and Charlton made the game safe.

England's victory sent it to the top of the British championships with three points from two games.

Last Saturday, the undervsted Welsh team held England to a 1-1 tie, and Scotland defeated Northern Ireland 1-0.

Chargers Rev Up for Track Season

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

Centennial track coach Bruce Faulds has a unique explanation for the success of his Charger squad — consensus.

"I think it's just consensus on my part", says Faulds. "I keep hammering away that track and field is the greatest and hope that I can make believers out of them."

Faulds' Centennial faithful were good enough to sweep the Belleville pre - Bay of Quinte meet last year; place second at Bay of Quinte and come up with second and fifth place finishes at the all-Ontario meet in Toronto.

The city's newest secondary school has been a track power to reckon with over the last four years. "We try to get a large number of first-year students out", claims the coach, "and the good ones stay with it until they graduate." This year's team has a total of 35 boys in the bantam and midget division.

Strength of the unit appears to be concentrated mainly in the sprinting and weight sections.

Senior speedster Frank Johnston figures to dominate the local 440 scene after his second at OFSAA in the junior division last year, as well as being among the top candidates in the long jump. Johnston's third event will probably be the 120, although he has been trying his hand at the high hurdles.

In the junior division Ralph Vandervoort, a member of last year's CODSA champion half - mile relay, should be a top contender in the 100,220 and triple jump.

In the weight events, such as shotputting, Faulds appears to have corraled more "Toes" than Bobby Hull with his track artillery winning three of the four titles at the Bay of Quinte indoor meet.

Last year's senior champion Barry Mullins will be returning to defend his title and a pair of first-year men have an excellent chance at top spot. John McLeod won the indoor midget shot with a throw of 42 feet five inches, only seven inches off the record, while Arnold Pratt's heave of 37 feet nine inches came within half a foot of the best-ever Quinte area bantam toss. Brian Murphy and Vahe Parmakesian Bay of Quinte winners in javelin and discus respectively, will be looking to repeat their success as bantams in the midget age class.

The weakest section of the team would appear to be the long distance runners although there are a couple of hopefuls. Ron Richardson is given a good chance by his coach in the junior 880 and 1500 metres and Faulds also feels that bantam Ron Brown could fare well in the 1500 and 2000 metres double.

Centennial's head coach has been aided by instructor Bob Monad who has been working with the sprinters, and weight coach Doug Irvine.

The 65-strong Charger team gets its first test of the outdoor season in a dual meet at Quinte Secondary School, Thursday at 4 p.m.

Junior Baseball Holds Workout

Junior baseball makes its first appearance in a number of years tonight when the Belleville Juniors will hold an open practice at Parkdale, beginning at 6 p.m.

Coached by Murfrey "Moe" Hunter and managed by Garth Bradshaw, the juniors will be competing in the South Hastings League and playing a partial schedule in the Lakeshore Intermediate League before entering the EOBA playdowns.

Away to the Races!

Centennial Secondary School sprinter Frank Johnston blasts out of the starting blocks in a tune-up for Thursday's dual meet with Quinte. Johnston, who placed second at all-Ontario in the 440 last season, will be making his debut in the 110-yard high hurdles.

Name and Game the Same

Proving that their bowling skills were as exceptional as their name-tag, the Hywykits, captained by Jessie Hunter captured the 9th annual Belleville Women's Bowling Association Tournament recently at the Brunswick Belleville Bowl.

Taking the ten - pin tournament team title were Elinor Simms, Pat Swoboda, Milly Smith, Grace Poste and Jessie Hunter with a 3075 total.

Doubles winners were Nell Loewen and Milly Smith, while the singles title went to Barb Smith who rolled 617. Top handicap bowler was Milly Smith, while Barb Ward's 1003 total pinfall was the best total for a "scratch" bowler.

Wann a Winner

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Kelrinka Wann, owned by Rejean Boily and Campbell Wannamaker of Cannons, Ont., was the only Canadian horse winning Tuesday night at Batavia Downs. She won the sixth.

New Grant Formula Is Introduced for Regional Governments

TORONTO (CP) — Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough Tuesday introduced a bill that will replace municipal unconditional grants with a new formula for payments to municipalities in regional governments.

The formula will apply to Ottawa-Carleton, Niagara and Metropolitan Toronto. It will be applied to other regional governments as they are formed.

The funds provided will be passed on to the benefit of member-municipalities.

So the new grant can be applied to reduce general expenditures of a municipality, residential taxpayers will have a provincial tax rate fixed at 85 per cent of the commercial tax rate.

The new formula proposed in the bill:

—Provincial payment of $7 per capita according to the total population of the area municipalities;

—Payment of 10 cents per capita to represent a share of fines collected, except for fines levied under municipal bylaws;

—Per-capita payment of an amount based on the density of households in each area municipality, according to a schedule of household-density payments attached to the bill;

—Payment of $2.50 per capita for 1971 and subsequent years for regional governments which have established a police force, as in Metropolitan Toronto and Niagara.

Tables released by Mr. McKeough as the bill was read in the Ontario legislature showed that if the regional government grants had been available in 1969, municipalities in Ottawa-Carleton would have enjoyed a reduced residential mill rate of as much as nine mills in Cumberland.

A table for Niagara showed the increases in grants that will result when the regional government grants replace the unconditional grants. The estimates of increased revenue range from $87,008 for the new town of Pelham to $577,880 for Niagara Falls.

Estimated total amount payable to Niagara region is $3,127,524, compared with $1,800,886 that would have been available under unconditional grants. The overall increase in revenues is $1,300,758.

Changes in the calculation of provincial grants to regional municipalities were announced in the Ontario budget, but details were not revealed until the bill was introduced.

Mr. McKeough said the changes will be "more responsive to the inherently complex and unique problems confronting those municipalities and their regional jurisdictions."

In a press statement released later, Mr. McKeough said Niagara will receive grant increases of $700,000 in 1970 and $680,000 in 1971; Ottawa-Carleton will get an additional $447,000 in 1970; and Metropolitan Toronto will receive an additional $3,800,000 in 1971.

Variance in the amounts of the increases, when they are received, result from the four-stage method by which the amount of grants is determined.

Mr. McKeough said that Niagara and Ottawa-Carleton will receive grant increases this year because of the first two of the four stages in the formula, while Toronto's grant this year will match what it already gets.

Toronto's $3,800,000 increase in 1971 will come from the $2.50-per-capita payment where a police force has been formed. Ottawa-Carleton does not have a regional police force.

In other business:

—Attorney-General Wishart said he will present legislation "shortly" that will establish judicial districts, assign judges permanently to an area, establish Supreme Court judges in a permanent location and realign the responsibilities of the various courts.

—Mr. Wishart said he sees no need for further action in the case of Provincial Judge Robert Taylor who was reprimanded by the Ontario Court of Appeal for remarks made during a trial. Mr. Wishart said he believed Judge Taylor, who was reported to have suggested that one of the defendants in a case between him return to Italy where he came from, had learned his lesson from the severe public reprimand by the appeal court.

—Pat Lawlor (NDP—Toronto Lakeshore) suggested that the hearing of mines and minerals should be transferred to Ontario's Revenue Minister John White from Mines Minister Allan Lawrence. The suggestion was contained in an attack on Mr. Lawrence's handling of exemptions for the mineral industry and a taxation system he said works against the opening of new mines.

Difficult to Provide Public Hearings on Water Management

OTTAWA (CP) — Federal authorities have failed to find a way to guarantee that public hearings will be held in France water management and anti-pollution measures, Resources Minister J. J. Greene said Tuesday.

He left it to a Commons committee to write into the proposed Canada water act a provision for obligatory public hearings.

"I would like you to consider changes of wording intended to make it quite clear that public hearings or other appropriate inputs from those concerned are a vital part of our planning," he told the Commons resources committee.

But, he conceded later at a news conference, the legal draftsmen had been unable to provide for compulsory public hearings without "hamstringing" the officials of water quality management agencies in the performance of their tasks.

"I'm certainly in favor of writing it in," he told reporters after unveiling changes to the proposed act to the committee.

Mr. Greene said the efficient control of waters by federal-provincial water management boards was just as important as guaranteeing public hearings on such things as water quality standards.

Authorization for voluntary hearings was among amendments he placed before the committee.

The changes also will furnish the legislative basis for Mr. Greene's plan to ban phosphates in laundry detergents.

He had promised this step after a report to the International Joint Commission said phosphate nutrients going into lakes Ontario and Lake Erie threatened to choke life through over-stimulation of algae.

Mr. Green reiterated that by Aug. 1 detergents must contain no more than 20 per cent by weight of phosphorous pentoxide and by 1972 it must be "near total elimination."

The phosphate amendment goes beyond the detergents issue, enabling the federal cabinet to define a nutrient and prohibit its manufacture or import in any cleaning agent or water conditioner. Maximum penalty is $5,000 and confiscation of goods.

Quebec Organized Labor Backs Mail Truckers

OTTAWA (CP) — Organized labor in Quebec put aside internal differences Tuesday night to mass on Parliament Hill the biggest demonstration yet against the federal government's role in the Montreal postal dispute.

Represented among an estimated 1,500 demonstrators were the Quebec Federation of Labor and the rival Confederation of National Trade Unions. Placards in the crowd proclaimed the presence of the Council of Postal Unions, affiliated with the QFL.

QFL general secretary Fernand Daoust said the rival organizations have come together in a common front to support Montreal's unemployed mail-truck drivers in their three-month fight with the government. The drivers, ex-employees of former postal contractor G. Lapalme Inc., are affiliated through their union with the CNTU.

Mr. Daoust said there are no grounds for conflict between the QFL and the CNTU in the issue. The QFL, he said, supported the drivers' demand that they be permitted to work for the post office as a bargaining unit separate from the existing postal unions.

He said the government had offered unacceptable, "humiliating," terms in negotiations with the union over possible post office employment for the men.

"We hope this demonstration will show the government the determination of Quebec workers to get this whole thing settled," he said.

Provincial Police Set Up Security Division

TORONTO (CP) — Provincial police have set up a security service to protect public figures and the structure of government.

Its existence was disclosed in the provincial police annual report tabled in the legislature Tuesday by Attorney-General Arthur Wishart.

The report's sole description of the new security branch is:

"The security branch was established Aug. 11, 1969, for the purpose of investigating persons who obviously pose a real threat to government officials or to the structure of government.

"In addition, the safety of ranking officials of other governments and controversial individuals who are visiting Ontario is the responsibility of this branch."

Mr. Wishart was reluctant to comment on the branch except to say it was created through a provincial police decision with his knowledge.

In an interview, an official of the new branch said it is composed of six plainclothesmen.

He said that threats to cabinet ministers in the form of letters or telephone calls had increased threefold in the last 18 months.

The branch's activities include looking after the safety of government officials, providing escorts for visiting dignitaries, protecting foreign nationals such as consuls stationed in Ontario and supervising the provincial police Queen's Park detachment.

He said the security branch was involved in investigating a recent threat to abduct the United States vice-consul in Windsor.

The vice-consul, William A. Mitchell, has been under provincial police guard since Thursday, a police source said earlier.

A spokesman for the department of external affairs said Saturday that U.S. diplomats in major Canadian cities have been given special police protection after receiving threats of violence and kidnapping from groups which are against the Vietnam war.

CN Ferry Sank In 30 Minutes

SYDNEY, N.S. (CP) — The Canadian National ferry Patrick Morris sank in less than 30 minutes after the sea pounded in the stern doors, Capt. Murdoc Fudge, Newfoundland area marine supervisor for CN, said Tuesday.

He said after the doors were broken down, the vessel filled with water and sank off North Sydney Monday.

Earlier, it had been believed that the stern doors, used to load railway cars aboard the ferry, had been opened to pick up bodies of seamen from the sunken herring seiner Enterprise.

The 47 survivors of the ferry sinking arrived here by chartered plane Tuesday after a flight from Port Cartier, Que., where they had been taken by a rescue ship.

Some were to leave for their Newfoundland homes today aboard the ferry William Carson and others were to follow later after talking to transport department officials, conducting a preliminary inquiry into the sinking.

The seaman were questioned Tuesday night for more than two hours and were ordered not to discuss the sinking with reporters.

Capt. Fudge said water quickly filled the vessel's train deck and the engine room.

"The vessel immediately developed a 40-degree list and sank in less than 30 minutes."

Capt. Roland Penney, 54, of Lewisporte, Nfld., and three engineering officers were lost in the sinking.

Bodies of the three engineers were still missing Tuesday. They were identified as chief engineer David Reekie, 53, of Montreal, second engineer Joseph Henry Slaynon, 48, of St. John's, Nfld., and third engineer Ronald A. Anderson, 41, of North Sydney, N.S.

CN's Atlantic region vice-president, J. W. G. MacDougall said CN will consider salvaging the Morris, in about 300 feet of water about 12 miles off the coast.

"We will try to send a diver down to examine the ship soon. If we could salvage her for something like $5,000,000, then it would be a good investment."

Replacement value of the Morris is $10,000,000.

Indians Will Get Better Oil Deal

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's 276,000 registered Indians will soon be getting a better economic return on the estimated $2,000,000,000 oil and mineral wealth lying under their reserves, a federal official said Tuesday.

A. S. Irwin, of the department of Indian affairs and northern development, said changes in the federal Indian Act and negotiations between Ottawa provinces and their Indian residents will lead soon to a large increase in agreements for exploitation of this wealth.

He told the annual meeting of the Canadian Institute on Mining and Metallurgy that many Indian bands are not aware of the potential, partly because of a need for more evaluation by the department.

He said that while Indian oil and gas resources have been actively developed—providing $4,000,000 annually to Indian bands in Alberta alone—there is only one mine and two quarries in the 6,000,000 acres of land covered by the 2,300 reserves in Canada.

UAW Claims Prices Board Acts to Limit Labor Gains

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (CP) — The United Auto Workers charged Tuesday that the Canadian government's prices and incomes commission is designed to be a weapon to "restrict the legitimate economic gains of organized labor."

In a report to the international union's annual convention signed by President Walter Reuther, the UAW said the commission in doing this "while satisfying itself with little but empty promises from other sectors of the community."

"In short, no (price or spending) restraints of any genuinely solid nature have been agreed to either by government or industry, and yet the government has already indicated that it is going to use these hollow promises as a weapon to blackjack labor into accepting wage restraints. . . ."

The report says if the restraints were accepted by labor they could "very well mean that wage increases in the next two or three years would not even be sufficient to keep pace with rising living costs and would certainly deprive workers and their families of their fair share of the economic wealth produced in the country.

The report continues: "Prime Minister Trudeau has specifically indicated that pressure will be brought upon UAW members to accept a smaller economic package than their fellow members in the U.S.

"This is in spite of the fact that the average buying power of Canadian auto workers has been increasing in recent years at a much slower rate than their productivity."

The New SAFETY '99

A good tire made even better for the 1970's

Nothing stands still these days. That's why we're retiring 'Old Faithful' in favor of a new and better Safety '99'. Wider. Flatter. Stronger. Heavier than its million or more predecessors. Changes not just for the sake of change — but to meet the heavy demands of today's driving.

We like to be a jump ahead. We have to figure what happens to tires at speeds you may not even need. You see, tire failures increase alarmingly as speeds increase. A tire tread driven at the old speed-limit of 60 m.p.h. will run almost twice as far as one now driven at 70. And a tire capable of giving 25,000 service miles at 50 m.p.h. will survive only 6,000 at 80 m.p.h. A sobering thought — back of our determination to make tires safer, stronger, longer-lived.

Welfare Payments Cause Controversy

PICTON (Staff) — A report that the government plans to increase welfare payments prompted controversy in county council last night. Chairman of the County Home and Welfare Committee Donald Thompson told fellow councillors, "When you cut our budget the government increased its payments." He commented that there will be an approximate monthly raise of thirty dollars for each large family receiving welfare and an increase of five dollars monthly for families with more than three dependents. Allowances for hydro will be stepped up by three dollars monthly and the household supplies allotment will be raised by one dollar. The increases total approximately $20 per month. "If we have a deficit of $30,000 to $40,000 next year accept it and laugh," Thomson advised council members. During the budget meeting of county council in March a $15,000 cut was recorded in the welfare budget.

Bloomfield Reeve Allen Anderson immediately questioned the need to raise local welfare rates. "Do we have to pay the same rates as Toronto?" he inquired. "It's time our welfare administrator took a good look at it. Wages aren't the same here as in Toronto. It's going to make things embarrassing because farmer workers can say 'I can earn more on welfare.'"

Supporting reeve Anderson's observations Hallowell reeve George Vincent said, "If welfare payments are close too or above the wages paid there is no incentive in this area for borderline cases. In Toronto or Kitchener where there is a higher wage level there is incentive. Committee chairman Donald Thompson promised council a full report on rates of welfare payment soon. He noted that there are presently 161 welfare cases in Prince Edward County as of Apr. 1. This represents a drop of 13 cases since March.

New Tax System

May Require Full-time Collector

WOOLER (Staff) — The new system of interim tax billing recently adopted by Murray township council may necessitate the hiring of a full-time tax collector.

At Tuesday night's regular council session, deputy treasurer Lloyd Dorland, whose primary duty is tax collection, asked council to hire him as a full-time tax collector.

"I would think this is a full-time job now with the interim tax billings," said Mr. Dorland, who has handled the township's tax collection for the past eight years on a part-time, contract basis.

He revealed that his salary last year was $3,166 and said that the work would double under the new system, requiring him to quit farming and devote his time to the tax collection duties.

In explaining the work involved, Mr. Dorland said that 2,600 tax bills had to be out by June 1, and estimated that during the course of the year he would handle each ratepayer's name about 14 times.

Reeve Harry Lafferty noted that council had expected the workload to increase with the advent of interim tax billing.

Council agreed to review Mr. Dorland's request and will discuss the matter further at its next session.

Murray's switch to interim tax billing this year was designed to eliminate the cost of borrowing to cover the township's quarterly educational levy.

Education, which will cost about $288,000 this year, is the major tax expense for township ratepayers.

Teachers Losing Public's Confidence

Teachers are losing the confidence of the public, a group of Catholic teachers was told in Toronto last weekend.

The 35 teachers, including representatives from Belleville, were attending a public relations workshop run by the Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association.

Anne Moon, education editor of the Toronto Star, advised the teachers to focus public attention on school activities and pupil projects.

"The confidence of the public in you is waning," she told the teachers.

Mrs. Moon was one of eight speakers at the workshop, where the teachers also received instruction on technical aspects of reporting to newspapers, radio and television.

EMO Radio Crews To Keep Active

Radio communications are a vital part of any Emergency Measures Organization program and the Quinte Area is no exception.

Local "ham" radio operators, members of the Belleville District Amateur Radio Club and the Tri-County General Radio Service Club are prepared to offer their assistance in an emergency and within the next few weeks will take part in two exercises of general interest.

The first of these is the Quinte Picton Pushers Walkathon scheduled for this weekend to raise money for the St. John Ambulance.

The second exercise is on June 13 when the Lower Trent Region Conservation Authority is conducting a clean-up of the Trent River from Hastings to Trenton.

"People might wonder why the EMO is involved in such exercises," said Mr. Duffy, "but they do provide excellent experience for the radio operators."

New Quinte Area EMO Headquarters

More than 30 Emergency Measures Organization executive committee members and radio communicators from the Quinte area attended last night's open house for the new EMO headquarters in Belleville.

Two months ago the Quinte Area headquarters for EMO was moved from Dundas Street East to the Bus Blanche Auditorium at the Belleville Fairgrounds, where it now occupies second floor mezzanine offices.

Belleville Mayor J. Russell Scott as chairman of the executive committee, welcomed visitors coming from as far north as Bancroft and from Prince Edward County.

The new headquarters was officially opened by Donald Bond, former Prince Edward county warden. Tyendinaga township reeve Carman Gibson also spoke briefly congratulating EMO on its progress.

Quinte Area EMO co-ordinator Angus Duffy outlined past and present programs of his organization and how it hoped to arrange shelter for protection against fallout in case of a nuclear attack.

The Quinte area of the EMO takes in Hastings and Prince Edward counties and is part of Zone 4 with headquarters in Peterborough.

The main current project for EMO is the completion of a shielding analysis to determine the capacity of suitable buildings which could be used for fallout protection.

"Our big danger is still a nuclear war and one of the best ways of spending defence dollars is to provide protection from fallout," stated Mr. Duffy.

Bell Telephone Spending $5,500,000 in This Area

By IAN S. ROBERTSON

Bell Canada "will be spending more than $5,500,000 in this area in the current three-year period. But, unfortunately, we have been forced to postpone for some time some of the previously announced projects we planned, such as free local calling between Belleville, Frankford, Brighton and Stirling. The introduction of direct distance dialing in Madoc, Tweed, Marmora and Stirling has also been delivered," said John L. McCutcheon, Ottawa, vice-president of Bell Canada's Central Area and a director of Northern Telephone Limited.

He was speaking to the last meeting for this year of the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club at the Knights of Columbus Hall last evening.

Mr. McCutcheon explained that Bell has had to reduce its construction spending by $55,000,000. He gave the reason for this cutback as stemming from Bell's rate structure remaining unchanged since 1958 except for a three per cent adjustment last summer when Bell had a hearing in Ottawa to ask for a ten per cent increase.

"We have been labelled by some people as being a competitive monopoly with the implication that we can operate as we wish with absolute disregard for the individual or the welfare of the community at large," he continued. "This is just not the case. We are a regulated monopoly and that means that we have to get the approval of the Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa if we want to change telephone rates by just one cent.

"For us to put up two poles and string one cable with 50 pairs of wire costs about $500 or $1 absence of taxes, underground conduit, buildings, trucks, telephone sets, microwave towers and all the other needed expenditures for communications.

"This would have been $8,000,000 per week, if we hadn't had to take the cut.

"So you see, we have to 'make millions' or go out of business. We've learned to live with price controls for years, and it is a fact of life with us. So don't let anyone kid you that we are an unregulated monster."

In the display Mr. McCutcheon brought to last night's meeting, were the picture-phone of the future, examples of mini-circuits, a Bell Boy, or portable electronic paging device, and a Touchphone. He announced that plans had been approved to introduce this phone into the Belleville district within two years.

"This of course is a great improvement over the 914 'number please' telephones introduced in 1926. Even changing that system to direct dial allows us to use only 94 operators in Belleville and Trenton instead of 60 which would have been required under that old system."

As a matter of fact Bell has been attempting to cut costs and increase services to this point that in 12 years they have increased their employees by only 3,000 from approximately 36,000 but besides 4,000,000 telephones, an increase of 2,500,000.

"We'll match our efforts at inflationary controls over the last 12 years with anyone you want to name," he concluded.

Talk 'n' See

John Arthur McCutcheon of Bell Canada displays the future telephone which allows the caller to view the other party by way of a television camera. He was the guest speaker at last night's meeting of the Belleville Sales and Advertising Club held at Columbus Hall. . .

Nursing Homes Could Relieve Shortage of Hospital Beds

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Ontario nursing homes could provide care for non-active treatment patients now taking up needed hospital beds in the province.

Such a service, if covered by medicare, also would be less costly than the provincial government estimates, Lloyd Stevenson, president of the Associated Nursing Homes of Ontario, said in Belleville last night.

"Nursing homes are a heck of a lot cheaper than active treatment hospitals," he told a regional meeting of private nursing home owners at the Sun Lick Garden.

Extension of hospitalization coverage to nursing homes in the province has been sought by the group for some time.

A similar demand is a major, continuing campaign of the Belleville area's MPP —

Dr. Richard Potter — a fact noted by Mr. Stevenson.

The association has received much support from Dr. Potter as chairman of the legislature's health committee, he said.

"A lot of the progress toward inclusion of nursing homes on extended hospital coverage has been because of our appearance before him and his committee last summer," he said.

"One of the answers we got from Mr. Wells (Ontario) Health Minister Thomas Wells) is that it is going to cost so much money . . . I don't know how many millions of dollars," said Mr. Stevenson.

Yet, he estimated, about 60 per cent of nursing home care is being paid for under some form of public financing.

Cost of extending hospitalization services to nursing homes would only be "about one-eighth of what the government is talking about," he believed.

Nursing facilities also could meet any extra demand created by hospitalization coverage, Mr. Stevenson said later.

There now are about 17,000 private nursing home beds in the province. Another 2,000 will be added in the next two years, he said.

Mr. Stevenson also told the meeting the present system of publicly - operated homes for the aged, often operated to the disadvantage of the poor.

"In some municipalities there are so many affluent people in the homes that there is no place left for the really destitute who are then refused admission or sent to a private nursing home, where the government will only allow $16.50 a day (welfare payment for each patient)," he claimed. "Then a new home for the aged has to be built and the whole process starts over again.

Daily care costs in homes for the aged do not reflect total expenses, said Mr. Stevenson.

Such costs are estimated by relating the number of residents to annual operating costs.

LLOYD STEVENSON

Not included in such estimates are a series of hidden costs — construction, administrative services performed by municipal departments, absence of taxes.

This in turn means that wealthy residents of the homes are being partially supported by taxpayers, said Mr. Stevenson.

"I know of cases where residents worth $50,000 were admitted to municipal homes for the aged," he claimed.

If the daily costs on which fees were based included hidden costs "this would not be so bad. But it does not.

"So in fact, you're subsidizing the rich, who can well afford to pay for themselves."

The provincial government per diem rate paid to private nursing homes for welfare patients is $10.50 daily.

Many homes provide special accommodation and services for "those who can afford it," said Mr. Stevenson.

"But other proprietary nursing homes have great difficulty providing a high level of care for welfare patients at $10.50 a day — and also meet mortgage payments and pay taxes. In fact, many smaller nursing homes are up for sale or are going out of business," he said.

During later discussion among district nursing home owners, Mr. Stevenson also was critical of Hastings County welfare decisions on comfort allowances and per diem rates.

The meeting was told the comfort allowance had been reduced from $15 to $13 per patient. A request to increase the per diem rate from $9.50 to $10.50 to private homes caring for welfare residents had resulted in a $10 fee.

Mr. Stevenson termed it "ridiculous" that the comfort allowance also was earmarked by the county for medication costs.

"It's not the nursing homes these people are depriving, it's the residents," he said. "It's the persons who've been living in this county for 20 or 30 years — and this is the treatment they are going to get in return? This is an absolute disgrace."

The nursing home owners later voted to consult with the association's legal counsellor on approaching county representatives about the situation.

It costs money to drive, as why not be central? This home invites the family who enjoy being together. Mom can keep an eye on things while preparing dinner from the kitchen overlooking the lovely family room which has sliding glass doors leading to the back lawn. There are five bedrooms, and 2 bathrooms; plus many other features only found in a quality home. Walking distance to schools, churches, the "Y" and shopping.

Quiet — 3 bedroom brick bungalow off the beaten path. Large kitchen, large living room, 4 pc. bath and forced air oil furnace, nice shrubs, and trees. 2 car parking. A good solid home and the owner says bring an offer.

Budget Conscious? Why not look at this older frame 1½ storey home? 3 bedrooms, dining room, kitchen and living room, 2 pc. and 3 pc. bath; newly painted; this home is oil heated, close to CNR and many industries "ideal for the young working family with a low down payment.

A fine new home is one of the more executive areas of Trenton; 3 good size bedrooms, kitchen, dining room and large living room; rec room 22' x 14' with fireplace, 4-pc. bath, 3-pc. bath off master bedroom, awake to the sound of birds in your own, private, back yard. On you, there is an attached garage. Love it, love it.

ON THE BAY — Have you priced lots on the Bay lately? We have a 1 acre lot with private cove plus private channel up one side of property; add one bright cheery 3 bedroom bungalow, living room, 23 x 16 and large kitchen, dining room, and full basement with garage; add this all up you might expect to pay $30,000.00, however it's a bargain at only $24,500.

Conference Report By Mayor Scott

Mayor Russell Scott is among local government heads attending the Provincial - Municipal Conference in Toronto. Through The Intelligencer, Dr. Scott will daily relate the impressions of one municipal representative on conference developments. Here are his comments evoked by last night's opening:

By J. RUSSELL SCOTT

TORONTO — A complete change of policy in provincial government relations with Ontario municipalities may have been indicated in Premier Robarts' keynote speech to the Provincial-Municipal Conference.

However, municipal delegates to the conference must wait and see the details before making any assessment.

Mr. Robarts has indicated that local governments must be strengthened and this could lead to the consolidation of many municipalities. There must be clearly-defined guidelines marking out municipal and provincial areas of responsibility, he said.

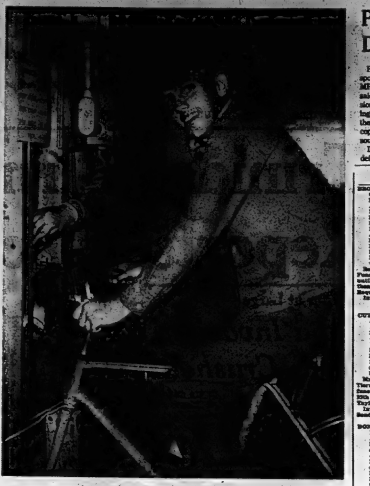
However of primary importance to any such developments is an altered tax base.

In the past, when municipalities sought more provincial government funds in attempts to relieve property taxes, they have lost some of their autonomy.

The province — without unification — has assumed functions that once were local responsibilities. Assessment and administration of justice are two more recent examples.

Lately, grants for roads and highways have been increased — but coupled with increased supervision, inspections and checks by the province.

The province must spell out what powers it intends to leave with municipalities, which responsibilities it intends to remove.



Then, the senior government must give us a new tax base to finance operations other than the age-old land tax. One of the more satisfactory solutions would be a share in sales taxes and the provincial portion of income taxes, being turned over to the municipalities in which they were collected.

The source of revenue from such taxes would increase with area growth.

Such basic financial reform, linked to well-defined areas of separate responsibilities, are the necessary elements in any reconstruction and restrengthening of local government.

Failure to implement such changes can only continue the shrinkage of municipal powers.

All we in municipal government will be left to administer will be welfare, sidewalks and streetlights.

Moving Right Along

By rapidly pedalling this special bicycle and changing electrical switches, Carman Lloyd can build up enough power to run a car radio, headlamps and horn which were mounted on the wall of Quinte Secondary's electronics shop.

Quinte Secondary Night Gets Enthusiastic Response

Three years ago Quinte Secondary School opened its doors to allow parents to see exactly what their youngsters were doing during the days. It was termed a "moderate" success. Last year saw a slight improvement. But "last night's response was certainly an improvement," according to Milton Kerr, Technical Director for Quinte Secondary, as attendance was about tripled over last year.

As well—as the usual open house displays such as chemistry experiments, language demonstrations, work in the various technical shops, commercial courses demonstrations, mathematical exhibits and charts, physical education programs, art displays and library exhibits, there were those of a slightly different nature.

Grade 9, 12 and 13 students presented three plays and a student film in the English Department.

A trilingual cafe was featured, on the auditorium balcony as part of the language arts programs.

Four showings of beautifully detailed gowns, dresses, and all the accessories worn in fashion shows formed part of the "Spring Fling" show in the home economics department.

Students taking the two-year occupations course demonstrated their courses throughout the school.

Students taking the Registered Nursing Assistants (ward Nursing Attendants) course, which involves half their classes besides options, showed visitors the art of caring for the sick and injured. This course if unique in the Quinte district.

The history and geography departments illustrated their courses through the aids of audio-visual equipment, slides, movies and videotaped television programs.

The marketing course made its own eight-millimeter movie of school activities.

It was evident that a great deal of time and effort went into preparations for last evening's events and the response by parents and other interested parties was enthusiastic.

"The whole school had to pull together," said Mr. Kerr. "And their enthusiasm certainly shows their interest."

More Fires This Year Than Last

TWEED (Special) — The Tweed Forest area has had more than its share of fires so far this season.

Since April 11, no less than 23 fires have been reported in the forest area, with 210 acres having been burned over. All but two were fires under control or extinguished as result of the rain early this week.

The 210 acres burned over compares with a total of 180 acres burned in the Tweed area for all of 1969.

Most of this year's fires have been in the southern part of the area as in the northeastern district lakes are still ice-bound and snow patches remain in the woods.

Ambulance Light Means Business

A flashing red light is more than a warning of emergency.

It's an urgent plea to clear the way.

Latterly it has also become something of a signal of distress on the part of ambulance drivers.

A spokesman for Ontario ambulance operators meeting in Belleville yesterday, said the operators are increasingly concerned about failure of motorists to yield the right of way to ambulances enroute to an emergency.

Automobile drivers are not responding to the flashing red lights and sirens of emergency vehicles as required by law, A. L. Beard, president of Ontario Ambulance Operators Association said.

"In some areas (of Ontario) it's quite a problem. We're very concerned about this," said Mr. Beard.

The topic was among issues discussed at a meeting of ambulance operators from Toronto to the Quebec border at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

The Highway Traffic Act requires motorists to yield to emergency vehicles by pulling to the right of the road, Mr. Beard noted.

But many motorists apparently are not aware such responses are mandatory by law.

"We feel it's a matter of educating the public to the requirements of the law."

The problem already had been relayed to Transport Minister Irwin Haskett, who had promised his attention, said Mr. Beard.

Now the operators would likely ask the minister to step up a public education campaign.

The closed meeting of private operators also debated parity of working hours with hospital-based ambulance services.

Mr. Beard said employees of hospital ambulance units worked 40 hours a week — compared to 48 hours for employees of private operations.

To achieve such parity, operators would have to seek an increase in operations payments made by the Ontario Hospital Services Commission, said Mr. Beard.

He could not immediately estimate the cost of such province-wide parity.

Storm Sewer Contract Let

A contract has been awarded to the Trebean Company Limited of Belleville for the construction of a storm sewer system, outfall and appurtenances, for the Village of Tweed. The contract award price was $108,295. It was announced by Clarke T. Rollins, MPP, Hastings.

Piasecki Contract Decision in 10 Days

PICTON — An Ottawa spokesman for George Hees, MP Prince Edward-Hastings said yesterday that no decision has been reached regarding a government contract for the manufacture of light helicopters for military use sought by Piasecki Aircraft.

In a letter to Mr. Hees, defence minister Leo Cadieux assisted an announcement concerning the contract, probably by will be made within the next 10 days.

President of Piasecki, Frank N. Piasecki, earlier this month indicated through Picton representative Walter Symmons that if his company won the contract bid, Picton operations would continue.

IN MEMORIAM

BATTERTHWAITE — In loving memory of my dear husband, Bombardier Batterthwaite, who passed away April 23rd, 1965.

Sweetheart remembrance was treasured for you.

Days come, days go, years go by, but memories remain.

Sadly missed and always remembered by Phoebe (Francis).

REED — In loving memory of Mary Jane Reed, who died April 27, 1969.

As quickly vanished summer brings, The flower of which we have been,

Death passed that harvest field, and gathered in Heaven's garden green.

Sadly missed by daughter Ida and son-in-law Howard.

JONES — In loving memory of our dear father and grandpa who passed away April 25th, 1968.

Days come, days go, years go by, But memories remain.

Sadly missed by family and friends.

JONES — In loving memory of our dear mother and grandma who passed away April 25th, 1968.

Many a day her name is spoken, And many a tear she is in our thoughts.

A look at her family chain is broken.

She has gone from our home but left us memories.

Always remembered by daughter Marion, son-in-law, Bill and children.

Under Attack

Members of the Hastings association of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario put five county board administrators on the "hot seat" following their first annual banquet last night. Leading the administrators on the panel was Eric Runacres, director of education. Representing the teachers were Miss Kathleen Dyson of the provincial executive of FWTAO, Mrs. Marilyn Graham, Madoc, president of the local association and Mrs. Pat Gervis, Belleville, past president. Other members of the Hastings executive elected last night were Mrs. Evelyn Boyle of Madoc township, secretary-treasurer; Miss Laura Searle of Port Stewart, first vice-president, and Mrs. Margaret Ghent of Trenton, second vice-president.

Lack of Communication Brings Ire

Somewhere down the chain of command, from the county board of education to classroom teachers, a block occurs to hold up the flow of information.

That fact became apparent last night as 170 members of the county association of the Federation of Women Teachers' Associations of Ontario put five administrators "on the hot seat" at Club Canada.

As L. F. Reid, superintendent of academic services, put it: "According to the questions coming in, a lot of information is not going out to you".

Under attack in a free-wheeling discussion period following the first annual dinner of the Hastings county association of FWTAO were Mr. Reid, two associate superintendents Frank Tate and Glen Watson, superintendent of curriculum, D. C. Stirling and director of education Eric Runacres. Moderator was Miss Kathleen Dyson, assistant executive secretary of FWTAO.

The administrators fielded questions of concern to the teachers, ranging from education taxes to the place of women in school administration.

Education taxes would have gone up for the 13 individual boards, even if they had not been merged in 1969 into the Hastings county unit, Mr. Runacres told the teachers.

"In 1968, the individual boards knew they were running out of existence and used up their surpluses to cut their mill rates". he said. "One municipality cut its 1968 mill rate by one half."

In its first year of operation, the county board held its budget increase to 14 per cent, despite the mandate of education said every board in the province would find its expenditure increased by 13 per cent a year.

As a result, some boards had previously received as much as 95 per cent of their expenditures from provincial grants. Last year the Hastings county board received 69 per-cent of its budget in provincial grants, less than any of the individual boards absorbed into the county system had received before. So — expenditures went up and we received less provincial revenue to cover them.

"I blame the whole new project" (of reorganization of educational jurisdictions), the director concluded.

Mr. Runacres confessed he was "puzzled" about questions on school supplies. Many teachers complained that pens, pencils, paper and art supplies were short in their schools.

But they were told "there is no shortage of supply money" — the board budgeted $23 per pupil for supplies last year.

The money is allocated to each principal in the county, to spend as he thinks best for supplies in his school.

"We are interested to find out if this is working, and if not, / why not," the director told the teachers. "We are dying for information from you."

The teachers complained about the lack of in - service training and professional development courses — and specifically of having to take that what courses are available after school hours and on Saturdays.

"This is a complaint I hear all across the province," added Miss Dyson. "Teachers are 'in - serviced' to death after school and on Saturdays."

Mr. Reid replied that in-service training is important as is the first priority of the board in its budget this year. But lack of money prevented its doing all it wished to in this field.

Last year, some boards had previously received as much as 95 per cent of their expenditures from provincial for elementary school teachers.

But the administrators defended themselves in favor of general arts degrees for teachers, instead of degrees that include a majority of courses in teaching.

"Perhaps a course in elementary methods might seem more valuable to you than a course in Spanish," said Mr. Reid to applause from the teachers. But he clarified his statement by saying teachers need a basic, broad general education before entering the profession.

"Do as we did," he suggested, "Get your degree, then go to summer school for 10 years for education courses. This is the way you pick up tremendous experience."

Taken to task by Miss Dyson for a memo suggesting that all elementary school teachers would be required to have a degree by 1975, Mr. Runacres countered with the remark that the memo had forced the department of education to "show its hand".

"The handwriting was on the wall concerning degrees, but the department had never made a statement about the status of classroom teachers without degrees," he noted. "We feel we pushed them into a statement that not all teachers' college candidates must have one year of university by 1971, but hopefully best teachers will not have to obtain degrees."

"Who could afford to pay us if we all had degrees by 1975?" asked a teacher. But her query brought no answer.

The Hastings county average teaching salary class size of 32.5 brought the comment "dreadful" from Miss Dyson and opened up a new field of discussion on lack of school accommodation and rundown school buildings.

"The board is as horrified as you are," Mr. Runacres assured Miss Dyson. "It's a matter of money. We have no money to build the increased accommodation necessary if we lower class size and no money to improve accommodation."

"Many of our schools are in poor shape now and it could cost $3,000,000 to bring all our schools up to fire marshal's standards."

He said new schools cost less to construct now than they did a few years ago and the much - criticized carpets were not an extra cost. But provincial grants for new schools could not be extended to cover cost of remodeling old schools, as one teacher suggested.

Some teachers expressed uncertainty about what was expected of them under the new teaching methods and "flexible learning situations" now being introduced into classrooms.

Mr. Runacres promptly asked any interested teachers to write to him immediately so they could be considered for administrative positions from the vice - principal level up.

The value of the confrontation of the classroom teachers and administrators was agreed upon by Miss Dyson, who thanked the panel under attack for its "honest and forthright" answers.

"We've simply got to do something to boost communication," summed up one of them at the end of the meeting.

Employment Committee Okays Potter's 'Make-work' Program

By ROY PEACOCK
Staff Reporter

Quinte riding member Dr. Richart T. Potter has won local support for his proposed program to stimulate work interest among welfare recipients chronically unable to hold steady jobs.

Yesterday members of the Belleville and District Employment Committee expressed keen interest in the local member's proposal and will seek to have a pilot program set up in this area.

The proposal, aimed at encouraging work habits among out of work people not reached by current job training schemes, was made last November by t h e Quinte riding member who since then has tried without success for provincial implementation of the plan.

In making his proposal, Dr. Potter said "If the government is going to fulfill its responsibilities, both to marginally employed and to the paying public wem ust pay positive attention to this type of welfare recipient.

Yesterday, at the invitation of the local committee, Dr. Potter re-outlined his proposal to the Belleville and District Employment Committee which promised to initiate action for a pilot program in this area.

Details will be worked out at a later meeting at which time a resolution will be drafted for circulation among Ontario municipalities.

Also yesterday, Dr. Potter learned that, by coincidence, the local employment committee had come up with a similar proposal a couple of years ago but had been unsuccessful in interesting higher provincial authorities.

At yesterday's meeting the Quinte riding member said "About 15 per cent of the people on welfare have no wish to be relief recipients.

But under existing legislation there is no incentive to seek part-time work as is being so they are in danger of being cut off welfare.

"We must return these people to the work force," he said. "Everyone, regardless of his or her disability, is capable of doing something."

"We should concentrate on making jobs for these people."

Dr. Potter said he might be looking at the matter through rose-colored glasses but "we must rehabilitate these people and get them back into the millstream."

H. W. Karn, manager of the local Canada Manpower Office said that one of the hard core unemployment problems was the 17-19 year-old high school dropout group for whom there was little work available.

These people, he said, could not qualify for adult retraining and yet employers were demanding at least Grade XI education standards when hiring.

Committee members agreed that the big problem was to get these dropouts back to school but the question was "how".

There was general agreement that by raising their sights was an emotional and psychological problem that would take much counselling to overcome.

As an example of "make-work" ideas, Dr. Potter said after the meeting that unemployed men could be trained to cut trees and put to work cutting dead elms as a measure to help control the spread of Dutch Elm disease.

The men would be paid, but such a program would not be "work for relief" which is frowned on in welfare circles. The first obstacle to overcome, according to Dr. Potter was to get provincial and federal governments on t h e plan.

"Like it would cost money," he admitted, "but in the long run it would be worthwhile.

Such a program would be much greater over-all benefits than the present basic shelter rebates paid by the provincial government, which cost $110 million annually.

"Ten years from now we would see the dividends."

R. E. Turner, county welfare administrator, was named chairman of the employment committee with Reginald Loader, labor representative on the committee as vice - chairman. Manpower counsellor James Slavsly was reappointed secretary.

1940 Recalled

The Battle of Britain, as depicted in the Harry Saltzman film presentation in Belleville this week, is a remarkable representation of the dramatic events in the sky over Britain between June and September 1940.

We have seen the real thing in documentaries, but never in such chilling detail. The documentaries were impersonal, in them you saw the bullets and cannon shells striking the enemy aircraft, the resulting smoke, fire and explosions. In this color film however, you see the tension and sweat on the brows of air crews, the enemy aircraft as seen through the Spitfire pilot's gun sight, his finger on the button which delivered from eight machine guns a fire power possibly unequalled even today, the horror of men being done to instant and bloody death in such fashion, or trapped in their cabins, by fire.

Ironic that such scenes should have been reconstructed by that master of this gory art, Harry Saltzman, the Canadian producer of the James Bond films. Incredible too was the feat of rounding up or reconstructing the Spitfires, "Hurricanes, Messerschmidts and Heinkels of the RAF and Luftwaffe (some of the Messerschmidts belonged to the Spanish air force) without which the film could not have been made. At least one of the Spitfires, we understand, is privately-owned in Canada and was flown by its owner in the battle scenes.

As for the real thing back in 1940, and the few who saved Britain — and the world — from Nazi tyranny, those were stirring, desperate days. Never in the field of human conflict, as Winston Churchill put it, in that unforgettable tribute, was so much owed by so many to so few.

Early Training

Children are the most sensitive of beings and yet this faculty can be atrophied simply by lack of stimulation or exposure to learning, to people and to nature.

For that reason we like the concepts expressed recently by actress Araby Lockhart during her children's drama week at Madoc public school. Miss Lockhart, who has done the same kind of creative work among young people in England and other parts of Canada, said her role was not that of a teacher but rather bringing forth the "intuitive, imaginative, sensitive part of the child which somehow gets lost today."

"The freer we are of our little defences — but not in the moral sense — the more deeply we can enjoy living," said Miss Lockhart.

Yes, it is important that children learn how to use their faculties positively, to absorb all they can through those marvellous five senses.

By coincidence, this was the theme of Sandra Le Chappelle when she accompanied the student Mayors of the Week to a recent Rotary luncheon. The-16-year-old Centennial student replaced Craig Morrison who was unable to be present, and demonstrated that the kind of early training typified by the Madoc program pays dividends later, during the high schools years, and indeed throughout life.

Massey Property

Robert Marten, the Quebecer who purchased the Vincent Massey estate in Port Hope with a view to developing it as a cultural and recreational centre, has decided he is too busy with other commitments to pursue his ambitions for the property.

Mr. Marten owns 50 rental properties he purchased since moving to Port Hope three years ago and says they are his first concern.

Now the Governor-General's 300-acre estate is on the market again and the asking price is $600,000.

A Port Hope councilor has suggested the town should acquire the estate and turn it into a museum. Better still, why not consider some of the plans Mr. Marten had for it? The Quebec entrepreneur had envisaged music, drama and folk festivals, a summer theatre and a summer school for boys and girls. If the town does not acquire it then perhaps the provincial government might be interested.

Few people nowadays have either the means or the desire to live in such a vast home. For the younger generation though it could be a wonderful place to stay for a period each summer, for educational and recreational purposes.

Heart Conditions Common

MP-Medic Tries to Keep Colleagues Fit and Well

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — Dr. Philip Bernard Rynard, MD, CM, FIAP, MCMI, Conservative MP for Simcoe North, and for 13 years unpaid consulting physician to the House of Commons, has some unsettling news for his fellow parliamentarians.

As many as one of every eight of those over 50 — and there are 130 in that age bracket — have heart conditions.

It is not quite as alarming as it seems at first glance, for the North American incidence of heart trouble is one in every nine.

But the rate among parliamentarians, believes Dr. Rynard, runs a shade higher because the life of an MP is not always a happy one.

The routine of living on Parliament Hill is "irregular," health habits "erratic," and worst of all, the tension factor is higher than in most other occupations.

Meaning, warns the "House Doctor," that most parliamentarians had better "watch it."

Here real is the danger of cardiac occlusion?

Well, this Parliament is only two years old, and there have been four heart attacks, Energy, Minister Greene, Labor Minister Mackasey, Revenue Minister Cote, and Conservative MP Gordon Aiken.

The Lord be praised, says Dr. Rynard, all four recovered.

Dr. Rynard runs an average of five parliamentary patients daily.

On this particular day when he was discussing the health of the House, two had come in for consultations before 10 a.m. One he sent out for an X-ray, the other for an electrocardiogram.

There are five physicians in the Commons, but "Doc" Rynard, as he is affectionately known, is the resident consultant because of seniority and the fact that he is one of only two licensed in Ontario to write prescriptions.

Dr. Stanley Haldan, a Toronto Liberal, is the other, but Dr. Rynard has four Parliament years on him.

A long-time Commons secretary tells how it is with "Doc" Rynard when he is on an emergency call.

"I'll never forget him and his gentle ways," she relates.

"I was working at the typewriter in the office next door here in the Centre Block and Bill Anderson (former Liberal MP for South Waterloo) came, grey-faced and wavering, and asked me to call the nurse.

"I rang the infirmary and Nurse Lepine, knowing Mr. Anderson had a history of heart disease told me to get 'Doc' Rynard, just down the hall, and she would be up right away.

"In a couple of seconds, but like and easy in his comforting sort of way, 'Doc' was there. Mr. Anderson was on the couch, sick and sweating, and you knew he would never get up.

"The 'Doc' was beautiful in the way he communicated his kind of warm understanding.

"He said: 'Bill, old man, this is going to be rough.'

"And Bill whispered: 'Yeah, Doc, I know.'

"They were together, 'we old friends, until the end. Mr. Anderson died on the way to the Civic Hospital."

There have been others who went the same way. Toronto Globe and Mail correspondent Ken Cragg, dying on a couch in the Press Gallery lounge. Joe Forbie of Montreal La Presse collapsing in a heap on the washroom floor. Liberal MP Lloyd Crouse on the lawn of Parliament Hill, in an old baseball uniform, during the since-abandoned annual game with the newsmen.

All left with the resident MP "House Doctor," and friend, beside them.

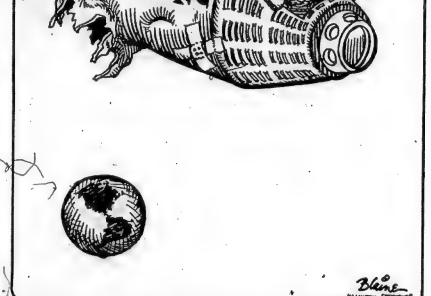
What is wrong that life in Parliament should be such a health hazard?

The same thing that is wrong, the British Board of Health has reported on a medical research assignment from Westminster, with the help of doctors, lawyers and newsmen, who are rated by most insurance companies as poor risks.

Too much tension, irregular hours, erratic diet, and the end product of all these: nervous strains . . . often more bone than is necessary for unwinding into nothing relaxation, counsels "Doc" Rynard.

He has five basic health rules for parliamentarians.

1. Like the job. Enjoy it and your phone calls, mail and visitors will be rewarding instead of irritating. Take pleasure in it as you work, and you will not get all tight-up inside so often and run the very real risk of spasms.



2. Keep reasonably regular working hours. Observe an established routine. No late nights that end up with cigarettes, pack - by - night, a pitiful of coffee or a bottle of whiskey.

3. Follow a schedule for meals, and do not take your troubles — or constituents with problems — to the table with you. Watch your diet and your weight will look after itself.

4. Exercise as if your life depended on it — and in your profession it well could — walking is best, at least two miles daily.

5. Take regular holidays, preferably a couple of times a year. And in addition, break your work routine with a couple of long weekends, just for the healing change of pace, every two or three months.

Come to think of it, advises "Doc" Rynard, "that's a pretty sensible set of rules-for-living for anyone, including you."

Ottawa Calamity!

'French Fact' Takes A Back Seat At The Municipal Level

Ottawa Le Droit—A group of French-language citizens in this city had the remarkable but commendable idea, and the patience, to attend municipal council meetings to determine what role our language is playing in the deliberations of our councillors. This association, named Trillium after the Ontario provincial flower, consists of about 60 persons . . . spurred by a desire to score points for the French fact in an area which, until now, has been on the losing side.

Needless to say their visits resulted in a full realization that there is an almost complete lack of use of our language.

As the president of this group, Albert Roy, said: "It is inconceivable that in any city where a quarter of the population is French, and in the capital of a bilingual country, the French fact is no more noticeable at the municipal level."

These people are not radicals or demonstrators . . . (but persons) conscious of our linguistic interests and the prestige that Ottawa could gain if its leaders were willing to benefit from this natural resource placed at their disposal by the cultural and financial entitlements of French-Canadians. . . .

They want to put into motion an acceptable policy of bilingualism in city hall. . . .

This campaign to ensure that French is given the place of dignity it truly deserves falls in a definite context. The more ground bilingualism gains on the federal level, the more the population of Ottawa insists that due respect is accorded it, then the greater are our chances not to be treated like strangers, misunderstood or unappreciated in our own homeland.

Those Student Sit-ins

Letter to Hamilton Spectator

Thank heavens for your editorial on the student sit-in at McMaster University. I certainly hope they get the message out there. I am fed up to the teeth with subsidizing everybody and their uncle — nobody subsidizes me!

I have no children and yet the major portion of my taxes goes to pay for education and I even donate a weekly contribution to the McMaster Building Fund. I have no vested interest in the university — I'm certainly not going to benefit directly from it. But, innocent soul that I am, I used to feel I was benefiting society as a whole by helping to pay for the education of intelligent people. I've now changed my mind.

These people should feel privileged that they have been born with sufficient intelligence to learn a profession that will enable them to obtain a satisfying and stimulating job which will enrich their whole lives. It is my contention that a large majority of people either actively dislike their work, or tolerate it because it is a living. Many are unable to upgrade themselves because of a lack of intelligence and yet it is these very people who are being taxed to the hilt to pay for the so-called education of these students. It seems to me they should have something better to do with their time than take over administrative offices — such as working a hard eight hours every day in a steel plant. Then, they wouldn't have the energy to go around disrupting everyone else.

(Mrs.) J. C. Morness,
Ancaster.

Vital Lessons

Apollo 13 Mishap Will Ensure A Safer Space Program

By RAY DICK

WASHINGTON (CP) — Back in the embrace of a mother earth that feared them lost, the Apollo 13 astronauts with their trouble-plagued moon flight have burst the bubble of spaceage complacency, but they probably have inspired a safer and stronger space program for the future.

The accident that almost marooned in space Jim Lovell, Fred Haise and John Swigert will undoubtedly cause some short-term qualms, but the renewed commitment of President Nixon ensured that the program to explore the planets will continue—although perhaps on a delayed timetable.

Although there is bound to be renewed opposition to the program, it is not likely it will result in a ban on manned flights in favor of robot exploration.

As many space scientists here maintain, it would not seem logical to end the space program now when perhaps the major losses and setbacks have already occurred and the major gains are about to be seen in. There also is the matter of $24,000,000,000 already spent to put man on the moon.

The Apollo 13 mission, in retrospect, seemed jinxed from the start.

First there was the suspicion of measles that broke up a crew that has trained together for the flight for more than a year, resulting in the substitution for Ken Mattingly backup astronaut Swigert. Then a rocket used to put the spacecraft in orbit shut off a couple of minutes prematurely.

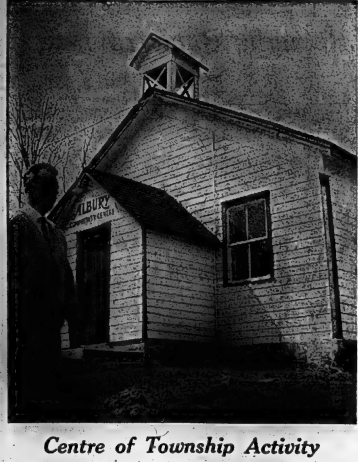
Although irritating, those incidents were considered minor. It was not until deep in space that the real trouble began. An explosion in the service module eliminated the life-support systems in the main spacecraft.

It was the flimsy and spindly-legged lunar module, with its limited life-support systems and designed only to put men down on the moon, that saved the astronauts' lives. Had the accident happened after the lunar module had been jettisoned, the astronauts would have surely died.

The near tragedy, however, is not looked upon by space scientists as a serious setback in the program.

While the astronauts lost a chance to bring back more information from the moon, they have learned that the men who sent them out designed their machines better than anyone knew, and that risks on future flights will seem less since that crisis has been overcome.

What happened to Apollo 13 tested the vessel, the astronauts and the teams on the ground under extreme conditions. That experience gained will be useful in future flights where still greater risks will be accumulated procedures are involved.



The short-term effect of the accident is uncertain. Apollo 14 will not be leaving on its trip to the moon until space scientists in Houston have determined the exact cause of the explosion in the Apollo 13 fuel cells.

An investigation now is under way to determine that cause, aided by photographs and information brought back by the astronauts of the damaged service module. The investigation, plus any designing changes that are needed to prevent such a future occurrence, will probably put Apollo 14 many months off its schedule.

When it does blast off for man's third lunar landing, it certainly won't be with the same complacency observed in the early stages of the Apollo-13 flight.

Apollo 13 reminded everyone of the warning given by James Webb, former space agency administrator, in the early 1960s:

"Men will perish in space as they have on the high seas and wherever they have ventured into unknown regions."

Little Red Schoolhouse Still Active

By ELMER BONTER

AMELIASBURG — The township's original little red schoolhouse, inactive as a place for learning since 1964, still serves the community of Albury in a very important capacity.

Situated on the north side of the front road, three miles west of Redneyville, SS No. 3 was the official designation of the small, stately frame school in later years. But its purpose in the beginning was to provide a place for the children of the area's first settlers to get an education.

Now painted white and trimmed with green, the typical country schoolhouse became Albury Community Centre officially in 1967.

The centre's board of trustees had the property turned over to them for $1, the customary charge for the land transfer. Included in the transaction was a place in good condition, a space heater with blower attachment working like new and a half a tank (100 gallons) of stove oil. In addition, the chemical toilet installation was modern and substantial. Needless to say the original deed, made more authentic in appearance by antiquity and a great imperative seal, added to the fascination of the legal proceedings.

One of the first things the trustees did was to give away one of the old school's valuable assets from the standpoint of nostalgia. The gesture, however, was looked upon as a thoughtful, unselfish consideration when the bell from the belfry on the school roof was moved to the Albury United Church premises and installed there in the church tower. The bell, silent some three years, then could be heard across the settlement on Sunday mornings thereafter.

The centre's site, part of which was donated to the original school board by Elias Alley in 1827 and the balance purchased from Corintha Moore, for $100 in 1911, comprises approximately a half acre in an area designated residential (R-3) in the official plan.

Actually, the old school was regarded as an education liability when it was condemned along with other one-room schools in the township. The area school board at that time provided the students improved facilities with the opening of the new Ketts school at Amelissburg. Residents of the Albury neighborhood, however, were quick to realize the worth of the schoolhouse as a meeting place. And about that time the community centre idea was conceived and encouraged. About 65 families living on the East road between Cherrying Place and Redneyville showed interest with donations to the cause.

He pointed out that the families who contributed at the start have never been recanvassed for additional funds. The last financial statement revealed there was still a substantial sum in the bank and there were no bills owing, he added.

Renting the centre to young musicians as a practice hall, for wedding receptions, club meetings and a voting station during elections produces the income to offset normal expenses. Naturally the residents of the first concession have a preference — the charge to them for the centre is $2 a time.

At first the school was apparently a crude affair. According to Belden's Historical Atlas of Hastings and Prince Edward County, classes were taught by John Smith in a log building with a roof thatched with marsh hay on lot 85-86 in first concession. Timber according to the reference was cut from the land on which the building was erected. Some of the logs were floated down the bay to Kingston where they were sawn into lumber for the walls and benches.

The trustees in those days seem to have been progressive, for by 1872 the school was plastered by Thomas McArthur who received $10 for the job. The facelift enhanced the value of the property. The site, building, furniture and maps were reported worth $500 by an appraiser in 1877.

School records emphasize the low cost of labor before the turn of the century. A carpenter was paid $1.25 in 1892 for laying a new floor.

The name "The Red School" became official in 1895, after he building was repaired, clapboarded and painted red. Between 1880-90 desks took the place of the wooden benches, the last bench remained until 1942.

On April 27, 1877, when Elias Alley deeded the east part of lot 86, he stipulated the parcel was to be used for a school building and also for divine worship whenever any minister of any Christian denomination made known his intention to the trustees.

Acting as trustees for the community centre, now are Eric Peck, chairman, Helen Bonter, Marjorie Peck, Summers Dawson and Carl Reid, secretary-treasurer.

Tourist Operators Told to Promote

COBOURG (Staff) — Successful tourist promotion is dependent upon exploitation of natural resources, members of the Great Pine Ridge Tourist Council were told Wednesday night.

Conrad Tunney, executive director of the Finger Lakes Tourist Association in New York state, told delegates at the annual meeting of the Great Pine Ridge Tourist Council that organizing, programming and planning were the basic steps in tourist promotion.

He also stressed municipal participation including towns, cities, counties and Chambers of Commerces and geographic selection of directors and councillors to ensure equal benefits to all members.

An inventory of the area is essential to the establishment of a well-balanced, year-round tourist program, which must be supplemented by a publicity campaign, Mr. Tunney emphasized.

Included in the inventory should be such attractions as waterways, wildlife, camping areas, recreation, historical sites and museums, international competitions and industrial tours, he explained.

Distribution of color brochures and travel guides, participation in major-market travel shows and establishment of a monthly news letter and a public information and referral program were cited by Mr. Tunney as effective methods of publicizing and exploiting an area's natural resources.

Alex Carruthers, MPP for Durham county, said that "Mr. Tunney has given the wonderful seeds of ideas."

"The lesson taught by your American cousins is that if anything has a semblance of historic or tourist value, promote it!" he added.

Mr. Tunney stressed that tourism is big business and the figures support his statement.

His organization, which has 1,000 members is a 10,000 square mile area, encompassing 14 counties. It is credited with generating much of the $250,000,000 tourist revenue derived within its boundaries last year.

By comparison, the much younger Great Pine Ridge Tourist Council — the largest tourist association in Canada — with 550 members and an area of 2,000 square miles covers an area between Trenton and Oshawa, which gained $50,000,000 in tourist revenue last year.

Daniel Dotzko of Port Hope was elected president of the tourist council for 1970. Joining him on the executive are: first vice - president Conrad Osling of Brighton; and second vice-president H. Blow of Cobourg.

Tourist, Housing Development At Prinyer Cove

PICTON (Staff) — A local real estate firm has undertaken the development in Prinyer Cove, 15 miles east of Picton as a tourist retreat and residential area.

A spokesman for Brandon-Hopkins Ltd., a Newmarket real estate company with a branch office in Picton, said yesterday that more than 200 lots have been developed in the cove. Among these are 100 pieces of waterfront property facing Adolphus Reach and the cove's waters.

The new development project, called Prinyer Cove Estates, offers beaches and inshore anchorage for vessels of all sizes. Several of the building lots, according to the spokesman, already have been sold to buyers seeking summer homes. Construction of cottages in now under way in the housing development area.

GM
Are you going to go through another year thinking you can't afford an Oldsmobile?

Our own surveys indicate that quite a few people think an Oldsmobile is out of their reach. They think it costs a lot more than it really does. Result? Many people buy an ordinary car and end up with a lot less car and value for their money.

But why settle for the ordinary when you can step up, so easily, to an Olds and all the value that an Olds represents. Great engineering. Fine performance. Exceptional comfort. Solid quality that's an Oldsmobile hallmark.

And a good investment because of its excellent resale value at trade-in time.

Take this big, exciting Delta 88, for example. It starts out with a surprisingly modest price. Add to this the features that make it such an outstanding value — extras that are included in the modest price: ☐ Regulan-gas Rocket V-8 ☐ Power Steering ☐ Power Brakes, front discs ☐ Nylon-loop carpeting ☐ Bias-Belted Tires ☐ Door Side-Guard Beams ☐ Hidden Radio Antenna ☐ Flo-Thru Ventilation ☐ Bigger, better riding 124" wheelbase.

So if you're going to pay the price of an Olds, you should get one. See your Olds dealer this week. He'll prove to you that you're really closer to an Olds than you think.

Davis Closes B. C. Sound

VANCOUVER (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis Wednesday ordered closed to sports fishermen the upper reaches of Howe Sound, because of traces of mercury in the water from a chemical plant.

He said the mercury was found, in effluent from the F.M.C. Chemicals Ltd. plant holding pond after checks were instituted as a follow-up to discoveries of mercury pollution in Eastern Canada.

The closure covers the upper six miles of the 39-mile salt-water inlet and five miles up the Squamish River, which drains into the sound past the chemical plant. It affects primarily sports fishermen because the sound, about 30 miles north of here, is closed to commercial fishing.

"We ordered the closure before analysis was completed to fish caught in the area," said Mr. Davis. "We had to. There is mercury in the water and salmon and dolly varden char pass through this on their way to spawn in the Squamish River."

The company is a wholly-owned subsidiary of F.M.C. Corp., a U.S.-based diversified industrial conglomerate, and produces chlorine, caustic soda and hydrochloric acid for the West Coast pulp and paper industry.

Mr. Davis said he will meet with principals of the company in Squamish Saturday and members of the provincial pollution control board have been invited.

He said a decision will be made then whether it will be necessary to close the plant while steps are taken to eliminate mercury spill.

Techniques In Quebec Vote Vary

QUEBEC (CP) — Diverse techniques of advertising agencies expected to garnish close to $8,000,000 from parties fighting the April 29 Quebec election reflect some of the problems each party faces in the battle.

The Opposition Liberals, with a need to sell their new leader, Robert Bourassa, as well as their platform, are relying heavily on numerous, brief television exposures of him.

The Parti Quebecois, with a limited budget in its first campaign, hopes to utilize party leader Rene Levesque's broadcasting experience in several half-hour programs near election day, after a series of 10-minute appearances earlier in the campaign.

The governing Union Nationale is using a combination of all media about equally, in terms of expenditure.

The Creditistes and the New Democratic Party have not hired companies.

Gaby Lalonde, president of Sopec Ltd. which is handling the Union Nationale campaign, said:

"When you are selling Cadillacs, you choose your audience —people who can spend $6,000 for a car—and advertise over media which will reach them.

"When you are selling a political candidate, you have to reach all the people and use all media."

So Sopec has split the Union Nationale's publicity budget three ways, with one-third going to newspaper ads, another third to TV and radio, and the remainder to billboards, handbills and other promotions.

Henri Dutil, president of Inter-Canada Advertising Ltd., which has the Liberal account, has this formula:

"Lots of short TV spots; never more than a minute or so long and never try to get more than four ideas across at the same time.

"Hit the opponents' plans repeatedly during the first weeks of the campaign and get your own platform across in the last week in one big orchestrated ad."

Guy Robitaille, president of Conceptal Inc., working for the Parti Quebecois, says the separatist party's ad budget will be "only 15 per cent of the amount planned by the other parties."

This party dictated the choice of television as the cheapest way to reach large numbers of voters. But Mr. Robitaille said: "There is no room for complacency."

"Our moment of relaxed vigilance and the Credit could slide back into degradation—and again be in the sorry company of almost every other river and lake that has been touched by man."

Money and dedicated men brought the Credit back to life —men such as the largely-unknown members of the Credit Valley Conservation Authority and $3,500,000, since 1963, "not one nickel of it" from the federal government.

Direct action on the stream bed cost $1,500,000—most of it for a $1,100,000 dam at Orangeville designed to provide a constant flow of water. The rest of the money went into vital land acquisitions along the Credit Valley—protection against future ravages.

The bulk of the money has been spent in the past three years. It could have been less.

The dam, completed in 1967, was estimated to cost $400,000 in 1963, seven years after it was first proposed in a massive government study of conservation in the Credit Valley.

More than 2,000 acres of land have been purchased or received through the Credit Valley Conservation Authority Foundation as tax-deductible gifts. The authority has preserved them in their natural state or developed them as public conservation and park areas.

The quality and cleanliness of the water has been vastly improved by action on sewage problems by the Ontario Water Resources Commission. Urban effluent no longer is let into the river.

Daffodil Time Again!

Ready at the entrance to greet guests at yesterday's daffodil tea and bazaar was Cindy Williams, 6. The event was sponsored by Minerva Chapter No. 138, Order of the Eastern Star and held at the Masonic Temple.

Daffodil Decor Highlights Tea Sponsored by OES Chapter

A scent of spring was in the air at the daffodil - inspired tea and bazaar sponsored by the Minerva Chapter, No. 138, Order of the Eastern Star and held at the Masonic Temple yesterday afternoon.

Convener for the event was Mrs. G. Greatrix, Past Worthy Matron and co - convener, Mrs. W. Marner.

A simulated outdoor scene at the entrance provided an appropriate atmosphere for the occasion. Greeting the guests were Mrs. T. E. Pasek, Worthy—Matron and Mrs. L. Henning, Assistant Associate Matron.

The colors blue and yellow were predominant as they are the Worthy Matron's colors for this year. Providing a lovely background were arrangements of daffodils, snapdragons and 'mums.

The main tea table was decorated with blue and yellow candles and a silver tea set was placed at each end. An arrangement of artificial daffodils, daisies and 'mums provided an attractive centrepiece.

Tea room convener was Mrs. F. Wilson. Pourers were Mrs. Marion Wells, Trenton; Mrs. Dorothy Beecham, Cobourg; Mrs. Marjorie Gray, Belleville; Mrs. Gladys Petley, Campbellford; Mrs. Joan Rosini, Amelasburg; Mrs. A. Capper, Belleville; Mrs. Mona Morin, Wellington; Mrs. Mary Parsons, Belleville; Mrs. A. Jordon, Belleville and Mrs. Edru Lindsay of Brighton. Tea room hostesses were Mrs. Edna Dobbs; Mrs. Rhoda Grey, Mrs. Win Gonsolus, Mrs. Gladys Smith, Mrs. Bessie Marsh, Mrs. Hilda Matthews, Mrs. Nellie Cooper and Mrs. Nellie Clarke.

In charge of the various booths were the following women: sewing — Mrs. J. Ireland, Mrs. M. Tugnett, Mrs. Coleman and Mrs. Canning; variety — Mrs. F. Ray, Mrs. G. Boogard, Mrs. A. Calvert and Mrs. L. Cummins; candy — Mrs. J. Empey and Mrs. C. Sills; home baking — Mrs. G. Shorey, Mrs. Harms, Mrs. H. McCoppell and Mrs. Gill; grocery hampers and plant booth — Mr. C. Calvert and Mr. J. Steadman assisted by men of the Chapter. Kitchen conveners were Mrs. A. Calvert, and Mrs. G. Shorey assisted by members of the Chapter.

In charge of the spring bonnet donated by Woodley Furriers was Mrs. B. Waters and in charge of the sweater donated by Mrs. Y. Bushell was Mrs. A. Stalker. Mr. S. J. Steadman was in charge of decorating.

Mrs. L. Finkle looked after publicity.

During the afternoon prizes were drawn and these included a hat from Woodley's won by Mrs. Mary Thompson, Trenton; sweater, Mrs. Don MacLeod, Montague, P.E.I.; floral centrepiece, Mrs. Mary Sinclair, Swift Current, Saskatchewan, and grocery hampers, Bill MacDonald and Mrs. W. J. Batchelor of Belleville and Mrs. H. M. Poste, Willowdale.

University Women Hear Talk On U. of T. Govt. Structure

A member of the Senate of the University of Toronto and formerly a member of the Commission on University Government, Mr. R. L. Hicks, assistant chief engineer of the Toronto Hydro Electric System, spoke to the Universities Women's Club of Belleville.

He stated that by 1963 a movement for reform of government structure within the university resulted in a commission headed by Professors Duff and Bardel. The feeling was that the professional administrators, Board of Governors, had too much to say and were solely interested in finances while the Senate was strictly academic in approach with no mutual meeting ground. The main recommendation was the faculty should have more say in financial affairs.

A number of recommendations were issued from 1963 until 1968. Finally a compromise evolved, in all there were 187 recommendations made during this period.

Mr. Hicks continued by stating some of the Alumni's attitudes towards these recommendations. De-centralization of authority rather than all despite funneling to the top is a move in the right direction they felt. Representation of students would be desirable but not parity. Provision for future internal changes is good. It was felt that government appointees should equal those of staff and students and graduates should also be represented equally with staff and students.

A further university wide committee of 120 members is being formed to receive views on proposed changes or other ideas. "Democracy is wonderful but very time consuming," Mr. Hicks concluded.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. R. H. Ruther and thanked by Mrs. R. R. Collins.

Members were reminded of the fact - approaching date of May 2 when the exhibition and sale of paintings by Mary MacDonald and tea, will be sponsored by the club at St. Joseph's School, Bridge St. E. Possibly some of the late Mrs. MacDonald's paintings will also be on view.

Points for Parents

By MARY BEYSON

Son: "Every time we get the train tracks set up, it's time for the other kids to go home. Wish I could leave them up all night."

Mother: "That's impossible. Everybody would stumble over them here in the living room."

Mother: "We can't leave the tracks up in the living room because someone might step on them and break them, but if you want to set them up here in the basement, you can leave them up for a week. Don't put them too close to the laundry area."

In a small house, there may not be space for permanent installation of some toys, but the parent who wants her child to enjoy his home will try to work out as satisfactory a substitute as possible.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 25, 1970

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

All season long, the "Fold-you-a's" had a field day at Toronto Maple Leaf expense.

"You could make up an all-star team of swapped Leafs," they yukked, not without justification. The National Hockey League seemed to be bulging at the seams with flowering Brewers, Banns, Maher-Ikches, Ungers, Nevins, Sellings, Duffs, Nesterenkos, Pappins — hybrids considered too delicate to blossom in the dim caverns of Maple Leaf Gardens.

Every dog has his day, and today we'd like to pay tribute to Chicago petigrees Thomas Ivan and William Reay.

After last year's Black Hawk collie-dwelling, employer Robert Hall could not contain his enthusiasm about the Ivan-Reay horse-trading know-how. "You know why Tommy traded Phil Esposito last year?" he quizzed a Picton gathering. "Cause he didn't want all the Black Hawks to finish in last place!"

Well for the next 76 regular-season games and four more against the late Detroit Red Wings, Messrs. Ivan and Reay were looking good — E-E-A-I. good.

The Black Hawks had won themselves a Prince of Wales Trophy, which has visited Chicago about as often as the real Prince. That made them odds-on favorites to win the Stanley Cup, which has visited Chicago about as often as Lord Stanley.

But all the pretty balloons are about to burst on the bony wrists of skeletons in the Ivan-Reay closet.

Unfortunately for the Black Hawks, the closet of the first part is only slightly smaller than Grand Central Station.

And three skeletons have all but delivered the death blow to any Black Hawk playoff aspirations.

Of the ten Boston Bruin goals that cost the Hawks two home-ice losses, seven came off the sticks of former Chicago property.

Phil Esposito has kicked in four. John McKenzie a pair, and Ken Hodge one. Fred Stanfield — er, Stanfield — set up two Bruin goals in Tuesday night's 4-1 win.

Stanfield, Hodge, and Esposito made May 15th the most despised day in Chicago. On that date in 1967 the Hawks swapped the trio to Boston for Gilles Marotte, Pit Martin, and goalie Jack Norris.

Only Martin survived to hear the catcalls from the Stadium's mezzanine, and he is not about to set that building on fire, let alone the world.

Meanwhile, in three seasons with the Bruins, Esposito has averaged 180 points per year. Hodge has scored more than 90 goals, and Stanfield has had three 28-goal-plus outings.

The Hawks had the most difficulty in getting rid of John McKenzie. Three times the High River brawler-booster found Chicago's Black Hawk uniform, and three times Tommy Ivan gave the scrappy winger his walking papers.

In 1962 McKenzie left the Windy City for good, going to New York with Ray Cullen in a deal that brought the Hawks Tracy Pratt, Dick Meissner, Dave Richardson, and Mel Pearson, whose accomplishments since speak for themselves.

A year later, McKenzie went to Boston for Reggie Fleming and has scored 116 times in 311 regular-season Bruin starts.

Black Hawk management has little to show in return from Boston except a few good lobster dinners.

The Esposito that didn't get away, Tony, may also be the one not playing as the teams meet in Boston tonight for the crucial third game of the Eastern Division — and hence Stanley Cup final.

Brother Phil has been sympathetic.

"They can't blame him for any of them" he said of Boston's ten scoring successes, four his own. "Chicago just hasn't had it."

Queried about his brotherly concern when Tony was struck by a rocketing puck in Sunday's opening game, Dr. Phil theorized: "I don't see anything wrong with that. After all, blood is thicker than water."

Wonder how it compares with Stanley Cup champagne?

Ten-pounder Should Do It

Pickerel Experts Can Spin Yarns Come May

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

The Quinte Fishing Derby, which gets under way May 1 will provide a fish tale with a different twist. That is, the winner gets "swallowed" by a new camp trailer.

Last year, over 500 modern-day Jonahs competed for the camper awarded to the angler catching the largest pickerel in waters of the Bay of Quinte, shores of Prince Edward County and the township's inland lakes.

Among the 548 contestants last season, were entries from as far away as Ohio, Hamilton and Ottawa.

Action for the three - day event will be centred on the Prince Edward Yacht Club in Picton, Says Jay Hepburn, head of the organizational committee: "We've planned a fish fry and fisherman's dance at the yacht club and it looks like it should be an entertaining weekend. We hope to have our largest turnout yet."

Actual fishing time will commence at 12.01 a.m., Saturday and run through until the 2 p.m. Sunday deadline. Last season the contest was won by an Oshawa entrant with a 18.1 pound specimen.

Record for the eight-year derby was a 13.2 lunker hooked during the 1964 competition, and each year produces five or six fish in the ten - pound category.

Besides the grand prize for the largest wall - eyed, contestants will be eligible for a 12 - gauge - pump shot gun awarded by the runner - up, Mitchell spinning outfits to the largest pickerel caught by a woman angler and the best northern pike.

Largest total weight of fish, (within legal limits, of course), will bring the winner a deluxe sleeping bag.

Cost of registration is $1.50 for adults and 50 cents for children under 12 years of age. Entries must be pre-registered and forms are available in most local sporting outlets.

Early indications appear that officials may get the hoped for record turnout. Bob's Bait Shop in Belleville, reports a large number of entrants and forms have already been received from four American states, Toronto and Hamilton.

Anglers After $3,200

Saturday will mark the opening of the 12th annual Big Fish contest with $3,200 in prizes awarded for big fish caught in Ontario waters.

Master Angler Awards are given for game species such as pike, pickerel, bass and various species of trout. Cash awards of up to $100 will be presented for the top 15 fish in each of the eight eligible species.

The contest is sponsored by the Ontario Federation of Anglers and Hunters in co-operation prith Molson's Brewery. Anglers are requested, but not required, to submit sample fish scales with their entry form for use by the Department of Lands and Forests.

Entry forms have been distributed throughout the province and may be obtained by writing The Big Fish Contest, Box 480, Richmond Hill, Ontario.

Wann-derful!

BATAVIA, N.Y. (CP)—Two Canadian - owned thoroughbred horses posted victories Wednesday at Batavia Downs.

Meadow Wann, owned by Campbell Wannamaker of Conneaut, Ont., captured the third race and Irish Honor won the fifth for owner James J. O'Hara of Manotick, Ont.

'This One Won't Get Away'

Belleville angler Jack O'Neill gets the once-over from sporting goods owner Bob Blaind as he examines the "tools of the trade." Over 500 fishermen, from as far away as Ohio, are expected to battle for top honors in the Annual Quinte Fishing Derby May 1-3. Top prize is awarded for the largest pickerel taken from waters in or around Prince Edward County.

Tackle in Tweed

TWEED — Game violators who found that "the wages of sin are confiscation" may recognize some of the merchandise to be auctioned off at the Tweed Chief Ranger Office, May 2nd at 1.30 p.m.

Included in the merchandise is a 1965 Ford pick-up truck (sold to licensed dealers only), three snowmobiles and a pair of used chain saws.

Other items to come under the gavel will be 130 rods and reels, 11 dip nets, 13 cookers and assorted tip-ups, bait buckets, tackle boxes and lures.

Items may be viewed at the Chief Ranger Office on April 30 and May 1-2 from 1-5 p.m.

Mavety's Best Pro Season Rewarded by All-Star Berth

Larry Mavety wasn't the only one who thought he enjoyed his best pro season this past winter with the Western Hockey League's Denver Spurs.

The Belleville junior B graduate received the third most votes for inclusion by league players in balloting for three Western League all - star teams.

Mavety, 27, who scored 16 goals and assisted on 46 this season with the playoff - absent Spurs, gained a second - team defence berth with Seattle's John Hanna.

Only Vancouver's Marc Reaume and Portland's Dennis Kearns received more defence votes than Mavety, who will receive a trophy and $200 from the league, and a $500 bonus from the Spurs.

Mavety's 54 - point total in his third Western League season made him the loop's top blueline point - getter.

Silver Piston Speedway Lure

By CECIL S. PAUL

Stock car racing, one of the Quinte area's most popular summer sports, has its Riverview Speedway debut Saturday, May 16 at 7.30 p.m. Over 40 drivers have already registered with all of last year's favorites returning to the Trenton track.

A new method of point distribution and awards for piling up events has been installated in an attempt to create drivers to accumulate points. At the end of the season the recipient will receive the Riverview Speedway "Silver Piston" award.

The trophy was designed by stock car enthusiasts Bernie and Joan Chiasson of Trenton, who were looking to provide an award which would be original and unique.

As owner of a growing trophy and engraving business Chiasson was in an ideal position to make such a trophy. Believing that a piston would be the most symbolic object for a racing trophy, he obtained a large bulldozer piston, had it cleaned, sandblasted and sent to Toronto to be silver plated. His masterpiece, weighing over 30 pounds, was completed by blueing the rod and mounting it on the largest wooden base available.

The award will go to the mechanic and driver of the car accumulating the most points during the racing season at Riverview Speedway.

A smaller replica will be awarded to the winners for permanent possession.

Drags Now Weekly

The Quinte Dragway at Deseronto has assured local racing fans of plenty of spring action by scheduling meets every week until the end of May, with the exception of May 24.

Drivers will be competing for the $1,400 in prize money available weekly along with the trophies presented for each class. Most popular event is the lady eliminator, which was initiated last season and became a regular event.

All meets are sanctioned by the National Hot Rod Association, which ensures the safety specifications for both spectators and competitors are met.

Gates open this Sunday at 8 a.m. with eliminations beginning at 1.30 p.m.

Seaver Accepts Award in Fine Style

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tom Seaver was given the 1969 Cy Young Award before Wednesday's game and the pitching ace of New York Mets went later and showed how much he deserved it.

Seaver pitched his way into baseball's record book, striking out 19 batters—including the last 10 in a row—as the Mets downed San Diego Padres 2-1.

Elsewhere in the National League Wednesday, Chicago Cubs trimmed St. Louis Cardinals 7-5, Philadelphia Phillies dropped San Francisco Giants 6-1, Pittsburgh Pirates took Houston Astros 6-1 and Los Angeles Dodgers ripped Montreal Expos 9-3.

Seaver, who won the Cy Young Award for being the top pitcher in the NL last season, was simply superb Wednesday, limiting San Diego to two hits.

He used just 136 pitches to dispatch the Padres and matched the record for strikeouts in a single game of 19 set by Steve Carlton against the Mets last September.

He also wiped out the old record for consecutive strikeouts of eight shared by four different pitchers.

It was the 13th consecutive regular-season victory for Seaver over two seasons, 19 of them coming in his 25-7 mark last year and three this term.

Pittsburgh's Steve Blass limited Houston to three hits and the Pirates rapped the Astros with Roberto Clemente and Manny Sanguillen collecting three safeties apiece. Bill Mazeroski singled across one of the Pirate runs, collecting the 800th RBI of his career.

Don Sutton scattered five Montreal hits and the Dodgers pounded the Expos with a 14-hit attack.

The middle of the Dodger batting order—Andy Kosco, Willie Crawford and Wes Parker—did most of the damage, collecting half of Los Angeles' hits between them.

Crawford beat St. Louis for its seventh straight victory with Don Kessinger's homer and two singles pacing the Cubs' attack.

Ferguson Jenkins, the Chatham, Ont., native, was jolted by homers by Leron Lee and Joe Torre but staggered through to win his first game of the season.

Johnny Briggs rapped a three-run homer as the Phillies

PITCHING — Tom Seaver, Mets, fired a two-hitter setting one major league record with 19 consecutive strikeouts and matching another with a total of 19 strikeouts for the game as New York edged San Diego 2-1.

BATTING — Roberto Clemente, Pirates, stroked a single, double and triple, driving in one run in Pittsburgh's 6-1 victory over Houston.

Effort for A's

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For the second night in a row, Don Mincher cracked the decisive blow as the Oakland Athletics crept to the .500 mark with a 3-1 triumph over Kansas City Royals in American Baseball League action Wednesday night.

Mincher capped a two-run eighth-inning rally with a sacrifice fly to centre field—about 300 feet—which scored Felipe Alou with the clincher and secured the victory for Al Downing, who tossed a three-hitter.

In other AL contests, Washington Senators struggled 18 innings before downing New York Yankees 2-1, Minnesota Twins topped Chicago White Sox in a five-inning rain-shortened game, Detroit Tigers blanked Cleveland Indians 5-2 and California Angels stopped Milwaukee Brewers 3-1.

With Oakland trailing 1-0, Dave Duncan opened the A's rally with a single. Downing sacrificed and Felipe Alou and Rick Monday followed with hits to load the bases.

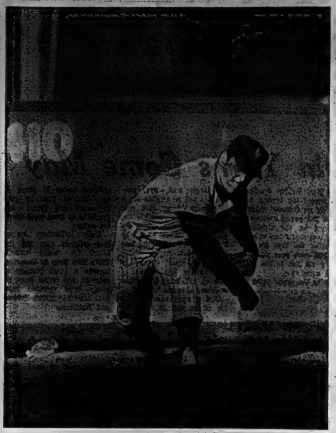
Bob Johnson relieved loser Wally Bunker on the mound and promptly fired a wild pitch, tying the game. After a walk, reloading the bases, Ken Wright replaced Johnson to face Mincher.

The 6-foot-3, 240-pound, third baseman skied to Amos Otis in centre and Alou romped home with the winner.

Ed Kirkpatrick slammed a homer for the Royals.

Mike Epstein also put an end to the 4-hour and 40-minute marathon at Washington with a sacrifice fly after Ed Stroud opened the inning with a walk and moved to third on Hank Allen's one-out single.

The Yankees had tied the game at 1-1 in the ninth on Bobby Murcer's homer. Washington had scored in the sixth on Allen's run-scoring single.



Senators' starter Joe Coleman went 9 1-3 innings, allowing only two hits, both to Murcer. The victory went to reliever Joe Grzenda, who allowed one single in three innings.

The Twins swept to their fourth consecutive victory on a two-run homer by Cesar Tovar in the fifth inning, breaking a 1-1 tie.

After Tovar's 367-foot blast, the umpires held the game up for 70 minutes before calling it.

Lolich, 4-1, struck out seven in beating Sam McDowell, 2-2. Jim Northrup slammed a two-run homer in the ninth.

Carl Yastrzemski's seventh-inning single snapped a 2-2 tie as the Red Sox went on to beat Dave McNally, 3-1 was McNally's first loss of the season after three victories.

Mowing Them Down

New York Mets' pitcher Tom Seaver hurls ball toward plate at New York's Shea Stadium Wednesday en route to taking his team to a 2-1 victory over the San Diego Padres, and wiping out the old record for consecutive strikeouts. Seaver set a new record of 10 straight strikeouts in a game Wednesday. He also tied the major league record of 19 strikeouts in one game, set by Steve Carlton last year against the Mets. Our Olympic Bid Hurt: Ahearne

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canada's withdrawal from the 1976 world hockey championships could hurt its chances for getting the 1976 Winter Olympics, A. J. (Gunny) Ahearne, president of the International Ice Hockey Federation, said Wednesday.

"It is my candid opinion Garibaldi had it on the plate. But since Dec. 31 they've been saying other things," he said in an interview.

"You can't have half the countries supporting amateur competition and the other half wanting open play."

Canada's bid for the 1976 Olympics at Garibaldi, 60 miles north of here, will go before the International Olympic Committee in Amsterdam May 11. Other bids are from Denver, Colo., Osterund, Sweden and Switzerland.

Baby Habs Beaten

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds scored three goals in the third period Wednesday night to upset Montreal Junior Canadiens 5-4 and even their best-of-seven Eastern Canada Memorial Cup semi-final at one game each.

Montreal, Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series champs, led 3-0 at the end of the first period and carried a 3-2 lead into the third period. The Greyhounds won the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series.

The victory was also the first for an NOHA junior club over an OHA Junior A team since 1967.

Dan Burkhardt in the Sault nets was outstanding, turning aside 47 Montreal shots. His performance drew the praise of Roger Bedard, the junior Canadiens' coach.

Remparts Earn Berth

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — Jacques Richard's three goals Wednesday night led Quebec Remparts to a 5-2 win over Charlottetown Islanders and a berth in the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup final.

The victory over the Islanders was the fourth straight for the Remparts in the best-of-seven semi-final series after the Islanders won the two opening games here.

The Remparts will play the winner of the Montreal-Sault Ste. Marie semi-final—now tied at one game each—for the eastern crown.

The Remparts outshot the Islanders 44 to 38. They held a 2-0 lead at the end of the first and led 3-1 going into the third.

Tony Esposito's Birthday Gift from Hawks Could Be Rest

BOSTON (CP) — Today is Tony Esposito's 37th birthday and the betting around the Boston Garden is that the occasion will be marked with a day off.

Boston Bruins play Chicago Black Hawks tonight in the third game of their best-of-seven series for the playoff title in the East Division of the National Hockey League.

After winning in Chicago 6-3 on Sunday and 4-1 on Tuesday, the Bruins are 8-5 favorites to win tonight.

Chicago coach Billy Reay never announces his choice of goaltenders before game time, but speculation is that Desjardins—picked up from Los Angeles Kings late in the season —will get the nod over Esposito.

Tony rolled up 15 shutouts during the regular season to set a modern record and win the Vezina trophy.

Then he took the Hawks through the Eastern semi-final in a four-game sweep of Detroit Red Wings, allowing only eight goals on the way.

He has allowed a total of 10 in his two appearances against the Bruins.

The Hawks admit the layoff, while waiting for Boston to eliminate New York Rangers in them.

"We're certainly flat," general manager Tommy Ivan said. "We have lost whatever momentum we had. We have to find it again and quickly."

It was a momentum which carried the Hawks from last place last season to a first-place finish this year.

The Bruins are unbeaten at home so far in Stanley Cup play this season and are ahead 3-2 on the road.

To come back, the Hawks will have to win four of the next five games and three of those are on Boston ice.

The Bruins came home exhausted Wednesday morning, arriving at Logan Airport at 4:30 a.m. to find a crowd of 200 cheering and waving autograph books. Chicago arrived in midafternoon.

If Tony Esposito is replaced tonight, one of the big reasons will be his big brother.

Phil Esposito scored four of the 10 goals that Tony let in—three on Sunday and one on Tuesday.

After the Tuesday encounter, Phil spoke up for Tony.

"They can't blame him for any of the goals," he said.

"I know it doesn't sound right for me backing him and knocking his defence, but they didn't have it. They haven't had it. If it weren't for him, they wouldn't have finished first. The defence hasn't been good."

Penguins Bank on Home Ice Edge

PITTSBURGH (CP) — The prospect of returning to home ice tonight has given Pittsburgh Penguins an injection of optimism they badly need in their Stanley Cup semi-final battle with St. Louis Blues.

The Penguins stepped off a plane from St. Louis Wednesday afternoon with the memory of two losses behind them and confidence in their ability to win the next two games in the best-of-seven series.

"We've got the next two games at home and that should make a big difference in our favor," said Penguins coach Blakley.

"Our guys should open up now and start shooting the puck. We'll have to shoot more if we hope to win a game."

The Penguins had only five shots at Blues goalie Jacques Plante in each of the first and third periods during the second game of the series Tuesday night, when St. Louis took its second victory with a 4-1 score. Pittsburgh had 24 shots on Plante through the whole game while the Blues fired 36 at Les Binkley.

Right winger Ken Schinkel said he would rather forget about Tuesday's defeat.

"I think you'll see things take a turn in the other direction now," said Schinkel. "They (the Blues) won't have that crowd behind them out here."

The St. Louis fans are notorious for their noisy support of the team and crowds there have averaged 16,745 for five quarter-final and semi-final playoff games this season.

The Pittsburgh Civic Arena has a seating capacity of only 12,580. But the Blues know the Penguins will have the advantage here and they recognize the determination of the Pittsburgh club.

"This series is not over yet," said Plante. "Pittsburgh doesn't quit. They didn't win four games from Oakland for no reason."

The Penguins eliminated Oakland Seals in four straight games of the quarter-finals while the Blues took six games to knock out Minnesota North Stars.

"Pittsburgh doesn't have the big shooters like Minnesota," said Glenn Hall, the other veteran Blues goalie who backed the team to a 3-1 win in the first game Sunday. "But, like our team, they don't give up easily and they'll be tougher in their own arena."

Kelly could decide to start Al Smith in goal tonight if he finds the 34-year-old netminder fully recovered from his bout with the measles. Smith stayed home as a precaution on the eve of his return to action tonight is veteran defenceman Jim Morrison, who has been resting a minor knee injury.

But even with Morrison back in the lineup, Kelly isn't likely to put more than two defencemen in his starting lineup as he did Tuesday night.

The Pittsburgh coach put two defencemen on the blue line and started two more as wingers up front with centre Bryan Hextall. The psychological tactic backfired when the Blues scored the first goal with just 31 seconds gone in the game.

"The idea was that they would be facing our biggest, toughest, checkers on the opening faceoff," said Kelly. "But we got caught up the ice, and they scored. It was a bad move, that's all."

Coach Scotty Bowman of the Blues said he learned the folly of such a move last year in a game against Montreal Canadiens. He put three defencemen —brothers Barclay, Bob and Bill Plager—out as a forward line against the Canadiens.

"Bob got a penalty and they scored," said Bowman. "We lost 4-1."

Robarts' Speech Hints at Freeze on Green Belt Building

TORONTO (CP) — Experienced municipal officials interpreted a speech by Premier Robarts Wednesday night as indicating the province will promote the development of municipal growth centres while enforcing a freeze on the economic development of other areas.

Ab Campbell, chairman of Metropolitan Toronto council, said he believed the premier's speech had particular application to the areas known as "green belts" adjacent to major centres or urban growth.

"It was a clear indication of what will be involved on May 5 when the province announces its regional development plan for the Metropolitan Toronto area," said Mr. Campbell.

"I expect there will be a lot of surprised people who are holding property for development in areas that will be either declared green belts or frozen for development purposes."

Mr. Robarts, in a speech opening Ontario's first provincial-municipal conference since 1949, told 650 delegates that economic growth must take second place to the kind of life people want to live in the environment they want to establish.

While Ontario is fortunate to have time in which to influence its development and to preserve its environment, "we are playing for high stakes."

"Time is running out and we must take action now," the premier said.

Mr. Robarts said less reliance has to be placed on economic growth for its own sake and more on "the fulfillment of the values of society."

"Ontario must be prepared to make certain commitments and accept that there will be personal sacrifice for the benefit of society at large.

"If we are to meet adequately the changing aspirations of the people and if the challenges of the 1970s are to be solved, there will have to be action by government which may not necessarily be popular.

"I am convinced that we . . . must institute very firm controls in some areas of Ontario.

"Governments may have to forbid certain types of development to prevent the pollution, the destruction of the natural beauty of our countryside or the loss of unique landmarks.

"Industries may not always be able to establish anywhere . . . location of [illegible] developments may be prohibited in certain areas . . . will be stricter control of economic development."

Stephen Clarkson, planning director for the Liberal party of Ontario and Liberal candidate for mayor of Toronto in the last municipal election, said Mr. Robarts could only have been talking about the type of growth that the province will permit in Ontario.

Mr. Clarkson said the premier at one point appeared to be expressing the new American philosophy of "no growth" in the gross national or provincial product, but in the next paragraph had indicated the need for continuing economic growth for the over-all welfare of the province.

He said this seems to indicate Mr. Robarts was talking about some plan for permitting growth only in specified areas.

Mayor Angus Campbell of Pembroke also saw Mr. Robarts' speech as a warning that economic growth will be deliberately restricted in some sections of the province.

He was concerned that provincial policy might adversely affect Pembroke's development plans, and said he will spend a day in Toronto trying to get from provincial officials an understanding of what Ontario's economic development plans mean for his city.

In his speech, Premier Robarts also warned against more direct federal involvement with municipalities.

"If we allowed ourselves to get into a situation where the federal government began to initiate direct financial support programs for municipalities, we could find ourselves in a chaotic situation where responsible decision-making by either the provinces or municipalities would be very difficult."

He said suggestions that the federal government enter a direct relationship with municipalities result from the financial squeeze faced by municipalities and the feeling that Ottawa "has more money to spare than the provinces."

"Surely the solutions to our inter-governmental problems of financing and administration can be best met if we avoid arrangements which short-circuit the federal system and promote arrangements which permit each level of government to get its own priorities within its own sphere of responsibility."

Security Force Routine - - Wishart

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Arthur Wishart says there has been a considerable number of threats to public officials, some of which should be taken "quite seriously."

Against a background of opposition heckling accusing him of setting up a political police force, Mr. Wishart said Wednesday that creation by the provincial police of a new security branch was only "routine housekeeping."

He said it reflected the need to provide "some increase" in security to members of the legislature and other public officials.

"In this day when we see certain incidents and when the use of drugs seems to excite certain people, I think it was indicated there should be some increase in security matters," he said.

Pressed to explain, the attorney-general said that "only the day before yesterday" a member of the NDP caucus wrote him a note and came to see his officials "very much concerned about a threat made to himself, his children and his wife . . .

"We have put the OPP on the case and have pursued it and are guarding his home at this time. He is a member of this legislature . . ."

NDP Leader Donald MacDonald interrupted Mr. Wishart to say: "That is enough. Nobody is asking that."

Mr. MacDonald said later he did not know who the member is.

In other business:

—The legislature adopted the first modernization in more than 30 years of the rules governing the way it does business. The new rules are the creation of a special select committee of the house appointed last spring.

—Health Minister Thomas Wells announced the establishment of citizen advisory boards to work with psychiatric hospitals in the treatment of the mentally ill. Senior medical consultants also would work with the boards in what Mr. Wells described as a "new concept" in hospital administration.

—The legislature's public accounts committee expressed reservations about a government request to eliminate details of spending on salaries, travelling expenses and public relations from its annual report to the house. Opposition members said the request will have to be referred to their party caucuses for discussion.

—Premier John Robarts announced a $20,000 provincial grant to finance a study in Metropolitan Toronto to determine services and facilities required to treat young drug users.

Broadcasters Ask Freedom from Rules

OTTAWA (CP) — Commercial broadcasters appealed to Parliament Wednesday to free them from regulation by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission and let them operate instead within broad new "public policy guidelines."

"The theory and practice of regulation, we submit, is no longer adequate," the Canadian Association of Broadcasters told the Commons committee on broadcasting.

"It is our hope that new conditions will be met by way of new public policy guidelines, clearly established by Parliament."

The C.A.B. asked the committee to recommend new policy that would give privately-owned radio and TV stations maximum possible freedom to meet two policy goals—maintaining broadcasting links across Canada and producing broadcast material that would hold its own internationally.

W. D. McGregor of CKCO-TV, Kitchener, C.A.B. president, said the broadcasters regard the Commons committee as having "paramount importance" and wish that "some of the almost constant flow of broadcasting probes had been conducted by this committee instead of by other means."

Mr. McGregor, saying members of Parliament tend to be closer to real life than other bodies broadcasters have dealt with, added:

"We firmly believe that important policy decisions must be made by Parliament, not built up into de facto policies by the consistent action or lack of action of other bodies, no matter how well-intentioned."

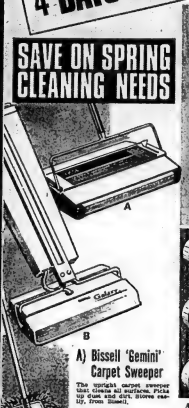
Twelve Men Arrested For Damaging Trucks

MONTREAL (CP) — Twelve men were arrested Wednesday after 12 mail trucks had their tires slashed or their windshields broken.

Police said they arrested the men in the city's north-end after mail drivers were taken from their trucks and the vehicles damaged. No injuries were reported.

Earlier, the post office announced the RCMP were investigating the theft of seven mail boxes. It was the first time the federal police have become involved in the mail dispute.

Molasses was poured into 12 other mail boxes Wednesday.



Normal delivery was reported to be about two weeks away and despite an embargo on parcels in and out of Montreal the backlog was still growing.

Sounds of A Festival

Centennial Secondary School auditorium comes alive with the sounds of music as Stephen Choma conducts the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra last night. The concert was part of program for Arts Festival '70.

Concert Orchestra, Bell Choir In Lyric, Rousing Performance

By LUCY VANDERWATER

Despite badly marred and muddy roads, Centennial Secondary School was filled to capacity, as the Eastern Ontario Concert Orchestra presented a program of music encompassing the classical, semi-classical and themes from Broadway musicals. In operation since 1963, the orchestra was formed by Stephen Choma, who has been the conductor since its inception. In its short period of existence, the orchestra has presented more than 70 concerts in communities in the Quinte district, as well as appearing with the Arts Festival, under the auspices of the St. Julien Chapter, IODE. Master of ceremonies for the evening was Eugene Lang, who is well known in the Quinte District for his music programs "Music as you like it," on CJBQ FM.

The program opened with a rousing march from the comic opera The Meistersinger from Nuremberg, by Richard Wagner. Although Sherwood Glen, a lovely tone poem by Philip Gordon did not seem to get off the ground, the pulsating theme from Exodus fared much better. Mr. Choma called forth a display of dynamics and virtuosity from every section of the orchestra that was enthusiastically received by the audience.

Following excerpts from the Fifth Symphony by Beethoven the orchestra presented Ketelbey's In a Monastery Garden. This selection with its oriental tinge was played with much lyricism, with special mention to the flute section, which flawlessly intertwined its delicate melody throughout the composition.

A guest appearance was made by the Picton United Church Handbell Choir, under the able direction of Mr. Andrew Bennie. The 11 members all in their early teens, are the fourth choir to be trained by Mr. Bennie. This was their first appearance with the Quinte Arts Festival.

The choir played clear, sustained, brilliant tones in all of their selections which included Crimond Tune, Sweet Hour of Prayer, Love Is Blue by Paul Mauriest, Edelweiss (from Sound of Music), Londonderry Air (Irish Tune), Be Thou Blst Near by Bach, and Handel's Largo. To build additional tonal foundations to the transient bell tone structure, Mr. Bennie accompanied the choir at the piano in Edelweiss, Be Thou But Near and Largo. It was pointed out that Handel's Largo when played by the choir is usually accompanied by pipe organ, but in this concert, with only a piano available, there was loss of impact.

The concert came to a conclusion with the playing of Telemann's Overture in A Minor, two excerpts from the Sixth Symphony by P. Tschaikowsky and melodies from the Broadway show Fiddler on the Roof by the orchestra.

There is a distinct improvement in the instrumental balance in the orchestra, which has developed progressively over the years since its formation. Mr. Choma is to be congratulated on the results of his diligent efforts.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market reached its lowest level in 18 months today.

The market dropped sharply at opening and continued the decline in later trading.

On index, Industrials were down 1.49 to 172.54, base metals 2.36 to 107.72, western oils 3.78 to 182.37 and golds .36 to 155.12.

Industrials, base metals and western oils were at a low for 1970.

For western oils, the decline was also the largest in almost two years.

Losers overwhelmed gains 234 to 32 with 187 issues unchanged.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 771,681, up from 482,600 at the same time Wednesday.

Geneseo was down ¼ to 5 despite a quarterly dividend of 42½ cents, up from 40 cents in the corresponding period of last year.

Sherritt Gordon was up ½ to 39¼. The company announced first-quarter earnings of 39 cents compared with 11 cents in the similar period of last year.

IBM was down 4 to 325. IBM has dropped a total of 12 since Xerox Corp. announced Tuesday that it had been sued for infringement of patent against IBM.

Xerox said the suit involves use of its processes in office copiers.

Wednesday, the market fell sharply to its lowest level of the year: in response to a drop on the New York exchange.

On index, industrials were down 2.94 to 174.03, western oils 4.72 to 186.07, base metals 1.45 to 109.80 and golds 1.37 to 156.13.

Industrials and western oils were at lows for the year.

Base metals dropped to a 1970 low of 109.82 but rose in later trading.

Volume was 1,982,000 shares compared with 1,932,000 Tuesday. Losers overwhelmed gains 402 to 97 with 250 issues unchanged.

IBM was down 8 to 320. Xerox Corp. said Tuesday it had filed suit for infringement of patent against IBM.

Xerox said the suit involves use of its processes in office copiers.

Unus Investments, which announced first-quarter earnings of 4 cents a share, down from 14 cents in the corresponding period last year, was down ½ to 13.

Alberta Gas Trunk, which said it plans further long-term financing, was down ¾ to 41¼.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Verdict on Pill Must Be Personal

Within a few years, a new medicine becomes distinctive above all others. Among thousands of drugs available to doctors, one alone will stand alone, and recognizable, at the very top of the list.

When you say the Pill, everyone knows what it is. It isn't an aspirin tablet; it isn't an antibiotic; it isn't a vitamin tablet; it is the Pill — the universally known oral contraceptive used by millions of women all over the world.

If you will forgive the pun, in the beginning the Pill was unquestionably the magical answer to the period; but now it is a large question-mark.

Women ask themselves, "Is it safe to take?" And doctors ask themselves, "Is it safe to prescribe?"

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I hear so many conflicting opinions about the Pill. I don't know what to do. I'd rather take it than use any other contraceptive, but I'm afraid. I've heard it may cause all kinds of complications. Once and for all may I have a straight answer? Shall I take it or not? Thank you. — Mrs. F.

Comment: I wish my answer might be "straight" but it will have to be "round-about." In other words, I'll have to hedge, just as many other doctors are doing.

A few weeks ago I attended a medical meeting of obstetricians and gynecologists. As you might guess, first question was, "How do you specialists feel about the Pill? What do you tell your patients?"

There were at least a half-dozen men in the group I talked to. Without reservation, all said, "Unless there are definite contraindications we tell all our patients they can take the Pill."

As there were about 150 specialists at the meeting, I asked if they would estimate how many of these doctors would agree with them. Without hesitation the reply was, "We think that at least 90 per cent of gynecologists think the Pill is safe to take."

We all sat down to dinner. Later, the subject of the evening — nationally recognized as an outstanding gynecologist — was asked the question of the evening. His reply was unequivocal: "I have been giving this to my patients for over 10 years and I have not seen one woman who suffered complications from its use."

Now, Mrs. F., I suppose you'd expect me to be able to say to you, "Go ahead. You've heard the evidence. Surely outstanding specialists wouldn't talk this way unless they were sure the Pill is safe."

But is it? There's another side. Many prominent doctors feel that taking the Pill isn't as harmless as popping a hard candy into one's mouth. They warn of potential dangers to some women.

Under consideration is a proposal by the U.S. government's Food and Drug Administration that a warning leaflet be inserted into each package containing the Pill. It will warn about the risk of blood clots. Women who have or who have had blood clots in the legs, lung or brain should not take the drug.

Stop taking it if you develop severe chest pain, sudden severe headache or can't see clearly. Don't take it if you have liver disease, cancer of the breast, or vaginal bleeding of unknown cause.

You will need special supervision if you have heart or kidney disease, asthma, epilepsy, high blood pressure, diabetes, or mental depression. Some women taking the Pill may get reactions such as swelling, skin rash, nervousness and irritability.

I hope, Mrs. F., you understand why I have given you a "roundabout" answer rather than a "straight" one. In the face of all these potential complications why did so many good specialists say they are in favor of prescribing the Pill? I'm as confused as you are. I don't know what to advise you to do.

The answer must be purely personal. Every woman is a special problem unto herself. Only her own doctor can make the decision. I can't say what is good or bad for all women, is good or bad for you, personally.

Melrose

MELROSE — On Thursday evening, April 16 the card party sponsored by Melrose Unit was held with the proceeds going to the cancer fund. Prize winners were Miss Florence McCrea, Mabelle McLaren, Bernice Stratton, Leslie McLaren, Wilman McLaren and Doris Sherman. The lucky draw was won by Mrs. Jack Sherman.

For April 24

Your birthday today: You must immediately begin to amplify the year ahead if your next decade is to reflect the full power of your potentials for achievement. Start by dropping all your bad habits now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Normal conditions finally return now for a productive finale to the workweek for most people. Make the most of it; include definite time to collect outstanding accounts.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Fact finding and budget balancing are likely to take a great deal of your time and thought today. Your resources improve as you organize your efforts.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Other people now should take the lead in adjustments to make life simpler for all. A few quiet suggestions from you might get them started sooner.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Put all efforts into completing older projects before this week-end closes in. Whatever can be brought to the stage of pay-off is of first priority.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Interference, distraction decrease to very comfortable levels now. You have a chance to get a great deal done with just a little more push.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Pursue neglected details. Make peace among your friends and associates.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Tensions are alleviated, according to how well you help your calm over the last fortnight. Relatives and neighbors turn out to be very co-operative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Take the time to clear off all sorts of small chores. Survey your home and work place; find ways and means of making your daily routines easier and simpler.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Relax and let today's comfortable rhythm set the pace. Avoid hasty and brusque actions. Make sure you ask for whatever has been borrowed from you.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Discretion is essential to your success today. Quiet effort without boasting or self-advertising has a better persuasive influence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Review your situation, make plans for bettering yourself. You have a calm atmosphere in which to straighten out any tangles left from this week's complex manoeuvres and developments.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Routine chores and business efforts prevail this relatively quiet day.

Substitute for Car Is Needed - - Jamieson

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP) — Canada must find alternate forms of rapid mass transportation instead of the car, said Donald Jamieson, federal minister of transport, Wednesday.

Mr. Jamieson told the annual meeting of the Automotive Parts Manufacturers' Association (Canada) he is not "knocking the car" but Canada must face the "frightening" implications of massive urban growth.

Setting aside a prepared text on the Motor Vehicle Safety Act, he said 70 per cent of the population travels today by car and some cities require 40 to 45 per cent of their area for car usages.

He said the department of transport is investing ideas of corridor transportation which include things like monorails or "aree-Grads."

Canada is only spending about $18,000,000 a year for research and development in the field and has had to borrow ideas from United States technology, Mr. Jamieson said. Efforts will have to be spent on unique Canadian transportation problems—for instance the department set up the Arctic Transportation Agency for that purpose, he said.

In his prepared text, Mr. Jamieson said Canada's Motor Vehicle Safety Act will have a scale of penalties ranging up to $200,000 for violations by manufacturers, distributors and importers.

In the text Mr. Jamieson said there would be 29 regulations governing cars, trucks, buses, motorcycles, snowmobiles, minibikes and any other motor vehicle designed to be "driven or drawn on roads."

He said publication of the complete details would be made within two months and Canadian auto industry representatives will be invited to Ottawa to discuss the proposed regulations.

He said the 29 regulations "will be identical in intent to those currently enforced in the United States." He said regulations for height of bumpers would be issued "within the next year."

House Unanimously Backs Bill to Prevent Pollution in Arctic

OTTAWA (CP) — A rare unanimity prevailed briefly in the Commons Wednesday as the government's bill to prevent pollution in the Arctic was given second reading on a vote of 198 to 6.

The proposed legislation received all-party support in a move apparently designed to impress foreign opinion with national solidarity on the issue.

The bill now will be given detailed study by the Commons northern development committee.

After the vote, however, it was business as usual. Attendance dwindled as the House turned to a related bill extending Canada's territorial sea to 12 miles from three miles off the coast. It would also define exclusive fishing zones.

The bill received second reading at the end of the sitting but not before Conservative Lloyd Crouhes (South Shore) accused External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp of becoming "confused, tired and frustrated" in the search for international agreement on the issue.

Canada, said the Nova Scotia MP, should have sought international agreement to back up its extended claims and now may face economic reprisals for taking the matter into its own hands.

"Unilateral action or damn the - torpedoes-full-speed - ahead action may be all right in wartime but there is still a lesson to be learned by comparing the fruits of consultation with the effects of independent action," he said.

"Surely if we can agree internationally not to blow the people off the face of the earth with nuclear weapons, we should be able to agree internationally on the proper methods of conserving our fisheries resources in order to provide food for the people of the world."

He said, however, he agreed with the principle of the bill.

Fisheries Minister Jack Davis emphasized that the bill would define the area within which would be applied new anti-pollution regulations. These are authorized by amendments to the Fisheries Act which now are before the House as well.

He also stressed the importance of the bill to conservation of fishing resources off the Canadian coast.

The minister mentioned the Soviet Union as one nation whose ships have ruthlessly exploited Canadian fishing grounds and who would not be allowed to return if the bill is passed. Other nations, with traditional fishing rights, would be phased out of Canadian fishing zones over a longer period of time.

OMB Says 'Go'

Plaza to Open Next Summer

$5-million Project To Be Started Soon

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The Ontario Municipal Board has approved a northend regional shopping plaza for Belleville, resolving the city's most bitter municipal issue in a decade.

The end of a controversy dating to 1968 was written into 16 pages of an impatiently-awaited OMB ruling which finally arrived in Belleville today.

The carefully-detailed document gives approval to a city rezoning bylaw which clears the way for development of the biggest commercial enterprise in Belleville's history.

R. G. Ellingwood, treasurer of plaza developer Cambridge Leaseholds, called the decision a "great victory."

"We are indeed very happy about it," he told The Intelligencer from Toronto, "and we see no problem getting this off the ground in record time."

The plaza now is expected to cost $5,000,000 and be in operation by August, 1971.

The ruling reverses an earlier OMB decision last year, forbidding rezoning, and designating as premature the major development on the city's northern limits.

Today's decision, based on a rehearing of the 1969 ruling, which provoked public and political resentment, sees the development as a community asset and profitable enterprise.

Says the OMB: "All of the evidence demonstrates that the shopping facilities within the municipality are, at the present time, inadequate and that there will be definite advantages to the consumers within the area if these new facilities are provided."

The OMB also indicated optimism on the project's inevitable impact on the city's downtown commercial core.

Such an impact, tied to possible urban renewal, was one of the main arguments used against a northend plaza at the initial 1969 hearing.

Evidence indicates, says the report received today, that Belleville's downtown is "relatively healthy" and can stand added competition. A new shopping centre might generate a spillover for downtown merchants.

"It has not been demonstrated that there will be unreasonable damage to the economic health of the existing commercial facilities," says the decision. "The downtown redevelopment will not occur without public assistance and this possibility appears now to be some period in the future."

Trinidad Rebels Free Six Hostages

PORT OF SPAIN (CP) — Mutinous soldiers released six hostages—a high-ranking officer and five women—Thursday from Trinidad's main military base which the rebels seized in support of Black Power.

Col. Joffre Serrette, a former commander of Trinidad's 720-man army, obtained the releases in negotiations with the rebels at the Tetron Bay base, site of Trinidad's only armory.

Serrette also persuaded the mutineers to transfer army officers they were holding hostage from detention cells to house arrest in their quarters on the base.

"We are interested in continuing with negotiations at present because we have no intention of seeing bloodshed as far as our brother soldiers and members of the public are concerned," a spokesman for the mutineers said after the release of the five women and Maj. Henry Christopher, second in command of the army.

The mutineers were reported asking for amnesty for Black Power leaders arrested under the state of emergency.

Loyal troops have ringed the base, sealing it off. But the rebels' possession of the armory, and with it the government's chief stock of weapons, put the government in a tight spot.

The United States flew down one planeload of small arms Wednesday night but a spokesman for the state department said there were no plans for further deliveries.

Municipal Beefs Are Quieted By Robarts' Pledge of Grants

TORONTO (CP) — Cabinet ministers and municipal delegates agreed so completely on what ails the municipalities — and had so little to say about what to do about it—that Ontario first provincial-municipal conference degenerated into a minor brief session midway through its first day.

There were only about 150 of more than 450 delegates and observers left in the auditorium of the Ontario Science Centre by mid-afternoon Thursday, and few of them appeared to be paying much attention to the complaints being voiced.

The conference, first of what Premier John Robarts announced as a series to discuss municipal affairs and relations with senior governments, was to have been devoted to fiscal matters—where to get the money to meet the rapidly-rising expenditures of municipalities.

Once Premier Robarts announced that Ontario has started on the road toward increased grants made to municipalities without conditions attached, the argument was over.

But the key point—when it all will start—was never really touched upon, except by Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough. He said there will be little progress until reassessment of the entire province at market value is completed.

Mr. Robarts' announcement, however, came amid dire warnings from Treasurer Charles MacNaughton that the provincial cupboard is almost bare.

Mr. MacNaughton, in the first major address of the conference, severely criticized the federal white paper on tax reform and said his proposals present a

Approach Called Paternal

TORONTO (CP — Three observers attending the Ontario provincial - municipal conference Thursday described the Ontario government's approach to municipal affairs as "paternalistic."

The three, executive members of the Canadian Federation of Mayors and Municipalities, criticized Ontario unwillingness to permit municipalities to participate as equals in federal - provincial conferences.

Allan O'Brien, federation president and mayor of Halifax, said this unwillingness would retard co-ordination of government spending in Canada.

Red Subs in Arctic?

OTTAWA (CP) — Do Soviet submarines operate in the Canadian Arctic?

Maybe, says the defence department. Spokesmen refuse to be any more explicit because of the obvious intelligence value of anything they might disclose.

There have been a number of reported sightings of undersea craft in the area in recent years. None, upon investigation, has been definitely confirmed.

A few have been classified as probables. But they weren't necessarily Soviet submarines. United States nuclear-powered subs have been known to enter the waters of the arctic archipelago with Canadian acquiescence.

The question of foreign submarine activity in the north has become more topical as Canada moves in various ways to assert its sovereignty there.

As part of this process, serial surveillance over the entire region is being stepped up. Surveillance patrol hours are being increased by 25 per cent this year—from 1,280 last year—and an aircraft servicing detachment is to be established at Frobisher Bay on Baffin Island.

A defence department spokesman, asked what the surveillance crews will be looking for, replied non-committally: "Anything of interest, whether a ship, a submarine or people in distress."

They will not be watching specifically for submarines, he said. But submarines were certainly a "consideration."

As seen here, there is no apparent strategic reason for the Soviets to station nuclear-powered submarines—the kind in question in the Canadian Arctic. There are no cities within range to hurl ballistic missiles at should war break out. And there are no established shipping lanes to disrupt.

Russia Tests Fleet in Mediterranean

NAPLES, Italy (Reuters) — The Soviet navy, NATO experts here say, may be using the Mediterranean as a testing area for an armed fleet capable of protecting Russian merchant ships anywhere in the world.

The experts say this was one possible explanation for a considerable increase in the number of Soviet warships in the sea.

The Soviet Mediterranean fleet now numbers more than 50 ships, approximately the same size as the U.S. 6th Fleet and 20 ships more than at this time last year. NATO officers believe that by summer the number will top September's record high of 75.

On an average day, there are about 3,000 merchant ships from many nations in the Mediterranean. More than 200 of them are part of the rapidly-expanding Soviet merchant fleet that today offers direct competition to maritime nations throughout the world.

NATO officers believe the Soviet Union is developing a fleet of warships capable of protecting these merchant ships anywhere.

They are being tested first in the Black Sea and then in the Mediterranean.

Trinidad Rebels Free Six Hostages

PORT OF SPAIN (CP) — Mutinous soldiers released six hostages—a high-ranking officer and five women—Thursday from Trinidad's main military base which the rebels seized in support of Black Power.

Col. Jaffre Serrette, a former commander of Trinidad's 720-man army, obtained the releases in negotiations with the rebels at the Tetron Bay base, site of Trinidad's only armory.

Serrette also persuaded the mutineers to transfer army officers they were holding hostage from detention cells to house arrest in their quarters on the base.

"We are interested in continuing with negotiations at present because we have no intention of seeing bloodshed as far as our brother soldiers and members of the public are concerned," a spokesman for the mutineers said after the release of the five women and Maj. Henry Christopher, second in command of the army.

The mutineers were reported asking for amnesty for Black Power leaders arrested under the state of emergency.

Loyal troops have ringed the base, sealing it off. But the rebels' possession of the armory, and with it the government's chief stock of weapons, put the government in a tight spot.

The United States flew down one planeload of small arms Wednesday night but a spokesman for the state department said there were no plans for further deliveries.

Talks Soon Are Urged By Greene

WASHINGTON (CP) — Canadian Energy Minister J. J. Greene said Thursday that Canada and the United States are "uncomfortable neighbors" at the moment, but "arrangements are better than gunboats, of which Canada doesn't have too many."

Mentioning American quotas on Canadian oil and Canadian intentions to extend jurisdiction over Arctic waters, Greene told a news conference:

"Whatever we are going to talk about, let's get at it fairly soon."

Kids Fight Pollution

Young people, as we have already noted, are becoming more and more concerned about pollution. Among the latest to take up the fight are pupils of Owen Boulevard public school in Toronto.

Sixteen of the youngsters, all about 11, and carrying placards, marched six miles recently to City Hall. Pupils' response along the way was good. We wonder, though, if they put teeth into their effort by picking up litter en route.

Thousands of volunteers turned out recently for the State of Vermont's spring clean-up — an initiative that was publicized some two months in advance and which demonstrated just what can be done by substituting action for words. A similar campaign was reported from the Waterford area of California.

These were concerted efforts at the public level, but fundamentally it is a matter for individuals, and we saw an example the other day. It was on the Old Picton Road, early in the morning and a woman was walking along the grass verge, near the turn off for Massassaga, with her German Shepherd dog. As she walked she picked up litter.

If everyone followed this lady's example we would make short work of this aspect of the pollution problem.

Ferry Disaster

The sinking of the Canadian National ferry Patrick Morris off Cape Breton recalls two other similar incidents in other parts of the world.

On New Year's Day some 20 years ago the British ferry, Princess Victoria went down in raging seas between Larne, Northern Ireland and Stranraer, Scotland. The vessel had been in service only a short time and a subsequent inquiry revealed a possible cause of the disaster similar to the one off North Sydney the other day. The sea had pried open the stern doors.

A couple of years ago the treacherous Cook Strait, just outside the harbor of Wellington, New Zealand, was the scene of a/other sinking when the ferry Wahine went down.

It seems an inordinately high rate of disaster for this type of vessel and there is surely something to be learned from this fact. The Department of Transport should make it its business to probe all the circumstances.

As Others See Us

Robby Burns talked about seeing ourselves as others see us. Here are some random observations of a talkative blonde, a teacher and former Parisian whom political writer Douglas Fisher found himself trapped beside on a flight from Winnipeg to Ottawa.

"Canada," she told the former NDP member for Port Arthur, "was frumpy, the young people awkward, the women cold. The men were interesting but so fearful. It was Europe for her in May. Only Montreal was livable. Ottawa was provincial, no parochial. . ."

And so on, even her private life was quickly revealed. But that does not concern us and Mr. Fisher was tactful and circumspect in that score. But what of the young woman's other remarks . . . Canada "frumpish," for example. The word can mean dowdy, inelegant, and that can apply to people and conditions anywhere.

A country that has produced such a masterpiece as Expo 67 could not be considered frumpish. But she had the lady pointed out, only Montreal was livable.

Does the cap fit then? It is something to think about. We do not doubt there is room for improvement.

Another Flop

Fidel Castro and the late Che Guevara proved that a comparatively small guerrilla force is capable of toppling an army — once!

The ill-fated Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961, Guevara's later effort to spark revolution in Bolivia, which cost him his life, and now this latest Bay of Pigs anniversary guerrilla invasion of Cuba by a handful of attackers (they were said to number 13) have all showed that a 1959-style Cuban revolution is not likely to be repeated.

No wonder Castro is gloating over the defeat of this latest foray and finding in it renewed opportunities to verbally embarrass the United States. Barring some vast internal insurrection, which is unlikely, or a full-scale U.S. invasion, also unlikely, it looks as if Castro is there to stay.

Lenin's Legacy

Ideological Imperialism Supplants Classless Society

By HAROLD MORRISON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The centenary of Vladimir Lenin is an occasion during which the Soviet Union might wish to improve on its people and on the world the full extent of its accomplishments in terms of economic benefits, and international solidarity.

Although the revolutionist-tactician might justly be astonished by present results of his grand design for a classless society, some observers suggest he might also be shocked by Kremlin rigidities and the rampant growth of a new class of privileged Soviet bureaucrats.

Any reader of his works would readily conclude that his grand design still is years distant. Instead of the relative freedom of a classless society, Lenin's legacy has led to a form of Soviet ideological imperialism with world supremacy as its major goal.

At home, Russians find their leaders still heavily preoccupied with maintenance of military strength, with no heavy emphasis on consumer benefits. Leonid Brezhnev, the Communist party secretary, blames defective planning for economic shortcomings. But at the same time, the Russians have increased their fleet in the Mediterranean, increased military contributions to the Middle East, expanded missiles deployment and continued to focus on the eastern frontier without reducing the number of divisions in the West.

While demonstrating willingness to negotiate arms reductions with the United States, the Soviet leadership is seen by authoritative Western strategists as still seeking full nuclear parity with the United States, and perhaps to exceed it, if this is possible.

This preoccupation with military strength may be justified by the country's new problems with China, whose leaders took the decision in the 20th century necessary to accuse the Kremlin of seeking to unleash a 1930s-type blitzkrieg.

But there is little doubt that the Soviet Union also seeks to use this military strength to maintain its dominance over Eastern Europe and to intimidate other nations bound its frontiers.

Lenin evolved his theories in an atmosphere of freedom-loving Russia. Since Lenin's death in Leningrad, it must be some measure quality to mark anniversary celebrations in Moscow, it may rest partly on the knowledge that Soviet citizens who seek intellectual expression may have to practise such a privilege in an human asylum behind the Iron Curtain.

Yet the Soviet Union has come a long way since the storm of 1917. And since Lenin was a realist, as much as a theorist, he might have concluded that one form of revolution can easily give birth to another and that changes can still happen in his country as they can elsewhere in the world.

Frisco Switching to Trains

Freeway Traffic Choking Cities

Ottawa Journal

There are few things in North American urban life more frustrating than the daily chore of commuting from home to office. The average commuter who goes to work in a major city by car spends 13 per cent of his working day sitting behind another car breathing its exhaust fumes. The Manchester Guardian, in a full-page report on, U. S. commuting problems, notes:

"In 1917 the average speed of a horse and buggy in Manhattan was 11 mph. Today, after man has reached the moon, it is barely 7 mph."

Major cities throughout North America build highspeed freeways that are designed with small - pace traffic during rush hours: even Ottawa's Queensway with its 60 mph speed limit is lucky to have a traffic flow of 30 miles an hour in the morning. Freeways are like the inner core of cities with their insensible sprawl and only recently has public ire been raised against the likes of Los Angeles' prolific expressway system and the senseless ravaging of more of central Toronto by the Spadina Expressway.

This wave of protest against the killer freeways is at least helping change the direction of urban transportation planning. The trend turns slowly towards mass transit systems: experiments with high - speed gas turbine trains, a study for a system of moving sidewalks in Boston. Perhaps the most promising of these is San Francisco's Bay Area Rapid Transit scheme (BART), which when it begins operation next year hopes to have 80 - mile - an - hour electric trains running 90 seconds apart at peak periods. Everything on the BART system, from train speed to opening of doors to fare collection, will be run by computers.

The Guardian reports:

"When BART is in full operation in 1972 it will be able to move 60,000 seated passengers an hour, equivalent to 25 expressway lanes of cars. What this will mean to a commuter living in Orinda, a suburb across the Bay, is that his journey to downtown San Francisco will take less than 15 minutes, compared with anything from 40 minutes to an hour by car."

In cities the size of Ottawa there's a tendency to think we're too small and "it can't happen here." That's what Toronto was saying 10 or 15 years ago, and now the expressway unrest is threatening to choke off the centre of that city, too.

Our fledgling regional government has to date had higher priority items than transportation, but its transit committee now is nudging ways to make the Ottawa Transportation Commission a regional body, and regional council is considering recommendations that various levels of government be brought together to work on a comprehensive public transit plan. Consider it urgently, gentlemen!

Wisconsin Trend

Decline in Dairyland

The Christian Science Monitor

Fewer dairy farms, fewer dairy cows, but constantly rising milk production — that's the story of America's Dairyland.

Latest statistics show that in Wisconsin there now are only 62,125 commercial dairy farms — those selling milk to bottling or processing plants — or a reduction of fully a third in a decade.

During the same period the number of dairy cattle two years old and over declined 300,000 to about 2.1 million.

Yet 1969 milk output set a new record of slightly more than 18 billion pounds.

The explanation lies in culling poor producers from dairy herds. During the last 10 years average production of milk per cow rose from 8,370 to 9,761 pounds.

'Sweet Tooth' Earns Dollars for U.K.

Kingston Whig-Standard

The sweet - toothed British, who eat more candy than anyone else in the world, apparently have turned their weakness into a strong point. British makers of chocolate and sugar candy are now the world's largest exporters.

Last year the United States bought 40 per cent of its imported candy from Britain. In addition, Britain sold the U.S. 23 tons of chewing gum.

Switzerland has been famous for chocolate for centuries. But in 1969 even the Swiss bought 1,200 tons of chocolate from Britain.

And the Dutch, who make and eat more licorice than anyone else in the world, imported 2,204 tons of the chewy stuff from Britain last year.

Life in Britain — how sweet it is!

Niagara's Vineyards Put $75,000,000 Into The Economy in 1969

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

Your editorial "Don't Knock It" published March 11 has been brought to our attention, and I writing on behalf of the 1,500 members of the Ontario Grape Growers' Marketing Board to express to you our appreciation for the fair and objective viewpoint expressed in regard to Canadian wine.

We have written to Miss Virginia Gibson, the American television commentator bringing to her attention your editorial comment. While custom regulations forbid us to ship to the United States samples of Ontario wines, as you suggest, we have invited Miss Gibson to be our guest when she next visits Canada — and hopefully the Niagara region.

For here in the Niagara Peninsula which Miss Gibson would find upwards of 22,000 acres of vineyards with upwards of 250,000 new vines being planted each spring. These vineyards last year produced 61,500 tons of grapes worth $8,900,000 to the growers, and about $75,000,000 to Canada's overall economy.

In the past 25 years our growers have concentrated on producing hybrid grapes suitable for quality wine production, and are now commercially cultivating more than 40 varieties which — you state editorially have "nurtured a fine assortment of wines which have won international recognition".

We thank you for bringing this fact to the attention of your readers and Miss Gibson.

Australian Aborigines Have an Eye On 'Black Power' Tactics

Ottawa Journal

Australia's 100,000 blacks and half-castes have hardly been treated as first-class citizens.

The aborigines were given the right to vote only in 1967, when a referendum removed a clause from the 1900 Australian constitution which said "Aboriginal natives shall not be counted." A 1965 state act passed in Queensland gave the Department of Aboriginal Affairs power, through the courts, to put the native in reserves and other European overseers have wide powers.

The Manchester Guardian reports:

". . . an aboriginal baby born today has a better than average chance of being dead within two years. If it does survive it has a better than average chance of suffering from substandard diet to a degree likely to handicap its physical and mental potential and its resistance to disease. If it lives in the north, it has a chance of being maimed by leprosy. Compared with Europeans, it has only one chance in 20 of entering a university, it has four times the chance of not being educated at all and its chances of living in a house owned by its parents is just one in ten."

Aboriginal leaders in 1968 began fighting the common prejudice against the aborigine as a half-naked primitive man roaming the Australian outback: that year a group called Third Parliament to set up a national program "to deal with housing, education and social matters which will raise the aborigine to equality with the white man." Little has happened since then save for a 5,000 - mile tour of aboriginal areas by a minister and a group of journalists who produced sensational stories about the appalling living conditions.

Frustrated aborigines and their white supporters are now calling for militant action; some are even suggesting adoption of "black power" tactics.

N.Y. Newspaper Upset By P.M.'s Arctic Stand

Hamilton Spectator

The widely circulated New York Daily News blasts Prime Minister Trudeau's anti-pollution rules in the Canadian Arctic and says bluntly that he's developed these tough-on-the - U.S. policies because he's "mainly intent on snooting Uncle Sam for the Canadian home folks' edification."

What babbling nonsense. Anyone who read what Mr. Trudeau said in a speech the other night about an independent Canada's role in leading the other clean air (and a decent world in which to live) knows that he is not only very thoughtful and lucid but sincere. Control of Arctic waters is no grandstand play.

As a matter of fact, Mr. Trudeau is not a grand-stander anyway, in the vote - getting sense of the word. Many of us who have observed him from afar have come to the conclusion that what those who claim to know him best say about him is true: he is his own man, he does his own thing, he doesn't care a hoot what people he does not respect say about him.

No man who can infuriate the old by blasting the young, who can defend the White Paper and then wage a no-holds-barred war with any income or capital in this country, who can publicly court a married woman and openly live with her, and who can play at expensive resorts while letters from ever-poorer constituents are piling up on his desk; no man who can do such things can be justifiably accused of ever consciously doing anything to win the votes of the "Canadian home folks."

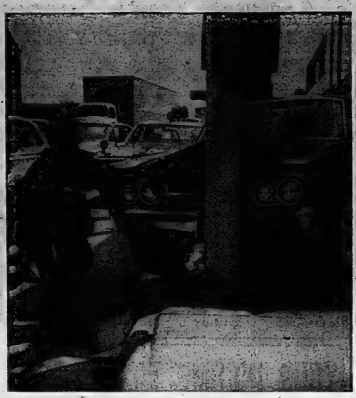
No, right or wrong, Pierre Trudeau does it his way and if we don't like it, we can lump it. And that goes for the New York Daily News too.

Church Union Team To Visit Belleville

The Rev. R. B. Craig of the United Church and Canon R. E. Ladimer of the Anglican Church, the two Executive Commissioners on Church Union visit Belleville next Wednesday, April 29. At 2.30 Wednesday afternoon in the parish hall of St. Thomas'

Rev. Dr. R. B. Craig

Anglican them two men will meet with the United Church clergy of Belleville Presbytery and the Anglican Clergy of Hastings and Quinte Deanaries to discuss Church Union and report on what progress is being made by the Union Commission. They will also attend an evening session with local committees composed of clergy and lay people who have held previous meetings on Church Union.



Rev. Canon Ralph R. Ladimer

The evening session will begin at 7.30 in Eastminster United Church.

Dr. Craig and Canon Ladimer were appointed by their respective churches as executive commissioners in July of 1966 and their task has been the promotion of unity between the two churches right across Canada. They are not only concerned with organic union but have also been attempting to show how the two churches can grow together in many areas, and how they can co - operate in such fields as social action, religious education, communications, and in other areas.

Canon Ladimer was born in Nova Scotia, received his university education in Toronto. He was a professor at the University of Western Ontario and Huron College in London from 1937 to 1940, prior to serving as a chaplain in the RCAF from 1942 to 1945. He was in charge of two parishes in the Huron Diocese before becoming rector of the Church of St. James the Apostle in Montreal where he remained from 1950 to 1964. In 1964 he was appointed General Secretary of the General Synod of the Anglican Church of Canada and served in that capacity until his appointment as Executive Commissioner in 1966.

Dr. Craig was born in Glasgow, Scotland and moved to Canada at the age of nine. In the years 1939 and 1940 he attended Albert College here in Belleville before going on to university at McMaster, Hamilton and Emmanuel College in Toronto. He served in the Canadian army from 1942 to 1946 before completing his theological education at Emmanuel College. Dr. Craig was in charge of United Churches in Caledon and St. Thomas before being appointed as minister of Trinity United Church in Peterborough in 1963. He remained in Peterborough until his appointment as Executive Commissioner for Church Union in 1966. Both commissioners have had a vital interest in Church Union for a long period of time.

Fairgrounds Racetrack Not Up to Scratch

Improved track and parimutuel betting facilities are necessary at the Belleville fair-grounds if the city is to meet expected competition from other race tracks in Central and Eastern Ontario.

This is the warning of S. B. Frost, Chief Race Track Supervisor, Canada Department of Agriculture.

Mr. Frost suggests that the Quinte Riding and Driving Club, Quinte Exhibition officials and the Belleville Parks Board sit down and work out a co - operative plan for improvement of local racing facilities.

Mr. Frost suggests that the local fairgrounds track should be widened and brought up to standard and betting facilities improved, the racing supervisor said.

Mr. Pratt said that increased competition could be expected from race tracks in the Oshawa, Peterborough, Kingston and Brockville area where improvement of facilities is either underway or planned.

The Quinte Riding and Driving Club operates harness racing at the local fairgrounds under a charter given to the Belleville Agricultural Society. The city parks board owns the fairground property.

Yesterday the city parks board agreed to a special committee being set up including representatives from all three organizations to discuss requirements for the future development of Exhibition Park.

Sidney Zoning Hearing Set

A public hearing is scheduled for May 14 to consider a zoning bylaw governing 1,263 acres of Sidney township.

The property lies adjacent to Belleville and is bounded by the western city limits, Wallbridge Rd., highway 401 and the CNR right-of-way.

The zoning was requested by Sidney to accommodate a large industry proposing to locate in the area.

Planning director Bert Kenney told Belleville and Suburban Planning Board last night that the normal process would require an official plan to be prepared for the entire township.

But, he said, the industrial demand has created the necessity for preliminary zoning for the 1,263 acres to be considered at the public hearing.

The proposed zoning bylaw establishes three areas, an M1 zone, prestige industrial; an M2 zone, general industrial and an urban holding zone, which will continue as agricultural land until needed for development.

The remainder of the township will remain unzoned until completion of an official plan.

Mr. Kenney briefly outlined the provision of the zoning bylaw, noting that no noxious industrial zoning, as defined under the health act, will be permitted in the zone.

The urban holding zone will exclude the establishment of commercial piggeries and commercial feed lot operations.

The public hearing to unveil the zoning provisions to Sidney residents will be held at Sidney township Hall at 8 p.m. May 14.

In any event, the OMB feels, the regional aspect of consumer shopping, apparently has been lost in the downtown business core.

It adds: "The board is satisfied on the evidence, that there will be in fact, a major shopping centre development somewhere in the geographical area to meet the needs of the consumer prior to any possible redevelopment of the town area."

It is desirable that municipalities have official plans as guidelines for location of shopping centres, says the decision.

However, the OMB is "satisfied that there should not be irrevocable effects on the community as a result of the locating of this shopping centre as proposed."

The board also is satisfied the development will create no traffic problems.

While the city bylaw governing the development is "not tied down on all respects," the OMB is satisfied the city has "sufficient control over its construction and attendant problems."

The agreement was to be submitted late to Ingham County Circuit Judge Sam Street Hughes for court approval.

Quebec's Activist Youth Supporting Levesque

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec's activist youth, whose radicalism has led them into the streets to demonstrate in favor of French-Canadian nationalist themes, now are carrying their fight into the April 29 Quebec general election.

All indications are that the French-speaking youth vote is heavily behind the separatist Parti Quebecois, while the "old - line" Union Nationale and Liberal parties are out in the cold on campuses.

The voting age in Quebec is 18.

Of the five parties contesting the election, the Parti Quebecois has without dispute the most effective campus organization.

Ca Urge—It's Urgent—a campus organization backing the Parti Quebecois for its "urgent" separatist policy alone, was able to rally 3,500 students at the University of Montreal three days before the separatist party officially began its campaign.

By comparison, a student Liberal said in an interview:

"As soon as you say you're a Liberal in student circles, you're treated as a sell-out. If you aren't for independence, you aren't a Quebecer . . . It's pretty discouraging."

And while Rene Levesque, leader of the Parti Quebecois, has drawn all age groups to his campaign meetings across the province, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand and Opposition Leader Robert Bourassa, leaders of the Union Nationale and Liberal parties respectively, have had less success with young people.

Mr. Bertrand's opening campaign meeting was notable for the absence of young people, and at meetings since then youth attendance has been mainly by contingents of Parti Quebecois supporters who turned up to heckle.

Before the election was called, the Liberals had only three student clubs in Quebec junior colleges, although they had others on university campuses.

Since then they have claimed 61 campus organizations, but whether this indicates strong support among students is questionable. One of the groups had only 30 members recently.

Both the Union Nationale and the Liberal parties are able to pay student campaign workers, but the Parti Quebecois, with limited funds, has had to rely on enthusiasm of its supporters.

However, the youth enthusiasm for the Parti Quebecois seems rallied around the separatist option.

Ca Urge was forced to rally all separatist students to the Parti Quebecois—regardless of their support for the party's policies beyond Quebec independence.

Premier Bertrand and Credit-iste Leader Caroll Germon have attacked the Parti Quebecois for harboring Communists and revolutionaries, a charge that may conform to the makeup of much of the party's student support.

Here's where a little thinking can save you a backache... weeks from now.

There are two basic ways to fertilize a lawn. The standard heavy-weight, short-term method, or the long-term Lawn Green method.

Lawn Green contains a balanced formula with special UF nitrogen that releases slowly into your grass. That way it keeps on feeding your lawn for weeks after initial application. You get a greener, better nourished lawn. And you get to spend more sunny afternoons with a caddy cart than your fertilizer spreader.

Another thing to remember is that 22 lbs. of concentrated Lawn Green equals 40-80 lbs. of conventional fertilizer. And one 22 lb. bag of Lawn Green covers a full 5000 square feet. So Lawn Green makes light work of things.

It's your summer. Enjoy it.

LAWN AND PLANT CARE

Weed-Free Shrubs, Ornamentals, Flower and Rock Gardens

One of the surest ways to prevent a weed from growing is to kick it before it starts. At the seed stage. This can be accomplished by using Granular Weed Preventer, containing Trifluralin.

Trifluralin prevents seeds from germinating. As a result, desirable plants can be started from seed in Trifluralin-treated soil. But, remember weeds. The trick is to time things so only the weeds are eliminated.

For Established Perennials, Shrubs and Ornamentals

Since these are not starting from seed, no problem. Just clean out existing weeds in the spring and treat with Granular Weed Preventer containing Trifluralin.

For Flower Beds

After transplanting annuals, wait 2 weeks until they become well established. Then treat with Granular Weed Preventer containing Trifluralin.

Fruit Trees

Apples, cherries, peaches, pears and plums can be very successfully grown by the home owner. But the first secret of success is regular spraying.

The second secret is, keep things simple. There's no need for you to worry about a dozen different sprays. Green Cross Fruit Tree Spray is a balanced formula that will control most common insect pests and diseases.

Bertrand Promises to 'Put Trudeau in His Place' If Elected

QUEBEC (CP)—Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand promised Thursday to "put Trudeau in his place" if Quebecers give his governing Union Nationale party a clear mandate in next Wednesday's general election.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa criticized the Union Nationals and the separatist Parti Quebecois for contradicting themselves in their campaign statements and PQ chief Rene Levesque said an independent Quebec would have no federalist political parties.

Alan Roland Mirvish, leader of the Quebec New Democratic Party, said his party may go to the Supreme Court of Canada to contest a decision by the CBC and the Canadian Radio-Television Commission which denies it free-time political broadcasts.

Mr. Bertrand said in a speech at Beauceville, 46 miles south of Quebec City, that a strong Union Nationale government would tell Prime Minister Trudeau that it is the "voice of Quebec" demanding the province's rights.

He said the Union Nationale would demand decentralization of administrative and taxation powers and impose "Canadian-style" centralized federalism.

"We are going to take the time to agree among ourselves and we are going to ask Ottawa and the other provinces to understand better the aspirations of a Quebec which wants to be more the master in its own house."

The phrase "masters in our own house" was the Quebec Liberals' campaign slogan in the 1962 Quebec general election.

Mr. Bourassa said in St. Johns the Union Nationale and the Parti Quebecois are deeply divided, as shown by the contradictory statements made by their leaders during the campaign.

The two parties "beat all for division and irresponsibility", he said.

"The same day, (Premier Jean-Jacques) Bertrand calls the 'pequistes' revolutionaries, while one of his cabinet ministers says th eGN could form an alliance with the PQ."

He also referred to Premier Bertrand's threat of double taxation on Quebecers if the federal government does not satisfy Quebec's fiscal demands.

"He was talking again yesterday about double taxation. What's changed since last month, when he was promising a whole series of tax reductions, the abolition of succession duties, a raise in tax exemptions?"

He also criticized Parti Quebecois leaders for contradicting each other on where the proposed new Montreal international airport should have been located, and asked Mr. Levesque to explain where his party expects to get the money to fulfil its promises of lower taxes.

Ottawa Won't Make Ontario Use Medicare Contribution to Reduce Size of Premiums

OTTAWA (CP) — The government is not planning to make Ontario use the federal contribution for health insurance costs to reduce the size of premiums, an official in charge of the health insurance scheme said Thursday.

R. A. Armstrong, director-general of medical insurance, told the Commons public accounts committee that legislation is only two of the participating provinces requires that the federal contribution be applied directly to the cost of the program.

Other provinces in the plan may use as much or as little as they see fit so long as their plans conform to federal requirements, he said. Prince Edward Island and Quebec are the only provinces not in the plan, although the latter is scheduled to enter July 1.

Mr. Armstrong was dragged rather reluctantly into a discussion of the operation of the plan in Ontario by Norman Cafik (L —Ontario).

The actual costs being cocontributed in the Ontario plan, which was introduced Oct. 1, are running slightly below initial estimates, he said. In its first six months of operation the cost has been close to $130,000,000 of which the federal government will pay 53 per cent or approximately $70,000,000, he said.

For the present fiscal year, he said, the federal contribution to Ontario for the plan is expected to be $176,000,000.

Mr. Armstrong refused to tell Mr. Cafik the proxies amount by which money collected in premiums plus the federal grant exceeds the cost of the program in the province. He claimed the figures are confidential but said in an interview later that newspaper reports have shown that the cost is more than covered by premiums alone.

Premiums in Ontario are the highest in any province and Mr. Cafik noted they have been the cause of protest demonstrations.

Mr. Armstrong replied that the government has no plans to his knowledge to force the province to cut the premiums.

Provincial authorities have said the federal money is being used to develop health resources, including the training of medical personnel.

Reuther Re-elected By Overwhelming Vote

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Walter P. Reuther was re-elected easily Thursday to the presidency of the United Auto Workers, sweeping his first opponent in 21 years and setting the stage for handpicking of his successor four years hence.

Challenger Art Fox, 48, from the 31,000-member Ford Local 600 of Dearborn, Mich., never was in the race as the roll was called of 3,179 convention delegates representing the UAW's 1,800,000 active and retired members.

The unofficial tally gave Reuther 13,609 votes and Fox 220. Fox was accorded only one vote from his home local.

Reuther, 62, won his 13th consecutive term—his next-to-last one barring a change in the union constitution, which forbids anyone from running after reaching age 65.

Swept in with Reuther were seven vice-presidents on his side, five of them new.

Of the five, four were elevated from at-large membership on the 26-member international executive board.

Canada was given the fifth new vice-presidency. It went to Dennis McDermott, the Canadian UAW director.

Club Activities

SENIOR CITIZENS CLUB NO. 94

Senior Citizens Club No. 94 held its first meeting in April at the Recreation Centre with the president, Mrs. Doyle opening the meeting. After a short business period, the group was entertained by a group from Picton.

At another meeting euchre was played. Winners were Mrs. Longhurst, Mrs. Storms, Mrs. Landry, Mrs. Vickers, Mr. Longhurst and Mrs. Goodfellow.

Door prizes were won by Mrs. Lonsberg and Mrs. Miles.

CNRA LADIES' AUXILIARY

The regular meeting of CNRA Ladies' Auxiliary, was held on Tuesday evening at Club Caesars.

The president Mrs. Alice Storms presided over the business after welcoming old and new members.

Reports were read by various convenors.

Tillie Nesbitt, was in charge of the monthly draw that was won by Vera Reynolds and Grace Edgecombe.

It was decided to entertain the Board of Director's and wives at the June meeting.

The meeting adjourned with Alice Haley's group entertaining and serving lunch.

REBEKAH BOWLING LEAGUE

Rebekah Afternoon Bowling League held a banquet Wednesday afternoon in the IOOF Hall with Committee women catering. After a delicious turkey dinner, the president, Eva Judge took over the meeting with the assistance of Miss Bessie Biddick filling in owing to the absence of the Noble Grand.

Winners of prizes were Edna White, Marilyn Chilvers and Annie Webb. The most improved bowler was Marion Urch and the lowest bowler was Grace Adams. Present with a perfect attendance record were Eva Judge, Clara Ironside, Maud Craig, Evelyn Elgie and Margaret Novenski.

Mrs. Lillian Williams installed the slate of officers for 1970-71. They are as follows: president, Ila Addy; vice - president, Martha Norris; secretary Maud Craig; treasurer Marilyn Chilvers.

The draw prizes were won by Jean Fleighton, Martha Norris and Nina Neal.

TWEED KINETTE CLUB

TWEED — A closed meeting was held recently by the Tweed Kinette Club in the form of a dinner meeting. Fourteen members were present.

President Marion Cope presided over the business session. The most important item discussed was the Kinsmen-Kinette auction sale to be held in Tweed May 8. The money from this venture will be used for administration purposes. Donations except clothing are needed badly.

The recent bridge and euchre party was a success financially.

June 1 is blitz night for the Red Shield campaign in Tweed and the Kinette Club will be assisting Captain May and her helpers that evening.

Winning OBC Students

Chris Durling of Trenton, OBC's secretary of the week, receives some instructions from a fellow student, Burton Smith, chosen executive of the future.

Secretary and Executive of Future Elected by Students of OBC

The Ontario Business College has a secretary of the week and an executive of the future, and it's the result of a school election prompted by National Secretaries Week being celebrated this week.

Chris Durling, of Trenton, was picked by the students in an election as secretary of the week. Her fellow student, Burton Smith of Bermuda was chosen executive of the future.

Mrs. C. A. Brown, principal of the school, explained that the election in the school not only served to pick the two proud students, but offered experience for her pupils in the details of having a vote.

She said that a polling booth was engineered and all the students voted in it, offering a secret ballot, like a real election.

After the voting by the students, the staff members also voted and the results of the student vote were unaltered.

"It wasn't a popularity poll," Mrs. Brown said. Achievement in work was the basis for the vote.

The two students were presented with corsage and boutonniere and travel alarm clocks by Mrs. Brown.

Church Groups

ST. COLUMBA WOMEN

The Presbyterian Women of St. Columba Church met on Monday evening. This was primarily "visiting night" so after a brief prayer of goodwill, the members split into small groups and went out to visit a number of Senior Citizens throughout the city.

Later the visiting groups returned to the church hall where it was unanimously agreed that the girls enjoyed this opportunity as much as the folks they visited. It is hoped that many members will continue to visit Senior Citizens under a special program now headed by Mrs. Gwen Bean.

Legion News

LEGION LA

The regular monthly meeting of the Royal Canadian Legion Ladies' Auxiliary, Branch 99 was held in the legion hall April 21 with a good attendance. The president, Comrade Edna Semark, opened the meeting in the usual manner. After the opening exercises, the initiation of two new members took place. Comrades Isobel Hibbard and Evelyn Turner were welcomed by all.

There were five applications for membership received from Mrs. Mona Brown, Miss Carol Riopel, Mrs. Joan Laakso, Mrs. Ruth (Billie) Dawkins and Mrs. Mary (Mollie) Reid.

On April 4 Regional Bowling was held in Clairmont with Clairmont Legion hosting the event. Forty - eight teams participated and the top teams were as follows: 1-Peterborough; 2nd-Bowmanville; 4th - Trenton; 5th - Deseronto; and Gananoque and Belleville tied for 6th place. Comrades Gwen Semark, Dorothy Rashotte, Jean Burshaw, Dorothy Purdey, Margaret Carson and Lillian Cummings were on the Belleville team.

On April 18 Branch 99, LA hosted the first zone dart tournament with six teams participating. There were two teams each from Marmora, Deseronto and Belleville.

The results were as follows: 1st - Deseronto No. 2; 2nd - Belleville No. 2 and 3rd - Belleville No. 1 team. It is hoped that next season there will be more taking part in darts.

There will be a zone rally in Madoc May 23. Money should be sent in Comrade Daisy Jeffs. The deadline is May 11.

Comrade Gwen Semark reported a successful rummage sale. It was also announced that the following banquets are coming up: bowling, April 24; wedding, April 25; district shuffleboard, May 8; general hospital, May 15 and a wedding May 16.

The phoning committee will only call when a general meeting has been changed. The general meeting is the third Tuesday of every month except July and August.

The next meeting will be May 19. At this meeting there will be nominations and election of the sports officer.

The 25th anniversary of VE day will be commemorated with a drumhead service on the Armory lawn Sunday, May 3. The auxiliary color party will be in attendance.

Houchin — Ruddick

MR. AND MRS. IAN HOUCHIN

St. Thomas Anglican Church was the scene of the recent wedding of Susan Karen Ruddick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Gordon Ruddick, St. Catharines and Ian Robert Miller Houchin of Windsor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Edward Houchin of Belleville. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. Peter Teti and organist was Alec Gordon.

The bride wore a full-length white gown of Juliet styling with fitted ruched bodice, full sheer sleeves closed at the wrist with two pearl buttons and a full flowing skirt of silk chiffon. A small floral headpiece centred the chiffon mood. She carried an arm bouquet of white cadia lilies.

Maid of honor was Miss Valise Ruddick, sister of the bride, wearing a full - length halter style gown of olive silk jersey accented with beige and matching shoes. She carried an arm bouquet of daffodils and daisies.

Bridesmaid was Mrs. Paul Embury, sister of the bridegroom. She wore a full-length sleeveless gown in muted shades of peach, lime and yellow with a flowing panel at the back. She carried a bouquet of flowers similar to those of the maid of honor.

Best man was Paul Gordon Embury, brother-in-law of the bridegroom. Usher was Danny Weinburg.

For the reception held at the home of the bridegroom, the bridegroom's mother greeted the guests wearing a champagne beige two - piece ensemble, matching accessories and burnt orange tulle hat with corsage of orange delight roses.

For the wedding trip the bride wore a two - piece black quilted evening pant suit, hip - length tunic and flares with a long black silk scarf.

The couple will reside in Vancouver, B.C.

Music Helps Round Out Personality

HALIFAX (CP) — Music is a necessity for a broad, general education that rounds out the personality, says Dr. George Bornoff, professor of music at Dalhousie University.

Dr. Bornoff, here recently on a lecture and demonstration visit among high school music teachers, feels that a child with a knowledge of music can transfer his or her appreciation to other subjects and never loses the gift.

The purpose of teaching music in the schools "is not to produce hordes of musicians but to cultivate an interest in the children for culture."

Dr. Bornoff says that any child can learn to play an instrument because of an innate ability. The earlier it is taught the more accomplished the pupil and the easier it is to learn.

Officers Are Elected At Club Meeting

An election of officers was the main item on the business agenda, when the Belleville Business and Professional Women's Club held its meeting at the Sun Valley Motor Inn on Monday evening.

Prior to the election a number of business items were discussed and various reports given. A summary of the results of the recent successful fashion show held at Club Orchard was outlined to the club by Shirley Woodcox. An interesting sidelite to the report was the fact that three members alone were responsible for 85 per cent of total ticket sales. These members were given a well deserved round of applause.

A slate of officers was brought in by the nominating committee and chairman of the committee, Mrs. Mcmillan conducted the election of officers, the following were elected: president, Jeanne Stephenson; first vice-president, Lois Brown; second vice-president, Marion McFaul; recording secretary Marcella David; corresponding secretary, Allison Stickle; treasurer, Colombe Both; federation assistant, Gleta McNeil; emblem, Mary Gleeson; program and projects, Peggy Wood; publicity and public relations, Helene Edwards; plaudit, Hazel Gates; personal development, Mabel Gullfoyle; ways and means, Wilma Carr; telephone committee chairman, Mary LeSurf; budget and finance, Bettie Anderson; assistant, Edna McCabe; bulletin, Dorothy Brown, and resolutions, by-laws and regulations, Charlotte Lockyer. These officers will be installed at a future meeting.

Club president Dorothy Ellis assisted by Lois Brount installed our new member Helene Edwards.

Preparations are now well under way for the celebration of the club's 30th birthday. Special arrangements have been made and guest speaker for the event will be Mrs. Margaret Ashdown, National president.

To conclude the meeting an interesting demonstration on floral arrangements was given by Mrs. Florence Moon of Trenpier's Flower Shop and on the completion of each, a lucky member was presented with same.

Successful Living

Grandma's Namesake Is Not Using Her Name

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Our son said soon he wanted a nice little girl to name after me, his mother. Their third child was a little girl so she is supposed to be named Dorothy Anne Jean.

Dorothy is my name. Jean is his mother in - law's name. My daughter - in - law and I are good friends and she said they would call her Anne so her name Dorothy wouldn't get mixed up with mine. Now this little grandchild has shown me her school report and her name was signed Anne Jean.

Do you think this is right? I'm beginning to wonder if she really was named after me. Not that it's any of my business, but I do feel hurt. — Puzzled and Hurt.

Dear Puzzled: I'll wager all three annes are on the birth certificate, but if your daughter-in-law is your good friend, there's no harm in asking what happened to "Dorothy."

You were honored in the first place. Assume they love you and are proud of you. Accept whatever explanation is offered and retain the hurt feelings enter into it. You are going to be a grandmother a long time.

* * *

Dear Doris: I. does bridesmaid have to stay with her usher after the ceremony. If there is to be a dance afterwards?

¼. Is it proper to charge admission to relatives for the dance if it is an open dance?

2. If there is to be a get-together after the dance, where should it be? The bride's or groom's home?

4. Does the groom's brother have to be best man if his wife is matron of honor, or would it be just as good if he escorted his mother, as her husband is deceased and someone else is best man. — June Bride.

Dear Bride: 1, Bridesmaids and ushers don't have to stay paired after they have carried out their assignments as wedding attendants. But they often do.

2. No, never.

3. It's the bride's day and the bride's "do." Since her family are hosting it she provides the location. Of course, if the groom's home happens to be larger and is offered, why not?

4. No. The groom has the say about who the best man is. It could be a brother, or a very close friend. Sounds to me as if in your case this is already decided.

* * *

Confidential to Susie: It can be awkward to get involved with two brothers. A girl may find herself preferring the one who dates her least. Yet neither she nor the boy she likes wants to hurt the other brother.

A successful transfer has often been accomplished. Not by avoiding anyone, but by managing some involvement in a common interest with the preferred brother — without being unduly aggressive, of course!

Colors Are Presented at Meeting

The monthly meeting of the ANAF Auxiliary was held on Monday night with president Mary Northey was in charge of the meeting as president Terry Dorrell is ill in the Belleville hospital. The meeting opened with the presentation of the colors by Janet MacDonald and Jean Seaman.

Mrs. Lees from the Salvation Army was introduced and spoke regarding the festivation Army blitz in May.

The draw-based service plan for May 5 was discussed. It is hoped that many of the members will attend this service. This year is the 25th commemoration of V.E. Day.

A report was read on the sports banquet where many trophies and gifts were presented.

The sports executive for this year includes: Bessie Buckley, chairman; Alice Storms, Jr., sec.-treasurer; and Mary Northey, publicity.

Members on the sick list are: Counselor Terry Carmack and Elizabeth Loadbeck in the Belleville hospital, and Millie McKenna and Anna Feeney, at home.

After the meeting adjourned, Ruth Gross showed some lovely slides of a trip to England and the continent.

Kitchen Tested Recipes

Date, Orange and Nut Loaf

By MARY MOORE

LETTER: Would you like my recipe for Date and Nut Loaf? I put this mixture in two bead cheese loaf pans I got from my butcher. — Mrs. Laura J. M.

ANSWER: My secretary Betty tested your Date Loaf and we found it just as good as you described.

DATE ORANGE NUT LOAF
(courtesy Laura J. M.)

1 large orange unpeeled, cut up
2 cups dates (packed before grinding)
2 cups boiling water
2 tsps. baking soda
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
2 tsps. vanilla
2 cups brown sugar
3 cups sifted all - purpose flour
½ tsp. salt
2 eggs
1 cup broken nuts

Put oranges and dates through grinder catching all juice. In large bowl to ground fruits add the boiling water and baking soda and stir to blend. Add butter or margarine, vanilla, brown sugar and mix. Add sifted flour and salt. Then add eggs and nuts and beat to mix well.

Turn into two greased and paper-lined loaf pans and bake on center rack of oven at 350 deg. Fahr. for 50-60 min. Do not overbake this Date Loaf as it is quite full of sweet ingredients and might burn easily. Cool on cake racks. Wrap in wax paper then foil and chill 24 hrs. when glaze appears on top. Slices perfectly. A good batch of fruit bread for a large family.

QUESTION: Would you repeat Zeni's De Luxe Brownies? It has been popular since I was married 14 years ago. — Mamie S.

ANSWER: ZENI'S DE LUXE BROWNIES

In top of double boiler mix together ½ cup butter, 5 tbsps. cocoa, ¼ cup white sugar, 1 egg, 1 tsp. vanilla. When mixed, stir over boiling water until butter melts. Remove from heat and add 1 cup cereal, ½ cup chopped walnuts, 2 cups graham wafer crumbs. Butter a 9 x 9" pan and press mixture smoothly into it. When set and cold frost with Icing: 2 cups icing sugar, ¼ cup butter, 2 tbsps. prepared vanilla powder, and just enough milk to make of easy spreading consistency. Over this icing drizzle 2 squares melted unsweetened chocolate. Let stand until cold. Cut into squares or oblongs with very sharp knife.

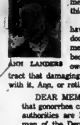
Mother: "Betty, I'm trying to visit with Aunt Mary. You must not keep interrupting."



Betty: "I want to talk to her, too."

Aunt Mary: "I guess it's time for me to go now, anyhow."

Guests may enjoy visiting with a child for a limited time, but usually it's the mother they come to see. Limit the child's participation to a reasonable amount and don't let her make a continual nuisance of herself while adults are trying to talk.

Ann Landers Column on VD Questioned by Reader

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Do you think you can tear yourself away from the sex perverts and other assorted kooks long enough to answer a sensible question?

ANN LANDERS

Several months ago you wrote a column about venereal disease. You made the statement that gonorrhea caused (among other things) arthritis.

I've read a great deal about arthritis and have never seen such a statement. In fact, the doctors with whom I have discussed this ailment say no cure for arthritis can be found because the cause is not known. I think you owe it to every person who has arthritis to retract that damaging statement or identify your authority. Get with it, Ann, or retire. — MEMPHIS.

DEAR MEMPHIS: I did indeed make the statement that gonorrhea can cause, among other things, arthritis. My authorities are Dr. John Najarian, Professor and Chairman of the Department of Surgery, University of Minnesota and Dr. Robert Stolar, Associate Professor of Medicine at Georgetown School of Medicine and Professor at Howard Medical School in Washington, D.C.

Arthritis is an inflammation of the joints. The vast majority of arthritics have either rheumatoid or osteoarthritis. In some cases the cause for the inflammation is not known. In gonorrheal arthritis, however, the cause IS known because the bacteria has been isolated and identified. Your apologies are accepted.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: After 12 years of what I thought was a good marriage, my husband began to lose interest in me. I blamed Mike's long hours, financial pressures, everything under the sun. Finally I asked him if there was another woman. He said, "No."

Mike's boss has always been like a son and me like a daughter. I decided to confide in him. I don't know what possessed me but on a wild hunch I asked if "the other woman" could be Mike's problem. He said, "Yes — it's very possible." Then he began to speak freely, assuming I knew all about it. The "other woman," it turns out, is the boss's wife. I nearly passed out.

Her reputation is not good. This isn't the first time she's been involved with a man at the plant. (She works there.) It's the first time my husband has been involved with another woman, however, and I don't know what to do. The boss does not want to fire Mike. He's sure the affair will end before long and advised me to keep quiet and keep the light in the window. What do you say? — UNHAPPY.

DEAR UNHAPPY: Mike's boss gave you good advice. In addition to the light in the window, desrie, keep a fire in the furnace.

House Doesn't Bother to Vote Formally on Benson's Budget

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson's March 12 budget, which didn't levy new taxes, was given a passing glance Thursday as the Commons ended a six-day budget debate with the emphasis on pet peeves.

The House didn't bother to vote formally on the budget when the debate ended. Instead it passed on division—indicating dissent—a motion approving in general Mr. Benson's policies.

The sharpest criticism came from Robert Thompson (PC—Red Deer), who said the budget was balanced at the expense of provincial and municipal needs. He and Marvin Howe (PC—Wetaskiwin) also said the two-per-cent social development tax was to raise funds for medical care insurance and was being misused to balance the budget.

Mr. Benson estimated a 1976-'77 surplus of $250,000,000 on revenue of $13,150,000,000 and spending of $12,900,000,000.

Prime Minister Trudeau and Health Minister John Munro came in for more criticism than Mr. Benson, however.

The Commons turns today to a bill amending the Canada Shipping Act.

Lorne Nystrom (NDP—Yorkton-Melville) said Mr. Trudeau has done more to harm national unity than any other prime minister.

Mr. Nystrom, at 23 the youngest MP, said bilingualism and biculturalism are fine but the government must solve the bread-and-butter issues or face further alienation in the country. Not only must the West was questioning the federal system, he said.

The war on poverty had turned into a war on the poor as inflation was fought with unemployment, high interest rates, declining farm incomes, frozen pensions, and attempts to freeze wages.

Mr. Munro took his lumps from fellow Liberal Harold Stafford (Elgin), who said the health minister has taken a "myopic" view in saying the medical manpower situation is good in Canada.

Mr. Stafford said it isn't as good as many East European countries and is being kept at present levels only by an inflow of doctors from needy countries. He quoted a United Nations report that labelled Canada "a manpower bandit."

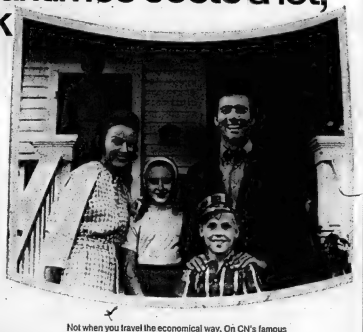
Developing countries would soon check the costly outflow of doctors they had trained. Meanwhile, Canadian youths who wanted to take medicine were being turned away from medical schools here.

In the Senate, the hate propaganda bill was described as an invitation to incite breaches of the peace. Senator Allister Grosart (PC—Ontario), during second reading of the bill, said an accident might be created deliberately to make a speech-maker liable to prosecution under the legislation.

Senator Grosart also said the bill should be referred to the Supreme Court of Canada to determine whether it conflicts with the Bill of Rights and whether it is really necessary to protect minorities.

Newfoundland to Repeal Strike Ban

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Repeal of anti-strike legislation, record expenditures with no tax increase and continued reliance of federal payments were among major points of the 1976 Newfoundland budget brought down Thursday.



Mr. Smallwood said legislation forbidding non-professional hospital workers to strike would be replaced by a system giving "full and complete recognition of the principle and practice of collective bargaining."

Grants Promise Quiets Beefs

challenge to the provincial system of government.

The treasurer invited municipalities to join Ontario in urging the federal government for tax reform that would make substantially greater revenues available to the Ontario government, and through it, to the municipalities.

Mr. McKeough took a different tack. He told municipal officials to stop asking for more money and to start telling the province how the present monies should be distributed.

"Don't just request larger grants, have some ideas on what conditional grants can be eliminated, what should be the pattern of provincial transfer payments and whether there are better methods of distributing this aid."

He suggested four steps as areas for reform to assist financially-stricken municipalities—changes in local taxation and municipal transfer payments and reform of capital financing and finance administration.

Mayor Vic Copps of Hamilton, who made the major address on behalf of the municipalities, offered wider proposals.

—Provincial payment of 50 per cent of education costs instead of 39.

—Unconditional grants instead of provincial grants matched 60 per cent of municipal spending.

—Establishment of equalization grants for municipalities which can have tax-raising ability equal to a provincial average.

—Acceptance by the province of 50 per cent of debentures issued for municipal capital projects in larger municipalities.

After Mr. Copps' speech, there were further insights into the province's plans for aid to its municipalities.

Revenue Minister John White said Ontario is still considering making house mortgage payments deductible from the provincial portion of income-tax, but nothing can be done until it is known what Ottawa will do.

Mr. McKeough said there will be legislation permitting municipalities to grant relief from reassessment in cases where there is a heavy shift of the property tax burden from one type of property to another.

But Mr. McKeough rejected a proposal from Ottawa Controller Ernie Sims that the province establish a single branch to assist municipalities in negotiating with their employees.

Mr. McKeough said that's a job for an agency created by Ontario's municipal associations. Municipalities might do better if they "come under equipped to the bargaining table" he suggested.

The session left convinced you are going to the bargaining table as fully equipped as you might like," he said, in suggesting this would be a program for a municipal league which is being formed from among the province's municipal associations.

As discussion turned to tax reform, speaker after speaker agreed with the province's long-range plans, but asked repeatedly, "what do we do in the interim?"

Mr. McKeough said he would realist any program of provincial grants made on an interim basis to meet "ad hoc solutions." That has been done so often in the past that Ontario's grant structure is "rife with inconsistencies."

Mayor Robert Speck of Mississauga, chairman of the first day's session and president of the Association of Ontario Mayors and Reeves, expressed disappointment at the lack of discussion of broad issues among the 400 delegates.

He hoped the conference could agree on one thing, the defining of the role of the municipality and what its responsibilities should be. If that is done the three-day conference will be a success, he said, and he will support a provincial-municipal committee to establish areas of jurisdiction.

Mayor W. D. Tanjey of St. Thomas said the jurisdictions for expenditures have to be divided so that property tax is reserved only for services to property, while the province provides for revenues for services to people which are "damaging" the municipalities.

Mayor Jack Wilson of Grimsby complained that federal-provincial spending restraint programs are preventing many things from being done, and Mr. MacNaughton agreed that a "monstrous situation" is being created.

There was a major difference of opinion among the municipal representatives as to how they should seek additional revenues.

Both Mayor Copps and Etobicoke Mayor E. Valorie Swaigen projected the idea of such additional revenues as a share of sales and income taxes; but the latter idea was supported by Mayor Nick Kasch of Cornwall and Mayor A. D. Hundy of Sarnia.

The first announcement of the conference was reserved for northern members. Mr. Roberts announced creation of a new department of mines and northern affairs, opening of regional government offices in the north and establishment of a Northern Ontario Development Corp. with its own budget.

Northern members of the legislature, interviewed later, were pleased with the announcement. Although opposition parties said the development corporation would need a large budget when one has as yet been provided.

Development Minister Stanley Randall said the northern corporation will have enough money for its initial work, and more will be provided if necessary. It will take over administration of the $1,000,000 already provided for loans to the tourist business, he said.

The stationing of northern affairs officers in 25 Northern Ontario municipalities will begin in July with the opening of a regional office in Thunder Bay. Another will be located somewhere in the northeast section. Eight district offices will be located in larger municipalities. Remaining offices will be opened with a year.

Piasecki Hangup Disturbs Chamber

PICTON (Staff) — An emergency meeting of the Prince Edward Chamber of Commerce will be called at the end of next week unless members receive information from the Hon. George Hees concerning the future of Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. in Picton.

The announcement was made today by Jack Purtelle, president of the Chamber.

A spokesman from Mr. Hees' Ottawa office said yesterday that's statement is expected from the minister of defence Les Cadieux within 10 days' time.

Mr. Purtelle reported the Chamber is working in conjunction agreement with members of Prince Edward county council toward obtaining an answer from the federal government regarding Piasecki Aircraft's role in this community.

Esposito Adds Three

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

John Bucyk and Phil Esposito combined for six points Thursday in Boston Bruins' 5-3 Stanley Cup semi-final win over Chicago Black Hawks.

Esposito scored one goal, his 11th of the playoffs, and assisted twice to move three points ahead of teammate Bobby Orr. Bucyk scored twice and assisted once, moving up to a share of fourth with Phil Goyette of St. Louis Blues.

Fred Stanfield assisted once for Boston to move among the leaders along with Larry Keenan, who scored both goals in the Blues 3-2 loss to Pittsburgh Penguins Thursday.

The leaders:

Hawks' Task Simple: Win Next Four Games

BOSTON (CP) — Not for 25 years has a team been down 3-0 in a best-of-seven Stanley Cup playoff and come back to win — but that's the situation facing Chicago Black Hawks.

Boston Bruins defeated the Hawks 5-3 Thursday night to go three games up on Chicago in their National Hockey League eastern final.

Sunday, at 3 p.m. EST, will be the moment of truth. If Boston wins, they'll move into the Stanley Cup final against the National League champions. If not, the series will move back to Chicago for one game, then alternate until a winner is decided.

Boston has won all three games by a three-goal margin — 6-3, 4-1 and 5-2.

To win Thursday night, the Bruins had to come from behind for the first time against the Hawks. Chicago led 2-1 at the end of the first, but Boston pushed through three in the second and came up with a stranger tally in the third.

Johnny Bucyk got two of the Bruins goals, the others coming from Wayne Cashman, Wayne Carleton and Phil Esposito. Cliff Koroll and Pit Martin scored for Chicago.

For Carleton and Koroll, it was their first goals in the playoffs.

Both coaches—Billy Reay for Chicago and Harry Sinden for Boston—picked the third period save by Boston goalie Gerry Cheevers as the turning point of the game.

The Hawks were down two goals at the time and rookie defenceman Keith Magnuson was fighting to redeem himself. He had been off on penalties each time Bucyk scored.

Then, early in the third, the young redhead crashed in, took a pass from Stan Mikita and fired on Cheevers from about 12 feet. The goalie's big left hand snaked out and grabbed the puck.

"It was a big stop . . . a big stop," Sinden said.

"We weren't playing all that well up to that point. If Magnuson had got that goal and scored it 4-3, I don't know whether we could have snapped out of it and held them. If you want to talk about a turning point, I guess that was one."

Reay agreed. "It was unbelievable that it wasn't in the net. One of the greatest saves I've ever seen. Tony Esposito made one like that for us on Frank Mahovlich in Detroit and the two were on a par."

Thursday was Esposito's 27th birthday and the capacity crowd —the 42nd sellout in succession in old Boston Garden—serenaded him with "happy birthday".

Chicago, which has started hard in all three games, kept the pressure on Thursday and Reay said later:

"If we can just come out like that again Sunday, the series is ours."

However, the last time a team came back after being down three games was in 1942 when Toronto Maple Leafs surged back against Detroit Red Wings.

The action was hot all night Thursday but it was the third period that was particularly frustrating for the Hawks.

First Magnuson missed the best scoring opportunity of the night on Cheevers' glove save, then he was robbed again when the goalie, out of position, got his big goal stick up to flick a rebound puck into the crowd.

Players began bumping and rubber chickens flopped to the ice from the crowd.

Then came the final humiliation.

With a minute to go, Reay pulled Tony Esposito for a sixth attacker.

The clock showed only 31 seconds left in the game when Bucyk cleared down the ice, Martin ended up with the puck, there was the flash of a poke check and, as Martin tried to control the puck, it dribbled off his stick into the Chicago net.

Phil Esposito was credited with the goal—his 11th of the playoffs, which puts him one goal away from the single-season record held by Jean Beliveau and Maurice Richard.

Esposito said "I poke-checked and hit his stick". Did he think he deserved the goal?

"I'll take a couple of these," he said.

Penguins Beat Belting Blues At Own Game

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Pittsburgh Penguins, backed by a record sellout crowd of 12,923, turned the tide in their Stanley Cup semi-final playoff Thursday by borrowing a few pages from St. Louis Blues' play book.

The Penguins used the hard body-checking style of the Blues to effectively bottle St. Louis up in its own end of the rink while scoring the first three goals. The same checking made the three goals stand up for a 3-2 win, which cut the Blues lead in the best-of-seven series to 3-1.

Tough checking and early goals had earned the Blues 3-1 and 4-1 victories in the first two games at St. Louis. The fourth game in the series is set for here Sunday night and the fifth back in St. Louis next Tuesday.

The Penguins also did an outstanding job of killing off six minor penalties and allowed the Blues one goal during a fighting major to winger Glen Sather.

"Any time a team kills off penalties like those guys did," said coach Red Kelly of his team, "they're going to be hard to beat."

Pittsburgh itself scored the first goal on a power play when right winger Ken Schinkel fired a hard shot from the point that was deflected past goalie Jacques Plante.

"The big blow was that first goal, and Blues coach Scotty Bowman.

"I was worried about this game because we had a tough series with Minnesota and two rough games against the Penguins. I think our team looked a little tired tonight."

Rookie centre Michel Briere was the night's best player as he set up one other Pittsburgh goal by Jean Pronovost and scored one himself.

He carried the puck in behind the Blues goal and fought off a pair of St. Louis defenders to lay a pass out to Pronovost, who was parked in front of the net, and Plante had no chance on the quick shot.

Three minutes later, the Penguins again had the power-play advantage. Briere pounced on a loose puck near the blue line and fired a hard shot. Plante appeared to catch the puck but it dribbled through his pads into the goal.

"We knew he was a good hockey player," Bowman said of Briere. "He's pretty fast. And he looks so much better than any other player they have because they are mostly a defensive team."

Larry Keenan scored twice for the Blues. His first goal came on the power play early in the third period when he moved in on the right wing for a clear shot at Les Binkley.

"He got the second, and his fifth of the playoffs, about four minutes later when he pounced on a loose puck directly in front of Binkley and fired a quick shot past the Penguins goalie.

The persistent checking of the Penguins held the Blues in their own zone through most of the remaining minutes. Bowman pulled Plante out of goal in favor of an extra attacker with a minute and 20 seconds left in the game, but the Blues couldn't get a clear shot at Binkley.

Through the whole contest, the Blues had only 16 shots at Binkley, while the Penguins tried 27 at Plante.

Sather's major, late in the second period, came after he cut Blues centre Frank St. Marseille with a high stick. Bowman said after the game that St. Marseille's cut above the eye was not serious and he would probably be back in action for the next game.

Plinking for pleasure.

Plinking is the name given to casual target shooting with small calibre guns. The name is probably derived from the sound of a bullet hitting a tin can, the traditional target of the plinker.

Plinking offers many pleasures as a pastime for the individual or group.

Besides being a year round activity, plinking is inexpensive, relaxing, and offers the personal satisfaction of developing skill and accuracy with a gun.

But probably more important, plinking is an excellent introduction to shooting and a way of teaching new shooters the respect and responsibility needed when handling a gun.

For information on how you can progress from plinking to target shooting, write for a copy of CIL Shooting Sports Program. CIL, P.O. Box 10, Montreal 101, Quebec.

The CIL Model 470. A handsome automatic with clip magazine, chambered for .22 long rifle. Its chequered stock and fore-end is finished in dark, rich walnut. It also has a hooded ramp foresight and a fold down adjustable rear sight. An ideal rifle for small game, pests and plinking.

Pastes Senator Pitching

Yanks' Rookie Boosts Average 70 Points

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Danny Cater, acquired in the off-season by New York Yankees from Oakland Athletics to add bat power, proved his worth Thursday night as the Yankees clubbed Washington Senators 11-2 in one of two scheduled American League games.

Cater carried a .308 batting average into the four-game Washington series and raised it to .340 with three hits Monday and three more Tuesday. But he was held hitless in eight plate visits Wednesday in an 18-inning marathon, won by the Senators 3-1, and his average dropped 47 points. Thursday's rebound moved Cater back up to .338.

Bobby Murcer contributed a double and two singles to the New York victory and the winners were loaded 10 walks.

The Yankees banged in front with a five-run outburst in the third, but the Senators came right back to tie the score 5-5 in their half of the third inning, including Frank Howard's three-run homer, his third of the season. The winners pulled ahead permanently with three scores in the fourth.

Rookie John Cumberland replaced New York starter Bill Burbach and scattered four Washington hits over 6 1-3 innings for his first major league victory.

Bill Mazeroski's three-run double sparked a five-run Pittsburgh explosion in the seventh inning, and the Pirates survived an Orlando Cepeda grand-slam homer to beat the Braves.

Manny Sanguillen drove in three runs for the Pirates with a homer and a single and Hank Aaron hit his 599th career homer for the Braves.

It was Pittsburgh's fourth straight victory and the sixth straight loss for the Braves.

Bobby Knoop cracked a home run and Minnesota reliever Ron Perranoski's throwing error gave Chicago two runs, helping the White Sox trim the Twins.

Knoop's eighth-inning homer tied the score at 4-4 for Chicago and then the White Sox scored three more runs—two of them when Perranoski threw Lois Aparicio's bunt into left field.

All Ontario Open for Trout by Saturday

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Southern Ontario trout fishermen finally get a chance to cast their lines Saturday when the season gets into full swing.

The season for speckled, brown and rainbow trout has already opened in much of the province but the Saturday date marks openings in southwestern Ontario, parts of eastern Ontario and Algonquin Park.

The opening in these areas Saturday is one week earlier than usual but it does not appear to be in the angler's favor. The department of lands and forests reports high and muddy creeks and rivers in the south and a late breakup and treacherous ice conditions in the North.

A department spokesman said it has been a "backward year" because of the unusually high water.

"The rain we've had in the south lately has flooded most good trout holes, but the Georgian Bay spring rainbow run should be starting soon—perhaps this weekend," he said.

Because of the high and muddy water, the spokesman said worms and salmon-egg sacks, dragged along the bottom of creeks and rivers, likely will be the best method for fishing rainbows.

Anglers should consult local department offices for specific opening dates and limits.

Season openings vary throughout the province, with pike and pickerel openings generally from May 3-15 and largemouth and smallmouth bass after June 20.

The lake trout season is open throughout the province as of Saturday.

Sydney J. Harris Says

'Pot' Now Affluent's Drug

Speaking of the different kinds of treatment accorded to the affluent and to the marginal citizen, as I was the other day, reminded me that Barry Goldwater has lately come out for gentler penalties against marijuana offenders.

This hardest of hard-liners in the law-and-order field admitted that his view of the subject had been changed by "personal considerations." All this can mean is that somebody close to him was puffing on pot and got his hand caught in the act.

For a long time, marijuana was largely a low-class habit. Most of its devotees were shanny or scummy, or played vibes in some after-hours dive, or possessed a skin-tone not commonly admitted to membership in the local Bath and Tennis Club.

Then the sons and daughters of executives, of professional people, of prosperous suburbanites, even of governmental figures, began to experiment with pot. It moved from the cultural underworld into the colleges and clubs, and became in itself almost a badge of rebellion against middle-class mores and suburban respectability.

When this happened, it did not take long for the nation's opinion-makers and decision-givers to change their whole attitude.

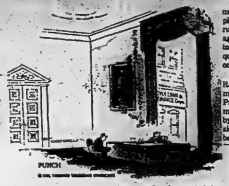
Suddenly, it seemed horrid and unjust to send these "nice" boys and girls to prison for long terms for a first offence of marijuana smoking. The fact that the skimmers and the scummers and the jazz musicians and the pigmented minorities had been busted — and busted hard—for the very same offence was written off as a regrettable oversight.

We are now in a mood of understanding and forgiveness, of recognizing the medical and psychiatric aspects of the problem, of distinguishing between those who merely smoke pot and those who sell it purely for profit.

But all this tolerance and understanding did not arise because of a wakened sense of compassion; rather, it rose to the surface when the pinches got dangerously close to home, when the busted kids were no longer poor, dumb, black, brown or mottled, but went to the best schools, could afford the best lawyers, and were thus "experimenters" or "faddists" instead of "dope fiends."

Of course, the laws against marijuana are harsh and silly and unenforceable. When Barry Goldwater admits it, you had better believe it. But why should it take "personal considerations" to make this clear in a nation presumably dedicated to the same "liberty and justice for all"?

Queen's Will Build New Arts Complex



KINGSTON (CP) — Dr. John Deutsch, principal of Queen's University, announced Thursday construction will begin immediately on an arts and social science complex.

Architect R. J. Thom of Toronto told a meeting of the university senate the project will be part of a chain of buildings connected by an internal walkway.

The George Richardson Stadium will be moved to make way for the building, which also will provide parking space for 1,600 cars.

Cost estimates range from $22,000,000 to $30,000,000.

Roman Wants Ottawa To Stockpile Uranium

ELLIOT LAKE, Ont. (CP) — Steven B. Roman, chairman of Denison Mines Ltd. of Toronto, said Thursday the federal government should extend its uranium-stockpiling program to ensure the future of the uranium industry and the communities dependent upon it.

About 800 resident of this mining community listened as Mr. Roman, the town's chief employer, criticized Ottawa's decision in March to forbid the sale of controlling interest in Denison to a United States-controlled corporation.

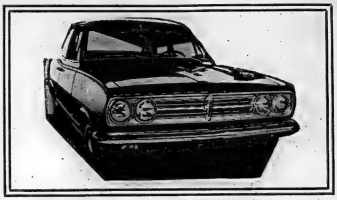
Mr. Roman noted the Denison mine is operating at only one-third capacity and that it cannot afford to continue its stockpiling program.

MPs Question CRTC Ruling

OTTAWA (CP) — The Commons broadcasting committee plans to add its voice to a chorus of controversy raised against the government regulatory agency's proposal to require more Canadian programs on radio and television.

John M. Reid (L—Kenora-Rainy River), committee chairman, said Thursday a report to Parliament will include comment on aspects of the proposal by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, which has been greeted by protests from commercial broadcasters.

Interviewed after the committee heard criticism of the CRTC Thursday from the Canadian Association of Broadcasters and the privately-owned CTV network, Mr. Reid said he agrees with the CRTC's objectives but questions "the methodology" of reaching them.



One aspect of the proposals that caused concern, he said, is "the apparent high element of protection built into them" against foreign broadcasting.

Another question raised by the CRTC's plan, he said, is whether it is reasonable to expect the broadcasting segment of communications to carry the burden of fostering Canadianism, when books and magazines escape such regulation.

Red China Launches First Earth Satellite

NORAD Radar Tracks Vehicle

HONK KONG (Reuters) — China has launched its first earth satellite,PR dkgenina8 first earth satellite, Radio Peking announced today.

The launching, which took place Friday, was successful, the radio said.

The satellite was circling the earth every 114 minutes, the radio said.

With the launching, the Chinese people were "welcoming the great 'seventies'," the radio said.

The official New China news agency said the 381-pound satellite broadcasts the music of "Tung Fang Hung"—The East is Red—at a frequency of 20.009 megacycles.

The agency said the satellite's orbit ranges from 273 miles to 1,609 miles above the earth at an angle to the equator of 68.5 degrees.

The launching is likely to add to worries in the West over China's already known capability to produce nuclear weapons. The question for some time has been how the Chinese would deliver them to a target.

Japan recently put up a satellite, joining the United States, the Soviet Union and France in the club of nations that have developed the rocketry to accomplish such a feat.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — The North American Air Defence Command headquarters here has been tracking the earth-orbiting satellite launched by Communist China since its launch Friday, and a spokesman said today the satellite is flying regularly over the United States.

NORAD said today it had a good radar contact on the satellite and confirmed that it's apogee, perigee and inclination is as broadcast by Peking.

Bomb Destroys Life Work

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Two firebombs caused a $100,000 blaze at a Stanford University research centre Friday and destroyed or damaged the work of 75 scholars, Stanford officials reported.

The blaze in the pre-dawn hours came a few hours after police evicted a group of anti-war demonstrators from another campus building.

Stanford officials said an early assessment indicated the most tragic loss was destruction of a lifetime of research data by M. S. Srinivas of India, regarded as one of the world's leading sociologists.

Srinivas, a sociologist from the University of Delhi, was not available for comment, and a colleague, anthropologist Sol Tax, pleaded: "Don't disturb him. His mother just died this week and now his entire life's work has been destroyed."

Trinidad Asks Ships To Leave

PORT OF SPAIN (AP) — The government of Trinidad-Tobago named a new military commander Friday and asked foreign ships standing by off Trinidad to leave. After four days of rioting over Black Power demands, the government said the situation was "well under control."

Lt. Joffre Serrette, 54, was named to resume command of the island nation's 720-man army, replacing Col. Stanley Johnson, who resigned.

Bomb is Mailed To White House

SEATTLE (AP) — Two bombs, one addressed to the White House and the other to national Selective Service headquarters, were intercepted and deactivated in Washington, D.C., after being mailed from here, federal officials say.

Buildings Along Lake Face Curbs

CHATHAM (CP) — Chatham is entering an era of new and tighter restrictions on residential and industrial growth as part of the fight against pollution, the Ontario municipal affairs minister told a hometown audience Friday.

Darcy McKeough said society is reaching a point when government will have to step in to halt uncontrolled growth and development, even though "it violates all the principles the party I belong to believes in."

Mr. McKeough said next month's discussions on a Toronto-centred regional plan will likely be a forerunner of plans to channel municipal development along the south shore of Lake Erie and, eventually, Lake Huron.

The minister told the international forum on Great Lakes pollution that Ontario will not develop the Erie's north shore to the extent that Ohio has "because we will recognize our responsibilities to the lake."

Greeks Celebrate Easter

Following a funeral bier for the body of Christ, members of Belleville Greek Orthodox Church celebrate their Easter services with a processional through the streets singing an 82-verse hymn which dates back over 1,500 years. Rev. Dimitrious Anastasakis is carrying a specially bound copy of the Bible. The candle-carrying processional went from services at St. Thomas Anglican Church down Bridge St. to Pinnacle, thence to Campbell, to Front and back up Bridge to the church.

News Briefs

BARRIE (CP) — Police Chief Ed Teichrhart said Friday an 11-year-old girl playing with matches in a neighbor's apartment accidentally started Thursday's spectacular fire here. The blaze caused damage estimated as high as $2,000,000.

MONTREAL (CP) — A 250-pound drum of deadly cyanide powder was recovered by divers Friday, about 13 hours after it dropped into the waters of Montreal harbor while being loaded aboard a Danish freighter.

ABOARD ST. LAURENT (CU) — The United States tanker Manhattan late Friday had reached a point about 300 miles southeast of Thule, Greenland, in her bid to navigate through the Northwest Passage for the second time.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Under sunny skies temperatures should climb rapidly in reach 50 in the south and into the 50s across the rest of the forecast district. Sunday's temperatures should again be pleasantly mild. A weak disturbance moving into the province from the west could bring a few showers to the forecast district on Sunday.

Davis Wants School Boards Consulted on Developments

TORONTO (CP) — Education Minister William Davis said Friday Ontario municipalities should co-operate more closely with local school boards when planning municipal development schemes.

He told delegates attending the provincial-municipal conference that school boards should be informed in advance of development decisions so they can make arrangements for schools.

The minister also suggested some means must be found to supply initial capital for school construction. School construction costs often are not included in original financing of municipal services, he said.

"To build the schools, the boards have to incur debts and the mill rates from school assessment don't come along until later.

"Often, it is two years before the boards start getting the money, and by then, they have already taken on the debt," Mr. Davis said.

The minister was questioned from the floor about rising school costs and the transfer of responsibility for education to municipal councils.

He received a round of applause, when he said his philosophy of education was to ensure local control.

Although he didn't believe mayors wanted responsibility for education, "the leavening influence of the layman in education" was needed to offset the influence of professional educators.

Haitian Mutineers Shell City

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — President Francois Duvalier claimed today a mutiny in the Haitian Coast Guard was "completely under control." The airport in Port au Prince, closed Friday after mutineers fired on the capital from three vessels, was reopened to international traffic.

The coast guard vessels apparently tried to shell Duvalier's palace. One person was injured and several homes damaged, the government said.

Duvalier declined to make a direct comment on reports from Washington that the United States has refused a Haitian request for air cover in the event the mutineers strike again.

This Week, Arab Owns All Food in Israel

ABU GHOSH, Israel (AP) — Saeed Abu Ghosh, an Arab construction worker, is the temporary owner this week of almost all the food in Israel.

This makes him one of the richest men in the Middle East-but only on paper, and only until Tuesday, when Passover ends.

Abu Ghosh, a 40-year-old Moslem, is the latest in a long line of non-Jews picked by Orthodox rabbis to help Israel's Jewish citizens get around the country's strict Passover diet laws.

Jews are required to destroy or sell any non-kosher foodstuffs before Passover begins. Also, they are prohibited from eating any yeast-fermented foods such as bread or beer during the week-long observance.

So Abu Ghosh meets with officials of the' Israeli rabbinate every year and "buys" — for the equivalent of $25—an option to purchase the contents of every food warehouse, store and army commissary in the country.

Food merchants, wanting to maintain their products' kosher status, participate in the custom by sending Abu Ghosh a form saying that they have sold their supplies to him. When all the forms are in, Abu Ghosh has enough pieces of paper to fill a shopping basket.

The annual ritual calls for Abu Ghosh to "decide" within a week if he'll buy the food at the cut rate. By this time Passover has ended, and the dutiful Moslem invariably forfeits his option.

Everyone — merchants, wholesalers, the army—then get back the legal right to his foodstuffs. And Jewish law is satisfied.

The contract that Abu Ghosh signs with the rabbinate also makes him the temporary owner of Israel's cattle —on the assumption that the food in the animals' stomachs has fermented and is thus non-kosher.

Theoretically, Abu Ghosh could refuse to forfeit his option at the appointed time. But he received a dark warning from the rabbinate when he got the job six years ago.

"They told me that in the past 100 years two persons tried that trick. The rabbis said that in both cases God intervened, and they died, I didn't ask any questions."

Federal Liberals Declare Quebec Gets More Than It Gives

QUEBEC (CP) — The federal government became involved in the April 29 Quebec general election Friday with the publication of a newsletter that indicated Quebec derives more from confederation than it contributes.

The federal government's entry into the campaign was strongly criticized by the governing Union Nationale Party and the separatist Parti Quebecois.

Mario Beaulieu, Quebec finance minister and director of the Union Nationale election campaign, said of the federal liberal intervention:

"We stayed at home in 1968 (during the last federal election); why don't they stay at home now."

Separatist leader Rene Levesque called the federal involvement a "dishonorable intervention."

The Parti Quebecois leader made the attack at three enthusiastic election meetings which attracted about 6,500 people from seven ridings saying Ottawa "treats Quebec like a bunch of imbeciles." The federal newsletter overestimated federal spending and underestimated federal revenues in the provinces he said.

The newsletter, published by the Quebec section of the Liberal party of Canada, was distributed only in this province.

Meanwhile, Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand advised supporters to ignore public-opinion surveys published in daily newspapers because the papers "want the death of the Union Nationale."

Hospital Emergency Caseload Said Reaching Upper Limits

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

A shortage of general practitioners in Belleville may be contributing to mounting pressure on emergency services at the city's hospital — despite a recent major expansion.

The situation yesterday drew a warning from Belleville General Hospital administrator Philip Rickard that the trend could increase.

Calls on the hospital's emergency department already are up 40 per cent and are running at an average of 100 people a day seeking medical attention, Mr. Rickard told the hospital board of governors.

Yet, more than half of the people seeking attention might be dealt with at doctors' offices, he believed.

The workload on BGH's emergency department — now housed in new quarters, since a major expansion project opened last year — has "greatly increased," says the administrator.

"The numbers are at times almost too heavy for our new facilities and the pattern has been for them to increase," he continued.

However, the problem is complex, although solutions are being studied.

One reason, believed Mr. Rickard, might probably be a shortage of general practitioners.

However, there were other contributing elements — between hospital facilities, increased population and more people seeking emergency attention who might be unfamiliar to locate their family doctor or are without a family physician.

Later, Mr. Rickard said if the increase in emergency cases continues "we will have to be, wondering where we go from here."

Ald. Gerald Joyce pondered what role the city could play in affecting any shortage of doctors.

He suggested civic authorities might consider a program of seeking out upcoming graduating practitioners at universities and endeavoring to attract them to Belleville.

"We should tell the doctors what we have to offer and let them see our hospital facilities," explained Ald. Joyce then.

"If there's a need for day to day medical care. I think this is just as important as some of the social services we try to perform."

Mr. Rickard's report shows a total of 7,141 visits to BGH's emergency department as of March 31. This compares with 5,114 at the same time last year.

Two More for Conference

Faye Ellis takes registrations from Lin Bailey and Connie Ellis of Belleville on Friday night, for this weekend's youth conference being held under the auspices of Christ Church and St. Thomas Church. Plans include a coffee-house, discussions and a dance, a folk-mass, church services and evaluations. Those attending the conference which is under the sponsorship of the Youth Division of the Ontario Diocese, will stay overnight at St. Thomas' Parish House.

Home Care

New Approach Could Save Money

By LENNY WILLIAMSON
Staff Reporter

Home care for the acute and chronically ill is becoming essential if Canadians are to continue to enjoy the best possible medical attention.

Dr. R. T. Potter, Quinte Riding MPP told the Quinte Life Underwriters yesterday at their dinner meeting at Hotel Quinte that medical service must be provided more economically.

Hospital care is an active treatment hospital costs from $30 to $60 a day, he said. But identical home care can be provided for $11 a day.

"In home care programs are now operating in Ontario, and the Quinte area has already been approved for a similar program," the well-known Belleville physician said.

He explained that a home care program "is one by which facilities are made available so a patient can be treated at home in a like manner as in hospital."

"Letters must come now from all the agencies involved — medical associations, nursing associations, the Red Cross Homemakers, Meals on Wheels, the VON, provincial and the medical officer of health — agreeing to co-operate in the program," Dr. Potter said.

"Then, a committee, headed by a full time nurse-superintendent and a part - time doctor consultant can be set up to put the program into operation."

In each instance, the patients' doctor must apply to the committee, requesting home care for his patient. The staff would survey the home to determine if it were suitable for home care, and within 24 hours a decision on whether the patient could be treated at home instead of in hospital would be given.

"There would be no charge to the patient for these services," said Dr. Potter. "The provincial government will pay under existing medical and hospital insurance coverage."

All regular hospital services would be available to the patient in his home — X-rays, laboratory, physiotherapy, nursing and medical care.

"The success of home care depends on the support of medical people and the public," Dr. Potter emphasized.

"We must convince people it will cost less in the long run by preventing an increase in insurance premiums."

He noted that the new $10,000,000, addition to Belleville General Hospital resulted in fewer active treatment beds than before construction began.

"We badly need chronic beds, convalescent beds and nursing home beds in this area," he asserted. But he added that the cost of active treatment beds in hospitals was rapidly pushing the cost of medical care beyond the public's capacity to bear.

"In order to continue to provide the best possible medical service, we must do so more economically," Dr. Potter concluded in asking the underwriters for their co-operation in promoting the program in the Quinte area.

Heart Fund Nets $10,474

The Belleville Chapter of the Heart Foundation 1970 campaign has its final figures tabulated and this year the campaign netted a total of $10,474.

Area Co-chairmen Ian Reilly and Corbyville netted $191.

According to Mrs. Dorothy Howell, campaign chairman for this year's canvass, the total chapter expenses for the year of 1969 to 1970, including campaign expenses for 1970 amounted to $262.

Robarts Has No Quarrel With Me Says Dr. Potter

Quinte area's outspoken MPP, Dr. R. T. Potter, has the blessing of his party's leader, Premier John Robarts.

Yesterday the Belleville doctor, sometimes labelled a rebel from his frank comments on the system of government, revealed to the Quinte Life Underwriters that "anything I have said has received the blessing of the premier".

Dr. Potter admitted he had occasionally been critical, but added "constructive", in his remarks.

"Before I offered myself for election in 1967 the premier assured me he wanted members elected who could make up their own minds, and not try to read his mind and say what they thought he would want said," Dr. Potter assured his listeners.

"As late as Thursday, Premier Robert said he had never objected anything I had to say, and never would," Dr. Potter said.

Jaycees Fight Pollution

A pilot project of Belleville Jaycees may lead in a Canada-wide assault by the organization on pollution.

For the past year, the local Jaycees have conducted a survey, with the aid of the Ontario Water Resources Commission, on pollution of the Bay of Quinte by leaching from the Belleville garbage dump.

When their report was presented at a seminar last weekend in Kingston, attended by Jaycees from Belleville, Kingston, Perth, Brockville, Smiths Falls and Napanee, a recommendation was made that their efforts be extended.

Russell Brady, spokesman for the Belleville Jaycees, said the recommendation calls for all Jaycee units in Canada to form standing committees at the unit level to investigate possible sources of air, land and water pollution and offer co-operation to the water resources commissioners.

At the Ontario Jaycee convention in Etobicoke May 15, 16 and 17, the recommendation will be voted upon for adoption across Canada.

The recommendation also suggests that recognition be given to municipalities, industries and individuals who have shown concern for alleviating environmental pollution.

In the meantime, the Jaycees of this region are continuing to fight pollution. This weekend they are off to Watertown, to meet American Jaycees and discuss international co-operation in in fighting pollution.

Meeting with them will be representatives from OWRC and from the New York State Water Resources Commission.

Nurse Dies In Accident

An Ottawa Civic Hospital nurse, Linda Quinn, 21, died this morning in Kingston General Hospital after she was injured in an accident at 3.04 p.m. Friday.

She was a passenger in the car driven by Robert Sambo, 20, of 300 Lucas Street, Burlington, when the collision took place at the Hastings and Addington County line, 12 miles east of Madoc.

Driver Sambo suffered head injuries, a left facial fracture and a left jaw fracture.

Another passenger in Sambo's westbound car was Carolyn Dunfield, 21, also an Ottawa Civic nurse. She was the only one in the car who wore a seat belt and she suffered only chest bruises and slight lacerations.

Driver of the eastbound car, Meryl Burden, 27, of Sarnia, Ontario, was taken to hospital with three broken ribs and a fractured heel and right wrist.

Her sister, Lillis Tomlinson, a passenger, received head injuries and left eye lacerations.

Two ambulances were summoned to the scene to take the injured to Belleville General Hospital. Miss Quinn was immediately transferred to Kingston for an emergency operation.

Dodds Quits Fair Board

By MARGARET HAYLOCK
Staff Reporter

PICTON — Secretary-treasurer of the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society for the past 29 years, Philip Dodds, yesterday announced his resignation. In a letter to officers and members of the society, Mr. Dodds recalled that during the past two decades a Regional Fair has been boosted to a high standard event with a good bank balance.

Redfected grounds, and buildings have been improved through a planned program to take the best advantage of government grants. The fairgrounds have been improved and converted into a recreation centre with the arena serving as a focal point for year - round activities, he said.

Mr. Dodds pointed out that he leaves fair work "without any extensively towards any debt but with a feeling of goodwill and appreciation for the co-operation that has been boosted to a high standard event with a good bank balance.

Mr. Dodds resigned his position in order to retain his pension rights.

The president of the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society, Walter Demaine, is expected to call a meeting to discuss replacement of the secretary - treasurer.

Dubbed "a flower child", Phil Dodds, through his interest in horticulture, continually has improved Prince Edward County Fair during his term of office. Many improvements and display programs were implemented because of his enthusiasm and originality.

Arriving at Picton Fair Grounds usually three weeks prior to the fairs opening date, Mr. Dodds set up temporary labourage in the exhibit centre, working day and night. He planned displays, encouraged new exhibitors and generally served as a public relations man for one of the county's feature attractions.

A man with a comprehensive knowledge of all divisions of the fair, Mr. Dodds would advise exhibitors on proper classes women carrying, patchwork quilts, children's clothing raising and farmers leading dairy cattle.

The chairman of Prince Edward, as Mr. Dodds termed the county fair, will be hard put to replace the loss of its proudest display - a secretary - treasurer who knows how to answer to any Prince Edward County Fair "where the action is", said one spokesman.

1,000 Walk for Ambulance

An inmate of Warkworth Institution took to the open road this morning — but his trek had the blessing of penitentiary officials.

He is one of 1,700 walkers in the walkathon sponsored by the Picton Pushers Motorcycle Club to raise $10,000 for an ambulance for the St. John's Ambulance Corps here.

The inmate is sponsored by fellow prisoners and guards at the institution.

One entrant is already finished. Dr. John Hartt set out at 3:15 a.m. to go around the 20-mile route and was in before 9:30 a.m. He raised $129.

C. O. Wedderburn of Belleville has the most sponsors — 162. All members of the Morntown Motorcycle Club in Toronto sponsored one of their members to walk for them, and a Belleville man William Jose is pushing his daughter in a wheelchair around the course. She was injured before the walkathon and was unable to participate on her own.

From the Ontario School for the Deaf, 37 students are enrolled for the walk, and they are the only ones the next money will be presented with a souvenir Manitoba Centennial medal at the walkathon committee.

And covering the route for exercise alone, with no money on their efforts, are two Bayside men, James Chalmers and John Barry.

By 9:30 this morning, committee chairman Ian Reilly announced that many walkers were past the 11 - mile mark.

Open House At Albert

Albert College will "glow and sparkle" tonight as it goes on display to the Belleville public.

The open house with the glowing theme has been arranged from 7 to 10 p.m. to allow the community to see the residential school's activities.

A fashion show, swimming meet, laboratory demonstrations, film and handicraft display will be featured.

Refreshments and decor will have a foreign flavor, in keeping with Albert's new motto — "the world comes to Albert College. It honors students from many countries who come to Canada to obtain their education at the college.

With daylight saving coming this weekend, Sherry Schell and Joey Jones decided to get an early start. But the rainmaker had other ideas, and gentlemanly Joey helps keep off the spring showers as they wait to learn the time on the OSD sundial. Those without sundials are reminded to turn their clocks ahead one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday if they don't want to be an hour late for church.

Three-phase Project

Two County Census Soon to Start

TRENTON (Staff) — The Ontario department of municipal affairs' regional assessment office in Trenton will conduct a census of Hastings and Prince Edward counties beginning later this month.

In making the announcement Thursday afternoon, regional assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson said "the main objective this year is to check the information on individual data revision sheets and maintain the level we have attained."

In addition to providing a tax assessment role, the census will be used to make up municipal voters' lists and also in compilation of an Ontario census.

Statistical information will be gleaned from the census by both the regional assessment office and the provincial government and the Belleville and Suburban Planning Board will take a census tract and a census tat tract from the information gathered.

Assessment services officer Allan Smith said that the census would start as soon as possible to facilitate data processing arrangements.

Mr. Smith outlined the three phases of the program: 1) the indoctrination and training period for enumerators, including swearing in and provision of identity cards; 2) the enumeration phase with the field work lasting approximately three weeks in each area; and 3) tabulation of results by computer.

Training of the enumerators, most of whom are experienced, will take place at five two-day schools held at various locales in the two county area and will comprise all phases of enumeration and data revision sheets.

Both Mr. Thompson and Mr. Smith stressed that all enumerators and regional assessment staff would be sworn to secrecy and the information collected would be strictly confidential.

Names and addresses of all occupants of a building, rents and property classification plus the number of cars per household will be some of the details sought by the enumerators.

The municipality in which each individual is employed will also be part of the questionnaire and a canine count will be taken in all municipalities except Belleville and Trenton.

Industrial and commercial enterprises will be asked to supply employments figures, as well.

Payment to the 119 enumerators will vary from 10 to 25 cents a head depending on the area and the estimated cost of the census is between $11,000 and $18,000.

Each of the five training schools will run from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and the census will begin in each area immediately after the enumerators complete their training.

The schools and pertinent information are: Picton — April 27 and 28 for the 24 enumerators from all municipalities within Prince Edward County. Site will be the council chamber of the county buildings, Shire Hall, Picton.

Trenton — May 1 and 4 at Ivanhoe Township Hall for the 22 enumerators from the villages of Tweed, Marmora, Madoc, Stirling and Delora and the townships of Marmora and Lake, Madoc, Rawdon, Elzevir and Huntingdon.

Bancroft — May 6 and 7 at the United Church Hall, Bancroft, for 14 enumerators from the village of Bancroft and the townships of McClure, Wicklow, Bangor, Monteagle, Carlow, Faraday, Dungannon, Mayo, Wollaston, Limerick, Tudor and Cashel and Herschel.

Trenton — May 11 and 12 at the Knights of Columbus Hall, 22 Front Street, for the ton, Frankford and Sidney township.

Belleville — May 13 and 14 in the City Hall council chambers for the 29 enumerators from Belleville, Thurlow and the township of Thurlow and Tyendinaga.

Assessment commissioner Leighton Thompson also revealed yesterday that his staff of over 40 will vacate their temporary headquarters on Quinte Street and move into their new Division Street office July 1, 1970.

The hiring of additional staff this summer will necessitate the moving of a portion of the staff to the new building around June 1, he added.

Construction of the building which will house the regional assessment offices has been delayed, but is now entering its final stages.

Kiwanis Club Offers Funds for Park

The Belleville Kiwanis Club is looking for a worthwhile community project and could be willing to assist the city in developing the east Zwick's Island Park site.

This has been indicated in a letter to the city parks board by Gerald J. Brennan, chairman of the Kiwanis ways and means committee.

Mr. Brennan suggested that Kiwanis club board of directors appoint a committee to explore the possibility in conjunction with the city parks board and see what role Kiwanis could play in the development.

Parks board members were generally enthused by the Kiwanis offer of co-operation and termed it a "tremendous gesture."

At the same time, however, board members wanted it to be clear that the responsibility for planning of the property must remain with the parks board.

The board directed that that letter go out to the Kiwanis club thanking it for the offer.

Also at yesterday's parks board meeting, members voted to purchase a new Spraymotor gang lawnmower at a cost of $9,919 plus $472 provincial tax.

The gang lawnmower will be used to speed up grass cutting operations on the city's many acres of parks and recreational area properties.

The board also voted to have a new wire fence erected at the Belleville fairgrounds west from Sidney Street along Bridge Street.

Sections of the existing fence have had to be removed to allow for sewer installation in connection with the new Palmer Heights housing subdivision.

Cost of the new fence will be $3,895.

The Telham Company, general contractors for the Palmer Heights services installation, will contribute $500 toward the cost of the fence with the fair board to pay one-third of the remainder.

Radio Club Award Won By Nicholson

Nicholson Catholic College has won the CJBQ Radio Station radio club award for the second year in a row — the culmination of another year of radio club activity in Belleville schools.

This year there were less schools involved — only five— BCIVS, Nicholson Catholic College, Moira Secondary, Quinte Secondary and Loyalist College.

Loyalist's contribution to radio broadcasting is not considered that of a club, due to the fact that the school offers a communications arts course.

"It's just good practice for them to be on the air," explained Sanders Flagler, in charge of the clubs from the radio station's point of view.

The radio clubs in the various schools in Belleville have been in existence now for approximately 12 years.

They are designed "to let the young people in the community understand radio and give them an opportunity to be constructive and imaginative."

The clubs have from three to 23 members and the organizations are sanctioned in the schools as school clubs.

Each club is allowed a 10 - minute broadcast spot every other Saturday afternoon.

The students do everything themselves. They decide upon the content, get their own stories and ideas, write them up, put the shows together and then broadcast it.

"They do everything," Miss Flagler said. "One school even ran its own contest — 'guess what's in the box'."

The winning school, Nicholson, did a feature on the continuing adventures of Cec, one of the caretakers at the school.

As far as music is concerned, things have moved away from the rock 'n' roll sphere of things.

"With music, we try to encourage one record and then tie it into one topic."

"In 10 minutes, what can you do? Still when you have only 10 minutes the challenge is greater. You can't seem muddled or too confused."

Each year, CJBQ gives a trophy to the school with the highest marks in excellence. Each broadcast is marked by Miss Flagler out of 100 per cent in organization, subject matter, continuity and final presentation.

But, Miss Flagler could see some improvement in where radio clubs are concerned.

"The co-operation from the kids is fine, but I've had absolutely no response, except from Nicholson, from the high school staff advisers."

"I would like to see all the kids get together and do a half-hour show once a week, preferably in the evening."

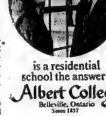
Trent System National Park Great Thing for Area - - Hees

By ELMER BONTER

AMELIASBURG — The Trent waterways as a national park is the greatest thing that can happen to the inland canal system and the Quinte area at the gateway to it, George Hees MP for the Hastings-Prince Edward riding told the annual meeting of the township's Conservative Association here last night.

Mr. Hees described the proposed transition as "a natural for the continued improvement of the cruise route and playground as a popular tourist attraction."

The recent announcement of the change in the authority of the waterways consumated an undertaking he started in 1957 when he was federal transport minister, Mr. Hees said. The transport department under-him then appropriated 12½ million dollars for spending on modernizing the water route for boatmen and other vacation visitors. The government's expression of interest in the waterways started a revival in the tourist industry in all areas through which the canal system passes.



According to Mr. Hees, the government priceduire in the creation of the park complex will take a year before it becomes a reality. "And as soon as the new authority takes over I intend to press for a national park in Prince Edward County," he asserted.

Mr. Hees expressed the opinion that the White Paper on Taxation was not all bad. "I agree with increasing exemptions for single and married people, he explained. And I'll go along with the suggestion there should be a capital gains tax providing those who are elitible are taxed properly. But I object strongly to the proposal of a "magical valuation day" which he defined as a date set by the government every five years for the purpose of assessing the wealth of individual householders and businessmen.

The Conservative party's critic compared the fight against pollution to fighting a war and suggested the federal government make it possible for municipalities to borrow money at low rates of interest over long periods.

"Sewage purification plants which are so costly to build and in my mind the real answer to the problem could then be installed wherever they are needed."

The association's board of officers elected for 1970 are— Earl Onderdonk, president Melvin Pulver, first vice president, Mac Walbridge, second vice president, Elmer Young, secretary-treasurer and auditors William Nightingale and Melvin Pulver.

Plaza Go-Ahead

The Ontario Municipal Board's decision to permit construction of a northend plaza is one of the best pieces of news Belleville has received in a long time.

It has been a long drawn out battle, going back to 1948, continuing with the board's initial refusal of the project last year, then mounting and organized protest by the community — and now approval after a second hearing.

One section of the board's report sums up the need for such a facility in an expanding community such as Belleville: "All of the evidence demonstrates that the shopping facilities within the municipality are, at the present time, inadequate and that there will be definite advantages to the consumers within the area if these new facilities are provided."

The plaza, which the developers expect to start shortly, will give yet another boost to Belleville's burgeoning economy. And far from damaging the prospects of the downtown shopping area, it is expected rather to enhance them. The downtown area, the report said, was "relatively healthy" and could stand added competition, even to the extent of generating a spillover for Front Street merchants.

Belleville is really on the move now. Approval of the plaza is a mark of the times in a community which is enjoying swift growth and bringing with it increased population. We are certain the response of the community proves the need for these additional facilities.

Tourist Promotion

City Council may not want to go as far as $12,600 for the Chamber of Commerce's tourist promotion program, but basically the ideas presented by Chamber spokesmen in seeking this grant are sound.

Without promotion we cannot expect to generate the traffic we would like. Moreover, the promotion material must be attractive and this undoubtedly is what is behind the Chamber's proposal for a new tourist brochure for Belleville.

Belleville cannot afford to sit around doing nothing as it were in the realm of tourist promotion. We need new ideas and existing material must be updated or replaced. Already this year we have seen cars from New York and Quebec pass through the city without stopping.

We need to advertise our downtown shopping area and restaurants, as well as the many quick-service eating places that have sprung up lately. The brochure, moreover, should contain information about the city's new industries.

The sky may not be the limit where money is concerned, but if we want to really put Belleville and district on the map we must be prepared to spend some. Besides that, a little imagination can go a long way in arousing the interest of the tourist public.

Dropouts and Work

The number of school dropouts, we had been led to believe of late, is not what it used to be.

Yet here we have H. W. Karn of the Canada Manpower Office in Belleville saying that one of the hard core unemployment problems is the 17-19 year-old high school group.

Opportunities are few for young people in this category. They do not qualify for adult retraining and yet employers require at least Grade 11 standards.

Neither the young people involved nor the community can afford such a continuing trend. Lack of the necessary qualifications places those on the fringe of adulthood in an invidious position. Unable to find work, they lose the companionship of those who do complete their studies and graduate. Life in such circumstances can be pretty demoralizing.

How to get dropouts back to school is one of the major concerns of the Belleville and District Employment Committee, a body which is also interested in Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter's renewed efforts to stimulate work interest among welfare recipients who are chronically unemployed.

Dr. Potter has repeated for the committee's benefit the proposals he first outlined last November and the committee is reported interested in establishing a pilot program in the area. It was on this same occasion that Mr. Karn mentioned the dropout problem, and anything that can be done to remedy this will help lessen the overall problem of the unemployed.

P.M.'s 'Cross-Fertilization' Plan

Civil Servants Get Course in Business Management

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — There could be hope for the poor, put-upon taxpayer yet.

The federal Government, which only recently was accused — and convicted with the parliamentary evidence — by Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson of wasting $40 million in 40 different ways, finally is going to try doing something about it.

A succession of Auditors General long have been blowing the whistle on the Big Spenders in the vaster ranks of the federal Civil Service who annually mismanage to waste multi-millions of tax dollars.

Every year they are written off to extravagance, carelessness, irresponsibility, indolence, not to mention fraud.

These attitudes are endemic of most governments, springing from the sure knowledge that no matter how much; regretfully, gurgles down the drain, there is always more where that came from.

Out of you - Know - Whose pocket, of course.

Responsible, too, is what could be called the "Ivory Tower-ism" of the federal service.

Too many have been cosy too long in the comfortable cocoon of the permanent federal establishment snug with maximum job security and fringe benefits stiff largely undreamed of by most taxpayers.

They have never had to meet a payroll — the federal staff is the first and preferred charge against the treasury.

They have seldom had to make a profit — so infrequently that the budget currently is being balanced for the first time in 14 years.

They have never had to buck the competition — for so to competes against the government?

Now, select groups are to be temporarily lurfed out of the Ivory Tower and sent out into what the bosses of the federal Public Service Commission do not mind at all calling the "real world" of business and industry.

They will spend one to three years in middle-management of such corporations as International Nickel, Steel of Canada, Gulf Oil, Dulon Canada and the Ford Motor Company, to mention only five of some 38.

They will be learning, hopefully, says the Public Service Commission, "what the buck is and how to make it the right way," by hustling for it instead of plucking it from the taxpayers.

Their course in "Real World-less" complete, they will return to the Ivory Tower and again, hopefully, put their new-found economic know-how into working use.

And whose idea was all this? Would you believe Prime Minister Trudeau's?

He came up with it two years ago at the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce in Calgary.

He called it "cross-fertilization" of executive talent.

It was his proposition that while civil servants on industrial executive training would do managerial wonders for the federal mandarins private enterprise might learn something from them about the often strange and mysterious ways of government.

Even more mutually beneficial, reasoned the business-minded Prime Minister, would be a straight swap of executive brainpower.

The commercial and industrial leaders bought the idea.

So, too, did Public Service Chairman John Carson, who came into top government management service only five years ago from the executive suite of corporative enterprise, and quickly had been recruiting like-minded hard-nosed businessmen as a training corps.

And so last January, some 50 corporation bosses came to Ottawa for a conference on the proposed inter-trade, and another 25 or so sent word they wanted their outfits in on the plan.

Currently in intensive business and industrial management training at a special Public Service college in the Laurentians Ontario town of Smiths Falls is the first team of government executives.

They are described by Cabinet Minister Carson as "bright young middle-management men," at the $14,000 income level of the federal payroll, and "on their way up."

They are doing three months at Smiths Falls of studying, sleeping and working at the college, getting home only one weekend in four — and early in the Fall, after some more concentrated business briefing, will draw their assignments for one to three years at Ford, GM, Inco, Dulon, Shell, Comineo and other corporative giants.

There will be a reverse flow of middle corporative management men into Ottawa's government executive suites.

Cross-fertilization, the Prime Minister has called it, of "two different worlds."

It could pay the taxpayer dividends.

Chamber of Commerce Seeks Grant

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

The Belleville Chamber of Commerce, in asking for $13,000 from the city's tax loot, once again demonstrated a complete indifference toward such things as austerity and "tight money."

Certainly one cannot accuse them of being shy when it comes to putting out their hands for public cash. And, in return they offer the tired old "tourist promotion" nonsense. The last time they approached council for a grant most people were glad to see council had enough guts to considerably reduce the figure finally handed over. Let's hope this council will have the courage to say "No".

In a fit of pique after last year's rebuff we heard muffled threats of negotiating a contract with the city to handle the tourist promotion program. There is nothing wrong with that, providing the city stipulates exactly what they expect in return for the money handed over, and that any contract entered into is subject to the Chamber satisfactorily fulfilling their obligations.

However, city council has no right to continue a policy of ritualistic handover of cash just because it has come into a custom over the years. There are too many "bees around the honeypot," and the citizens of Belleville are getting awfully fed up with seeing their hard-earned cash divided up among so many groups and organizations well able to support themselves. We ought not to be asked to shovel money into an organization whose prime objects centre around the advancement of the business community. There are many more pressing areas in this city in need of help.

I say the same to the Chamber of Commerce as I do to the YMCA. If you are so dedicated, as you would have us believe, then keep your hands out of the municipal till, at that when you are asking for may be better employed in meeting the more exigent problems facing the city, $13,000 may not do much more than flatter publicity, but it would certainly help. If the YMCA held up its head for a change and paid for its own property tax and its own school tax the city taxpayer would be a little less hard pressed. Give us some positive indication of your civic awareness by giving a lot more, and taking a lot less.

These constant handouts are weakening the faith of taxpayers in municipalities all over the country. People who are hard pressed to find their tax dollars do not like kindly to seeing large amounts of it handed over to organizations well able to look after themselves.

If city council fails to heed the serious concern on the part of its citizens in regard to expenditure they are betraying the confidence of those that voted them into office.

Socialist Bogey Issue In Next Ontario Election?

Peterborough Examiner

Last fall British Columbia Premier W. A. C. Bennett declared that, through his party's election victory, the people of British Columbia had saved Canada from socialism. He and his fellow Social Creditees did rather well with their thumping of the bogus "Marxist menace."

It seems Ontario Progressive Conservatives are now anxious to join the crusade; at least, they are if the attitude of their Peterborough chapter president, Alexander Fleming, is any indication.

"I think," declared the Peterborough lawyer, "that we have to bring out in the open the fact that the next Ontario election must be fought on the basis of socialism and its quest for equalitarian state, against our free enterprise society founded on initiative, incentive and pride of accomplishment."

We suggest that responsible politicians will ignore these empty, drum - thumping exhortations and will campaign on the basis of comprehensive programs designed to combat this province's growing list of problems — of which a disintegrating and poisoned environment, poverty, unbridled economic "growth", racial prejudice against Indians, and inflation are but a few well-known examples.

To impose the theoretical and irrelevant categories of socialism and free - enterprise on these issues is to do what Mr. Fleming accuses Prime Minister Trudeau of doing — divert our attention from the real business of the nation.

Somehow initiative, incentive and pride of accomplishment seem to have been rendered impotent when confronted by pollution; consequently the solution lies in proposing direct action rather than in extolling irrelevant virtues.

To run the five public schools and the Collegiate and Vocational School for the year will require the sum of $36,058.72, the finance committee of the Board of Education reported at the regular monthly meeting. The sum of $17,287 will be used for the public schools and the balance of $2,291.72 will be for the Collegiate and Vocational School.

Of Parks, Sailing and Olympics

Trenton's Waterfront and Recreation in Kingston

The Trentonian

Trenton does not have too many parks. Thus the development of the large east side waterfront park now called Centennial is welcome. It must of necessity be a piecemeal development, because of cost. The plan for orderly development as announced by council seems like the only way to do it.

Associated with this are proposals for the long overdue yacht basin. If there is any way to get that going this year, it should be done. Our waterfront facilities are woefully inadequate. The appearance of the waterfront needs improving. Most of all, access to the bay for fishing and picknicking purposes, as well as for boat launching, needs to be preserved free of charge for the citizens. Too much of our natural resources is being locked behind fences and made inaccessible to the citizen.

We ought also to preserve and improve the parks on our west side waterfront. It would be criminal to let these fall into commercial or industrial hands. Access to the water is vital, and the areas should be preserved for all citizens.

One natural area which needs development as park is the land from No. 1 lock to the end of LeCroy's Island. That would make a first class park. It is already used by many, and with some minor preparation and minimum controls, would make a first class place for fishing and picknicking purposes, as well as for boat launching, needs to be preserved free of charge for the citizens. Kingston Whig-Standard

Over the years Kingston has become a popular convention city as well as an attractive site for various national and regional outdoor events. Now, according to the Chairman of Kingston's Parks, Recreation and Property Committee, Alderman W. T. J. Cook, Kingston could be in line for "some pretty spectacular things in the field of recreation" in the next six years. It all depends on a number of factors, not the least of which is the interest shown by this community.

Speaking during a recent committee meeting, Alderman Cook said that Kingston is in a very good position to qualify for other the Canada Summer Games in 1973 or the yachting division of the 1976 Olympic Games. If Montreal is selected as the site of the 1976 Olympic Games, Alderman Cook said, then it is almost certain that the yachting trials will be held off Kingston harbour. Logistics and facilities have already been studied by Montreal officials. An international yachting committee is expected to send officials here within the next two weeks to survey the Kingston yachting waters and other facilities.

In an interview last summer Lynn Watson, an Olympic Games Association director said that Kingston would be the site of the 1976 Summer Olympic Games' sailing competitions, if Montreal's bid for the games is accepted. He would personally like to see the sailing events come here," he said. "There is not a better location for racing anywhere." Last summer approximately 500 sailors in more than 50 yachts and dinghies participated in CORK (Canadian Olympic Regatta Kingston) sailing events. Several of the top Canadian Olympic competitors referred to the sailing waters of Kingston Yacht Club as the best they had ever sailed on.

It is significant to note that the Canada Games will take place in 1973, the year in which Kingston celebrates its 300th anniversary. Because the federal and provincial governments have a policy of giving the Games (separate from the Olympics) to a medium-sized city with the proper facilities for the events, Alderman Cook is convinced that "we stand as good a chance as any city to get them." The Government Games is the host city in such things as buildings and recreation areas. Alderman Cook urged the City to "make a good solid effort" to get either the Canada Summer Games in 1973 or the yachting division of the 1976 Olympic Games; or both.

We hope that City Council, with the support of other groups and organizations, will consider carefully the idea outlined by Alderman Cook Kingston has a reputation for being a good host city. The benefits that would result from such events being held here, would more than justify the effort involved. If we are interested in such possibilities we must make our interest known.

London's Churches Close on Sundays

LONDON (AP) — Most City of London churches keep commuters' hours. They open their doors at 8:30 a.m. and close around 6 p.m. Only a few offer Sunday worship.

The fact that nearly 300,000 daily commuters flock into the City, London's financial district, explains the odd situation. Of mere 3,500 sleep nights in the square mile of banks and finance houses.

Back before the Great Fire of 1666, when the City was all of London, it had 109 parish churches and the population to fill them. The Great Fire reduced the number to less than 50 and the Nazi blitz of the Second World War brought the figure down again to 37.

Today, Rev. A. J. Brewett, the curiously-titled rural dean of the City of London and chaplain to the lord mayor, has barely 138 people living in his parish of St. Mary Lothbury, tucked away behind the massive Bank of England. Yet something like 80,000 work in it by day.

Across the street and just behind the lord mayor's residence, the Mansion House, Rev. Chad Varah of St. Stephen Walbrook commutes to work like many of the City clergy. He has only 28 resident parishioners, though thousands commute daily to Bartholomew House, London's second-biggest office building.

With their parishes gone, new tasks had to be found for the City churches remaining.

Parliament agreed that 23 of the 37 remaining should continue as parish churches with extended scope, while the rest were redesignated as guild churches.

The difference is mainly technical. A parish church, while ministering mainly to 'communers,' may occasionally be required for normal parish purposes—a rare City baptism, a wedding, a funeral, even a Sunday service. The guild churches are relieved of such duties and become active of City workers in their prime concern.

Many Still Startled By Woman in Pulpit

TORONTO (CP) — As one of her ordained full-time ministers in the United Church of Canada, Rev. Lynne Adams has had plenty of chances to take how people react to women in the pulpit.

What she's found since she was ordained in May, 1969, is that standards are changing, but many people are still startled.

"I believe that people are more ready to accept women in the ministry today than in the recent past, but it still seems to shake some of them up on the first encounter," she says.

A clerk in a Roman Catholic vestment shop, for example, was caught when Miss Adams dropped in to buy a clerical collar.

"What size? the clerk asked. "Gee—I really don't know."

"Well why don't you phone the priest and find out!"

"It's for me."

"Oh. Are you in a play or something?"

Another time, a reporter asked her—seriously—if she had taken a vow of celibacy.

"No," she replied. "Do you think I should?"

Miss Adams handles regular preaching and pastoral assignments as well as managing the church's Christian education program.

That, she says, is a compliment because it means she has the "tremendous responsibility" of meeting youth's needs. But generally the churches are far behind secular institutions.

"There was a time when everyone questioned the ability and reliability of women doctors or women lawyers, but fact there was doubt about the status of women in any of the professions but all that is largely in the past," Miss Adams says.

"Women have proved themselves competent in these professions, but the church in many instances will still not ordain women."

The status of women ministers is partly blurred by the presbyterian union of Canada's Anglican and United churches.

Anglican churches have traditionally maintained male priesthoods and generally seem opposed to calls for women ministers.

But Miss Adams says the United Church will insist on full recognition of her ministry if Anglican and United churches are brought together.

"I feel any attempt to invalidate the ministry of women for the sake of union would be a backward step the churches cannot afford to take," she says.

Christianity Can't Be Sold Like Tobacco

LONDON (CP) — Dr. Michael Ramsey, the Archbishop of Canterbury, says Christianity cannot be sold "in the way that you sell cosmetics or tobacco."

"Advertising in the modern world is selling something because it is attractive," the archbishop said in an interview published in the advertising magazine Campaign. "Now Christianity is not something we sell because it is attractive; it is something we sell that is good news, terribly good news, but it also makes tremendous demands."

He agreed there is further scope in using the press, radio and television for getting the church's message to the people, but with advertising one has to make a very big qualification indeed."

Questioned about the trend by advertisers to use sex to sell all kinds of products, he said: "But, I think, is very distasteful—selling some article which has nothing to do with sex at all by presenting it through a sexual medium."

Crash Carts on Display At WHA Meeting

A cardiac arrest cart, sometimes called a crash cart, was brought to the April meeting of the Women's Hospital Auxiliary. Mrs. Marianne Adams, in service education supervisor at the Belleville General Hospital, described the integral parts which make up the cart. These carts were of particular interest to the meeting, as the Hospital Auxiliary had provided the funds for their purchase.

Introduced by Mrs. Owen Clarke, Mrs. Adams told the members that one of these carts is placed on each floor in the hospital ready for emergency use, when a patient's heart has stopped. Each nurse must know where everything is located in the cart and how to use it.

In order not to cause undue alarm when a cardiac arrest occurs, it is announced over the PA system as such, but is coded by the call in.

The cart is taped as it is locked. Each month the R.P.D. department checks the carts to ensure that they are properly stocked and reseals them. Everything in the cart is in logical sequence. The top drawer, to be opened first, contains the equipment needed to be used first and this continues down through each drawer. There is a map under the top drawer which is clicked on when the emergency treatment is started.

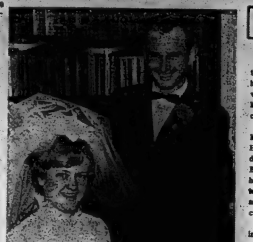
Every cart is identical. Another interesting feature is a fishing tackle box, which contains the necessary drugs, such in its proper section.

In the question period it was learned that all hospitals have some kind of emergency cart and in some larger hospitals, there are cardiac arrest rooms.

Thanking the speaker, Mrs. M. F. L. Jones stated she felt those arrest carts were one of the best purchases the Auxiliary had made.

Mrs. B. E. Burley opened the business meeting by drawing everyone's attention to the display of puppets and scrap books. Mrs. C. D. Ashley, convener of puppets, had brought an extra supply which were on sale, a special treat for the members. It was very interesting to look at the scrap books, particularly the original ones, which are all kept in excellent order by Mrs. L. J. M. Tremblay.

Mrs. N. E. Manning reported briefly on her attendance at the spring conference of district 8, Hospital Auxiliaries Association. This conference was held at the Kingston General Hospital where Mrs. Luck, the director of to hospital services had said they had Queen's students helping as candy-stripers. Miss S. B. Bechtel represented the president and gave a report from the Auxiliary. Eight members from the Auxiliary attended the conference



There were 188 plants given in the patients at Easter, reported the chairman of Holiday Trends, Mrs. P. M. Hill. She also has on hand a beautiful assortment of bootees to be distributed to the new mothers in the hospital on Mother's Day.

Mrs. Donald B. Howard was introduced as a new member. She will be in charge of the canteen in the hospital in Mrs. F. H. Deacon's absence.

March was an exceptionally good month for sales at the Opportunity Shop, stated Mrs. F. A. Beeby, as she handed over a cheque for $1,200 to the president who in turn congratulated all the hard working members who devote their time to the shop. Volunteers are needed at the shop for Saturdays. If anyone can spare a few hours, they are asked to contact Mrs. W. S. Greaves. Household articles such as bedding, curtains and cushions are needed for sales.

Mrs. S. B. Bechtel's report stated that 77 volunteers gave 491 hours in the hospital during March and that 1,011 magazines were distributed.

There were 201 paid up members for 1970 stated Mrs. J. E. Nettles. The Rt. Rev. J. P. Sullivan, chairman of the Board of Governors, will be the guest speaker at the May meeting.

MR. AND MRS. GARY LAFFERTY

Lafferty - Ganton

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Belleville was the scene of the recent marriage of Barbara Gail Ganton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ganton, of Belleville and Gary Richard Lafferty, son of Mrs. Jean Schwager of Belleville and the late John Lafferty. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. A. L. Sutherland and organist was Frank K. Martin.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of imported Chantilly lace over taffeta. The bodice was enhanced by an empire waist trimmed with a wide band of pearl on the side and accented with a bow of the same material. A petite ruffled collar and full - length sleeves completed the front bodice. The back of the gown featured the loose flowing eggs look. The four-tiered veil was gathered to a headpiece of peau de soie and tiny seed pearl beads. She carried a floral arrangement of red carnations.

Maid of honor was Miss Margaret Lynch, cousin of the bride. She wore a full-length turquoise gown of pure silk staron featuring an A - line skirt with empire waist. The bodice was trimmed in miniature daisies and she carried a nosegay of white 'mums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Holly Ganton, sister of the bride and Miss Ruby Woods. Each wore a gown identical to that of the maid of honor in pale pink and pale blue styles over taffeta with an A-line skirt, empire waist and scooped neckline falling to a modified V in the back. A flowing train of nylon frill from the yoke and a nosegay of pink and white and blue and white 'mums completed each ensemble.

Flower girl was Miss Tammy Ganton, sister of the bride wearing a short white dress of dainy lace over taffeta and carrying a basket of pink and white 'mums.

Best man was Dennis Lafferty, brother of the bridegroom and ushers were Ronald and Tom Lafferty, also brothers of the bridegroom.

For the reception held at St. Andrew's Church Hall, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a navy blue sheath dress of crimpleine with navy and white accessories and a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

The bridegroom's mother wore an ice coral sheath dress of crimpleine with black and white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

For the wedding trip the bride chose a two-piece suit. The couple will reside at 391 Bleecker Ave., Belleville.

WEDDINGS

TOKLEY — FRASER

STIRLING — Jone Pearl Fraser and Clifford Roy Tokley were married in St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ackers of Stirling attended the couple and Mr. and Mrs. Grent Richardson sang selections accompanied by the organist, Mrs. Harold West. Rev. Bruce Small officiated at the wedding.

Following, a reception, a buffet dinner and dance was held in the Legion Hall, Stirling. The bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Pearl Tokley, Tweed, received the guests assisted by the bride's daughters, Mrs. Ross Anderson, Sterling; Mrs. Gordon Vaughan, Belleville; and Miss Beth Fraser, Belleville.

The couple left on a trip to Arizona and the southwestern states. On their return they will reside in Sterling.

UCW Meetings

QUEENSBORO UCW

The April meeting of Unit two of Queensboro UCW was held at the manse recently with 14 members present. Mrs. W. Sedgwick was in charge of the worship period. Guest speaker was Mr. Murphy, a teacher at Centre Hastings High School at Madoc. He was introduced by Rev. Sedgwick. Mr. Murphy has spent several years as a teacher in Nigeria and gave an interesting account of the customs of the natives there.

Unit one held its meeting in the Sunday school room with Mrs. Harry Decker as hostess and Mrs. Harry Love, unit leader, in charge.

Mirrors Made of Glass Fairly Recent Invention

Mirrors made of glass are a fairly recent development, they seem to have been developed first in Venice in the 16th century.

Sir Robert Mansell set up a factory in England for the making of mirrors during the reign of James I. It was not until the Worshipful company of Glass-Sellers and Looking-Glass Makers was formed in 1664 and the establishment of a glass-works at Vauxhall in 1673 that the making of mirrors developed on a large scale.

Mirrors became status symbols, the larger the mirror, the more important the owner. One of the most famous status symbols, the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles was designed in 1682. Mirrors about 42" by 30" are fitted together in a panel, to give the effect of a large mirror. The panels were repeated 17 times. The installation required the establishment of a special manufactury because of the size of the order.

In the 18th century it became common to instal large mirrors between window openings, known as pier glasses. They were popular with Thomas Chippendale and were developed in fantastic shapes, usually over equally fantastic pier tables. Frequently they were designed to be placed opposite a fire place over which an ornamental mirror was placed. The two mirrors produced an infinite number of reflections and became the focal point of the room decoration.

Toward the end of the 18th century the elaborate designs of Chippendale were discarded for the simple designs of the Empire period. Mirrors became smaller and more simple rectangular frames and chaste classical decoration. Mantel mirrors were simple and wider than they were high. The top was often canted slightly so that the mirror reflected the room and its contents.

About the time the mirror pictured was made, taste had changed again. After 1840 the simpler Empire shapes were abandoned; high, convoluted and decorated mirrors became the style. Over-mantel mirrors again were made with heavy frames which frequently were designed to match the furniture styles of the period. Mirror tops were again carved to reflect the room and its contents.

Picture Credit: Dundurn Castle Restoration

Mirrors have always been expensive. Glass alone, (regardless of the condition of the mirror backing) for a large over-mantel mirror runs the best part of $100. Carved mirror frames cannot be replaced for less than several hundred dollars.

Misuse of Words Bothers Teacher

DEAR ANN LANDERS: May I borrow your column to give a few million people a free English lesson?

Every time I hear someone misuse the words bad and badly, I cringe. It is so simple to learn to use these words properly. Bad is an adjective. You feel bad if you hurt someone's feelings. You do not feel badly. People frequently make a similar mistake with the words good and well. A person does not look well in her new dress, she looks good in it. To say a person looks well means they do not look sick. Food tastes bad, not badly. Or it tastes good, not well. Anyone who can't complete the series is a hopeless case.

ANN LANDERS

Where are today's English teachers? Don't they teach English anymore?

I am an English teacher and I'm no longer teaching. I guess that answers my question. — D. L., WASHINGTON.

DEAR D.L.: Thanks for a good letter. You did well. What I mean is you didn't do badly.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I work in a factory where it is necessary to stand or sit alongside other women for several hours at a time. A girl no older than 20 started to work here last August. At first she was very quiet. After three weeks on the job she began to talk — mostly about her little boy who was born out of wedlock. Then she began to bring pictures — every other day. (She must spend $20 a week on film.)

All we hear now is Van, Van, Van. It's Van this and Van that. To listen to her, Van is the most beautiful, the smartest, sweetest, best behaved child in the world.

We all have children, Ann, and naturally we think our kids are special, but no mother at the factory brags about her legitimate kids the way this girl does about her illegitimate one. Is there a polite way to shut her up? — VANNED OUT.

* * *

DEAR OUT: No way — polite or impolite. The girl probably feels defensive because the boy was born out of wedlock. Once you understand why this mother goes in for excessive pride you should find her bragging less irritating.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am pregnant with our third child. Just barely. Like, would you believe, six weeks. The doctor verified it yesterday. This morning I received three phone calls congratulating me. My big mouth husband made the announcement at his office. I am burning. He says it makes no difference when the news is told. Lay him out in your own inimitable style, Ann. — FROTHED.

DEAR FROTH: Of course it makes no difference" — to HIM. Nobody asks the husband, "When already?" because it seems to them that you've been pregnant for thirteen months.

Since pregnancy is the woman's condition it should be her announcement. The husband should keep his lip zipped until she can no longer zip her skirt.

A Good Carriage Expresses Grace and Health

By DORIS CLARK

How far do you think you walk in the course of a day of housework? Would you believe an average of seven miles? Because that's the truth.

Makes it frightfully important that we use our feet correctly. Next time you see people walking observe their gait, their feet, and their shoes.

Some walk with toes pointed outward. Some have knees bent, taking short, jerky steps. Some people shuffle. Some stomp. Some bounce up and down. There are those who lope along like a camel.

Yet a graceful carriage and an easy beautiful manner of walking will help anyone's appearance. It also expresses personality — and if you do it right it keeps your spine straight, and your body healthy.

A STAMP STORY

"Good stamps are always good, rare stamps are always rare." — F. T. Small.

* * *

Perhaps, as you may know, a well guarded secret was revealed this month.

Meaning?

The owner of the British Guiana one-cent stamp was at last identified. His name is Frederick T.-Small, bears the nick-name "Poss."

Among Mr. Small's happy memories as a growing-up lad in Rockhampton, Queensland, Australia was the creation of a stamp collection which his parents could or less gave away while he served as Lieutenant with the Australia - New Zealand Army Corp as a mechanical engineer at the Suez Canal and Gallipoli.

A knee injury heralded Mr. Small out of service, but Britain's need for engineers sent him to the British Department of Aircraft Production in the Ministry of Munitions, and for his services was given the Order of the British Empire.

With the outbreak of World War II, events had established him in New York where he was now vice-president of the Celanese Corporation of America, and as fate would spread his boyhood interest came to mind as he recalled the financial calamity that followed World War I when inflation and deflation swept many countries. He also remembered that those who had invested wisely in postage stamps were more successful than those who had depended upon the market.

The strange part is the fact that Mr. Small never looked at or saw his stamps. Even the British Guiana one - cent magenta, which drew thousands whenever rarely shown at exhibitions, Mr. Small saw only once — just briefly after its purchase.

The reason for his seeming disinterest lies in the fact that Mr. Small is an inventor and not a collector. His stamps are in the custody of top stamp authorities, and now his collections are for sale, having sold the rare British Guiana one-cent magenta for $280,000, which took place March 24. Nor was Mr. Small's identity revealed as the past owner until April 1. His 30-year custody of the rarest stamp in the world was one of the great secrets in the world of stamp collectors.

LEND INTEREST

Sweet foods, such as jams, pastries and cakes, lend interest to meals.

Dear Doris: I was babysitting for my cousin, who was working in a restaurant. One of the young single policemen came in and asked her who her babysitter was. My cousin told him and he said, "This could be very interesting." All I know is that his name was Bruce.

My cousin pointed him out to me once when he was driving in a car behind our car and as he passed he gave me a great big smile.

I'd like to meet him. I have no boy friend as yet. I was thinking of writing a letter to him, asking him about police work, for a project I am doing.

I would have to address the letter to Bruce, RCMP, and the name of the town. — Hoping.

Dear Hoping: Don't do it. I just can't see the RCMP enjoying being middleman for you and an officer named Bruce.

Keep on hoping. If you should see him, then is the time to courteously permit him to meet you.

Dear Doris: We plan to have a family supper for our parents' Golden Wedding anniversary. We'd like ideas about decorating, table setting and so on.

What about a bit of entertainment to break the monotony of the supper hour?

Family Party.

Dear Family: My leaflet about Fiftieth Wedding Anniversaries is on its way to you.

I dare say when all those brothers and sisters and husbands and wives and children get together, conversation will be the very best fun of all at supper.

If you want to introduce a special feature, have the children and grandchildren put on a talent show: a recitation, a song, guitars playing. If the folks go for it, you might get them joining in with a sing-song between courses.

* * *

Is it a point of etiquette that is troubling you? Doris can tell you how it's done in Canada.

A 'Double Ring' Angel Food Cake

By MARY MOORE

QUESTION: . . I come up with zero when I think of the luncheon shower I am giving for my niece . . — Mrs. Edna K.

ANSWER: Two years ago my "Double Ring" Angel Food Cake was a great hit with shower and "occasion" luncheon hostesses and since it serves from 18 to 20 I think you will be happy with it.

"DOUBLE RING"
ANGEL FOOD CAKE
(Serves 18 to 20)

2 angel food cakes (buy or make them)
1 pint 32 per cent (whipping) cream
½ lb. best quality butter crunch (candy) crushed "slivers" for decorating top

With great care cut about ¼ of one of the angel food cakes away but this must not be a straight-sided wedge. It must have concave sides so that the second angel food cake will slide and fit into position so that cakes are rotationally locking. Now cut both cakes into halves horizontally so that you have four layers. Fit the two bottom layers together again on large silver tray.

Whip cream. Remove about ¼ of this whipped cream to another bowl for frosting top later. Fold crushed butter crunch into larger amount of whipped cream. Spread cream-nut mixture onto bottom layers. Cover with top layers in filling position and frost sides with cream-nut mixture using it all. Now frost top with reserved unflavored whipped cream.

Now comes the artistic touch. Coat top edge of cakes with slivers, touching, but at centre place slivers in continuing circles so that they look like overlapping wedding rings. That is, one ring of slivers outlines uncut cake. Other ring of slivers outlines arc where cut-out section was.

This was a sensational centrepiece.

Barbed Wire Guards Lords

LONDON (AP) — For student rebels, cricket has replaced Vietnam war as the No. 1 demonstrating issue of the day. Many politicians find themselves on the same side as the students.

A ring of menacing barbed wire has been erected around the boundary line at Lord's, the traditional home of the national sport.

The cause of the trouble is the planned visit of South Africa's Springboks cricket team, due here in five weeks for the summer tour.

Thousands of Britons, arguing that hospitality for the Springboks means support for South Africa's racial policies, have threatened to boycott the games or to throw them into chaos. Some plan to flash mirrors from the stands into the South Africans' eyes.

Others argue that the game is the thing and that the Springboks should play, apartheid or not.

Many churchmen have protested the tour.

Prime Minister Wilson has said he thinks a big mistake had been made in inviting the South Africans.

The invitation was issued by the Marylebone Cricket Club, governing body of the game.

The Trades Union Council said it hopes trade unionists will not give the tour any assistance.

Organizers expect to have a bill of about $600,000 for extra police protection.

Sports On All Fronts

SALAMANCA, Spain (AP) — Most of the cars in the World Cup Rally made good time across Spain Friday night and headed into Portugal overnight. The Rolls-Royce Silver Shadow crewed by Britton's Raymond Richards, Bill Bengry and David Skeffington reached Vilar Formosa this morning with burned out hub bearings on the nearside rear wheel. Richards said: "I think this means the end of the rally for us."

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (CP) — Barney Hartman of Montreal again was named captain of the 1970 Sports Afield magazine all-American skeet team, announced by skeet editor Jimmy Robinson. Another Canadian, Margaret Burdett of Angus, Ont., was chosen captain of the women's team.

ST. CATHARINES (CP) — Walter Henry, 28, of Orillia Friday was awarded the 112-pound Ontario amateur boxing title for the 13th time when no opponent entered his weight class.

Only 24 Putts

Beard Still Calm Despite 8-Under 64

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Frank Beard had just fired an eight-under-par 64, including a string of six consecutive birdies, but refused to be carried out of his conservative, easy-going role.

"You know me," he said, "I never have anything to say."

Beard's remarkable round—he needed only 24 putts—put him into the second round lead in the $150,000 Tournament of Champions Friday.

Was he thinking about the all-time PGA record of eight consecutive birdies when he had his string going?

"No, not really. You just hit it and go find it and hit it again."

Was it his best putting round?

"I don't know. I don't keep records on that sort of thing so I really don't know."

Has he ever had six birdies in a row?

"Again, I don't know. I've had five before, I'm sure. I don't know about six."

How would he characterize his round?

"I played well. You have to to shoot 64. But it was kind of ragged at times."

Ragged or not, the 134 total—8 under par on the 7,114-yard La Costa Country Club course—left him with a three shot lead going into Friday's third round.

British Open Champion Tony Jacklin had a 68 for 137 and Australian Bruce Crampton was in third place with a 69 for 138.

South African Gary Player, the defending champion and first round leader, never really got it going and drifted back with a 72 for 142. He was tied at that figure with Jack Nicklaus and Masters Champion Billy Casper, each with a 68.

Lee Trevino and Dale Douglass had 72s for 142, and Arnold Palmer took a 72 for 142.

Beard, the 1969 leading money winner, said it's unusual for him to play this well this early in the season.

"For one thing, bad weather bothers me," he said. "If there is one mile per hour of wind or it's one degree below 72, I don't like it."

Golf Top 20

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Top 20 and ties after two rounds of the $150,000 Tournament of Champions, at the 7,114-yard, par-72 La Costa Country Club:

Frank Beard	70-64—134
Tony Jacklin	69-68—137
Bruce Crampton	69-69—138
Jack Nicklaus	71-68—140
Billy Casper	71-68—140
Gary Player	68-72—140
Dale Douglass	70-71—141
Lee Trevino	70-71—141
Charles Coody	74-68—142
Arnold Palmer	70-72—142
Harry Ziegler	72-71—143
Orville Moody	72-71—143
Larry Hinson	71-73—144
Ray Floyd	71-73—144
Bruce Devlin	71-73—144
Bob Goalby	72-74—146
Miller Barber	72-74—146
Gardner Dickinson	73-73—146
Ron Cerrudo	73-74—147
Chuck Courtney	73-73—146
Bert Yancey	75-71—146
Steve Spray	76-70—146
Tom Shaw	77-69—146

"Another, the better you play the more you relax, and the more you relax the better you play. I guess you should be able to relax at the start of the season, but that's not easy to do until you have your goals for the year in sight."

Beard started his birdie string on the eighth with a 20 footer, then chipped in from 38 feet on the 10th. He rolled in a 30 footer on the 11th, rifled a seven iron to within four feet on the next, had a two-putt birdie on the par-five 12th and wedged the next. He holed one "from 60 to within six feet on the next. He had three other birdies, including the difficult 18th, had three one-putt pars and missed other birdies from 6 and 1½ feet.

Weyburn Wins 5-2 To Tie Cup Series

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP) — Weyburn Red Wings are showing that a soft touch can be effective in their best-of-seven western Memorial Cup hockey final against Thunder Bay Hornicanes.

The Red Wings defeated Thunder Bay 5-2 Friday night before 1,832 fans and tied the series at two wins each. The fifth game will be played here Sunday night.

The Hurricanes won the first two games on home ice but the Red Wings cut their margin with a 4-2 win in Weyburn Thursday night, two of the goals coming on soft shots which appeared to catch Hurricanes goalie Ed Balina off balance.

The Red Wings did it again Friday night, scoring three goals on soft shots which Balina appeared to misjudge.

"It's a new series and all the games are here," said Weyburn coach Stan Dunn. "What more can I say?"

The boys skated more than they did in the other series and winning the last two games can't help but be in our favor."

Hurricanes' coach Ben Woit said his team was not skating well and "couldn't get going."

"Every time we moved somebody was dumped us on the ice. This is a different style than what we are used to."

Dancer-Sired Nijinsky Sentimental Favorite

LONDON (Reuters) — A touch of nostalgia clings to the 162nd running next week of the Two Thousand Guineas classic race, first classic race of the British season.

Wrapped up in the big-race atmosphere will be recollections of a vanished Edwardian world which saw Russian dancer Vaslav Nijinsky become perhaps the greatest ballet star of all time.

On Wednesday his equine namesake, Nijinsky, carries the big money in the Two Thousand Guineas (about $5,460) and sentimental hopes ride with him.

The race also has strong Canadian interest.

The commanding bay colt was bred in Canada by Toronto industrialist E. P. Taylor and his sire was Northern Dancer.

Northern Dancer was the best racer Canada produced, winning the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness in 1964 before retiring.

Nijinsky now is owned by Charles W. Engelhard of the United States, who bought him from Taylor for $750,000 in 1968.

Watching Wednesday's one-mile race, either from a private box at Newmarket or on television, will be Romola Nijinsky, the Hungarian widow of the great dancer who died 20 years ago this month.

"I simply must see the race," said Mrs. Nijinsky, who is in her middle 70s. "He's a most beautiful horse and it will be a great fun to have a bet on him."

A small, solid woman with a great zest for life, Mrs. Nijinsky divides her time between London, Paris, Zurich and San Francisco.

A chance glimpse of a sports page headline, Nijinsky Wins Again, brought news of a horse named after her late husband.

Next time out, she put £25 ($60) on with the bookmakers and picked up a profit of nearly £15 ($36).

Nijinsky, widely regarded as a champion in the making, is undefeated after six races.

He already is an odds-on choice to beat such homebreds as Tamil, Yellow God and Huntercombe and to stave off a late French challenge from Faraway Son, Amber Rama, Without Fear and Red Sidell.

It first appeared that the French would duck the three-year-old classic but their trainers changed tactics when it became clear that the super-horse from Canada had frightened off most British opposition.

In the June 3 derby at Epsom, Nijinsky is the 5-to-1 second favorite to the French invader Gyr, a 7-to-2 shot trained by Etienne Pollet who deferred his retirement to see the horse through his three-year-old season.

Whatever the racing future holds, Nijinsky's name is bound to flourish.

Canadian film producer Harry Saltzman, of James Bond thriller fame, has signed dancer Rudolf Nureyev to portray Nijinsky—the dancer, not the horse—in a film called The Dancer. Shooting starts in Paris this August.

Mrs. Nijinsky and her companion, ballet fan Margaret Power, are enchanted with the thoroughbred's nomenclature.

Says Mrs. Power: "The name is particularly appropriate "Because Mme. Nijinsky's husband grew up in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) which is one of Russia's most northerly cities—hence the link with Northern Dancer."

Howdy partners, recognize me? I'm that old horse you all keep laughing at. That's no way to treat an old-timer. What I need is an aluminum siding job, once and for all. If I had Flexalum Climatic 25 siding on me, why I'd look just as good as those young whippersnappers who've been dressed up and renovated all these years. One more thing while I'm at it. Flexalum siding comes in so many colours, the good guy doesn't have to wear white anymore. Hi ho, Buckskin.

A dollar still goes a long way.

A dollar may buy a lot less these days—but it doesn't buy less Volkswagen.
We still stamp the famous beetle shape out of a heavier gauge metal than even most big cars use.
And our paint job is still the envy of the industry. 26 pounds worth. 4 coats.
1 out of every 8 VW employees is an inspector. They inspect every part of every Volkswagen 3 times. And then give the finished bug a going over cars costing twice as much don't get.
How much do you have to pay for all this?
Only $1979*
And right away you can start saving money. Because a Volkswagen will never cost you more for upkeep than you can keep up with.
Which is only right.
After all, if you're buying a small car to fight inflation, we think you should buy one that won't fight back.

VINE CRESCENT

Immediate possession for this freshly decorated split level on Vine Crescent. This home has a den with a fireplace, 1½ baths-rooms, 3 big bedrooms, living room, dining room, kitchen with built-in range and oven plus eating area. Recreation room garage, paved drive, and fenced lot. Asking only $23,900.00.

PONTON PARK

is a lovely recent development on Belleville's west side featuring prestige homes. One of these homes is a 3 bedroom story and a half clay brick with attached garage. It is an impressive sight sitting high on a huge landscaped lot on a quiet court. There is a living room with fireplace, a formal dining room, large family kitchen and 2 piece washroom on the ground floor. Upstairs the master bedroom will easily accommodate the largest bedroom suite, and there are two other good sized bedrooms and 4 piece bath. Add broadloom and professional decorating to these fine features and we feel you will certainly be proud to own this home. Why is it for sale? The owner has been transferred.

NOTICE

ONTARIO DEPT. OF HIGHWAYS

The Expropriations Act, 1968-69.

NOTICE OF APPLICATION FOR APPROVAL TO EXPROPRIATE LAND

IN THE MATTER of an application by the Minister of Highways for approval to expropriate lands in the Township of Sidney.

FOR THE PURPOSE of the reconstruction of Highway No. 2 NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that application has been made for approval to expropriate the land described in the schedule hereto.

Any owner of lands in respect of which notice is given who desires an inquiry into whether the taking of such land is fair, sound and reasonably necessary in the achievement of the objectives of the expropriating authority shall so notify the approving authority in writing.

(a) in the case of a registered owner, served personally or by registered mail within thirty days after he is served with the notice, or, when he is served by publication, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice;

(b) in the case of an owner who is not a registered owner, within thirty days after the first publication of the notice.

THE APPROVING AUTHORITY IS

Minister of Highways, Ontario — Parliament Buildings, Toronto 5, Ontario.

H. F. Gilbert, Superintendent of Properties.

NOTES:

1. The Expropriation Act, 1968-69 provides that.
   (a) where an inquiry is requested, it shall be conducted by an inquiry officer appointed by the Minister of Justice and Attorney General;
   (b) the inquiry officer,
   (i) shall give every party to the inquiry an opportunity to present evident and argument and to examine and cross-examine witnesses, either personally or by his counsel or agent, and
   (ii) may recommend to the approving authority that a party to the inquiry be paid a fixed amount for his costs of the inquiry not to exceed $200 and the approving authority may in its discretion order the expropriating authority to pay such costs forthwith.
2. "owner" and "registered owner" are defined in the Act as follows:

"owner" includes a mortgagee, tenant, execution creditor, a person entitled to a limited estate or interest in land, a committee of the estate of a mentally incompetent person or of a person incapable of managing his affairs, and a guardian, executor, administrator or trustee in whom land is vested;

"registered owner" means an owner of land whose interest in the land is defined and whose name is specified in an instrument in the proper registry, land titles or sheriff's office, and includes a person shown as a tenant of land on the last revised assessment roll;

3. The expropriating authority, each owner who notifies the approving authority that he desires a hearing in respect of the lands intended to be expropriated and any owner added as a party by the inquiry officer are parties to the inquiry.

SCHEDULE

All right, title and interest in the following lands: In the Township of Sidney, in the County of Hastings, being part of Lot 27, Concession Broken Front, designated as PARTS 1 and 2 on Plan P-1562-43 deposited in the Registry Office at Belleville as PLAN HSR 68.

NOT GETTING INTO COLLEGE ISN'T THE END OF THE WORLD

In fact, it might be the beginning of your world. A bright, new and very rewarding world. The world of computer programming.

Think about it for a minute. Here's a field as big and new and exciting as space exploration. Begging for talented people. And willing to pay them and pay them well.

Now, you don't have to go to college to become a computer programmer. But you do have to go to school. A school that has the computers and the people who can teach you how to use them.

And that's ECPI. Electronic Computer Programming Institute, an international educational system with more than 100 training centres and literally thousands of successful graduates.

We've got new IBM equipment and a staff that can teach you everything you have to know. And we can teach you during the day, evening—even Saturdays. Resident and Home Study Courses available.

If you're over 17 and a high school graduate or its equivalent take the first step in your new world. Send us the coupon and we'll set up an aptitude test that will tell us — and you—if you've got what it takes. What do you have to lose?

Rift Between Hawks and Doves Breaks Into Open in Israel

JERUSALEM (Reuters) — A rift between hawks and doves in the coalition cabinet burst into the open following a blistering attack by a right-wing minister against Foreign Minister Abba Eban.

Minister Without Portfolio Menahem Begin, leader of the Nationalist Gahal party and fiery former head of the Irgun, a Jewish underground movement which fought the British mandate authorities after the Second World War, attacked Eban Thursday night as a "boor and unintelligent."

Addressing a party meeting Begin, a leading hawk, accused Eban, considered a dove, of "deliberately and wilfully distorting cabinet decisions" when he said the government had not decided on setting up a Jewish quarter in Hebron.

But far more important than the quarrel over a section are the underlying conflicts on major policy issues, separating various cabinet elements.

The major one is whether Israel should show more flexibility in its general attitude towards all aspects of the Israeli-Arab problem.

Eban, supported by the two left-wing Mapam party ministers, is said to favor the shedding of what he considers present rigid policy positions and the adoption of a much more flexible attitude.

Finance Minister Pinhas Sapir, a possible successor to Golda Meir as premier, and the cabinet's most powerful new secretary-General, Arye Eliav, have been reported to lean towards this softer line.

Aligned against them are the six right-wing Gahal ministers as well as Mrs. Meir herself and Defence Minister Moshe Dayan. The latter two are not driven by the same nationalistic ideological motives as Begin, who sees annexation of Arab areas to the state in its historical borders from the Nile to the Euphrates.

All, however, hold that a final peace solution must come through direct negotiations with the Arabs—and the Arab nations have assiduously rejected since the six-day war in 1967.

Other points at issue between the two factions include the question of a political initiative aimed at restoring the ceasefire agreement with Egypt and the so-called Goldmann peace mission.

On the first Mrs. Meir, supported by the vast majority of the cabinet, was reported to have rejected Eban's suggestion that there should be some political initiative with Cairo to restore the Suez canal ceasefire which President Nasser publicly repudiated last year.

On the second—the cabinet's rejection of a reported invitation from Nasser to talk to Dr. Nahum Goldmann, president of the World Jewish Congress—Eban was apparently on the side of the majority although Mapam felt the matter had been badly handled by the government.

In his attack on Eban on the Hebron question Begin said Thursday night the cabinet had decided on setting up a Jewish quarter in the town.

Eban and Mapam members are reported to feel that any settlement in Hebron as well as elsewhere might commit Israel to retention of occupied areas and thus tie its hands in negotiations.

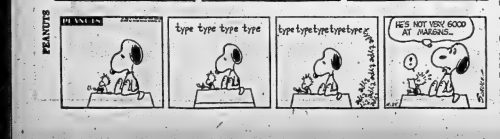
Begin also attacked Eban for a recent newspaper interview in which he said that "mathematically speaking, an equation could be set up between Nasser, the Fatah (guerrillas) and those in Israel who insist on all of the land of Israel."

"How dare he draw such comparisons?" Begin said. "If he had said such a thing in the Knesset, his words would have been erased from the record. He is a boor and unintelligent."

He could not think of the whole Goldmann mission as Kafkaesque and called Le Monde correspondent Eric Rouleau, said to have played a part in the affair, "another Egyptian agent, the kind of Jew who collaborated with the Nazis."

Despite the serious cabinet differences there is no danger of a break-up as long as the Arabs maintain their present refusal of refusing any peace settlement with Israel.

But any flexibility in the Arab position could change this.



Costa Rica Students Storm Legislature

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (Reuters)—Thousands of angry students stormed the national legislature here today and in the ensuing hundreds of persons were injured in a pitched battle with the country's pocket-sized police force.

The students besieged the Congress Building overnight after rampaging through the streets, burning cars and smashing store fronts.

They were protesting a legislature-approved contract giving the International Petroleum Co. of America exploitation rights to bauxite deposits in southern Costa Rica.

The police, sole armed force in this banana-producing state which abolished its army in 1948, were far outnumbered. But they managed to drive the students back after pressing in with stick charges and fusillades of tear gas bombs.

First reports said there were 45,000 demonstrators, which totals nearly two-thirds of the country's entire senior student population.

Costa Rica, the only country in Latin America without an army, has about 7,100 students at its main university here and another 62,250 at 118 secondary schools. The number of teachers in the country alone outnumbers the 5,750-man police force by about 13 to 1.

Pentagon Accused of Scare Tactics

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — A leading U.S. Senate critic of defense spending accused the Pentagon today of flooding Congress with scare-tactic propaganda about Soviet missiles to protect the military's budget.

"This is the old 'scare hell out of them' technique which the Pentagon unveils each year just before their money bills are acted on," Senator William Proxmire (Dem. Wis.) said.

Referring to the Pentagon-released information and photographs of the Soviet SS-9 missile, Proxmire said:

"There is nothing new or more threatening than before in these Pentagon revelations."

"They are timed more to protect the Pentagon's budget request than to alert Americans against a new threat."

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

In a recent column I said that wives should not hesitate to "nag" their husbands into good health and longer life. Came many letters from readers — pro and con. Some did not like the connotation of the word "nag" itself.

In a later discussion I said I'd be happy to accept such euphemisms as "prod," "persuade," "convince," etc. The main object was to get him to a doctor so he might be helped. Here is a letter from a reader on my side:

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: After reading a letter today concerning "nagging wife," I just felt I must write in your defence. I'll start by saying "thank you" for my husband's life. Although we've never seen him, you very well did save his life and here is how it happened.

I had read once of your columns concerning the role of "wife" and when my husband started having pains in his stomach a few months later I recalled your advice.

Believe me, I took it literally and started to "nag" (you'll notice I started with the nagging) my wife who thinks "prodding" is successful has an unusual husband). I kept after him to get a checkup.

I do not nag often, but being a female I guess I'm naturally endowed with this ability. After listening to the day after day (I even threatened to call his boss) he made an appointment. Pardon my English but his "check-up was to "cut-up me."

To make a long story short, he was in the hospital that afternoon and operated on for a growth the following morning. We were told that had he waited another two months he would have been dead. Thank you again for saving the most wonderful man in the world. (As a public service I believe your column on "nagging wife" should appear at least every six months.) — Mrs. W.

COMMENT: Thanks, but I believe your repeated letter will have equally good effect. Often people get tired of my "moralizing" and prefer to hear a sermon from another layman.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor has just prescribed bifocals. My problem is that I cannot look in any direction without seeing blurred areas. I cannot seem to adjust my head and eyes and wind up with a headache. I hold my head in an unnatural position to read and end up with a stiff neck or a double chin. What's the answer? — Mrs. S.

COMMENT: Learning takes time — whether it's wearing glasses, an earpiece or playing the violin. Patience is the answer. Relax. Give the new glasses a fair try. For some patients it is difficult as learning how to adjust to new dentures.

Of course, if you simply cannot adjust, there's always the possibility of getting glasses for reading and those just "for seeing." Bifocals do much to eliminate the need for filing your handbag or pockets with glass-frames.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: In the event you were pregnant and after two or three months you had a miscarriage is it true you would have to undergo a D and C before becoming pregnant again? — Mrs. F.

COMMENT: Not necessarily so. But whether or not you required a D and C (dilation and curettage of the uterus) would depend entirely upon your symptoms and the judgment of your own doctor.

For Mrs. G.: I do not believe there is any medical evidence which indicates that eating grapefruit or sweets worsens bursitis.

Husband Saved By Wife's Nagging

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For April 26

Your birthday today: Adjustments to irregular spurts to meet passing moments of crisis characterizes your coming year of essentially normal and profitable career effort. Savings can be greatly increased during this year and next but may partially offset by occasional increased spending for sudden needs.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Do your share in the community's expression of faith. However, avoid taking any chances with traffic, either driving or walking.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Among social encounters are the acquaintances of people you've wanted to meet for some time, others have something for you to think over.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Excitement and novelty enter your romantic and social world. Really little is new beyond the moods of people.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Put your immediate past out of mind and take a fresh perspective this phase of normal business day.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): The day is a full round of cheerful social activities, from an early luncheon to fairly late in the evening.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Your Sunday turns out to be more active than you had thought would be the case.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Make today a general celebration by calling in your best friends to help get things up.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 11): Don't turn this Sunday into a commercial activity. However, if you will do your best to make it a success for the community and your way of life, some material benefit in the near future may result without your seeking it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Now your plans come into suddenly focus with unforeseen advance. Things fall into place almost too easily. Share it with your friends.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): The temptation is to try to figure out your week and the puzzles surrounding it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): People you meet today are of interest and may arouse emotions beyond what is usual for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Friends and family urge you on to express yourself more firmly and fully.

For April 27

Your birthday today: The key phrase for the coming year in your life is "pursuit of the ideal." Some of your dreams may indeed come true for those who work hard enough for it. This is an interesting year with many, interesting, challenging turns of fortune — a great deal to gain, nothing to lose.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): The early hours of the day contain the only time for effective decisions on material matters.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Do all you have planned as soon as possible, then resume some of yesterday's mood and pastimes.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Glamor is in the air, seen everywhere today. The real thing still exists underneath it, but you must look for more than the brilliant surfaces.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Early teamwork succeeds but fades in the latter half of the day.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): You now find somebody who is as persuasive a talker as yourself. Check the whole story out, let it set overnight, then see how it goes.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Business duties get in the way of home life and produce very little return, as well. Be patient, appeal to reason, and work through it. Romance interests are not favored now.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Nothing is quite what it seems at the moment, so cheer up on general principles. You should tone down your story this evening, lest people take it for a much stronger tale than it is.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): There really isn't much action except for details of closing deals early in the morning.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Nothing new should be started. Wind up routines, odds and ends left over from the weekend past or last week.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Personal plans enjoy an early morning boom, then whole day tends to droop in a temporary let-down, as if the world is unwilling to pick up the start of a week.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Take advantage of any chance to escape from public view. Get routines and preparatory work done.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Material affairs begin well, then falter. Social activity is confusing as the day goes on, so that you don't know what to believe.

Big Unions Spurn Wage Restraint

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Leaders of North America's two largest labor unions, Chemistry and United Auto Workers, Friday spurned the U.S. government's plea to restrain wage demands to help curb inflation. Union officials said they will ask for substantial increases in upcoming contracts.

Teamsters acting president Frank E. Fitzsimmons said his some 450,000 truck drivers will vote next week on a proposed three-year wage package that calls increase of nearly 30 per cent.

Walter P. Reuther, president of the UAW said his union will demand increases well in excess of eight per cent a year for its some 720,000 workers at General Motors, Ford and Chrysler.

"We expect to do a hell of a lot better than that for the guy in the shop," Reuther told more than 3,000 UAW convention delegates representing 1,600 local American members. The Teamsters Union totals some 2,000,000 workers.

The eight-per-cent figure Reuther mentioned was approved by the convention for salary increases for the UAW's officers and staff members this year, including an increase in Reuther's current $32,977 annual salary, and for UAW regional directors not to speculate that the union would settle for eight per cent a year in talks with the Big Three automakers. Those negotiations open in July for contracts expiring Sept. 14.

The UAW staff and officers' pay increase of eight per cent this year and seven per cent next year will not become effective until the union wins a wage increase for its members from one of the three big auto firms.

Kitchener Girls Fined For Having Hashish

KITCHENER (CP) — Possession of hashish cost two girls $300 each in Kitchener court Friday.

Judge W. D. Augusti of Brampton dismissed a similar charge against a third girl after trial and four youths were remanded to June 5.

But since possessing speed (methamphetamine) is not yet an offence, two charges against James Ostrem, 21, of Peterborough, Ont., were simply withdrawn.

He was arrested March 1 when 20 policemen descended on a Satan's Choice motorcycle clubhouse and seized the drug. Analyses proved it to be speed, not LSD. He was originally charged with possessing LSD.

Fined $300 were Mary Yirka, 17, and Bernadetta Mary Zeitel, 18, both of Kitchener. The second girl was placed on a year's probation in addition to the fine. Both pleaded guilty.

Fishing in St. Clair May Resume by Fall

WHEATLEY, Ont. (CP) — Jack Davis, federal minister of fisheries and forestry, said Friday he hopes "by the end of the summer Lake St. Clair will be open" for fishing.

Speaking to about 100 fishermen at this Lake Erie fishing town, Mr. Davis said he hopes dredging of the St. Clair River to eliminate bottom mud will begin within a few weeks.

Dow Chemical (Canada) Ltd., he said, would pay for the dredging. He said fish would purge themselves of 50 per cent of their mercury content every 60 days after the lake would flush itself out naturally.

"I believe it (mercury contamination) is under control in the Great Lakes," he said.

"... I believe we'll be testing for mercury forever as a preventive measure."

Mr. Davis said fish in Lake Erie are "totally beyond any concern" as their mercury levels are 50 per cent lower than the maximum acceptable level.

In answer to a question from observers said was heavy buying by large concerns.

The analysts believe that large blocks of shares in a few specific companies which influence heavily market trends were purchased at prices artificially defined as "institution, walk-and-see trading sessions."

Specifically mentioned were mining and industrial stocks.

Another reason cited for increased activity at higher prices was a reduction in long-term Canada bond interest rates, which would tend to encourage investors to focus attention on stocks.

Analysts also believe that the speculation in certain issues does not necessarily mean markets have levelled off.

The week opened on a cautious note with extremely light trading at a slight decline Monday.

Caution turned to pessimism throughout the week.

Light trading prevailed as investors continued to watch for signs that markets were headed upward.

With no apparent signs of strength, and disappointing profit statements from several companies, trading continued downward Tuesday.

On Wednesday, disappointment was vented on declining stocks, bringing markets down to the lowest level in several months.

Another tumble Thursday appeared to be based on lack of confidence in the market.

Share demand weakened as investors were unable to decide whether the decline would continue or let up.

The federal government has also indicated that it will not remove price restraints which critics say are dragging down the economy.

Stationality, on index at the Toronto Stock Exchange, industrials were down 6.01 to 172.36, golds 18.59 to 152.19, base metals 6.85 to 186.56 and western oils 13.97 to 159.85.

Volume was 9,441,000 shares compared with 8,055,000 last week. Issues outnumbered gains 712 to 196 with 196 issues unchanged.

On the Montreal and Canadian exchanges, the composite index was off 4.72 to 188.88. Combined volume was 4,669,000 shares compared with 3,161,000 last week. Losses outnumbered gains 302 to 68 with 113 issues unchanged.

Income Tax Detective Is Jailed

MONTREAL (CP) — J. Raoul Lacombe, 48, former chief investigator in Montreal for the federal income tax branch, Friday was sentenced to six months in jail for tax evasion.

Lacombe, with 22 years service in the tax department, was sentenced at sessions by Judge Maurice Roumeau for failing to declare his income properly over a six year period.

He is free on $1,000 bond pending appeal.

Evidence established he had underreported $11,813 income on his returns from 1961 to 1966. In addition to a general evasion charge he was found guilty of falsifying returns.

Judge Roumeau imposed six month concurrent sentences on each charge.

The judge said Lacombe had acted with premeditation and used "devious means" to conceal income he received other than salary.

Quebec Polls Also Under Fire

QUEBEC (CP) — Newspaper polls and a "balance sheet" newsletter came under heavy attack as representatives of five political parties made their last major weekend campaign drives for Wednesday's Quebec general election.

Separate surveys in three major Montreal newspapers indicated the Liberals would get the largest percentage of votes in the election, followed closely by the separatist Parti Quebecois, while the governing Union Nationale appeared headed for a political collapse.

And a newsletter published by the Quebec section of the Liberal party of Canada says that Quebec contributed in fiscal 1968-69 $2,345,600,000 in taxes while it received $2,891,300,000 in contributions, direct payments and loans—a difference of $545,700,000 in Quebec's favor.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said the three large dailies were part of "an evil conspiracy to gain control of Quebec." Prime Minister Trudeau, he said, had "lied brazenly" to the people of Quebec in the newsletter saying Ottawa spent more in Quebec than it received from the province.

Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa described the newsletter as "inopportune, awkward and unjustified."

The newsletter infuriated Mr. Bourassa's campaign staff who described it as a "gaff" by the federal Liberals at a crucial stage of the election campaign.

The newsletter was published and distributed by the Quebec section of the Liberal Party of Canada, which is the organization for federal Liberals in Quebec. It has no ties at the organizational level with the Quebec Liberal Party, the provincial Liberals led by Mr. Bourassa.

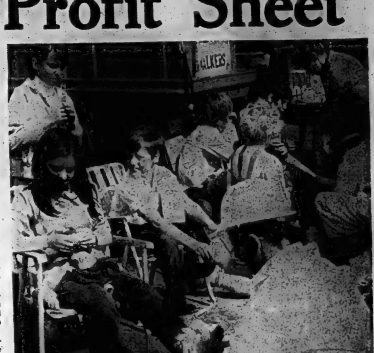
Rene Levesque, leader of the separatist Parti Quebecois, led off the attack on the newsletter early in the weekend, describing it as "statistical lies" purchased into the election to aid the Liberals.

He accused the federal government of "dishonesty" and called them "snakes who are the real patrons of the Quebec Liberals. Our old parties have descended to the point of degrading our society."

Mr. Levesque said the Liberals are conducting a campaign based on fear while the Parti Quebecois made every effort to be honest.

Creditiste Leader Camil Samson displayed his anger over the election polls which placed his party fourth in the vote-getting. "The people, not the press" would give his party a victory on Wednesday.

Premier Bertrand said Power Corp. of Canada Ltd. influenced the poll in the French-language daily, La Presse, and added that a number of the company's directors are involved in Liberal politics.



He said the poll in The Gazette was influenced by the paper's owners, Southam Press Ltd., "which has always supported the Liberals at both the federal and provincial levels."

The premier said The Star's owner has been a staunch Liberal supporter "for a long time."

In Ottawa Sunday, Prime Minister Trudeau described as "unfounded" accusations that the federal government is intervening in the election.

Referring to the Liberal newsletter, Mr. Trudeau said in a statement "these pamphlets are published under the sole responsibility of the federal Liberal party.

"These pamphlets are not previously authorized or censored by the federal government or the prime minister in particular. It should be in a truly democratic party."

OSHAWA (CP) — A 19-year-old girl was found strangled Sunday night in a was found strangled Sunday night in a Darlington Township.

The nude body of Gail Mohns was found by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lester M. Mohns, when they returned home from church.

Police said the girl may have been sexually molested before her slaying.

Roadblocks were set up in the area and motorists questioned. Police were continuing their investigation today.

The dead girl had been a Grade 13 student at a junior college here.

Reported Plot to Kidnap Queen's Nephew Probed

LONDON (Reuters) — Scotland Yard is investigating an underworld report that one of the children of the Royal Family was to have been kidnapped police sources said Sunday.

The target was to have been Viscount Linley, eight-year-old son of Princess Margaret, the Queen's younger sister, and Lord Snowdon.

The boy was to have been held for ransom, the payoff being the release of two notorious criminals held in one of the country's top security prisons, the sources said.

Senior police officers met to discuss the report and decided it had to be taken seriously. They ordered tightening of normal security measures for protecting the young viscount.

At Kensington Palace in West London, home of the princess and Lord Snowdon, a spokesman said he had no information about the alleged plot. Scotland Yard also declined to make a statement.

Major Changes In Broadcasting Rules Forecast

OTTAWA (CP) — Pierre Juneau, chairman of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission, Saturday predicted major changes in the CRTC's proposals for increased Canadian content in broadcasting.

"I think there will be major changes," he said. "The problem is how they will be implemented . . . what kind of calendar we're going to have."

Mr. Juneau was interviewed on the CBC TV program, Encounter.

Hanoi and Pathet Lao Are Backing Sihanouk

From AP-Reuters

Leaders of North Vietnam, the Pathet Lao and the Viet Cong joined Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk today in a call for the defeat of the United States and the government of Cambodia, South Vietnam and Laos.

Western diplomats in Vientiane, the Laotian capital said the North Vietnamese air force would fly Sihanouk to northeast Cambodia within a week to head a provisional government in Cambodian territory controlled by the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

The Viet Cong radio said the deposed Cambodian chief of state met on the Vietnamese-Laotian-Chinese border Friday and Saturday with North Vietnamese Premier Pham Van Dong, Prince Souphanouvong, leader of the pro-Communist Pathet Lao movement in Laos, and Nguyen Huu The, head of the National Liberation front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

The four leaders appealed to all Indochinese people "to increase their unity and push ahead with the struggle against the common enemy, which is the U.S. imperialists and their henchmen" in Saigon, Phnom Penh and Vientiane.

James Pringle, Reuters correspondent, reported that a U.S. Air Force C-130 transport plane with U.S. officers aboard, arrived at Phnom Penh airport and began unloading huge crates. Pringle said it appeared to observers that military supplies were being unloaded.

At a news conference in Dartmouth, Mass., Sunday, Senator J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, said he fears the United States may become involved in Cambodia.

Fulbright said State Secretary William Rogers planned to brief the foreign relations committee today in closed session on the Nixon administration's proposed policy in Cambodia and Laos.

Tony Curtis, Tobacco's Foe, Given Time to Pay Pot Fine

UXBRIDGE, England (AP) — Movie star Tony Curtis, who quit smoking tobacco several years ago, was fined £20 (£120) today for bringing marijuana into England.

His lawyer asked for time to raise the fine.

"You must not think that because Mr. Curtis is a leading international film star that he has plenty of money available," the lawyer told the court. "He, like any other member of his profession, has enormous taxes to pay which can create financial problems for him."

The three magistrates gave Curtis a week to raise the money.

Curtis was searched and arrested when he arrived with his wife at London Airport Sunday from New York to make a TV adventure series with Roger Moore, star of The Saint. Curtis recently signed a $12,000,000 contract for the program.

British newspapers noted that Curtis campaigned here last year against cigarette smoking.

In the United States, he started an anti-tobacco campaign among co-workers, formed an organization called Smokers Anonymous and made anti-cigarette commercials for television.

China Says Earth Satellite Has Strengthened Its Militancy

HONG KONG (CP) — China said today its first earth satellite has "greatly strengthened the militancy of the Chinese people and the revolutionary people of the world."

It said Peking's first achievement in outer space also had "defiated the arrogance of imperialism, modern revisionism and all reaction"—meaning the United States, the Soviet Union and others who don't agree with Chinese leaders.

North Vietnam, North Korea and Albania hailed Friday's launching in much the same language. The Soviet Union and its Communist allies remained silent.

The Japanese government expressed hope that the 381-pound space package would not be used for military purposes. But the conviction grew both here and in the West that the satellite was sending back information which would advance Peking's program to develop intercontinental ballistic missiles.

In Washington, officials said the launching increased the probability that Peking would have its first operational intercontinental ballistic missile in 1972.

The feeling was that China would test-fire its first ICBM this year and have a force of 10 to 25 ICBMs by 1975.

The satellite passed over Hong Kong today transmitting a patriotic tune, The East Is Red, with perfect clarity.

Trent National Park 3 or 4 Months Away

COBOURG (Staff) — Emphasis will switch from transport to conservation, recreation and tourism when the Trent Canal becomes a national park within the next three or four months, Russell Honey, MP for Northumberland - Durham, told the annual meeting of the Great Pine Ridge Tourist Council Wednesday evening.

The parliamentary secretary to Jean Chretien, federal minister of Indian Affairs and northern development, whose department will assume control of the new national park, said that "If we don't do something the whole area will be bought up and developed within ten years."

Canada's first waterway to become a national park will be a boon to tourists in this region because our national parks have a good reputation and are a big attraction, particularly to Americans, he explained.

Noting that the federal government would not construct tourist facilities, just conservation and recreational facilities, Mr. Honey said that the success of the plan is dependent to a great degree on the exploitation of natural and historical sites along the waterway.

Purchase of private land by the government was planned, he added. "But I have no idea of the cost of converting the Trent canal to its new role of conservation and recreation."

Establishment of the Trent Canal as a national park was termed "unique" by the parliamentary secretary who revealed that this was just one step in the federal government's plan to increase the number of national parks from the present 19 to between 30 and 100 by the year 2,000.

Crime in City Is Increasing

Crime is moving up in Belleville and, in some cases, by as much as 31 per cent over last year's assorted criminal acts in this city.

Belleville City Police chief Douglas Crosbie said this morning that thefts alone, both above $50 and below $50 — the legal division point concerning the seriousness of theft — have risen in the first three months of 1970 to 190 incidents, 88 more than the first three months of 1969.

Chief Crosbie said that assaults were on the increase, 41 in the first three months of this year against 27 in the first three months last year.

"There's an increase all over," he said. "It's happening everywhere."

He said "maybe there's a terrible number of unreported thefts."

Asked if he suspected any particular reason for the increase, he said if he knew he could do more about the problem.

As part of a police awareness program and in an effort to make the police easily attainable for reports of criminal activity, the first step the police department has taken is to put its telephone number on the back of its police cruisers.

"People have to remember 968-3456 and be able to remember at the snap of their fingers."

The Chief also warned Belleville citizens to keep their cars locked. Many of the thefts are from automobiles.

He also suggested not leaving property openly in cars, explaining that many things could be locked in the trunk out of sight.

"People should call us if they see anyone who looks suspicious, particularly around cars and buildings," he said.

Arts Group Meeting

Nine Ontario communities, including Belleville, sent representatives to Oshawa to discuss sets in the community at a meeting sponsored by the Ontario Arts Council and the Youth and Recreation Branch of the Department of Education.

The meeting held on Thursday, April 23, followed the Ontario Arts Council's annual provincial meeting held earlier this year in Peterborough.

Representing Belleville were Murray Irwin, president, Quinte Arts Council, Ian Williams, Director of Recreation - Arena Committee, and Donald W. Maddock, District Consultant.

The representatives from Belleville, Newcastle, Barrie, Cobourg, Orillia, Lindsay, Whitby and Oshawa met to discuss the growth of community arts councils and their role in the community, the relationship of the arts to municipal government, education, business, labor, youth, senior citizens, service clubs and media; and improved liaison, communication and consultation between community arts councils and arts groups over this area of the province.

"We have to act as a catalyst reaching into all parts of the community; provide a focus on area arts development and bring to our communities high calibre professional arts from other parts of the province . . ." said Mr. Irwin.

Further meetings are scheduled for this fall.

Sally Ann Band Visits PE County

PITON (Staff) — The sounds of college school through Prince Edward County last weekend during the visit of the Salvation Army Citadel band from Woodstock.

Led by Lieut. Les Pace, former officer in charge of the Picton Salvation Army Corps, the 25-piece band arrived Saturday morning saluting residents of Picton, Wellington and Bloomfield.

Following concerts at Wellington Park, Bloomfield townhall and at the Armory Mall the band paraded down Picton's main street.

Salvation Army songsters joined the band for a music festival presented in the Prince Edward Collegiate auditorium on Saturday night. Joining the Picton corps for the morning service, the band later played for patients in three Picton nursing homes.

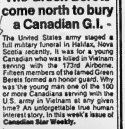
Sunday afternoon band members performed at Prince Edward County Memorial Hospital, at the Prince Edward County Home and at Hallowell United.

Honoring band members at a buffet supper in the Central Room at Picton United Church on Sunday evening, about 70 churchmen and guests extended greetings to the musicians. Prince Edward County Warden Gordon Lloyd and Picton Mayor Harvey J. McFarland officially welcomed the band to the town and to the county.

Program chairman Jesse Mason expressed the thanks of the community during the dinner.

Sulphide Grass Fire

TWEED (Special) — Approximately 25 volunteer firemen, assisted by equipment from the Tweed fire department and lands and forests were required yesterday to quell a grass fire which threatened houses at Sulphide.



A woodshed adjacent to the home of Mrs. Doris Turcotte was burned while firemen had to wet down other buildings to save them from the fire, Mrs. Turcotte is a hospital patient and was not at home at the time of the fire.

An area of approximately two acres was burned over before the blaze was extinguished.

Villagers formed a bucket brigade in an effort to control the blaze until firemen arrived. Village women turned out to assist in the bucket brigade and later served sandwiches to firemen.

Kayaks to Circumnavigate Prince Edward County

One of the most venture- some attempts to navigate the main waterways of the Quinte district will be launched this week.

Friday, a flotilla of nine home-built kayaks will nose out of Belleville harbor, crewed by a band of students from Loyalist College.

When they return some time Sunday, the group will have circled the entire shoreline of Prince Edward County — a distance of 147 miles.

THe students are members of Loyalist's Outward Board — whose outdoor activities are geared to projects with challenge.

Among other events, Outward Bound'ts the group that organizes the annual running of the Moira River flood rapids.

The flotilla moves off from Belleville about 4 p.m. Friday, heading either east or west along the Bay of Quinte — depending on wind directions.

The students will paddle the Bay and Lake Ontario shorelines of Prince Edward, coming ashore for food and sleep.

Each participant will carry a sleeping bag and hard rations in his kayak.

The kayaks, built last month by the students, now are being given finishing touches in preparation for the two-day attempt.

Cart Coming

Belleville residents on Tuesday will get a look at an authentic Red River cart, the type of horse-drawn vehicle that was used to homestead the Canadian West.

The cart, built by airmen at CFB Portage, is travelling across the country as part of the Manitoba Centennial celebrations.

In the charge of Cpls Ron Strand and his civilian brother Bruce, the Red River cart will arrive in Belleville early tomorrow afternoon and will be escorted by city police to city hall for a civic reception by Mayor J. Russell Scott.

Following the reception the cart will be parked in front of the Belleville arena for the remainder of the afternoon and evening where local residents may inspect the vehicle.

The cart will stay overnight in the city and will leave for Trenton and CFB Trenton about 6:00 a.m Wednesday.

Plaza Booster Jubilant Over OMB Decision

Donat Clement heard the Ontario Municipal Board had approved a northend shopping plaza for Belleville and said he was "dancing all over."

If dancing he was, it was a suitable reaction.

It was Mr. Clement's obstacle footwork that is credited with helping resolve one of the most hotly - disputed Belleville developments in years.

"I don't have to tell you I'm jubilant," he responded when party leader of the new OMB ruling, opening the way for the biggest commercial enterprise in the city's history.

His reaction was typical of other principal participants in the long - drawn - out battle.

"It's right and just that it should have been that way," said Mayor Russell Scott, attending the Provincial - Municipal Conference in Toronto. "All the citizens will be pleased — particularly all those who have given so much time to this."

"This is a great victory and you're happy about it," remarked R. G. Ellingwood, treasurer of plaza developer Cambridge Leaseholds.

But, he emphasized, credit went to the "local people, who really got the thing back on the rails."

What both men were talking about was the movement launched by Mr. Clement.

The 11 - day sailor at CFB Trenton, it was his resentment of the 1969 OMB ruling quashing the shopping centre which activated a citizens' protest committee.

It was that committee that carried through the Clement plan to mobilize Bellevillians to lodge a forceful protest against the provincial government ruling.

That protest resulted in a petition signed by 13,000 people which Mr. Clement and committee members delivered personally took to Queen's Park, demanding cabinet action.

In February this year OMB official R. M. McGuire, chairman of a new inquiry on the issue, publicly admitted the board was back in Belleville because of that petition.

Today, Mr. Clement concurred.

Credit for the new decision, he said, goes to the committee, its canvassers and the thousands of Bellevillens who signed his petition "showing the government that we were not going to take this lying down any more."

"We're now living in an age of public involvement," he added. "If the public does not like what the government — or governmental agencies — are doing to them, just don't beef about it. Do something!"

Cambridge Leaseholds could not appeal the initial OMB decision to the government, noted Mr. Ellingwood today.

"The only way this thing got to the board was basically because of local people. They really got it back on the rails. They did what we couldn't do ourselves."

TREES PLANTED

TORONTO (CP) — Metro Toronto and Region Conservation Authority planted 164,148 trees and shrubs on authority lands last year. The majority of trees are red and white pine and white spruce. Since 1952 the authority has assisted private land owners in 13 townships with the planting of more than 2,000,000 trees under its conservation assistance program.

Communications—Again !

Teachers and administrative personnel of the school system in Hastings county agreed that communications between them must be improved when they got together at Club Canara recently.

Lack of communication appears to run the gamut of why schools should be short of such elementary things as pens, pencils, paper and art supplies to complaints by teachers that they had not seen a memo sent out by Education Director Eric Runacres calling for women volunteers for administrative poltitions.

The communications problem is interesting in light of the recent Leeds and Grenville (director Lloyd Dennis) board's decision to appoint a public relations officer who would be responsible not only for liaison with the Press but for keeping board members and school staff informed of all aspects of the contemporary educational scene.

We took the view then that such an appointment was unnecessary, particularly in these inflationary times, and that such information could be dispensed and communications improved within the framework of existing staff. We are still of that opinion.

For one thing there are plenty of people in executive positions at present who could address themselves to this need for better communications. Five represented their side of the educational system at the Club Canara meeting, namely I. F. Reid, superintendent of academic services; associate superintendents Frank Tate and Glen Watson; superintendent of curriculum D. C. Stirling and director of education Eric Runacres. And Mr. Runacres, as we have noted, is seeking additional administrative candidates from the ranks of women teachers.

Between them it should be possible to devise a plan for getting to the teaching body the information which Mr. Reid said "is not going out to you."

The meeting heard complaints about the 32.5 average size of elementary classes in the county and Mr. Runacres' observations on the subject are significant in view of the already high cost of education.

"It is a matter of money," he said. "We have no money to build the increased accommodation necessary if we lower class size and no money to improve accommodation.

"Many of our schools are 50 years old now and it could cost $3,000,000 to bring all our schools up to fire marshal's standards."

This is disturbing to say the least of it. Is there any remedy? Are we spending too much on frills? According to Mr. Runacres the answer is no; schools, he says, are costing less and even the much-criticised carpets are not an extra cost. Are they free?

There is also the academic side. Some teachers want to know if new teaching methods and "flexible learning situations" are responsible for the poor grammar, poor writing and inability to add which employers complain about.

Certainly this meeting provided a great deal of food for thought. It was a valuable contribution to matters of vital concern to us all.

Detective Work

Is there anything quite so frustrating as walking into a store and seeing a television program that catches your fancy — and in color at that — but the sound is switched off.

However, we concentrated hard on the three persons chatting on the screen and gradually found clues to their identity. The trio consisted of a dedicated Oriental beauty flanked by two men. They were chatting away and we wished we could lip read.

The chap on the left had a book in his hand and every one pressed by the young woman he leafed through it quickly as if in search of some interesting passage she had mentioned. Then he held it up and the couple on the back of the book looked familiar. A station break followed and the words "More With Jack and Reiko" appeared on the screen.

Then it dawned on us — we had read a very funny book by one Jack Douglas called The Adventures of Huckleberry Hashimoto and it had to do with his travels in the South Pacific and in Japan with his Japanese wife Reiko and young son.

So here apparently was another work by Mr. Douglas and he and his wife were discussing it — with Mike Douglas. But as we said, isn't it frustrating when a fellow cannot lip read.

France Remains Stumbling Block

Common Market Parley Over UK Entry A Step Closer

By CT FOX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The European Common Market has moved a crucial pace closer to the start of negotiations over Britain's entry into its ranks.

But a show of firmness by French officials on a related political issue showed how the British of any delusions that Charles de Gaulle's departure from the European scene portanteus a wholly untroubled entry process.

The critical move towards active bargaining took the form of agreement by the Market's six present members on thorny problems concerning the economic community's future farm policy.

Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann of France, a genial-seeming statesman capable of tough talk on occasion, said he hopes the agricultural agreement means that enlargement of the Market can take place as soon as possible.

Among Market officials generally, there is confidence that the way now is clear for bargaining with Britain to begin on schedule in July.

However, Britain's efforts to win early participation in talks about Western Europe's political future have been rebuffed, largely by France.

With the Common Market approaching maturity, the discussions among its members about prospects for greater political unity have taken on heightened importance—one reason for Britain's eagerness to participate in them as soon as negotiations for its Market entry begin.

But in a stand at first sight reminiscent of de Gaulle, the French argued—successfully—that the British can enjoy full participation in the political discussions only after their admission into the Market.

Some observers in Paris insist that the latest French action does not mean a revival of the old de Gaullist hostility towards Britain.

Even among London's friends within the six member states, it is suggested that Prime Minister Wilson's government pressed too strenuously for quick participation in the talks on political unity. Moreover, the Six promised that Britain will be "informed and consulted" about these discussions.

In a gesture apparently meant to be conciliatory, the French have decided to resume participation in the Western European Union, of which Britain is a member together with the Common Market countries.

In February, 1958, two months before his resignation as president of France, de Gaulle announced that his country would boycott the WEU because Britain was trying to use it as a back door to the Common Market.

The WEU council meets every three months to take stock of Europe's affairs.

France's renewed participation is cited in Paris as further proof that the French have not returned to old Gaullist attitudes on the issue of Britain and Europe.

Yet it also is predicted in the French capital that, whatever the progress toward greater economic unity in Western Europe, the goal of political unification—especially in matters of foreign policy—will long remain unrealized.

Health Survey Shows Only One in Three Are Fit

German Features

STUTTGART — The most extensive public health survey in western Europe has just been carried out by the state of Baden-Wuertemberg in southwestern Germany. The result: only one in three Germans is "fit as a fiddle".

The computerized data from 31,206 individual health examinations shows that over 20 percent of those tested need medical treatment and 15 percent dental care.

According to the study most Germans take increasing interest in their health only after the age of 45. On the other hand, young people still undergoing vocational training show surprisingly poor health. Of those born in 1954, for instance, 5 percent of the males and 25 percent of females are examined for numerous jobs because of poor physical condition.

The report revealed an alarming number of employees being pensioned off because of health reasons. The conclusion drawn by the report's authors: Baden-Wuertemberg alone could raise much - needed economic manpower by 50,000 - 70,000 persons, simply by increasing rehabilitation efforts and cutting premature job disability by 25 to 33 percent.

Moira Lake Pollution

Editor,
The Intelligencer,

I read with interest the letter that Mr. Clarke Rollins, MPP, received from Mr. D. S. Caverly, General Manager, Ontario Water Resources Commission, with reference to the Village of Madoc Sewage Works and Moira Lake water quality.

Once again I must express publicly my disagreement with apportionment of blame for excess of algae in the waters of Moira Lake. There are many contributing factors from domestic sewage apart from detergent phosphates. No doubt when the bacterial count is controlled it will be of great benefit.

No doubt when the Federal Government bans the use of complete ban on the phosphates in detergents, this will be of enormous benefit to the water quality of Moira Lake. However, every person being put on diets from 1.5 to four pounds of phosphates annually. It has also been proven that hormones, vitamins and growth substances from domestic sewage are also fertilizing ingredients. An increasing human population adds to the total nutrient load in sewage effluent after the best treatment available. In my estimation, Moira Lake has been subjected since 1951 to an ever-increasing flow of fertilizing substances from the domestic sewage of Madoc Village. If the commercial laundromat is used by 100 people each week and each uses one pound of phosphate detergents, this alone could contribute as much phosphate as the OWRC attributes to the domestic sewage from Madoc Village. I think this is a major factor in algae. Each bone added and each school child from outside Madoc added to the primary treatment plant increases the effluent reaching Moira Lake. This is why I have protested the opening of the two school additions until adequate sewage treatment facilities are available to handle even one extra student.

I do not approve of the method of disposal of content from the bottomless waste stabilization ponds. However there is an alternative method of disposal. Moira Lake in 1958, after a survey, was designated as recreational water by the OWRC. No contest of any kind at any time should be pumped into Deer Creek. The Pollution Legislation is coming that will make it an offence.

How to Keep A Clean Desk

Do It Yourself—or Have A Tidy, Long-Suffering, Secretary

Ottawa Journal

That's all we needed, a blurb from a book publisher saying that for 15 days at no cost to us he'd let us have a book which would be a storehouse of information to solve "any personal problem". "So good — it's guaranteed."

As we gathered it together to hurl into the basket the line jumped out in red ink that the book included "25 ways to keep your desk cleared for action."

Hmmm. And they make money selling such books?

Twenty-five ways to keep this desk cleared would take us only to about 12:23 a.m.

We once hit on the only idea that seemed likely to succeed and that was to have no desk at all. But we couldn't live with it once the staff on the floor was so thick we couldn't open the door to get out.

Another device that promised to work pretty good was to make a pile of all the letters on a side table, answering none. Come four weeks it nobody had written in saying "you didn't acknowledge my cheque" we would then feel safe to ship the whole pile to the papercrushers. But we hadn't the nerve. Rather than give it all the heave-ho we read every nit-picking, misrepresenting, illiterate sheet of it in a solid eight "hour stretch broken only by a sandwich and some eyedrops.

Other ideas were even worse. Once we passed all mail, memos and "he phoned again" chits to the men down the hall and within a week all had threatened to quit. Another scheme went out the window, so to speak. Being rather high in the office, altitude - wise, and having large windows we purposely left the west and north windows wide open one hot summer gale day; within 45 minutes we had a policeman charging us with distributing pornographic literature, an unhappy man saying the proof of an editorial on air pollution caught on his windshield and he slammed into a post, and a Dixie spokesman for the Associated Streetcleaners called threatening to lock their trucks and go home.

Twenty - five ways, indeed! There's still one way really, and she should be blessed with neat and wise and quick and long-suffering . . . and she is, thank God.

* * *

"Mrs. R., send this guy a copy of this editorial when it runs and tell him never to darken my desk again."

Recognition at Last

Callaghan: A Neglected Writer

Kitchener-Waterloo Record

For Canadian novelist Morley Callaghan, 1970 has been pretty rewarding for a long overdue period in his long career.

Announcement of the award of the Torgnol Prize of the $50,000 Royal Bank of Canada award brings to $65,000 the total of his cash awards within a month. Earlier he had been chosen as recipient of the Canada Council's $15,000 Molson award for his contributions to Canadian literature.

Despite the tributes, Callaghan's place as a Canadian writer remains ambiguous. One reason could be the fact that he has never written as a Canadian writer as such. The other side of the coin is that, by adopting a style where place is relatively unimportant and people supremely so, he was able to establish an international reputation early.

Few are unaware of the tribute by the dean of American critics, Edmund Wilson, to the effect that Callaghan is "the most unjustly neglected writer in the English language." A good deal of this neglect came right before his eyes because of the fact that Callaghan has lived most of his life in Canada by preferring to live here.

Callaghan has himself raised the question of what Canada does to her artists, wondering why so many good Canadian writers publish one or two books and then become discouraged and stop.

It is a question which Canadians concerned with the arts in this country and particularly the literary arts, should ponder as they look again at Callaghan's work.

The result of the unprecedented windfalls which have come his way will surely be an increased interest in his novels and stories, including the first, Strange Fugitive, now republished in a new edition.

Mary Hopkin Represents Britain in Song Contest

BBC London Letter

The story of Mary Hopkin, recently chosen to sing for Britain in the Eurovision Song Contest, reads like some modern fairy-tale. Eighteen months ago, and only six months before she recorded the hit Those Were The Days, My Friend, she was still in the classroom studying hard for her final school examinations.

Nineteen-year-old Mary even looks like the traditional fairy-tale princess. Small and dainty, with big blue eyes, pale translucent skin. So has Mary. And the picture on the cover of the album she made last year shows her standing by a river, giant reeds blowing across her face, like a water nymph.

She comes from a country renowned for its singers, Wales. And in the Welsh tradition, in the evenings and on Sunday afternoons her mother would play the piano and Mary and her two small sisters would stand around her singing. 'As soon as I could talk, really, I started singing', Mary said, 'My mother used to sing to me and teach me all the songs she knew. Probably that's why I like the old songs.'

Her family encouraged her in musical ambitions, and she studied first in Swansea and then at the Cardiff School of Music and Drama. She says that her friends soon began to earn pocket money by singing at local clubs. Then came a talent-spotting television program, where the famous fashion model Twiggy noticed Mary. Definitely out of the ordinary run of folk singers, though Twiggy, and many like the Beatles Apple Company. The producer who was looking for a girl singer to record with the Beatles Apple Company. Flowers Bring Hope

PICTON (Staff) — "Flowers of Hope" will be packaged by members of the Prince Edward Association for Mentally Retarded at the Happy Hour school tonight.

As a special project, cosmos seeds are stapled in brightly colored packets and mailed to county residents. Recipients are urged to make donations to the local association for mentally retarded in payment for the flower seeds.

Parents and foster parents of Happy Hours school pupils will join tonight in preparing the seed envelopes for mailing.

Proceeds from the "flower power" campaign are used to help mentally retarded children in the Picton community.

County Will Bloom

President of Prince Edward County Horticultural Society, Victor Lord, offers red roses to Mrs. Allan Railey who is all ready for spring. The Horticultural Society sold more than 300 rosebushes yesterday from a display in the Armory Mall. It is expected that about 510 will be sold by Monday.

Membership Mark For Horticultural Society

PICTON (Staff) — Prince Edward County Horticultural Society this year records its highest membership since its reorganization 10 years ago.

A society spokesman, Phil Dodds said today that more than 600 memberships were sold last weekend at the Armory Mall where rose bushes were offered as premiums to all new members. Mr. Dodds distributed hybrid tea and climber roses at the shopping centre from Friday noon until Saturday evening.

Next weekend 600 seedling trees will be offered to members from the horticultural society headquarters in the mail.

Cat Attacks Pair, Suspect Rabies

An 11-year-old girl and a woman will undergo a two-week treatment of daily anti-rabies shots after they were attacked by a cat at Frankford yesterday.

The cat was shot in the head during the incident — making it impossible for health authorities to test the animal for rabies, says Dr. C. R. Lesk, Hastings and Prince Edward health officer. As a precaution, the daily anti-rabies shots have been ordered administered.

Names of the persons involved were not revealed.

The girl and her mother — from Oshawa — were visiting with friends at Frankford.

The cat, a Siamese, was owned by the Frankford couple — one of whom was the second person bitten, say provincial police.

The animal was shot by a neighbor.

The brain in the one vital organ used for rabies tests at federal government laboratories.

Hence, says Dr. Lesk, it is imperative that animals suspected of rabies not be shot in the head.

Meet to Avert Northern Strike

Representatives of, office workers and management at Northern Electric's Ontario plants are meeting in Toronto today in an attempt to avert a strike.

Workers at Northern's Belleville plant can legally strike at midnight tonight — along with company employees at Bramalea and London — if the talks break down.

About 1,100 office workers would be involved in a Belleville walkout — joining some 3,200 from the other two plants.

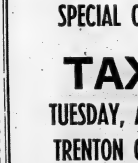
Northern, with a work force of some 11,000, is the city's biggest industry.

The workers are represented by the United Auto Workers Union.

Both sides have been negotiating since January to renew a contract that expired Feb. 28. The union has been seeking a 17 per cent wage increase in a three-year contract. The company has countered with a boost of seven per cent.

BUY BICYCLES

AMSTERDAM (AP) — The bicycle glut in wheel-happy Holland continues, with Dutchmen buying 750,000 bicycles in 1969, government statistics reported.



Seagram's Five Star outsells all other whiskies in Canada.

How come?

Easy taste, easy to look at, easily the best buy. Plus the Seagram name and quality. Go prove it for yourself. That's the easy part.

105th Birthday!

Mrs. Dora Dodd celebrated her 105th birthday at the Centennial Manor in Bancroft on April 25. She was born in Germany near Hamburg in 1865 and came to Canada at an early age. Mrs. Dodd, "Granny," as she is affectionately called, came to Bancroft from the Manor in Belleville April 21, 1968. She is pictured at a party given in her honor with Mrs. Jack Brown and Miss Sandra Huntman, Reg. N.

University Women Plan Exhibition of Paintings

The University Women's Club of Belleville and District will once again present an exhibition of paintings by Mary MacDonald, RCA on Saturday, May 2, in St. Joseph's school auditorium.

This year marks the silver anniversary of the Club's association with Mr. MacDonald. Through his generosity and that of the public the Club has been able during these 25 years to donate a sum of $8,000 in scholarships to 44 girls entering university from this district. In addition 24 persons had the good fortune to gain a beautiful Mandy MacDonald painting, donated by him.

Mr. MacDonald, born in Point Anne, is said to have been always busy sketching, even as a child. In his early years he attended the Albright Art School in Boston, the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, and the Ontario College of Art in Toronto. He became an associate of the Royal Academy of Artists, and spent a year visiting galleries in France, Spain, and Italy to study the work of world-famous artists.

Now Mr. MacDonald is himself a painter of note. In 1918 the British government commissioned him to do a series of canvases of women working on the land for a War Memorial to Canada. One of his paintings was the selection of the Canadian government for presentation to Queen Elizabeth. Four of his paintings hang in the National Gallery in Ottawa, and one donated by the University Women's Club hangs in the Corby Public Library just to the left of the main desk.

Though now living in Toronto, Mr. MacDonald returns for several months each year to his childhood home to paint scenes of the countryside familiar and dear to so many in this area. So very popular are his paintings here, that owners are proud to regard them as family heirlooms. Though in recent years his works have tripled in value, still at this exhibit they are priced more reasonably than at the galleries in Toronto.

The late Mrs. MacDonald was an artist in her own right with still life her specialty. One year at the University Women's Club Spring Fair she showed her interesting "Rodan Garden," but never her pictures. On May 2, Mr. MacDonald is displaying some of her work.

The University Women's Club cordially invites everyone to come for tea, 1:30 to 4:30 and take this opportunity to view the paintings, and meet the artist, Mr. MacDonald.

Club Activities

GAMMA MU CHAPTER

The regular meeting of Gamma Mu Chapter was held April 7 at the home of Mrs. J. Sherry. Following the business meeting, Mrs. Alex Fulton presented her program entitled "Pictures". Mrs. Fulton outlined the developmental stages of children's art and illustrated them with examples of school children's work.

The second April meeting was held at the home of Mrs. George Bailey with the president, Mrs. P. Anderson presiding.

The meeting opened with the installation of the director, Mrs. George Wisbert and a new social sponsor, Mrs. A. Cheseroe.

Following a brief business meeting, a presentation was made to the out - going director, Gamma Mu, Mrs. Hugh Murray. Mrs. Murray was thanked for her two years of service and gifts were given so willingly to "sneebers of the chapter.

Mrs. R. Michaud introduced the speaker for the evening, Mrs. George Bailey whose topic was "Absolute Music". After outlining the effects of music on human emotions, Mrs. Bailey sang and played on the piano several selections chosen to illustrate moods created by music. Mrs. L. Schnell thanked Mrs. Bailey for her presentation.

Activities Planned By ORMTA

WHITBY'S DISTRICT — At a recent meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association the following upcoming activities were announced: the third recital of this season will be held May 2 at St. John A. Macdonald School, Belleville. A Sunday afternoon piano recital which will include piano, organ and any other senior voice and instrumental student performances from Grade 8 and above will be held at King St. United Church, Trenton, Sunday, May 24 at 2 p.m. It is hoped teachers will support this new endeavor so it will become an annual affair.

In November there will be a Canadian composers' recital to take place during the tenth anniversary of Canada Music Week. Information about such composers will be obtained from the publishing houses and also at the recital. Further information will be given at a later date.

A report of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association was given by Mrs. P. Wall of Belleville, president of the Belleville branch, ORMTA.

Mrs. H. Van Ostern of Trenton and Mrs. P. Wadd of Belleville were delegates from this district. Mrs. Wall reported that many lectures, recitals took place and a visit was made to the Art Gallery. A reception was held at Government House by Governor General Roland Michener.

The most vital issue discussed was the licensing of the private music teacher. Mrs. Ouchterlony, who helped spearhead this movement, came from Toronto to help discuss the problem. It was pointed out by the Canada Music Council that a certain amount motion was passed that some provision should be taken with regard to licensing. A question and answer period followed.

A telegram from the branch will be sent to Dr. Potter asking for his support.

Art Sessions Have Changed

TORONTO (CP) — Art at school used to come in a formal session every second Friday when you copied the teacher's drawing and relaxed by "talking to your neighbor, quietly."

In Ontario schools now, formal rigid lessons are being replaced by sessions where pupils are encouraged to express themselves more freely.

This means that pupils can start any time and any one of 190 different materials can be used: paper mache, crayons, toothpicks, doctors' tongue depressers.

The children don smocks and sprawl on the floor with big brushes and big pieces of paper. Chatting is encouraged, not punished.

"When I went to school the teacher did the thinking for me and put it up at the front," recalls Ada Warren, a public school principal, "but now I don't do your picture her way, the work ended up in the wastebasket and you ended up in tears."

Today teachers stay in the background and offer instruction when a child seems ready. Sometimes a youngster will bring a picture of a house and say it looks crooked. That tells the teacher the child is ready for a lesson on perspective.

Teachers are encouraged to try unusual materials. At Miss Warren's school they have made beads out of cornstarch dough, car-rings from paper mache and bracelets of plastic lacing.

"I've been children doing dandy pictures on window blinds, pieces of wood and even dried mushrooms," Miss Warren said.

Engagement Notice

Mr. and Mrs. George Bedard, R.R. 2, Frankford, announce the engagement of their eldest daughter, Yvonne Helen, to Mr. Lyn Douglas Harrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Harrington, R.R. 2, Frankford. The marriage will take place in Frankford United Church, Saturday, May 23, 1970, at 11 a.m.

Administrator of Camp Speaks at UCW Meeting

MARMORA — Rev. V. Zufelt, guest speaker at the April UCW meeting of St. Andrew's United Church, has been active in the work of Camp Quin - mo - lac on Moira Lake, and last year became year - round administrator, when he and Mrs. Zufelt took up residence on the site.

He recalled that years ago, time in church camps was spent primarily on Bible study. However, to meet the needs and interests of today's youth, the idea of today's camp is basically in discovering God's world, and youth and adults alike find adventuring in nature a wonderful experience.

"Living together in the out - doors setting, with a group of campers and leaders for several days, leads to new understandings of faith and new experiences of living in relationship to others," he said, and named several United Church missionaries, ministers, and devoted leaders whose decisions in life have been changed or strengthened by activities and experiences at the camp.

It was noted that a great many improvements and changes to meet the needs of modern day have been brought about through the years at Camp Quin - mo - lac. Financed by the Board of Christian Education of the United Church of Canada, the effort began with a small campsite at Oak Lake near Stirling, but when bigger and better facilities became necessary, the site was moved to Moira Lake, south of Madoc, where 250 acres of land with water frontage provide the camping facilities available today.

Camping is a unique Christian education opportunity and at Quin - mo - lac, persons of every age take part each year. Besides the children and teen-age camps, there will, this year, be four family camps and a new outdoor, a Senior Citizens' Camp. In September there will be a school for the UCW.

With so many activities during the summer months, camp counsellors and leaders are needed, and those present at the meeting were asked to consider this need.

Rev. Zufelt looks forward to an even larger enterprise in the future at Quin - mo - lac with prospects of winter activities. Facilities could be made available for ice-boating, snowmobiling, skiing and sleigh-riding. While these activities do not affect church life as far as actual Sunday worship is concerned, he feels that they are most helpful to family living and that the church must cater to this side of modern life.

Before showing many beautiful slides of the campsite and the various camp activities, Mrs. Zufelt, who was present with her husband, taught those in attendance, including several young people of the church, a camp song, written at Quin - mo - lac last summer entitled "The Lord is My Shepherd: I'll Walk with Him Always".

Mrs. Granville Meiklejohn, program convener, thanked the guests, and Mrs. Douglas Vibert, president, invited them to join in a social period.

Two Girls Are Entertained

TWEED — Eighteen Tweed Kiwanis Club members entertained two local girls, Lin Dianne Canning and Miss Kathy Pokora, at their regular meeting, April 16. Miss Canning is the Dairy Princess for Hastings County, while Miss Pokora is the Tweed Show Queen for 1970, and reigned over all the Eastern Ontario Contest at Perth on Saturday, March 21.

Fifteen members and one guest speaker of the evening, and told the club members the value of 4-H in connection with milk substitutes. She was introduced by Donald Martin, the local representative on the Ontario Milk Marketing Board.

Miss Canning also introduced Miss Pokora, and made reference to the Snow Queen and Miss Eastern Ontario Contest. Gifts were then thanked on behalf of the Club members by Kiwanian Roy Hamilton.

The Ontario Milk Marketing Board donated two 5 - lb. blocks of cheese for a club draw.

Those were won by Kiwanian Frank Tate and Miss Kathy Pokora. The presentation was made by Mr. Martin.

SOCIAL and PERSONAL

Previous to her marriage Mrs. Edward Barnett (nee Lynne Diane Lewis) was honored at a miscellaneous shower held at the home of Mrs. Bernice Hunt and given by the girls at the County of Hastings office. A second miscellaneous shower was held at the home of Mrs. Isabella Maracle and given by the bridesmaids, Miss Pam Lewis, and Miss Gaye Barnett with Isabella Maracle, hostess and Mary Rowbotham as co-hostess.

Couple Celebrate 40th Anniversary

On Sunday, April 19, approximately 135 guests came to offer congratulations and best wishes to Mr. and Mrs. Bert Morgan of Plainfield, on the occasion of their 40th wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker (Bunny) Morgan, the former Ida Bristow, who were the host men and maid of honor 40 years ago, were in attendance. Mrs. Chumbley presided at the tea table pouring tea from a silver service. The table was decorated with a white linen tablecloth and a floral arrangement of white mums, and red roses. The three - tiered anniversary cake was topped with a vase of lily of the valley and pink roses.

The couple received many gifts including a large plate of silver from daughters and sons and the families of each.

Women's Institutes

QUINTE WOMEN'S INSTITUTE

The annual meeting of the Quinte Women's Institute was held in Trumpour Memorial Hall, Tuesday April 14.

At the noon hour all members partook of a pot luck dinner, after which the meeting was called to order in the usual manner, with the president Mrs. Clifford Reid presiding.

Mrs. Reid welcomed all the members and guests and thanked all the members for their help during the year. Mrs. C. Wood, secretary, read the minutes of last annual meeting and financial statement for the year. Auditors report was given and the correspondence was taken care of. It was decided that the Institute secure a membership to Hastings Manor and also the Historical Society. Reports of all standing committees were given by the convenors. Mrs. J. Parrott read the slate of officers for the new year and Mrs. Jack McLaren conducted the election of officers and was installed them.

The list of officers for the 1970-71 is as follows:

Past pres., Mrs. C. Reid; president, Mrs. Arnold Mitchell; 1st vice-president, Mrs. E. Fleming; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Jack McLaren; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. K. MR. AND MRS. EDWARD BARNETT

Barnett — Lewis

Christ Church, Deseronto was the scene of the recent wedding of Lynne Diane Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Lewis of Shannonville and Edward Walter Barnett of Belleville, son of Mrs. Blanche Barnett of Ottawa.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown of maxi style with imported nylon organza. The bodice featured an empire waist trimmed with Venise lace and a satin bow. The wedding band collar and long full sleeves were cuffed with the same lace. The skirt flowed in a gentle A-line and was trimmed with vertical rows of Venise lace crowned with satin ribbon. Attached at the waist was a chapel train of organza trimmed with matching lace. Her headpiece was a cluster of white leaves with pearl accent attached to a bouffant shoulder-length veil. Her flowers were a cascade bouquet of white carnations.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Mary Rowbotham wearing an orange taffeta dress with an orange lace and yellow printed sheer overlay. It featured an empire waist and puffed sleeves trimmed with gold velvet ribbon. Her headpiece was a matching cluster of fabric roses with tulle and she carried a colonial cascade bouquet of orange and white mums.

Bridesmaids were Miss Pam Lewis and Miss Gaye Barnett. Each wore a dress similar to that of the matron of honor in yellow taffeta. The headpiece and flowers were similar to those of the matron of honor as well.

Flower girl was Miss Susan Barberstock wearing a full-length white cotton dress trimmed with orange ice. It had a yellow sheer sash and puffed sleeves. She carried a basket of orange and white mums.

Best man was Thomas Barnett and ushers were Charles Rowbotham and Bernard Hoag. Ring-bearer was Donald Lewis.

For the reception held in the Council House, Tyendinaga Reserve, the bride's mother greeted the guests wearing a fuschia pink crimplene dress with matching coat, navy accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses and white carnations.

For the wedding trip to the East Coast and specifically Nova Scotia the bride wore a white and pearl grey two-piece wool suit with black accessories and a corsage of pink sweetheart roses.

The couple will reside at 19 Ritchie Ave. Apt. 8, Belleville.

Ann Landers

Happy Wife Deplores Emphasis on Sex

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am sick to death of the emphasis on sex in marriage. Sex is fine for those who enjoy it, but the element of a marriage does not depend on it. To put it bluntly, people just don't spend that much time in bed.

My husband and I respect each other, we like each other and we are kind to each other. He learned early in our marriage that I was not keen on sex so he adjusted his sex appetite accordingly. We watch a lot of TV and play gin rummy. Many of our friends to whom sex was very important are now divorced. We are in our middle 40's and have a very satisfying and pleasant marriage with very little sex. Print this if you dare. — MONTEREY.

DEAR MONTEREY: How lucky for you that you married a man who was willing to "adjust his self-appetite accordingly." Not all husbands would settle for TV and gin rummy.

Your marriage as you describe it sounds dull as dishwater to me, but if you and your husband are satisfied, who am I to knock it? I say without any hesitation, however, with sex, your marriage would be a whole lot better.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: What is wrong with my friend? We are both grown women with families. She is a fine person and I am fond of her but I can't stand the way she holds my arm or touches me whenever we talk. I have seen her do this with other and I keep wondering if they are as irritated by it as I am.

Yesterday, at a tea, this woman placed her hands on my shoulders as we spoke and I became so upset I had to excuse myself and go home. Why does she have to touch people? Does this include the presence of a psychological problem? — KITCHENER, ONTARIO.

DEAR KITCH: Yes. It's a psychological problem all right — but the problem is yours, not hers. Some handicapped individuals do not like to be touched but a person who becomes so upset he must excuse himself and go home, is seriously overreacting.

Possibly you have a deep-seated antipathy for this woman which you are unwilling to admit, even to yourself. Or perhaps she reminds you of someone you disliked as a child — someone who put her hands on you in a similar fashion. Understanding your feelings may help you reduce your hostility to this friend when, I assure you, hasn't the slightest idea that she bothers you.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Why is it that when a woman loses her husband she is the centre of attraction — for three weeks. Her home is filled with people. There are too many phone calls, too many letters and telegrams, too-fancy visitors and too much food. Suddenly — the phone is silent. No one comes. She is very much alone.

Now that I look back, I realize my home was a social centre. The food was plentiful, the liquor flowed freely and everyone had a jolly time, under the guise of "cheering me up." People love to go where the action is and for three solid weeks it was at my house. I have come to the conclusion, Ann Landers, that people are no darned good. — REALIST IN STAMFORD, CONN.

DEAR REALIST: Did you think it was going to last forever? Your family and friends tried to take your mind off your grief while the wounds were fresh, but surely you didn't expect the hand-holding to go on indefinitely. People must return to leading their own lives. Instead of damning the human race I suggest you join it — and stop wallowing in self pity.

Students to Visit Area

TWEED — Professor P. A. Peach, Department of Geology, Brock University, plans to bring a class of 14 third-year students to Tweed and district for a field mapping course from May 1, to May 14. The students will be working around the hamlet of Sulphide and Bogart areas, which lie east of Tweed, as well as in the Madoc, Queensboro, Hazard's Corners districts, and as far south as Roslin area.

This is a new Department of Geology at Brock University and this is the first class of students to take part in the courses offered.

This is the second group of geology students planning to visit Tweed during May.

The University of Toronto Geology Field Camp will be held from May 3 to May 16, according to Professor D. H. Gorman.

Teeners Depressed One Minute, Hysterical Next

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: My best friend and I are 18 years old and we have a problem. One minute we're depressed about everything, moreover, we don't care about anything or anyone, and the next minute we're laughing hysterically about the most trivial things. This happens wherever we are as long as we're together. Should we see a psychiatrist or are we just still immature? — Hysterical.

Dear Hysterical: Just as long as you never lose the power to laugh there's hope for you.

Mood swings do go with immaturity, but you two can help yourselves grow up. How? When you get depressed, don't just sit there; do something! Something creative, fun; or something that helps a pal.

Or take a pretty flower to a lonely old lady.

* * *

Dear Doris: I am a father who is bringing up my two sons by myself as my wife has deserted us. For my own sake as well as for the boys I must try to build a new life.

One of the prerequisites should be a new wife and mother for us.

My problem is that I have built a shell around me and now find a strange lonely world to face. Without friends I cannot be introduced to any possible fish in the ocean. If you'll pardon my pun.

How do I go about looking for a girl who would be compatible for my two boys and me? — Daddy Don't Cry.

Dear Daddy: If you are without friends, make some. But let warn you: no woman wants to be wooed because she looks like a good prospect for a job as unpaid homemaker.

Solve your family sitting problem first. Then go out after a mate just as any single man would — with the idea of falling in love and of linking up for life with someone whose interests and personality jibe with yours.

Perish the thought that this shell of yours was meant for life. Get into a sociable activity handy to home and give it all you've got. The woman who is right for you will come along.

* * *

Dear Doris: I was resting in your column that birthday cards could be made with felt pencils.

I would like a little information on this, if you think it would interest a newly formed club of hobby crafts.

And what are felt pencils? — Hobby Crafts Club.

Dear H.C.C.: A felt pencil or pen, has a tip which is made of a narrow strip of felt. In essence it prints or paints by drawing a narrow strip of ink (of any desired shade) across a page; sort of a miniature paint brush.

You can make wide, large letters for marking addresses or packing cases with a fine - tipped type, you can write or print a colorful message on a new - style large-sheet stationery. You can't say much, mind you, but what you do say is likely to look artistic — if you are equal to the high - class script it calls for.

But there are heaps of other uses: making posters, colorful cards, monograms, figurines; in fact coloring on any slightly porous surface.

(Doris Clark, Master of Social Work, is a graduate of McGill, Toronto and McMaster Universities, and has broad experience in social work. If you would like help with your problems, write to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Meat Loaves Easy to Prepare

By MARY MOORE

One and one-half pounds of ground chuck beef served four generously and could have been stretched to serve five. I suppose that is par for the purse these days.

Meat loaves are easy to prepare and this one had the company of some glazed sweet potatoes in the oven with it. The tomato sauce to top the meat loaf was a breeze to make and gave the loaf just the right brightness it needed.

MEAT LOAF
(Serves 4 or 5)

LOAF INGREDIENTS

1½ lbs. ground chuck beef
½ cup milk
2 slices whole wheat bread
2 EGG
1 tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
½ tsp. salt
1 tbsp. freeze-dried chives (or fresh chives or green onions chopped)

TOMATO SAUCE:

1½ cups canned tomatoes
2 tbsps. sugar
1½ tbsps. corn starch
¼ tsp bay leaf
½ tsp. salt

In the bottom of large bowl soak bread in milk as you add all remaining meat loaf ingredients and mix well by hand. Shape into "football" and place on undersized pan.

In small pot combine all tomato sauce ingredients and cook stirring until thick. Pour half over loaf perching bay leaf on top. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 1 hr. Transfer to preheated serving platter and pour over reheated remaining tomato sauce.

Along with it I baked

MAPLE GLAZED SWEET POTATOES

1½ to 2 lbs. (weight when purchased) sweet potatoes
½ cup maple syrup
¼ cup butter
½ tsp. salt

Scrub sweet potatoes and slice, unpared, ½" thick. Cook in boiling water, covered, until tender but still retaining their shape. Drain and peel. Arrange in shallow baking dish, overlapping. Dot with butter and pour over all the maple syrup. Sprinkle with salt. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr., covered for ½ hr. Turn all potato slices over, remove cover, and bake ½ hr., longer.

MONDAY

Dinner Menu

Curried Lamb on Fluffy Rice; Baked Bananas; Relish Tray; Chopped Peanuts, Chutney, Shredded Coconut; Butter Tarts; Tea.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "The children have been cranky all day. Rainy days always upset and depress me and I suppose they've inherited my feelings."

Children don't inherit your feelings — but they do reflect them in their actions. If you make the best of depressing situations, your youngsters will tend to do likewise.

Sydney J. Harris Says

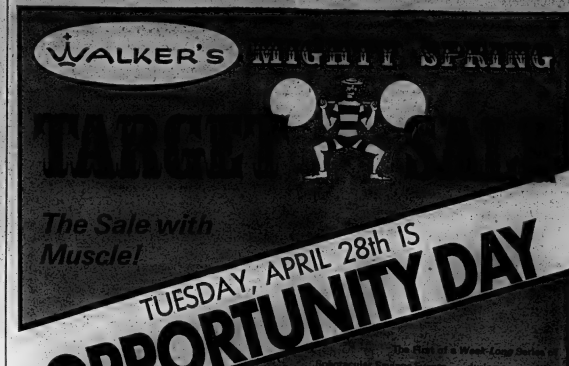
Scientists Begin to Feel

One of the quiet revolutions taking place today — and possibly more significant than many of the noisy ones — is the change in attitude of modern scientists. They have begun to think, and feel, and act, more like total human beings.

Science is traditionally a "descriptive" discipline, not a "normative" one — that is, it tells, or explains or shows: it does not make value-judgments. It scrupulously keeps its own predilections and feelings out of the scientific equation.

But now, scientists are beginning to recognize that they cannot separate the social consequences of their activities from the "pure" research in the laboratory. They are worried, they are concerned, they feel they can no longer ignore the ethical implications of their work.

In an unusual display of candor, a few months ago, three young Harvard Medical School scientists announced an historic breakthrough in molecular biology — the isolation of a single gene — with the word "frightening!" They also warned that their work "may have bad consequences over which we have no control."



This was an extraordinary departure from "proper" scientific announcements, which simply state facts and make no judgments.

In their case, the "frightening" aspect of their discovery is that mankind may shortly have the ability to manipulate the mechanisms of heredity. While this can prove enormously beneficial in avoiding or controlling diseases and deficiencies, it also now makes possible a new kind of "genetic warfare" among peoples.

The more knowledge advances, the more it seems to be used for destructive purposes. Since the discovery of atomic energy, only a miniscular part of our efforts has gone to developing atomic energy for constructive ends: the overwhelming share has gone for weaponry that can blow up the world in an instant of paranoid irresponsibility.

Scientists in all fields are increasingly aware that they have little control over the consequences of their work; that their knowledge is transmuted more into raw power than into social benevolence; and that society does not have the moral integrity or emotional stability to utilize such discoveries for the greatest good of all.

Thus, scientists are quietly but determinedly repudiating their traditional attitude of neutrality. They are refusing to work on projects whose potential for evil is at least equivalent to their potential for good. And they are warning the public about possible perversions of their disciplines. If this revolution prospers — and it shows every sign of doing so — life may begin to be served more than death.

Securities Moved Out Of Quebec

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's largest trust company, bowing to the wishes of what it called "skittish" investors, has transferred an undisclosed amount of securities to Toronto from, Montreal.

The dawn transfer by the Royal Trust Co. carried out by nine armored trucks Sunday— was made at the request of customers pending the outcome of Wednesday's Quebec general election.

J. W. R. Seatle, vice-president of Royal Trust, which has assets of $10,008,454,000 under administration, said in Montreal no company-owned securities were transferred. He said he regretted the move by "skittish" investors "because it is creating the idea of flight of capital."

J. A. Worsley, Ontario manager of Royal Trust, would say only that the securities arrived Sunday afternoon. He would not disclose their value or location except to say they are being kept in Toronto because "it is the logical place."

The convoy of armored trucks left Montreal early Sunday and were met by a fleet from Toronto in Kingston, Ont., about 2 a.m.

About 30 Brinks guards were on hand—some armed with shotguns—as the convoy sped up outside the Kingston police station and the boxes of securities were transferred one by one.

KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

After many requests I reprint a column which I wrote a few years ago:

Bridge is a dangerous game.

Amiability and good fellowship can, within the hour, turn into irascibility and downright animosity. Emotions allowed to run amuck are as potentially dangerous as taking your hand off the steering wheel while driving at 70 miles per hour. Any unexpected obstacle can cause a dangerous crackup.

It doesn't happen much in poker because you're on your own. Rarely in pinochle because your partner is only an occasional partner.

In bridge you're tied down for consecutive, fateful minutes with a partner — sometimes not of your own choosing. And it's even worse when the regular partner, husband or wife, is guilty of a fateful error.

Tension and aggression rapidly mount to the explosion point. Beware! The very foundations of your health and marriage may be vulnerable.

Too many people get too wrapped up in bridge. As it is primarily a game of partners, the temptation and opportunity is always there to inflict silent and outright vituperation upon the "ignorant, stupid, stubborn, etc." partner who innocently sits across the table.

Now, there are explosions and implosions. If you explode quite often because of misplays or mishaps by the "moron" who is ruining your game, your temper ridden body is a good target for a sudden elevation of blood pressure, a stroke, a coronary attack.

On the other hand, if you "implode" — just sit there burning up inwardly without openly emasculating the male partner or cruelly dominating the female partner — the inner tensions and built-up head of steam certainly won't do your ulcer, heart or arteries any good.

Although I am far from being an expert bridge player myself, I feel most bridge players will welcome the gratuitous advice I give you as an expert in medicine. Call them tips about the game, or ground rules, if you prefer. They apply as well whether you are sick or well, single or married, a hard worker or beachcomber.

* * *

Here are the ten commandments:

1. — Keep reminding yourself it's only a game. (Healthmanship) ...

2. — Don't play for stakes higher than you can afford.

3. — Be patient with stupid partners.

4. — Remember, the game is as much a test of yourself as a person as it is of your skill.

5. — No postmortems mixed with malicious accusations.

6. — When your partner fulfills his bid by playing quite well, don't invariably suggest: "You shouldn't have played your etc., etc."

7. — An outburst of temper directed against your own husband or wife (before others) may give you vicarious joy and a sense of power, but it is only another brick added to a slowly building wall of resentment.

8. — It's not important whether you win or lose, but how you play the game. (Trite but true.)

9. — If you can't govern your emotions, switch to chess — or solitaire.

10. — To repeat: for the sake of your health and peace of mind, keep reminding yourself (no matter what the provocation) that bridge is only a game — a game — a game!

* * *

For Mrs. U.: Here is a tip for your husband who invariably gets dizzy when he first stands up in the morning. This is also practical advice for many others over 30 who experience early morning dizziness.

Have him sit on the edge of the bed for a minute or two, taking a few deep breaths. This allows the blood circulation to accommodate to the upright position.

Bruin Verdict Unanimous, Blues Still Sparring

First Hawk Life Comes Too Late

BOSTON (CP) — Boston Bruins reached the Stanley Cup final for the first time in 12 years Sunday, battling Chicago all the way for a 3-4 victory and a four game sweep of their best-of-seven National Hockey League East Division final series.

They now await the winner of the West. St. Louis Blues and Pittsburgh Penguins are currently deadlocked at two games each.

As Eddie Westfall put it:

"Now we've opened the door, we've got to get through it. We're going to meet the best in the other division. We certainly are the best in ours."

The Bruins last won the Stanley Cup in 1941.

While out-shooting the Black Hawks 14-6 Sunday, Chicago was a far different club than the one that was easily handled by the Bruins in the final three games.

Boston opened a 2-0 lead after the first period, but Chicago rebounded into a 3-2 second period lead before the Bruin defence tightened again. The teams were tied 3-3 going into the final 20 minutes of regulation time.

The Black Hawks shot into the lead again early in the third period before the completion of the game changed in Boston's favor.

The end came with less than two minutes remaining when Johnny McKenzie, the scrappy Bruin right winger, pounced on a pass in front of the Chicago goal and rifled it by a screened Tony Esposito.

"I never saw it go in. I just shot it," said McKenzie who was mobbed by his team-mates and was engulfed in the thunderous applause of 13,821 partisan Boston fans.

Don Marcotte, Johnny Bucyk, Fred Stanfield and Ken Hodge were the other Boston marksmen. Dennis Hull tallied twice for the Black Hawks. Rookie defenceman Keith Magnuson, with his first NHL goal, and Bryan Campbell also scored for Chicago.

"You have to give them credit," said Boston coach Harry Sinden. "They lobbed a lot of shots at us.

"I told them (The Bruins) not to worry about scoring—if you don't score on a power play, a lot of times you'll fold. I didn't want this working against us."

There were two power-play goals. The first by Bucyk, came late in the first period while Gene Ubriaco was off for tripping Hodge. Tony Esposito in the Chicago net threw down his glove and stick and tore off his mask to protest that the puck hadn't crossed the line.

Then in the third period, Westfall hooked Bobby Hull on a breakaway and while he was off, Campbell cracked in his first playoff goal on a play with Magnuson and Dennis Hull.

Of McKenzie's goal, Stanfield simply picked up an assist—he said:

"I knew he'd put it in. I couldn't shoot myself. It would have taken too much time to come around. I saw Johnny going in and knew we had it. I knew if we tied it up we'd win it."

Bucyk said:

"This looked a long time—it seems forever. I hope this is our year."

Bobby Orr was the sobering influence for the Bruins. In the second period alone, the all-star defenceman and scoring champion spent nearly 13 minutes on the ice.

"I didn't realize Orr was on the ice so much," Sinden said. "He handles the puck so much that you get used to seeing him with it.

"We didn't skate in the first part of the second period. It took eight minutes for us to get skating again. It happened early enough in the game that we were able to recover. If it had happened in the third period, we would have been in trouble."

Sinden summed up:

"Both things we had to do in this series—stop Bobby Hull and stop Stan Mikita. And we did it."

Westfall had the job of checking Hull and held the Golden Jet scoreless in the series.

"It's not a nice job," he said. "But it is a necessary evil. Was a lice like ours (Derek Sanderson, Wayne Carleton and Westfall), I hope they'll have to worry about what we'll do from now on. I hope we can participate in the offence a little now."

The Hawks and the Bruins played it close coming into this series. The Hawks got here by virtue of a four-game sweep over Detroit. But Wings and the Bruins came in with a six-game series over New York Rangers.

Boston defeated Chicago 6-3, 4-1, and 5-2 coming into the final game Sunday.

The only major penalty of the series came in the second period Sunday when Chicago Cliff Koroll barged into Rick Smith, who went out with eight stitches to his mouth.

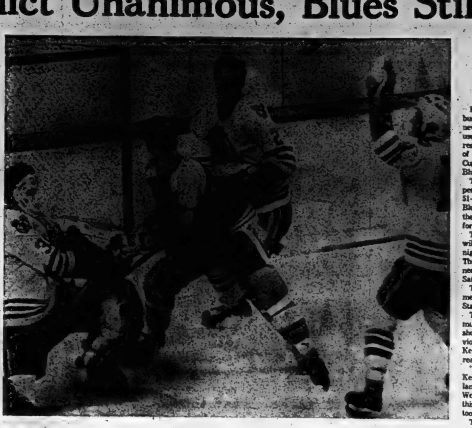
Less than a minute later, Bobby Hull got caught holding Phil Esposito and for two minutes the Hawks were short two players.

Chicago killed both penalties.

The wild, sweeping action reached a climax in the third period.

Campbell put Chicago up 4-3 after four minutes on a power-play goal with Westfall off.

Then Phil Esposito fed a pass to Hodge, who jocked it under a falling Tony Esposito to tie it up past the 13-minute mark.



The winner came five minutes later. Bucyk took the puck away from Doug Mohns behind the Chicago goal. It went loose and Mikita picked it up. Suddenly it was on Stanfield's stick. He fed MacKenzie.

Chicago coach Billy Reay gave the Bruins full marks.

"We gave it all we had, but it wasn't enough. I'm still proud.

"I don't want to say the layoff hurt us, but it did. We played a great hockey team. I have no excuse."

Reay did, however, feel the officiating was lax, especially where Chicago was concerned.

Penguins Add Offensive Punch

PITTSBURGH (CP) — Pittsburgh Penguins have added a new punch to go with their usual checking game and as a result have made a new series of their best-of-seven Stanley Cup semi-final against St. Louis Blues.

The Penguins stuck to their persistent checking but added a 31-shot offence to defeat the Blues 2-1 Sunday night and tie the series at two wins each before a record crowd of 12,362.

The fifth game of the series will be in St. Louis Tuesday night with a sixth back here Thursday. A seventh game, if necessary, would be in St. Louis Saturday or Sunday.

The winner of this series will meet Boston Bruins for the Stanley Cup.

The Penguins offence hadn't mustered any more than 27 shots in any of the three previous games but coach Red Kelly thinks his team now is ready for a win at St. Louis.

"I think we're due," said Kelly. "We never won in Oakland either until the playoffs. We're due, and they've got to be thinking a little about that, too."

The Penguins have not won a regular-season or playoff game at St. Louis and have scored just two goals in the playoff games there.

And coach Scotty Bowman of the Blues thinks his team can rebound from their two losses here and keep Pittsburgh winless on St. Louis ice.

"They didn't look any better at St. Louis than we did here, said Bowman. "Pittsburgh's hungry right now, but we're always a couple goals better with the crowde."

The Penguins held St. Louis to 24 shots at goalie Al Smith. And only the outstanding goaltending of Ernie Wakely kept the Blues from being run out of the arena.

"He's going to be the goalie of the future," said Bowman. "Tonight you couldn't get better goaltending from anybody. I think if they all played as well as he did, we would have won the game."

But the rest of Bowman's squad wasn't playing as well as Wakely and Pittsburgh forwards Michel Briere, Ken Schinkel, Jean Pronovost and Val Fonteyne several times broke in alone on the St. Louis goalie.

Pronovost and Briere started the Penguins to their first goal, as Briere dropped it back to defenceman Duane Rupp, who backhanded a shot past Wakely at 7:05 of the first period.

St. Louis coach Andre Boudrias tied it up in the second period when he got the puck in a scramble in front of Smith and fired a quick shot through a maze of legs.

But a minute later, Briere burst into the St. Louis zone on the right wing and held off a Blues defender to get a close shot for his fourth goal of the playoffs. That stood as the winner as the Penguins checking took care of any come-back attempts by the Blues.

Smith, who missed the first two games of the series with the measles, replaced Les Binkley in goal for the Penguins with Joe Daley as backup man. Binkley suffered torn knee ligaments in Thursday's game and will sit out the remainder of the season.

The Blues were without centre Frank St. Marseille, who still had trouble getting over a swoller right eye, cut by a high stick Thursday night.

The attendance Sunday was the second record crowd in a row here. A total 12,933 fans turned out last Thursday to fill the Civic Arena, which has a seating capacity of 13,580.

Spokane Mileage Beats Orillia

SPOKANE, Wash. (CP) — Spokane Jets got good mileage from pickup Ron Huston Sunday night as they broke a 2-2 second-period tie for a 5-2 win over Orillia Terriers in the first game of the best-of-seven Allan Cup senior hockey final.

Huston, picked up from Cranbrook Royals and last season's Western International Hockey League scoring champion, fired up the Jets with two goals in the final period.

Tom Rendall scored the other third period goal before the crowd of 3,928. Don Schersa and Gail Holden also scored for Spokane.

George Westfall and Corby Adams counted for Orillia.

The second game of the series will be played here Tuesday night. It is the first time in the 62-year history of the Allan Cup, symbol of Canadian senior hockey supremacy, that the final is being played in the United States.

Huston tipped a loose puck into the Orillia net for what proved to be the winning goal after goaltender Gerry McNamara had slopped a shot by Peter Vipond.

McNamara blocked 25 shots, four more than Spokane netminder Seth Martin.

Orillia dished out some of the heaviest physical punishment the Jets have encountered all season but Spokane's skating game paid off in the final period.

Scherza opened the scoring at 12:27 of the first period, driving a 15-footer past McNamara.

Westfall tied it a minute later after Carl Hymers stole a Spokane clearing attempt. Westfall popped in the rebound after Martin blocked Hymers' shot.

Orillia took the lead early in the second period when Adams bulled past the Spokane defence and scored. But Holden evened the score three minutes later with a backhander.

Orillia, Eastern Canada senior champions, fought hard and gamely in the final period but couldn't catch the fast-skating Jets.

Third game of the series is here Thursday.

Soccer Split

LONDON (CP) — England, held to a 0-0 draw by Scotland Saturday, had to share this year's British international soccer title with Scotland and Wales after winning it the two previous years.

Each of the three leaders defeated Northern Ireland, but the games among themselves all resulted in ties, giving each of the trio four points from a victory and two ties.

A capacity crowd of 134,000 at Glasgow's Hampden Park saw England and Scotland battle to the first goal-less tie since the opening of the series in 1872.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA freshman Bruce Simpson, a native of Agincourt, Ont., set a Canadian national pole vault record Saturday when he cleared 16 feet 9 ¾ inches. The five-foot-10, 160-pound Simpson cleared the bar with inches to spare. It topped the old Canadian mark of 16-4 set last year by Bob Raftis, Washington State athlete.

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Dennis Kazian's second goal of the game, at the eight-second mark of a sudden-death overtime period Sunday night gave Buffalo Bisons a 2-1 victory over Springfield Kings in a Calder Cup American Hockey League playoff game. The game was the second of the three-team round-robin semi-final series. Springfield defeated Montreal Voyageurs in the first game. The third game will be played Wednesday between the Bisons and Kings in Springfield.

MONTREAL (CP) — Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds face elimination tonight when they meet Montreal Junior Canadiens in the fifth game of the best-of-seven Eastern Memorial Cup semi-final series.

The Junior Canadiens, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, smashed their rivals from the Northern Ontario Association 9-3 Sunday night before 5,342 fans to take a 3-1 lead in the series.

The winner will meet Quebec Remparts in the Eastern final.

Richard Lemieux, Robert Guindon and Gilbert Perreault scored two goals each for Montreal while Robert Lalonde, Michel Labadie and Pierre Brind'Amour collected one each.

Eddy Bumbacco scored twice for the Greyhounds and Julio Francavilla added the other.

Junior Canadiens coach Roger Bedard, however was far from pleased with his club's efforts despite the one-sided score.

"They didn't play well," said Bedard. "and most of them were going at half speed.

"This type of series is going to hurt us against Quebec if we meet them."

Infield Hits Fatal

Green Grass of Home Jinxes Chance

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

The green, green grass of home betrayed Dean Chance and the Cleveland Indians Saturday, but Minnesota doesn't seem to be working wonders for Lois Thiel.

Chance and Thiel were the key figures in a six-player swap between the Indians and the Twins last winter.

Chance, 1-2, scattered nine hits in eight innings, walking two and striking out seven but the Indians lost to Chicago White Sox 3-0, as the high grass at Cleveland's Municipal Stadium affected two key infield hits.

Thiel, meanwhile, ran his record 3-0—he had a dismal 9-19 last year—by shutting out Detroit Tigers on three singles, 6-0. He also stroked a double and two singles, stole third base and knocked in a run.

Elsewhere in the American League, Baltimore Orioles made it 14 straight over Kansas City Royals 10-9, California Angels shaded Washington Senators 3-2, and then traded Rick Reichardt and Aurelio Rodriguez to the Senators for Ken McMullen, while Oakland A's tripped Boston Red Sox 5-3 and New York Yankees drubbed Oakland Athletics 8-3 for Mel Stottlemyre's first victory.

Saturday, Boston beat Milwaukee 2-0 in the second game of a doubleheader after dropping the opener 10-4, Minnesota edged Detroit 4-3, Cleveland nudged Chicago 6-5, Oakland blanked the Yankees 3-0, California beat Washington 5-3 and Baltimore clubbed Kansas City 9-3.

The White Sox nicked Chance for single runs in the second and third innings Sunday. The first scored on Joe Horlen's slow bouncer down the third base line which was allowed to roll and stayed fair. In the third, Luis Aparicio bunted safely down the third base line, took third on a double by Carlos May and scored on Buddy Bradford's sacrifice fly.

"There was nothing I could do about either one," said a disgruntled Grady Hatton, the Cleveland third baseman.

"I was completely frustrated. I guess all I can do is play closer if they're going to keep the grass here as long as it is."

Groundskeeper Harold Bossard said: "We couldn't do anything to the infield before this because it has been either too wet or we've had to put the tarpaulin down. But now, with the Indians on the road for 18 days, we'll get the grass cut."

Leading 1-0, Thiel triggered Minnesota's four-run fifth inning with an RBI double, then swiped third and scored on Cesar Tovar's infield single. Harmon Killebrew drove in two runs, each with a single.

Don Buford's three-run homer in the eighth inning carried Baltimore to victory and nullified Kansas City's comeback from a five-run first-inning deficit. The Royals haven't beaten the Orioles since taking a 4-3 decision last May 9 in the first meeting of the teams.

Brooks Robinson drove in four runs for the Birds and Dave Johnson hit a two-run homer. Bill Kirkpatrick and Bob Oliver connected for Kansas City, the latter with two on.

Niekro's Butterflies Coming Back

The butterfly in Phil Niekro's knuckleball is back in business after taking an exasperating two-week vacation.

Niekro's knucker, normally one of the most puzzling pitches National League batters must face, was no mystery until Sunday when the Atlanta ace mowed down Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 on a two-hitter.

In his first four starts, Niekro and his flutterless flutterball had been racked for 30 hits, 11 home runs, a 7.78 earned run average and four straight losses.

But Sunday, he pitched hitless ball for 6 2-3 innings and completely baffled the powerful Pirates.

Elsewhere Sunday, New York Mets topped Los Angeles Dodgers 3-1, St. Louis Cardinals dropped Cincinnati Reds 4-1, Chicago Cubs whipped Houston Astros 6-3, Philadelphia Phillies edged San Diego Padres 3-2 and San Francisco Giants split a doubleheader with Montreal Expos, winning 11-1 before losing 3-2.

Saturday, Chicago dumped Houston 11-5, Pittsburgh edged Atlanta 8-7, Montreal beat San Francisco 7-3, Cincinnati shaded St. Louis 3-2, Los Angeles blanked New York 1-0 and Philadelphia did the same to San Diego.

Niekro couldn't solve the Forbes Field no-hit jinx. No pitcher has ever achieved a hitless game in the 41-year history of the park, which the Pirates will vacate next month for their new Riverfront Stadium. Niekro defied the jinx until a two-out error in the seventh gave Manny Sanguillen a swing and the catcher's single broke up the no-hit bid.

Twinnie Aaron cracked four straight hits, including a homer and double which accounted for the Braves' runs.

New York's ace, Tom Seaver, retired the first 11 Dodgers he faced Sunday, running his string to 27 consecutive outs—the equivalent of a perfect game. He retired the first 11 Dodgers he faced Sunday, running his string to 27 consecutive outs—the equivalent of a perfect game. He retired, the first 18 Padres—including 10 straight on strikes—last Wednesday.

He settled for a six-hitter with home runs by Donn Clendenon and Mike Jorgensen pacing the Mets attack. Bud Harrelson stole three bases including one home for the Mets, who ended a 36-inning runless streak.

Bob Tolan throttled Cincinnati on five hits, striking out 15 for his strongest performance of the season as the Cards beat the Reds.

MONTREAL (CP) — There is a slight chance Canada will be allowed to compete in the 1972 Winter Olympics unmanned in Sapporo, Japan, the chef-de-mission for Canada at the next Winter Olympic games said Saturday. Frank Shaughnessy told the annual meeting of the Canadian Olympic Association "there is a slight possibility that pressure can be brought - - - to accept a Canadian entry." Shaughnessy said the possible pressure could come from the International Olympic Committee and the organizing committee at Sapporo to influence the International Ice Hockey Federation. He said, however, it is not certain whether hockey will be part of the Sapporo Winter Olympics. A decision would be made at an IOC meeting in Amsterdam, May 12.

HAREWOOD, Ont. (CP) — Derek Tennant of Peterborough drove a Mustang to victory Saturday in the Great Lakes Trophy Race at Harewood. Tennant covered the 57 miles in 38-17 minutes for an average speed of 90.02 miles an hour. He also turned the lap of the day at one minute-14.7 seconds — a speed of 92.19 miles an hour over the 1.9-mile course. Klaus Bytzek of Toronto placed second in the same lap driving a Porsche 911T. A lap back in third was David Butler of Toronto in a Lotus Elan.

No Close Shave for Beard

RANCHO LA COSTA, Calif. (AP) — Frank Beard pocketed a $30,000 cheque Sunday, the second largest of his golf career, after winning the Tournament of Champions by seven strokes.

Beard's impressive victory pushed his career earnings to more than $568,000. He now has more than $53,000 for the year and appears to be well on his way to his fourth consecutive $100,000-plus season.

"That really's unbelievable," said Tony Jacklin, British Open champion, one of three tied for second behind Beard.

Beard bolted out to a six-stroke lead at the turn and coasted to a seven-stroke victory, the largest margin of the year on the PGA. He had a final 71, one-under-par on the La Costa Country Club course, for 272, 15 under par.

Jacklin, two strokes back going into the final round, failed to set his clock for the change from standard to daylight time, didn't have time to take a single practice swing and struggled through the gusty winds with a 76 for 280.

He was tied with South African Gary Player, 71, and Masters champion Billy Casper, 72. Arnold Palmer was next with a 70 for 281. Orville Moody had a 70 for 284 and Jack Nicklaus was one of three at 286.

Haiti Rebels Defeated But They Flee with Navy

PORT AU PRINCE (AP) — Haitian President Francois Duvalier today appeared to be firmly in control after a weekend coast guard revolt failed to touch off rebellion ashore. But the rebels were on their way to Puerto Rico with half of the dictator's little navy, seeking political asylum from the United States.

"It appears to me President Duvalier's position is solid," U.S. Ambassador Clinton E. Knox told reporters.

"Papa Doc" Duvalier, survivor of more than a dozen plots against his 13-year-old dictatorship, proclaimed the situation "completely under control." He said the rebels would be tried "when they are captured."

Knox said there was no popular uprising and no panic when the coast guard flagship Jean Dessalines and two of the other seven small ships in Haiti's navy began shelling Port au Prince Friday morning.

The sporadic firing, aimed at the presidential palace, arched over the U.S. embassy and damaged a bakery near Duvalier's heavily guarded residence. Two slightly injured Haitians were the only reported casualties.

Airline flights and telephone communications were stopped temporarily, but otherwise life continued undisturbed in the impoverished Caribbean nation.

Informants said several Haitian officials had been arrested, among them Justice Minister Ramseus Rotius.

Haitian air force P-51s strafed the rebel ships Friday. The ships slipped out of the harbor Saturday and sailed off.

The U.S. state department announced that the three ships showed up at the U.S. naval base at Guantanamo, Cuba, about noon Sunday and "requested food, water and medical attention, which were provided."

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 28

Your birthday today: Strive to consolidate your gains of recent years. Your needs can probably all be met within a fairly close range if you have the luck to be in the right place. Where you must reach too far for some of them, relocation or a dramatic improvement of the local scene may be in order now.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — April 19): Your good ideas find a very narrow market — perhaps just one among the people you know who have any authority carrying weight.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Today continues the heavier going of yesterday, with the difference that now you do get some reasonable effort.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Older people get in the way. Conditions left over from long ago are still bothering you and others.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Due care with group efforts should bring reasonably good results today.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Spend the day settling issues and ending bothersome uncertainties on all sides. After these matters are out of the road you are free to have a good time with those you care about.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Any expression of annoyance you permit yourself today will plague you later.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Speculation and the advice of others are faulty. Rely on your own work and intuition rather than anybody else's.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Domestic affairs provide just enough nuisance, just enough concern to provoke you into doing a rather full review of all current programs.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Your work piles up into something more serious. Past performance brings a brief commendation but then is relegated to normal volume.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Trading, buying, selling all have rough going now.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Nothing goes easily today, but it's all worth the effort of pushing forward on all fronts.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Whatever you can do that takes a minimum of close co-operation is likely the better course today. Collect yourself and your energy and try to organize your affairs in compact forms for easy control.

NDP Critic Has to Do Liberal Job

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Max Saltsman, NDP member of Parliament for Waterloo South and he party's financial critic, said Saturday he has been forced to defend the white paper on proposed taxation reform because the government has panicked in the face of opposition.

Giving his support reluctantly to the white paper which he said embodies "the mildest of mild reforms," Mr. Saltsman charged that Liberal backbenchers, instead of supporting their government, have "turned around and are cutting the government's throat."

"As soon as some of their money supporters told them they didn't like the proposals because they would have to pay a little more money, they panicked, too," he said.

'Climate of Fear' Worsens at Colleges in U.S.

WASHINGTON (CP-AP) — A special study says that there is an increase in "the climate of fear" on U.S. college campuses that is affecting the independent judgment of students.

The report, released Saturday, condemned violence and disruptive tactics on campuses but added that tension has provided an "impetus for some overdue reforms" in higher education.

It called on educationists to give young persons a more responsible role in educational decisions affecting them.

And it said that universities with the highest academic standings are more likely to experience disturbances than other colleges, that most protests deal with student power, that the discontented minority on campuses are mostly articulate students from affluent homes and that another report says that faculty were involved in the planning of at least one-half the recent campus protests in the U.S.

The report was prepared by an 18-member committee named by the American Council on Education. The committee made up of persons from a variety of walks of life, from student leaders to a newspaper publisher, visited more than 30 campuses and talked to hundreds of students, faculty members and administrators.

The chairman is Sol M. Linowitz, a former U.S. ambassador.

Trinidad Capital Is Quiet

PORT OF SPAIN (CP) — This Trinidad-Tobago capital was quite Sunday, but police still manned road blocks and searched vehicles for guns or gasoline bombs which featured prominently in a week of rioting here which cost four lives.

A mutiny at army headquarters ended Saturday when rebel troops released about 30 hostages and turned in their arms.

At three-man committee was named Sunday to inquire into the mutiny and report to the government in 72 hours.

Port of Spain bustled with shoppers Saturday, but shops still had their windows boarded up.

Acting Police Commissioner Tony May said the dissident soldiers were under the authority of the 720-man army's new commander, Col. Joffre Serrette, and that the situation inside the Teteron Bay Army Base was nearly normal.

May said he was informed that the rebel officers and men would be paid and carry on their duties pending an investigation into circumstances of the mutiny, which began last Tuesday, by a special military commission set up Friday by the cabinet of Prime Minister Eric Williams.

The mutiny occurred the same day that the government issued a state-of-emergency order to curb increasingly violent Black Power demonstrations.

Freighter Bringing 600 Home From Cuba

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP) — Port officials say the freighter Luis Arcos Bergnes, reported bringing more than 600 young Americans home from a sugar cane cutting expedition in Cuba, is scheduled to arrive here about 10 p.m. ADT today and dock overnight.

The vessel, a converted cattle carrier, was reported to have left Havana Thursday with 687 members of the second contingent of the Venceremos (Spanish for "we shall win") Brigade, an organization sympathetic to the Communist government of Cuban Premier Fidel Castro.

Twelve empty buses from the Murray Hill Limousine Service in Montreal arrived here late Sunday to carry the young people to destinations across the U.S.

Water Alone Is Not Enough To Produce Clean Windshield

A reader writes:

"When buying gas I make sure the windshield is cleaned, but despite this when I turn on the wipers the windshield streaks so badly that I can barely see the road. Occasionally it is necessary to stop the car and wait until the wiper blades finally clean the glass. The problem is especially critical when the wipers have not been used for several days.

Could you sugest a method of overcoming this dangerous situation?" — Mrs. R. B, Kingston, Ont.

Although impaired vision is responsible for many accidents, about the only attention given to the car's glass is the cleaning of the outside of the windshield and rear window, which is usually done by the service station when we buy gas. But it must be remembered that to maintain maximum visibility much more cleaning is required. For instance, cleanliness of the inside of the glass is important, especially if you smoke.

When deposits of smoke are not cleaned off with a proper detergent, nighttime vision can be impaired. A casual rub with a cloth or paper towel may make the glass seem clean during the day, but in the evening the streaks you couldn't see earlier may blind you every time a pair of headlights approaches.

In damp weather, the muck sprayed onto the glass from the rear wheels of the cars ahead contains oil drippings, carbon and rubber particles from tires. Even on a clear day, various types of fallout coat the glass with an almost invisible slick. The most important thing is to keep the glass chemically clean, and straight water is almost useless in removing this grime.

Use a recommended glass cleaner, or even mild household soap and warm water.

The rubber on the wiper blades perishes after a period of exposure to sun, wind, snow and greasy road film, and worn blades lead to streaking on windshield. If wipers are turned on when there are bits of rough, sharp ice on the windshield, the blades can be mutilated enough that they lose their ability to squeegee the glass dry.

High - speed driving and curved windshields cause considerable "wind lift" which must be offset by adequate pressure on the wiper arms. The tension of the arms should be checked periodically to determine that the pressure meets the recommendations of the manufacturer.

Windshield washers are an essential safety feature. The most common cause of washer failure is dirt entering the reservoir when it is being filled. Just a few particles of foreign matter can plug the whole system. Most reservoirs can be removed, cleaned and re-installed in minutes.

In warm weather many motorists forget to fill the windshield washers or just add straight water. Washer additives serve a dual purpose: As well as preventing ice formation in the winter, they also act as a detergent and regardless of outside temperature they must be used to effectively clean the windshield.

Turning on the wipers when rain first starts can completely obscure vision if the windshield is chemically coated, unless the washers are first used to spray on detergent. Even then it may take a few seconds to clear away the chemical coating.

Train Hits Legion Hall

"Vote for me and I'll quit talking!"

KINGSVILLE, Ont. (CP) A freight car crashed through a cement block wall and caused an estimated $100,000 damage early today when a Chesapeake and Ohio freight train was partly derailed.

The 59-car westbound train came apart in the centre of the unit, sending 16 cars to upsets on both sides of the tracks along 700 feet of the railway in this town 20 miles southeast of Windsor. No one was injured.

A cleaning party of about 15 inside the Branch 188, Royal Canadian Legion hall, escaped as one of the cars crashed through the wall.

"An hour and a half earlier and we would have had 30 dead," said Legion branch president Julius Slomp. A 55-foot section of the south wall was ripped open where the freight car came crashing through, overturning tables, ripping down drapes and toppling a newly purchased piano.

The train, from Buffalo, N.Y., was in charge of engineer Arnold Perfect and conductor Paul Larson, both of St. Thomas, Ont.

Sharp differences in educational mill rate levies throughout Hastings county have been attributed to a drastically changed provincial grant structure.

Hastings Board of Education, in confirming last night thai variations range from Belleville's minus .25 to Herschel's 15.1 increase, explained it was the result of a uniform system of grants now applied to all municipalities in Ontario.

Under the new system introduced this year, all municipalities in the county were credited with 88 per cent of the total estimated cost of education.

Belleville, which in the past received less than 50 per cent in government subsidies, thus picked up an increased sum. Northern townships such as Wollaston, Limerick, Herschel and Bangor who formerly received up to 85 per cent, saw their proportion reduced as a result.

School board officials, who brought in a bare bones budget of $17,904,672, emphasized that the expenditures are increased equitably across the county.

The $17,904,672 budget represents an increase of $3,026,000 or 20 per cent over the 1969 estimated budget.

In presenting the budget, Kenneth Wormald business administrator, said "it seems incredible that despite the 20 per cent increase in 1970 over 1969, no new programs are possible. A goodly part of the answer to this puzzle is that the 1969 budget included only 4-10 of the cost of the new programs begun in 1969, while 1970 must include a full year's cost."

"The budget is the irreducible minimum for operations next year," said director of education Eric Runacres. "Nothing can be added and maintenance of schools has been cut from the $1,520,000 originally deemed necessary to $250,000."

On a recorded vote only trustees Miriam Graham, John O'Flynn, Raymond Rowe and chairman James Clarke supported an amendment to raise the budget to $18,000,000 "to give room to manoeuvre."

The budget accepted last night was the same one presented two weeks ago for trustees' consideration. Also presented last night were two other tentative budgets.

At $18,844,557, a beginning could have been made on several new programs. A budget of $18,976,394, representing an average increase of 46.9 per cent, would have permitted institution of all programs necessary to give Hastings county equality of educational opportunity.

Toronto Priest Gets Girl's Heart

TORONTO (CP) — A 56-year-old Roman Catholic priest who received the heart of a teen-age girl in a transplant operation Monday was in satisfactory condition today in St. Michael's Hospital.

Rev. Edward F. Madigan of St. Monica's Roman Catholic Church in Toronto was given the heart of Marlene Jones, 14, of Lindsay, Ont., in a 55-minute operation performed by a team of specialists.

Marlene died earlier Monday of brain damage suffered when she was hit by a car while riding a bicycle near Lindsay. Her eyes were donated to the eye bank.

Father Madigan, Canada's 18th heart transplant patient and one of three still living, had suffered from heart trouble since 1963 and had been incapacitated for the last year.

Cambodia Arms Aid Opposed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate foreign relations committee has made clear to the Nixon administration it opposes any U.S. arms aid to Cambodia despite that country's plea for enough military hardware to outfit a large army.

"The committee was virtually in agreement and very firmly against sending assistance," said chairman J. W. Fulbright (Dem., Ark.) after State Secretary William Rogers briefed the committee privately Monday.

The play will be presented at Centennial High School April 29 to May 2.

Poor at Disadvantage In Complex Markets

OTTAWA (CP) — The problems of a "complex, devious market-place" are disasters to the low-income consumer, the Senate poverty committee was told today.

The Consumers' Association of Canada said in a brief to the committee that the basic problem is lack of income.

The best shopping skills and consumer education coupled with an open, fair and protected market-place would help the poor.

Consumer education courses, particularly from kindergarten to grade 10, were important. Protective legislation, stringently enforced, was essential.

The organization says the poor face many disadvantages as consumers. They haven't funds to take advantage of seasonal clothing sales or special weekend buys. They can't buy in bulk quantities, buy durable, quality articles or do effective comparison shopping.

The costs of transportation or baby-sitting in shopping excursions made the poor particularly vulnerable to door-to-door salesmen.

Consumer Won't Have to Pay For Goods He Does Not Get

OTTAWA (CP) — A bill to protect consumers from being forced to pay for something they didn't get was introduced in the Commons Monday by Consumer Affairs Minister Ron Basford.

The bill, given routine first reading, is aimed at abuse of the current situation whereby dealers selling goods on a time-payment plan force the buyer to sign a promissory note.

The note is often then sold to a finance company which is legally able to force collection, whether or not the buyer has received delivery.

The new bill, proposing amendments to the federal Bills of Exchange Act, would provide consumers with a legal defence when caught by a shady dealer, by giving them an opportunity to show that the seller did not honor his part of the bargain before transferring the note to a sales finance company.

Mr. Basford said outside the Commons the provision will force finance companies to police the companies it takes notes from by making sure the terms of sale have been met.

The bill would require that when promissory notes are used in connection with conditional sales contracts, they be marked "consumer purchase," to make it plain that the buyer is signing a purchase order.

The amendments also apply to cheques postdated for more than 30 days. In some cases unscrupulous vendors ask buyers to sign a series of postdated cheques in place of a promissory note.

Such cheques would have to be marked "consumer purchase" as well.

More Securities Moved to Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — For the second consecutive day, Royal Trust Co. has transferred an undisclosed amount of securities to Toronto from Montreal.

Three armored trucks left Montreal Monday and met three other trucks in Kingston. With armed guards standing nearby, the securities were transferred to the second trucks and moved to Toronto.

Royal Trust officials in Toronto were unavailable for comment Monday night, but one spokesman said he believed the shipment Monday was the tagend of a four-truck load Sunday. Brinks guards in Kingston confirmed the transfer was made by Royal Trust.

Students Spark Race Riot

RIVER ROUGE, Mich. (AP) — Racial feelings, frazzled by weeks of black-white hostility, remained raw today in this industrial Detroit suburb, where a clash between black and white high school students led to rock-throwing, looting and the burning of three stores.

The high school was ordered closed until further notice by the school board.

Seven police officers and an unknown number of civilians were injured in the disorder Monday.

A state of emergency with a 8 p.m.-to-5 a.m. curfew was ordered by Mayor John McEwan after a bazaar burst into flames on the Penn Central Railroad tracks near the school.

The disorder started after black students held a grievance meeting in the high school gym.

Rumor 'Ridiculous, Untrue'

If Potter Shuffled Out of Committee Post, Will Remain MPP

By HARRY MUIRHALL
Staff Reporter

Dr. Richard Potter today angrily denied he contemplates resignation as MPP for Quinte because he may be replaced as chairman of the legislature's health committee.

"That's not true. It's ridiculous," he retorted to a newsman's report this morning which said he would "be purged in, shortly," by the government from his committee post.

The Globe and Mail today said the government will restaff as committee chairmen Mrs. Ada Pritchard, MPP Hamilton West, 58, for her loyalty to party and Conservative policy.

The Toronto newspaper adds: "According to friends, Dr. Potter, angry and frustrated, was at one point on the verge of resigning his seat . . ."

"There has never been any intention, there has never been any suggestion or any part that I was going to resign," said Dr. Potter this morning.

Even if replaced as chairman, he will continue a member of the health committee, Dr. Potter emphasized.

He said he only learned yesterday afternoon that the health committee was being called into session today.

By that time he already had made plans to leave for his constituency.

He is back home in the riding to organize last - minute details of a public forum at Trenton tonight to be addressed by Provincial Treasurer Charles McNaughton and Revenue Minister John White.

The meeting is the second of its kind organized by Dr. Potter, in which he has secured the participation of cabinet ministers in an attempt to keep constituents informed at first hand on provincial political issues.

Dr. Potter admitted he had heard reports Mrs. Pritchard might replace him as committee chairman.

"But it's rumor as far as I'm concerned," he said.

Speculation over his replacement as committee chairman is the latest manifestation publicizing the Quinte MPP as a controversial figure.

Since his election in 1967, Dr. Potter has made a reputation as a blunt - talking backbencher, often critical of his own government's policies.

But, complained Dr. Potter today, news reports overemphasize his attitude in the Legislature.

"They're trying to make a real fight out of it. Between Dr. Potter and the government — which it is not," he said.

Dr. Potter, who attended at Belleville General Hospital's operating room this morning, said the core of his criticism was with a parliamentary system that gave little power to committees.

Parliamentary committees, he said, are a prime source of involvement for backbenchers and the electorate.

"But the system should be changed so that committees are effective. Committees can provide a wealth of knowledge we haven't tapped yet for backbenchers and constituents.

He said he was not prepared to "create my time" attending committee meetings" which are cut and dried."

"As a member I think I can contribute more effectively by asking questions. I figure I'm giving the people down here (in his constituency) good representation. I'll continue as long as they want me. It seems to me, this is the way they want to be represented."

Award Winners

The Belleville Canada Cement Co. Ltd. plant has captured two trophies at the recent Ontario First Aid Competitions sponsored by St. John Ambulance.

Canada General placed first in the men's competition for the provincial trophy and also won the men's Industrial/Accident Prevention Association trophy.

Seventy - two teams competed for nine trophies awarded to teams of men, women, boys and girls representing the St. John Ambulance Brigade, industry, schools and recreation groups.

Piasecki Marks Time

PICTON (Staff) — A Picton branch office of Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. continues operations this week staffed by only two maintenance workers.

With Frank N. Piasecki's dismissal of resident representative Walter Symmons, effective last week, it was announced that Prince Edward county draftsman Gordon Fox would take charge of the local office.

Two days after Mr. Symmons' departure Fox flew to Mayfield, near Philadelphia, at Piasecki Aircraft's direction, where he will remain for an unspecified period.

A prediction by Walter Symmons that Piasecki Aircraft Ltd. probably would lease its Picton holdings to other industrial manufacturers remains open for local speculation, although Proctor-Lewyt Ltd., a Picton company manufacturing electrical appliances is using a garage and grocery but belonging to Piasecki for storage purposes.

This arrangement is not a recent one, being last December Proctor - Lewyt has been renting storage space from Piasecki but only this month signed an agreement with the company.

The Prince Edward County Chamber of Commerce, working with members of county council, plans an emergency meeting later this week unless word is received from George Hees concerning a government contract sought by Piasecki Aircraft. Defence minister Leo Cadieux last week informed Mr. Hees in a letter that he would have a report concerning the government contract within ten days.

Automated Heavy Machines Perform Close-Tolerance Jobs

BATAWA — A year - long modernization program designed to "bring tomorrow's machines into use today" is now nearing completion at Bata Engineering, the division of Bata Industries Limited whose primary function is the manufacturing of shoe machinery.

Heart of the modernization program, which cost more than $250,000, is the replacement of conventional machinery with three electronic, numerically controlled metal cutting machines fed by a tape system.

In order to keep abreast of the electronic metal cutting machines — Bata Engineering now has six in operation — a Ferranti-Packard three axis inspection machine with digital read-out was purchased.

"This inspection machine is a step into tomorrow," asserted Don Rowlandson, head of Bata Engineering's industrial engineering department.

"It can inspect complicated parts in about one-quarter of the time required by conventional equipment and it measures accuracy to 2-10,000 of an inch," he explained.

Mr. Rowlandson revealed that the electronic metal cutting machines, which repeated by hold the same degree of accuracy as the inspection machine, are three times more efficient than the conventional equipment they replace.

"This equipment is the key to the seventies in our industry and with the competition the way it is we have to be a jump ahead of the other fellow." Don Rowlandson emphasized.

"In the United States this business is a very fine art but in Canada it is a bit slower and we feel that we have taken the initiative here, putting us among the top people in Canada in numerical control equipment," he explained in assessing Bata Engineering's modernization program.

"I think that it's significant this can be done in the Trent Valley," the engineer said, "We hope to get more of this equipment but in many respects we're already ahead of other industrial areas."

"This will make us more competitive and hopefully bring more business into the area as everyone can benefit."

Bata Engineering staff recently underwent a three week training course at the Cleveland, Ohio plant of Warner Swasey, the company that manufactures the electronic metal cutting machines. The remainder of the operators will be trained at the Batawa plant.

"We're doing our best to recognize and implement training programs that will allow greater utilization of these machines," Mr. Rowlandson said.

"At present we have a single shift on these machines but we hope to have two shifts by mid-summer because these machines are very versatile — they can adapt to most metal turning operations," he continued.

"This equipment will play an important role in maintaining our competitive position in the manufacture of shoe machinery for world export as well as in the field of manufacturing automotive and aircraft parts," Don Rowlandson concluded.

Northern Talks 'Fruitful'

Talks between Northern Electric and the United Auto Workers launched yesterday in an attempt to avert a strike, last night were described as fruitful.

About 1,300 office workers at Northern plants in Belleville, Brantford and London could have gone on strike at midnight last night.

Negotiations were resumed in Toronto yesterday as the deadline for a legal strike neared.

Last night Bill Howes, strike director for the union, said the Toronto talks were fruitful and will continue until there is a settlement or a breakdown.

About 130 office workers at the company's Belleville plant — the city's largest industry with a work force of 1,100 — are represented by the Auto Workers.

A majority of workers at all three plants voted in favor of strike action if necessary to enforce demands in a new three - year contract. Negotiations earlier had broken down with the union demanding a 37 per cent increase in wages and the company countering with a seven per cent increase offer.

Our Blood Donor Service Is 'Best in the World'

At the regular meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society held April 22, it was announced that the Canadian Blood Donor Service is known as the best in the world.

President Mrs. J. E. Marsh said others of the executive gave detailed reports of the 50th annual meeting of the Ontario Division of the Canadian Red Cross Society held at the Royal York in Toronto, April 9 and 10. Delegates Mrs. Lewis reported that 90 per cent of the cost of the 16 depots across Canada is paid by the federal and provincial governments.

There was practically no increase in the amount of blood collected in 1969, however there were fewer periods of shortage because of better utilization of the blood collected. It is now possible to treat up to five patients for various body requirements from a single donation of blood.

Secondary schools and colleges are now providing 12% per cent of all blood collected. This fact was emphasized at the April 9 clinic held in Belleville. The large group of Unemployment Insurance donors was also a factor in the success of this clinic.

March was a busy month for homemakers. The routine was carried out by 16 homemakers in 31 homes with 75 children receiving care.

Miss Tickell reported activity in the equipment loan service which provided such things as wheelchairs needed for home care.

Mrs. Marsh closed the meeting with a reminder that the graduate exercises for the Home Nursing class are being held April 28 in Education Hall, Belleville General Hospital.

Honkers Are Heading For Summer Homes

Canada geese must be equipped with instant telepathy as well as instinct.

This year the ice in northern lakes is two weeks late in going out.

And the big honkers that each year fly to Northern nesting grounds are just about two weeks later this spring in making the long trek to their summer habitat.

Area residents last evening and this morning were treated to an aerial show of the big birds on their migrational flight north.

Shortly after six o'clock last night and again this morning at least a half dozen flocks of Canada geese flew low over the city. The birds were so low that they seemed to barely clear the highest trees and their ringed necks and wing feather's were clearly visible.

On Eve of Election

Parti Quebecois Lures Separatists and Radicals

Montreal Le Devoir: It must be noted here . . . that a party, especially one offering an ossified ideal such as the Parti Quebecois, can at the start rally enormous electors disappointed with traditional political structures.

Le Parti Quebecois voters for the first time also has the advantage of being novel. Since it has never been in power, no one can criticize it. It is a symbol of political virginity. . . .

On the other hand, it would be unfair to use the fate of the Bloc Populaire in 1944 to forecast what could happen to the Parti Quebecois.

(On Aug. 8, 1944, when all the votes were counted, Bloc Populaire had 26 per cent, about 175,000. It elected only four of 91 members to the legislative assembly.)

The circumstances today are not the same. The political climate in Quebec has evolved, quite a bit, in the quarter-century.

First, the percentage of the population made up of students has increased perceptibly. The voting age has been lowered to 18 years from 21.

But there is more. Students and their teachers today are more politically-minded than they were before. They are present everywhere, and this presence must be a source of uncommon dynamism.

The old parties have not been able to bridge the world of universities and colleges. They haven't been able to offer anything at both, not only on the political level but also on the social.

The Parti Quebecois thus has been able to attract in some way not only those who dream of an independent Quebec but also those who hope for a radical transformation in our society. . . .

Certainly there are revolutionaries and hoarded (cracked) who support the Parti Quebecois; but the truth is that the party has always dissociated itself from activists and bomb planters. It wants simply to be the voice of those who believe in Quebec independence while putting their trust in democracy. . . .

It should not be necessary to share the convictions of the leaders and militants of the Parti Quebecois to respect fully their sincerity. They are seeking to win over, not to impose their ideas by force.—

Quebec Election

Tomorrow's election in Quebec, with its overtones of separatism, financial instability and general unrest, is one of the most crucial in the province's history.

It could prove to be a turning-point in the history of this nation. The fate of the province itself hangs in the balance, as the ruling Union Nationale and the Liberals and Rene Levesque's radical Quebecois fight it out.

A victory for Jean Jacques Bertrand's ruling Union Nationale would at least prove that Quebecers are not yet ready for independence with all the uncertainties that that would entail. Mr. Bertrand does talk of a referendum on independence—if a new deal cannot be reached in the next four years, but clearly his policy is not the radical one of the Parti Quebecois. From the Liberals Quebec could expect less of radical and separatist concepts and more of policies aimed at stabilizing the provincial economy and maintaining a strong Quebec within Confederation.

However, the trend seems to be not in the direction of an outright win by any party but rather toward a minority government with the strongest party the Liberals, having only 25.5 per cent of the popular vote. That was the outcome of a recent poll published by La Presse of Montreal. The Parti Quebecois was a close second with 24.9 per cent of the vote while the Union Nationale trailed badly with only 13.4 per cent.

Le Soleil of Quebec City on the other hand conducted a poll which would give the Liberals 40 to 43 per cent of the vote — enough to form a majority government — while the Parti Quebecois would get 27 to 30 per cent, the Union Nationale 17 to 20 per cent and the Creditistes 10 to 13 per cent.

One way or another the predictions do not favor the Union Nationale. A vote for Rene Levesque's party on the other hand could be disastrous, with an independent and fascist-oriented Quebec just around the corner. A new flight of capital from the province in the last few days confirms such fears. That leaves the Liberal party under Robert Bourassa as the provincial bulwark against such a development. Fortunately for Quebec and Canada the indications are that the Liberals are running strongly.

Answer to Radicals?

University of Toronto president Claude Bissell, in theory at least, has a positive answer to student radicalism aimed at the break-up of our society and playing into the hands of the world-wide Communist movement.

He said recently that unless the university accepts responsibility for developing students' social consciousness, "the responsibility will be seized by a doctrinaire minority."

However, the very fact that Dr. Bissell finds it necessary to make such a statement is indicative of the immaturity of so many students today — young people who are easy prey for the agitator and the demagogue. Nobody can deny that much that is rotten in today's society, but it will not be erased by the all-out violence and total revolution envisaged by those who advocate such a course.

How, incidentally, can students be social responsibility? If it has not already been a strong factor in the student's upbringing, how can the universities hope to fill the gap? And the pity is that so little is heard from those who do behave in a stable, responsible fashion. All we hear are the loud bleatings of the mob.

Anyway, good luck to Dr. Bissell and other university authorities who apparently must now be saddled with teaching these young people manners and a sense of the fitness of things.

"There are times," said Dr. Bissell, "when social concern in the university seems to be the monopoly of misfits; young men from well-to-do families leading a revolution against their upbringing; middle-aged romantics seeking the light on the academic barricades; politicised hippies rushing to join a protest movement like children rushing to a fire; intentional pedants of faded dress, shaggy Sam Slicks gulling the natives; chronic pamphleteers, in the subsidized retreat of the undergraduate newspaper, endlessly repeating their pathetic little globules of Marxist jargon."

"Surely a university can do better than this," said Dr. Bissell. Yes, it can — but only if the students will let it. If they remain hellbent on tearing down the established order there is little that can be done to stop it. This then is where a climate or responsibility must be re-established, with the students themselves in the van. Otherwise the revolution they speak of will be upon us.

A U.S. Citizen Speaks Up

Anti-Americanism in Canada—Why?

Letter to The Globe and Mail

I am a citizen of the United States, living permanently in Canada as a landed immigrant by permission of the Canadian Immigration Department. I carry a certificate attesting that fact.

I lived 70 of my 80 years in the United States, but having lost my wife, I came over to Canada to marry an old friend of our family and I now live happily in Brantford. Considering the fact that I am past 80 years of age and not in the best of health, it likely that I shall die right here. According to one of your prominent feature writers I could not have chosen a better spot than Brantford for this purpose.

I have travelled widely in Canada from Vancouver and Prince Rupert to Glace Bay and have met hundreds of fine Canadian people. So far as I recall I never met one I did not like. But there is one thing that distresses me greatly. Many Canadians and nearly all editorial writers as well as radio and television commentators never miss a chance to criticize and demean the United States. This tendency is not duplicated in the States. During my 70 years in that country I never heard one word of criticism of Canada or Canadians. Most of my U.S. compatriots like Canada as I do and consider it a fine place to live and do business with. Why then Canadian and Canadian writers dislike the States so much? What have they done to deserve the adverse opinion? I wish I could read a few of particulars.

Recently I read a book review in one of Toronto's leading newspapers wherein a new book was discussed. The book is entitled Close the Forty-ninth Parallel. I note that the author wishes to bar all social and business intercourse between the two nations.

He must be aware that the 49th Parallel is more than 3,000 miles long and closing it tightly enough to shut off all traffic would entail superhuman effort as well as costing the Canadian taxpayers such a huge sum of money that it is doubtful if they would pay it. And having done all this I wonder if the results would justify the tremendous expenditure of time, money and effort involved.

I wish I could hear comments on this matter from Walter Gordon, Gordon Sinclair and other vocal patriots who find so much to complain of in the United States.

I wish also that these two large countries which represent one of the last remaining bulwarks of liberty and freedom in the world could live side by side in harmony and with good feeling on both sides. I am sure most of the States' citizens feel that way, with a goodness the Canadians did.

ROBIN S. WILLIAMS,
Brantford.

Citizens' Protest Paved Way For OMB Plaza Re-Hearing

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

As real estate agent for the new Regional Shopping Centre, I wish to extend thanks and appreciation to those citizens of Belleville whose efforts were responsible for securing this "500-man" enterprise for our community.

Following the original OMB rejection, this project would have been a dead duck had not Donat Clement phoned "Why Not Call" offering to head a protest against the unjustified decision.

The one man in 33,000 with enough civic interest and courage to assume leadership inspired other progressives who formed the Belleville Citizens for Belleville Committee.

By dint of hard work without any form of recompense other than service, to the community, these elected men and women obtained the signatures of nearly 12,000 citizens voicing their objection to the decision.

This objection in the form of a brief was presented to the OMB, the Government and opposition parties at Queen's Park.

For over a year, the Citizens Committee maintained unrelenting pressure culminated with another brief and strong representation on the stand at the second hearing.

Since the OMB chairman at the last hearing said "Our only reason for being here is the signatures of the citizens" — I believe the following names should be known to the public as the people who have proved that there is power in free expression and participatory democracy: Donat Clement, founder and chairman, Mrs. Solange Clement, Robert Christie, Mrs. Norman Kent, Mrs. Norman Kent, Bill Hockley, Vincent Freeman, Jack Cunningham, Emma Lloyd, Elmer Minaker, Mrs. Elmer Minaker, Frank Deley, Mrs. Agnes Wilson, Mrs. Ragna Curtain and Ian Reilly.

The Belleville Citizens for Belleville Committee was fortunate to include among its membership Bill Hockley, a former newspaperman with the ability to express ideas and thoughts with exceptional clarity and effectiveness.

Mayor Scott, Council and the Planning Board who unanimously reached the same decision regarding the re-zoning application in two weeks as arrived at by the OMB in two years, proved that nobody knows a community like the people who live in it, and that if regional government is established the decisive voice regarding local matters such as planning and re-zoning should be dominated by the lower tier or locally-elected authorities.

In expediting public relations and other matters between council and the principals, elder statesman Art Keegan is credited with a leading role in the successful conclusion.

Appreciation is also due the landowners for their patience and co-operation in agreeing to a long series of option renewals over a two-year period.

Those people of Belleville who exerted their democratic rights in forming the Citizens Committee, signing the petition, writing to the editor and calling the radio station have assured their community of an attractive development in an exciting new era.

DOUG GRANT

Provincial Coffers Empty

Is Quebec Forever Seeking A Scapegoat for Its Ills?

Montreal La Presse: Until there is proof to the contrary, Quebec is in serious financial difficulties. Its coffers are empty. Its borrowing power is nil. Economists note that investments are at their lowest, and the taxpayers see clearly that taxes are at their highest, while statistics show that the unemployment rate has reached 8.7 per cent, or 2.2 per cent higher than the national level.

Also, specialists who examine the situation come to the conclusion that Quebec has a serious money problem. It even has trouble paying its suppliers and making tax rebates. The banks are starting to refuse to lend money to school commissions, even with the endorsement of the education department, which has the effect of sanctioning the words of the president of the Quebec Teachers Corporation, who is not afraid to state that the department of education is no longer financially solvent. . . .

Quebecers appear to be eternally unlucky. Nothing works for them and they always have a scapegoat to fall back upon. Formerly, it was the fault of the Protestants and the Freemasons; later, it was the Communists and leftists; today the fault is that of the English, the separatists or the federalists.

And what if it is simply the fault of politicians who do not know their job? And what if it is the fault of all of us, incorrigible dreamers, incapable of governing ourselves and playing the democratic game? . . . Quebec needs a team of very competent politicians.

In any case, to pull it out of distress, it will take something other than old-time political tickers or sentimental, vociferous nationalists who believe that all will be for the better in the best of all worlds the day we succeed in making our own room on this continent.

The celebration today of the Diamond Jubilee anniversary of the Bell Telephone Company recalls extraordinary changes that have been brought about by the speeding up of voice communication. Belleville's splendid telephone history spans practically the entire period that it has been possible to talk over a wire. Alexander Graham Bell first succeeded in transmitting speech intelligibly over a wire on March 10, 1876. The following year on October 13, 1877, the latest telephone was tested over 60 miles of wire between this city and Picton. Some months later — on April 28th, 1880 — the Bell Telephone Company received its charter.

Education Should Be Stimulating

MATHESON, Ont. (CP) — Frank Kinsella, co-ordinating principal of Joseph H. Kennedy public school in this Northern Ontario community of more than 5,000, obviously believes that education should be stimulating.

Talk to pupils preselected in Grades 1 to 6 at this "rural" school and you will find them bursting with enthusiasm and excitement over the plans for this month's project, or the results of last month's experiment.

The most recent project undertaken by the students was the production of their own television programs. Thirty-five Grade 7 and 8 pupils were allowed three days away from the regular classroom routine to participate personally in writing, directing, staging and filming their own short films. Four television monitors, four cameras, and four videotape recorders were made available to the students.

Working under the direction of Don Kelly, of the educational television branch of the Ontario department of education, and Clyde Armstrong, an English consultant from the department, the pupils explored a number of techniques to develop the various shows they had prepared.

Mr. Kinsella said that the men from the educational television branch of the department had hard arranged for the equipment to enable the students to learn television techniques. He hopes to have equipment of this nature in the school by October.

During the school's first year, about 45 students took part in a pollution investigation project.

In a surprise visit, they were herded into the school gym, where they had to put up with blurred films being thrown on the walls, public address system feedback, the stench of burning filth, and flickering sets showing nothing but flipping lines, flashing road-block warning signals, and blaring radios, record players and tape recorders.

After the assembly, they were given a week to explore the various aspects of pollution, and to choose one specific area for intensive study.

One of the results was a variety show written, directed and acted by the students themselves.

DR. OLAF J. REED and MRS. REED

Couple Quietly Mark Golden Anniversary

A former federal government veterinarian, Dr. Olaf J. Reed, of 41 Bleecker Ave. with his wife Christina, yesterday observed their 50th wedding anniversary.

The day was marked quietly with close friends and neighbors calling to offer congratulations.

Dr. Reed was head of the federal government department of agriculture veterinarian service in Belleville for 20 years before being transferred to Toronto in 1941. After Dr. Reed's retirement in 1954 the couple returned to Belleville to live.

Both Dr. Reed and Mrs. Reed are natives of the Kincardine district in Bruce county. Mrs. Reed is the former Christina Martyn.

Graduating from veterinary college back in 1904 Dr. Reed was in private practice until World War I when he enlisted with the 59th Battalion and served overseas with the transport and veterinary corps.

The couple are members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in Belleville. Fraternally Dr. Reed is a life member of Kilwinning Masonic Lodge in Toronto, and of the Moira Encampment in Belleville.

They have two sons, Thomas of London, and Donald of Toronto.

White Cane Delegate To Attend Conference

The April business meeting of the White Cane Club was held at the Recreation Centre. President Pat Baverstock conducted the meeting and Mrs. Maude Rollins presided at the piano for the opening songs. There were 20 persons present.

Harvest McGrath introduced Brien Nicholson College students, Ann Fiddle, Ron McGrath and Fred Mallette. The group entertained with folk songs sung to guitar accompaniment.

Betty Dobson expressed appreciation of the Club for such an enjoyable program.

Bob Gill, vice - president, is to be the delegate to the C.C.B. Conference to be held in Windsor May 25-27. Delegates have been requested to register on the evening of May 25 for a leadership training session, to be held on May 26.

Mrs. Rollins read the March C.C.B. Council Commentary. Members were informed through this medium that the dates for the Hadfax School for the Blind Centenary have been changed to 1970. All former pupils have been invited to return and participate in the festivities.

The recipient of the 1970 award of merit medal and citation is Mr. A. J. Cossette of Montreal. This will be presented to him at the national convention banquet in Saint John, New Brunswick, in September. Mr. Cossette is sighted and in 1953 was recognized by the Bell Telephone Pioneers "for outstanding contribution to the sightless through the transcription of French and English books into more than 11,000 pages of Braille code, reflecting many years of dedication to this humanitarian service".

It was announced that as of March 1970 the Canadian Council of the Blind has a membership of over 4,000 in 82 clubs.

The Kinettes served a tasty lunch that was thoroughly enjoyed by Betty Woods. The president thanked the Lions Club for transportation.

Club Activities

The Belleville and District Aquarium Club met at the Recreation Centre on April 14. Mrs. Marguerite Wessels, president, welcomed both members and guests. A brief business meeting followed.

Mrs. Wessels thanked all the members who helped to make the aquarium entries in the Rotary Sunday Flea Market Fair a success. A special thanks was given to Vincent Sinclair for printing the brochures handed out.

Mrs. Dene Wilson gave the club an interesting talk on the guppy. This colorful and varied tropical fish is probably the most common one to be found in aquariums. For this reason he is sometimes neglected and allowed to mingle with his wild state. However, with tested hardy breeding and attention to his needs it is possible to obtain some very beautiful strains.

Mrs. Wilson traced the history of the guppy from the first records of his finding in 1859 in N.E. Venezuela until present times.

The speaker for the evening Harry Thompson, introduced by Vincent Sinclair, took the group via slides on a trip to the Bavarian Alps.

The following prizewinners won awards in the Tropical Fish Show: Adults: Fish - of - the - month, — Mrs. Velma Sinclair, Norman Wessels and Mrs. M. Wessels. Livebearers — Mrs. M. Wessels, Vincent Sinclair and Mrs. Velma Sinclair. Egg Layers — Mrs. Shirley Sinclair, Mrs. Velma Sinclair and Vincent Sinclair. Juniors: Livebearers — Brenda Nickle, Victor Adams and Richard Nickle. Egg Layers — Brenda Nickle, Richard Nickle and Wallace Caslick.

This month's fish auction was run by George Robinson, assisted by two junior members. The door prize was won by Mrs. Velma Sinclair and the raffle by Calvin Sinclair.

Unit Tells Effect of Asthma on Lungs

MONTREAL (CP) — Pierre, 16 and asthmatic, climbed into the Apollo machine at Montreal Children's Hospital and reported "an interesting experience."

Dubbed Apollo by the youngsters who have used it, the machine is the brain child of Dr. Pierre Beaudry of the department of respiratory function who is trying to establish to what degree asthma affects a child's lungs.

Basically, the unit consists of a wooden box with a plastic bubble for the head, plus an impressive electronic panel with a variety of tapes, knobs, recording devices and lights.

Children who take the test have to go through the rather unpleasant business of having a tube put through the nose and down the chest, yet they take it very well.

Pierre described his experience this way:

"It was a funny feeling being in the dome and though it was air-conditioned, I was sad. I was so bad I sweated."

As for the tube, "once is enough for that, though it really wasn't so bad."

The machine can examine the effects on the lung of asthma, cystic fibrosis, any chronic lung disease and even air pollution. So far, patients tested have had asthma.

The resistance to the movement of air in the lungs is measured. So is the total amount of air in the lung both before and after breathing in and out.

The "stiffness" of the lungs is calculated like balloons, some lungs seem to be "stiffer" than others and certain diseases may result in changes which make the lung "stiffer."

With the machine a doctor can evaluate the degree to which asthma is affecting a child's lungs.

"We can pick up early change in resistance before wheezing starts," says Dr. Beaudry.

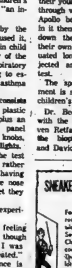
He claims that the machine will help doctors learn more about the problems of diseases which may cause changes in the lungs.

Doctors know exactly what their young patients are going through when they climb into Apollo because they've been in it themselves, put the tube down their throats an had their own lung functions evaluated long before they subjected any children to the test.

The special testing equipment is so far unique in the children's hospital.

Dr. Beaudry developed it with the co-operation of Steven Refalvi, a technician in the biophysics department, and David Pengally, an electronic engineer at Royal Victoria Hospital.

Dr. Beaudry said the box and the basic principles of the machine were developed a number of years ago, "but our improvements mean that we can test lung function in about 20 minutes instead of two hours."



Analyzing the test takes doctors many hours.

The machine is expensive. Equipment an parts alone cost $12,000, not to mention the time—Dr. Beaudry spent 1½ years developing it.

The machine is a sophisticate one and the test itself is far from simple.

"It takes a year and a half to train anyone to operate it," says Dr. Beaudry.

All those who work with the machine must first "experience it."

American-born Designer Opens Fashion Salon

MONTREAL (CP) — Designer Elvia Gobbo has reversed the usual trend: The 28-year-old American-born designer lives in Canada to start a fashion boutique. She felt there was a big gap in the Canadian market for fashionable sophisticated clothes.

Three years ago she made the big leap to the wholesale trade, forming a new company called Luv Originals with a partner from another dress house to look after the business end.

Elvia says a firm like Luv must project further ahead in fashion thinking and trends than the average company. So while most houses are predicting the midi length won't arrive before fall, Elvia already has 30 midis in her summer collection. One midi is a zippered red cire with sequelettes and short sleeves and is dramatized by a two-inch white cire belt with large silver buckle. Underneath are white canvas pants.

Born in a small upstate New York town, Elvia has a background of northern Italy. She claims the great Titian as an ancestor, and several of her uncles are artists. She loved clay modelling as a child but soon found she wanted to be a fashion designer.

At the famous Traphagen School of Fashion in New York she took illustration design and sketching as the basis of costume for two years. And it was there she met the young Montreal designer known as Lionel.

After graduation, when she was first prize for the best design, she worked as illustrator and assistant to Anne Fogarty, one of the better-known New York designers of smart young clothes. Then Elvia became a designer for Mr. Mort, also of New York, and it was at this period that Lionel suggested they open a boutique in Montreal. The idea, to provide a more exciting image, appealed to Elvia.

The boutique, on fashionable Sherbrooke Street, was a success, but soon Elvia saw the wider possibilities. Luv Originals was more than just fitted her faith. In less than three years it has become a million-dollar business.

Not only is Luv sold across Canada but it is bought by such big U.S. stores as Saks and Taylor, Bonwit Teller and Bloomingdale's. Last year Luv negotiated a tie-in with a California company to produce and carry some 28 styles from the Luv line.

Elvia has made Luv's salons as individualistic as she is herself. One end wall is covered with repetitive Canadian Pacific posters as wallpaper. In front are high circular-backed wicker chairs like those at All around are gaily - patterned cushions.

Elvia likes to cook. "I cook as I design," she says. "Everything is thrown in. It's a do-it-yourself effort."

She likes to entertain at home with small dinner parties. "But they must be different. I was doing Italian dishes but now my friends are on the Italian kick, so I'm going on to something else."

Like her clothes, Elvia's bachelor apartment in the centre of the city is bright and young. The living-room is papered in bright cobalt blue with white bamboo squares. There's a long red cloth on the T-square dining-room table and, against the wall when not in use, and several red cushions.

The adjacent Dicioire daybed is covered in a black-and-white floral chintz and there's a zebra-skin rug. Four white lacquered Queen Anne chairs with leather seats add a light touch. For shelf space, there's a steel-tubing-and-glass effect against a wall where books and bric-a-brac are interspaced. The bedroom is also her design studio.

Correct Procedure for Sending Sympathy Messages Requested

By DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: I would like to know the correct procedure in sending sympathy cards: (1) When a death occurs in the family of a friend in which you know all members, but they are all scattered and have their own homes, who do you write to?

(2) Recently my mother's sister passed away and we sent cards to the immediate family. Should we also have sent them to my mother and another sister in another province? — Doubtful.

Dear Doubtful: Printed messages of condolence are hardly considered the right thing for any but the most casual of connections. I grant you it isn't easy to find the words to express sympathy, when a person close to you has lost a loved one, but express it you must — in your own warmly understanding words.

(1) When you write to the family of a friend, you address your letter to the oldest member of the family and request that your message be conveyed to the other members.

(2) If the circumstances was such that you did not see your mother and the other sister at the time of the funeral, I simply can't see sending your mother a printed message about it. Nor the sister. Messages don't have to be long but they do have to be yours.

Dear Doris: We have a hardware store and we can't seem to get up from under a great load of financial problems. I keep the books, and this is why I am the one who is always at my husband to be more careful about the bills he is running up for stock.

He is optimistic and carefree, but he is not an investment type. He started this business from scratch before we were married.

What's more, even when he is not working at his business I don't see much of him, because he is president of our community center club. Leaves me alone with the kids and my own pessimistic thoughts. — Poor Prospects.

Dear Prospects: Anybody who takes the plunge, starting his own business deserves somebody to cheer him on. There are bound to be lean years. Hard work, skimpy rations, years of struggle, can bring — if you are lucky — the reward of a growing independence.

But this kind of daring venture is far more likely to succeed if optimism and good cheer become a part of the fabric of your whole enterprise. People are more into your store can sense it, if there is nagging, if there is complaining. Have the best balance sheet in great; but what price solvency?

Also like all the community centre, sometimes. Let him take a turn at keeping the books, while you devote yourself as a saleswoman and hostess in your store. The reverberations could be tremendous.

Confidential to One Who Doesn't Want Anyone To Be Involved In Her Marriage: Giving him tit for tat won't cure your husband's roving eye, and will only cause more arguments. If he is trying to pay you back, as he says, ignore him. He'll soon run down to seek when he realizes you are not as jealous as he thought.

(Do you wonder why the people you care about act as they do? Let Doris shed light on your particular human problem. And remember that stamped envelope!)

SOME RESENTMENT IN TANZANIA — Bob and Marylyn McRoberts say there is some resentment to Canadians in Tanzania because of the color of their skin. Also, Tanzanians don't like outside experts and now want their own teachers. The McRoberts, who have spent 18 months in the East African nation as Canadian University Service Overseas volunteers, will return to Canada this summer. (CP Photo)

A Revealing Religious Experience For Young Teachers in Tanzania

NAIROBI, Kenya (CP) — For Canadian University Service Overseas volunteers, Bob and Marylyn McRoberts, 18 months in Africa has been a revealing religious experience.

Bob, 23, and Marylyn, 24, both teachers in Tanzania, have seen "how Christianity could be applied."

In the Western world Christianity is not a way of life— it's merely the fact of "church" one goes in, said Bob.

"At home, more time is spent on theology of Christianity. Here we saw how Christ can be applied."

The couple say Protestant faith said they have had a chance in Tanzania to re-think their religious views and become more practical Christians.

"Materialism does not mean as much as before," remarked Marylyn.

The quiet, soft-spoken couple went to settle in a small town on their return to Canada this summer.

Marylyn, a native of Richmond Hill, Ont., and her Ottawa-born husband met in 1963 while studying at the University of Guelph, and were married in 1967.

He was interested in going to Africa by a former roommate who had been there. Although Marylyn "took some convincing," the couple applied to CUSO and were promptly accepted.

They arrived in Tanzania in July, 1966, to live near Mwanza on the southern shore of Lake Victoria.

Marylyn, with a bachelor of household science degree, has taught home economics, biology, domestic science, needlework and English at a girls' boarding school while Bob, with degrees in science and teaching, has worked at a post-secondary agricultural institute.

They care about the Canadian equivalent of $2,000 each a year which free accommodation and health services supplied by the Tanzanian government.

Local food items are cheap by Canadian standards, but imported goods like wax paper and confitures are expensive.

Electric bills are high at about $16 a month for a lightly-used water heater, iron, refrigerator and lights.

When asked about their treatment by the government, schools and students, the couple who leave Tanzania in July considered their answers carefully.

The strongly nationalistic country now wants its own people to do the teaching, said Bob.

"There is a slight resentment to Canadians because they have the same skin color as their former colonial masters."

Tanzanians don't like outside experts and want to control their own future, Swahili is in the process of being introduced as the language of instruction.

The McRoberts, as many other Canadian personnel interviewed in East Africa, found were not able to get to know the Africans as much as they wanted to. Language problems were the main reason.

Marylyn had difficulties with her students at school because of the separation of the sexes.

A high rate of illegitimate births plagued the school. If a girl becomes pregnant, she is never allowed back into a government institute.

Bob told a story to illustrate African attitudes:

"A student in a survey group called to another to hurry and bring the chain. The reply was: 'What's the rush. This is Africa.'

"One has to have a lot of patience in Africa."

Five Women Too Much For Man 67 Years Old

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I lost my wife 18 months ago. I hope you won't think I am bragging, but I am currently involved with five women which is more than I can handle. I am 67 years old.

I enjoy female companionship, but I do not want to get married. Three of these women talk marriage constantly. They don't need my money. They have more money than I. One of the women has never been married and says she has no desire to be. The other woman has been legally separated from her husband for ten years.

ANN LANDERS

I like all these ladies but I don't have the energy. How can I get rid of two or three without hurting anybody's feelings? — OVERSEXT.

DEAR OVERSEXT: Time will solve your problem, Dad. The three marriage-minded ladies will be eliminated when you become genuinely exhausted. You'll drop them. Next you'll cancel out the dotty who is legally separated. My bet is you'll marry the lady who says she has no desire to marry.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Parents keep saying: "I wish the kids would listen to Ann Landers." Well, here's a letter from a former kid who wishes the parents would listen to Ann Landers. Especially when you tell them, "Be firm and consistent, but don't beat on your children and expect them to blindly follow your advice. If you don't approve of the boy your daughter is going with, let her know it, but don't knock the guy too hard for too long or she might hang on just to prove she has a mind of her own."

When I was 16 I went with a guy my folks hated. The more they talked against him, the more determined I was to keep seeing him. Instead of breaking up, my parents brought us closer together. We became engaged. I was four months pregnant they had to let us get married. It was the saddest wedding on record. Everybody cried. I knew he didn't want to marry me and I didn't want to marry him. But I had to prove to my folks I could run my own life.

Well, I ran it all right — straight into the ground. Our marriage was one big hassle over money, sex, relatives — everything it was possible to fight about. I was just about to get a divorce when I became pregnant again. Now, after six years of misery, we have two kids. What a mess!

I'm sure if my folks had listened to Ann Landers and let me alone, I would have broken up with the rat on my own. You're not as square and corny as some people think. Hang in there, Ann. You're OK for an old dame.

DEAR FAN: Damned by faint praise — but thanks. Faint praise is better than no praise at all.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: A niece (by marriage) moved to this city recently. We are nearly the same age. (Three years difference.) She calls me Aunt Harriet.

I wish she would drop the aunt. Because of the closeness in our age people keep asking me to explain the relationship. I am sick of going into it. (She is the daughter of my deceased husband's sister and I can't see that it's worth explaining.)

I've asked her twice to call me Harriet but she is nearly 30 and doesn't hear well. What should I do? — EDNA.

DEAR EDNA: Talk louder.

Two Good Recipes Using Apples

By MARY MOORE

Two apple recipes inspired by my friend Iris and at which I am proud, are yours for the reading today.

One is glazed Apple Slices and the other is Rosy Baked Apples. Little cinnamon candies are the secret of their success.

GLAZED APPLE SLICES
(To serve with pork roast or chops, or tenderloin or as a dessert, shopping)

1 cup sugar
1 cup water
2 tbsps. cinnamon candies
3 firm cooking apples (I used Spys)

In large flat pan slowly boil sugar, water and candies stirring until all candies are dissolved. Quarter, core, pare and slice apples in ¼" slices or core, but do not pare and cut them in ¾" rings.

Add apples to hot syrup and boil gently turning over when underside is barely tender. Apples should retain shape and become translucent. Cool in syrup.

ROSY BAKED APPLES
(Serves 4):
NOTE: These are great! 4 med. Spy apples
2-3 cup granulated sugar
1 cup hot tap water
2 tbsps. red cinnamon candies

Wash apples and remove cores with apple corer. Be sure to trim out carpels (seed sac) and seeds.

Mix sugar, water and cinnamon candies and cook syrup stirring until all candies are dissolved. Arrange apples in medium baking dish that may be carried to the table and pour ½ of hot syrup in holes and around apples. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. basting with ¼ of remaining syrup after ½ hr. Bake 45 min. in all. Remove from oven and pour over any remaining syrup and let cool. A delicious result is that the rosy syrup jells just a little. When serving, spoon any syrup in bottom over apples. Best baked apples yet.

ELDORADO — BANNOCKBURN WI

At the April meeting of Eldorado and Bannockburn WI held at Madoc Township hall the committee was appointed for the district annual which will be held at the Eldorado United Church, May 21. Delegates appointed were Mrs. Cyril Shaw, Mrs. Harley Blackburn and Mrs. Stanley Franks.

In charge of the program was Mrs. Cyril Shaw who spoke on the maple syrup industry today. A demonstration on how to test sap for sugar content was shown along with the different types of pipeline used today in comparison with the old fashioned way of tapping trees. There are four different grades of syrup: fancy, light, medium and dark.

The report of the nominating committee was read by Mrs. Clayton Blackburn and is as follows: past president, Mrs. Stanley Franks, president Mrs. Floyd Blackburn; 1st vice-president Mrs. Cyril Shaw; 2nd vice - president Mrs. Harley Blackburn; secretary - treasurer Mrs. Harold Chambers and assistant secretary-treasurer Mrs. Frank Felmer.

Mrs. Cyril Blackburn installed the officers.

THE PICK OF Punch

"Yes, the rain ground here seem to get bigger every day . . ."

Sydney J. Harris Says

Words Judged by Objects

What we call "pretty" words are words that have charming associations. Whenever someone composes a list, say, of "the 10 most beautiful words in the language," it is the object behind the word that conveys the beauty, rather than the word itself.

I thought of this while attending a flower show not long ago. Some women near me were sighing over the exhibits, and declaiming about the "lovely names" that most flowers have.

But "camellia" could be a malignant disease as well as a flower, if we did not know what it stood for. The name itself was coined by the Swedish naturalist, Linnaeus, in honor of a Jesuit explorer, George Kamel, who returned from the Orient with the first specimens in the 17th Century. "Camellia" is just the Latin form of Kamel.

There is nothing intrinsically appealing in the name "dahlia," either, which takes its name from an 18th Century Swedish botanist named Dahl. In Central America, where it originated, it is called something entirely different.

"Fuchsia" has an equally pedestrian ancestry, being named after Leonhard Fuchs, a German doctor who classified it early in the 16th Century.

Both "magnolia" and "begonia" are attractive names—but the first comes from Pierre Magnol, a French professor of botany, and the second from Michel Begon, the French governor of Santa Domingo in the 17th Century. Likewise, "dahlia" before the name of a Flemish scientist, Matthias Lobel, who was physician to King James I of England.

An American coined "poinsettia" after his family name—Joel Poinsett of South Carolina, while special U.S. minister to Mexico, brought back this plant to the States adding his own tag to it.

The wisteria, which ranks high on any list of evocative names — and which occurs more than once in T. S. Eliot's poems — comes from the homely name of Caspar Wistar, a teacher of medicine in Pennsylvania. It was also misbered (when he is) for nothing else but this.

While the zinnia — adopted for obscure reasons as the state flower of Indiana — comes from an equally obscure German botanist named J. G. Zinn, which is hardly a name to conjure with.

As for the exotic "orchid," which seems to the layman a glamorous name for this unusual flower, medical students and Greek scholars have no such illusions — and a look into any dictionary will quickly disabuse the sentimentalist of its "romantic" origin.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My husband is 66 and has had Parkinson's disease for the past 15 years. He is gradually going downhill. I have heard of a new drug called L-dopa which is supposed to produce miraculous results. Can you tell me about it? — Mrs. M.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: What is this new drug called L-dopa? My elder brother has had Parkinson's for 10 years. The usual drugs don't seem to help his muscle stiffness, and inability to get around. I hear there is a cure-cure on the way. — Mr. O.

Comment: I realize how impatiently Parkinson sufferers and members of their families are waiting for some treatment that will help. To date we have had no specific cures — even though we thought, a few years ago, that operation would be helpful.

Now comes the name of L-dopa into the news. It holds out more hope in effective management, but is still experimental. Only relatively few medical centers have it on hand for study of Parkinson patients. Most physicians are not yet able to obtain it for their patients.

Besides being very expensive, it is still being observed for many side effects, such as loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, blood pressure changes.

It is true that in relatively few cases marked results have been excellent in some patients. There have been reports of one person's almost incapacitated who have returned to his job and still do not know how long such treatment will be effective or what effect it may have after many months of use.

One estimate is that as many as 1½ million Americans suffer from Parkinson's. The stiffness, muscle rigidity, and shaking of the hands, the expressionless face are a constant reminder to the families of such patients how stubborn this disease can be.

But as L-dopa (and other drugs being studied) indicates scientists have not given up on Parkinson's. Men in the laboratory and at the bedside are doing their best to overcome this ailment. I have hopes that someday soon they will succeed.

New Drug L-dopa Not in Wide Use

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I am a young-old lady of 82 and have had heart skips all my life. I'm in good health. My doctor says I'll live to 100. Do you agree? — Mrs. N.

Comment: You are living proof of what we keep repeating to frightened people: that most heart skips aren't dangerous. One hundred?. Here's hoping, young lady.

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, TUESDAY, APRIL 29, 1969

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Hockey teams, as well as Chrysanthemums, bloom better when seeded at the right time.

Now, an office green thumb informs, is prime time to plant chrysanthemums. It's certainly the best time to lay hockey plans for next winter!

It was obvious at Saturday's Ontario Hockey Association annual meeting that most teams aren't letting any summer hiatus grow under their feet. Most successful teams, that is.

Take the OHA Senior A category, for instance. Five of the 1968-70 season's eight entries were well-represented at their category meeting, checking at the bit for next winter.

Only absentees were Orillia Terriers, Kingston Aces, and Belleville Mc-Hawks.

Orillia's executive had the only legitimate excuse: they were all air-bound to Spokane where the Terriers were to open the Allan Cup final Sunday night. They didn't have to assure anyone they would be ready and waiting for next season.

Belleville's executive had no excuse for lack of representation, which is becoming a sore point with other Senior A council members.

Sore to the point where they instituted a $200 deposit against fines to be made at the beginning of each season's operation. The standard $25 and $10 fines for mislaid or being late for roster council meetings will be deducted from each team's deposit.

Convener Ron Seddell indicated the Mc-Hawk executive were the Senior A laity in excess of $100 for missing meetings.

The Belleville absence syndrome is symptomatic of the club's organizational ills.

The Mc-Hawk board of directors — generous to the tune of $500 individual contributions — never met during the past season.

Last summer, fewer than 200 season's tickets were sold. After the team's strong showing — ousting third-place Kingston in quarter-final action before bowing to Galt — a similar season's ticket sale between now and October would strongly indicate changes are in order.

Before they won last year's Allan Cup, Galt Regents' hard-driving executive were busy as bees, having 1,000 season's tickets, and launching a satiration club promotional campaign.

More people in the rink means more money, more money means better players, better players mean more wins, and more wins means more people in the rink.

It's the nicest kind of vicious circle.

The type of promotion the Mc-Hawks need is not the type they had Saturday night, when a local sporting banquet audience of 199 was told by the team's general manager the club has already signed stand-out goalie Steve Reno and defenceman Lou Kazweski in 1970-71 contracts.

Both players confirm that is not true.

If the Mc-Hawks are enjoying more success on the ice than they are off, it's not that way in other Senior A centres.

Woodstock's representative at the weekend meeting seemed mostly interested about the A's entering next year's league. The A's won but four of 40 games this past season, and there's pressure afoot in that City to drop to intermediate competition.

Other league entries appear stable, with rumblings of Guelph, Toronto, and Brantford additions. A Brantford representative said that city's entry hinged on the fate of the Foresters, who played in the rebel Western Ontario Junior League and are now seeking OHA reinstatement.

Oakville struck an optimistic note, advising the meeting they were introducing $2 seats in Oaks' games.

Several dates are of interest to Senior A operators: they must post their $1,000 performance bond by June 1st to play in the 1970-71 season; and any folding teams have until Sept. 1 to dispose of players, after which time they become free agents.

The CAHA's proposed "tier system" for junior A hockey probably was a few more friends last night.

Montreal's Memorial Cup-bound Junior Canadiens bombed Sault Ste. Marie Greyhounds 20-3 last night, prompting Habs' coach Roger Bedard's hope that this was the last year for the poorly-balanced junior playoff set-up.

Needless to say, the Northern Ontario champion Soo coach agreed after watching his team outshot 50-29 before only 1,500 Forum spectators.

The only player in the Montreal lineup who failed to pick up a scoring point was goaltender Wayne Wood, who played the third period.

Trenton's John Garrett, picked up from Peterborough Petes, gave up one Greyhound goal in two periods of action in the Canadiens's net.

Garrett, who led OHA Junior A netminders with a 2.98 goals-against average in his rookie season, also picked up an assist in the second period on a goal by Gil Perreault to surpass his regular-season point output by one.

Garrett played the entire game Friday night when the Junior Habs belted Sault 10-1.

Trenton Team Plays Monopoly With Quinte Track Scene

By ERIC EMERSON
Staff Sportswriter

"When we first started out," claims Trenton High School track coach Peter Howe, "we would go to a meet like all-Ontario and think that these guys were some kind of super athletes. That is, until I started asking around and found out that most of them had been training all winter."

A lot of other people have probably wondered the same thing about Howe's charges as Trenton's black and gold colors have dominated track and field to the tune of 13 Bay of Quinte championships in the last 13 years and five of the last seven boys' COSSA crowns.

One of his former track standouts, Pat Lacey, gives the major reason for the Trenton teacher's outstanding record. "He measures everybody against their own performance. He's satisfied as long as you keep improving and he provides a lot of encouragement."

Howe's own appraisal of his coaching philosophy closely parallels this. "I don't have a lot of technical knowledge about the sport. I'm not in physical education," he says, "but I think to be a successful coach in track, or any other sport, you have to show an individual interest in the performers and keep encouraging them."

In keeping with this, he maintains individual performance records for each of the athletes which they can go over together periodically.

The average athlete on the Trenton team will compete in about 15 meets a year, far above the total entered by most other local high schools.

"I try to schedule a meet at least once every three weeks in the winter," says the coach. "If you have a league layover than that the boys tend to start soloing themselves: 'What am I doing all this training for?'."

During the winter months the team trains in the school hallways or outside if the weather permits, as well as working on such other conditioning aspects as weight training.

Howe has received some able assistance from a three man coaching staff consisting of Doug Livingstone on weights and hurdles, Mike MacDonald with the discus throwers, Joe DiCresce in the field events, Dave Bell helping the pole vaulters and Eldon Barnhart working with the sprinters.

The head coach's one "problem athlete" throughout the years happened also to be his most talented protege, Vic Witrack. "Vic and I grew along really well, personally" says Howe. "He was just glad I like to train. He had the most natural ability of any athlete we've had and I think that if I'd made him work he could have been Olympic material. That's the one that mistake once, but never again. If a boy doesn't train he's not on the team."

Besides Witrack, Howe has named Dave Cole, Harold Mendes, Dale Carl and Pat Larry as some of Trenton's most outstanding performers throughout the years. He rates the 1966 team which placed 8th at OFSAA as his best.

"The athlete who showed the biggest improvement throughout his career would have to be Dave Prudhomme", he says.

"When he started out, Dave couldn't break seven minutes in the mile, but he ended up battling John Heyman as the top distance runner in the province."

Trenton's head man maintains a strong interest in all four seasons, of "my glad to see some of the other schools start to develop in track and field", he says, "we're planning a series of meets with outside areas next winter and if we can get some athletes from the other schools who are really working, we could enter a Bay of Quinte team."

Claims Howe, "The most satisfying aspect of coaching for me is to see some of the boys you've helped go on and become university performers as some of them have been doing lately."

Says president Ted Sprackett, "We had about 22 people out to the meeting last night, but we still require about 20 coaches and 30 umpires."

One thing there isn't a shortage of is players, with a total of 36 house league teams lined up in preparation for the May 18 opener, as well as five OASA entries.

The ten tyke teams will be playing on Monday nights, followed by 12 atom entries on Tuesday, and 16 peewee units in operation Wednesdays. The four bantam teams will perform on Thursday evenings. All teams in the house leagues will play a 10-game schedule.

Track Tips

Trenton track and field coach Peter Howe checks on the performance of Bruce Radbourne at a practice session of the defending COSSA boys champions. Trenton tracksters will be gunning for their 13th Bay of Quinte title since 1956. Moira Secondary School was the only one to break the monopoly with a win in 1962.

Triple Threat

Trenton triple jumper Dennis Bowman works on his technique for the Bay of Quinte trials on May 13th. Bowman's best effort of 43 feet 7 inches places him second in the all-time Trenton records to former standout Vic Witrack whose jump of 47 feet 10 inches placed him second at the 1966 all-Ontario meet.

More Softball Help Needed

Belleville's Minor Softball officials are slowly solving their coach and umpire shortage, but the end is not nearly in sight.

Says president Ted Sprackett, "We had about 22 people the May 18 opener, as well as five OASA entries.

The ten tyke teams will be playing on Monday nights, followed by 12 atom entries on Tuesday, and 16 peewee units in operation Wednesdays. The four bantam teams will perform on Thursday evenings. All teams in the house leagues will play a 10-game schedule.

Black Diamond Drops Out

The Belleville Commercial Softball League field has been trimmed by one, over last year, as Black Diamond Cheese and Belvedere Hotel will not be fielding teams for the 1970 season.

The addition of Rollins Construction will give the loop a six - team alignment as Ellis Juniors, Point Anne, Corby's Hotel, Corby's Distillery and Stinson Construction all made the entry deadline last night.

A 25 - game schedule was drawn up at a four - hour league meeting at the Belleville Armories, last night, with play commencing on May 19th at the Alemite field with the defending champion Ellis Juniors meeting Stinson's Construction.

An admission price of 50 cents for a doubleheader has been installed for the upcoming season.

Other items on the agenda at the meeting had to do with log between bids from the two district umpires associations who have applied for the 1970 aluminum bats in league play.

The Quinteland Umpires Association was given the nod over the Belleville and District group, which handled the officiating chores last season. The league also decided that aluminum bats will be declared illegal until sanctioned by the Ontario Amateur Softball Association.

Soccer Adds Wings

At least one Bay of Quinte soccer team seems likely to have "wings on their heels", as the RCAF station at Trenton has been added as the seventh team in the league.

Previous entries include Belleville Parsons, Belleville United, Bateaux Braves, Trenton Travellers, Belleville Eagles and Trenton Quinte Transport.

Play is scheduled to begin May 13th with each team playing a home and home series with the remaining six opponents.

South Hastings Opens May 16

The Belleville area's oldest — and only — organized baseball league in operation this year, gets under way on May 16, as the six teams of the South Hastings league open their schedule.

Opening night held its second meeting of the year last night will be operating on the 1969 schedule. Entries include Reed, Shannonville, Canniff, Latta and the Reserve from last season along with the newly - formed Latta and Canniff Juniors.

All of Belleville's home contests will be played at Parkdale Field.

Bees Still Buzzing

HAMILTON (CP) — Mount Hamilton Bees kept their Ontario Hockey Association Junior B championship hopes alive Monday by defeating Dixie Beehives 7-4 before 1,647 fans.

Beehives lead the eight - point final seven points to three with three wins, a loss and a tie. The sixth game is in Dixie Wednesday with a seventh, if necessary, in Hamilton Friday.

Hamilton gained a berth in the final by eliminating Kingston Frontenacs' Eastern Ontario Jr. B championship four games to three.

Dixie was annexed 13 of the 22 penalties which included fighting majors to Beehives' Dick Decloe and Hamilton's Young.

Bees outshot Beehives 42 to 27.

Hallam Wins New Ellis Award

The Quinte Hockey League's newest trophy for the most outstanding performer in the playoffs has been named the Richard Ellis Memorial Trophy in honor of the late sports figure who passed away this winter.

Attending the annual league banquet Saturday was Mrs. Doreen Reid, who presented the trophy to Belvedere forward Doug Hallam, the first recipient of the award.

Brunswick Bantams Excel

Brunswick Belleville bantam bowlers gave an all-star performance at the London All - Star tournament on the weekend to walk off with first place in their age group.

Kevin Campbell, David Warren, Mike Mulroney, Debbie Warren, Bonnie Bowen and Natalie Boudreau placed first in the 14-team bantam division of the five - pin section of the tournament.

Belleville had entered a total of 36 bowlers in the competition with 15 five-pinners and an equal number of 10 - pin bowlers travelling by bus to London.

Beehives Beat Kingston

Belleville Juniors.

While details of the schedule are still to be worked out it has been decided that each team will play a total of four games on Sunday afternoons, with the remainder to be evening contests.

Opening match - ups will see the Reserve playing at Shannonville, Reed at home to Latta and Canniff taking on the Belleville Juniors. All of Belleville's home contests will be played at Parkdale Field.

Kelly Moves Penguins to New Hotel to Fight St. Louis Hex

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Coach Red Kelly has resorted to yet another gimmick in his efforts to quash his Pittsburgh Penguins past St. Louis Blues and take the Stanley Cup final playoff.

The Penguins arrived here Monday evening for tonight's fifth game in their best-of-seven quarter-final playoff with the Blues. But instead of checking in at the hotel where they usually stay, and where almost all major league hockey, football and baseball teams bed down, Kelly took his squad to a different hotel downtown. The Pittsburgh coach tried to shrug off the move as insignificant.

"We're just changing hotels, that's all," he said.

But Bill Hamilton, an administrative assistant with the hockey club revealed the superstition involved. The Penguins did not win a game all through the regular National Hockey League season or in the playoffs at St. Louis and the move to another hotel was designed to change their luck, Hamilton said.

The choice of the home fans have favored both clubs so far, with the Blues winning the first two games here and the Penguins taking the next two at Pittsburgh. A sixth game will be played at Pittsburgh Thursday and a seventh, if necessary, back here Sunday.

But although the Blues have the advantage of home ice should the series go the full seven games, some hockey observers are not yet ready to count the Penguins out.

"They were a tough club to beat all season," said coach Claude Ruel of Montreal Canadiens after he watched the Penguins beat St. Louis 3-1 in the fourth game Sunday night.

"The thing about them is they got nothing to lose so they go all out and make it look easy," said Ruel, who knows what it's like to coach a team that does have something to lose.

Canadiens were defending Stanley Cup champions until they were eliminated from the playoffs then they lost their last game of the season. The Penguins, on the other hand, made it into the playoffs for the first time, finishing second in the West Division behind the champion Blues, after two consecutive seasons in fifth spot.

Wren Blair, general manager of Minnesota North Stars, who will lead their quarter-final series with the Blues in six games, said St. Louis looked flat in its loss to the Penguins Sunday.

"No resemblance to how they looked against us," said Blair.

"The Blues can't afford to foul around too long with this club, though. They're a hungry bunch. They've never been in the final before and they want that money."

The Penguins, of course, know what the money looks like. Kelly dumped $7,358 in cash on their dressing room floor just before the third game last Thursday. The money represented each player's winnings if the team goes all the way to win the Stanley Cup.

That Kelly gimmick proved beneficial after the first-up Penguins defeated the Blues 3-2. But another trick, that of putting four defencemen in his starting lineup, backfired on the Pittsburgh coach in the second game here when the Blues scored in the first minute of play.

"I'm not the least bit surprised that this series is tied," said Blues' coach Scotty Bowman. "After all, Minnesota had us tied after four games and the Penguins are a better team that the North Stars. They finished second."

Another reason Bowman isn't surprised at the series being tied is that he believes home ice is important to the "fringe players" on both teams.

"You've got two clubs with fringe players, give or take a couple of guys."

"Michel Brière of the Penguins may not be a fringe player and our Red Berenson has proved he isn't. The rest of the players you could throw in a barrel. When they get a little encouragement, bang, they go."

Jr. Habs Blitz Soo

MONTREAL (CP) — Gilbert Perreault and Ian Turnbull scored four goals each Monday night as Montreal Junior Canadiens blitzed Sault, Ste. Marie Greyhounds 10-3 to advance to the finals of the Eastern Canada Memorial Cup.

The opening victory gave Montreal, champions of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, a 4-1 series win over the Greyhounds, champions of the Northern Ontario Hockey Association, in the best-of-seven semi-final.

Montreal plays Quebec Remparts, Quebec Hockey League champion, in Quebec City Thursday night in the opening game of the best-of-five Eastern final.

Weyburn Wins West

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP) — Weyburn Red Wings relaxed almost too much after taking a 4-0 lead, but they recovered later to win the Western Canada Memorial Cup final with an 8-6 win over Thunder Bay Hurricanes Monday night.

The Red Wings, Saskatchewan Junior Hockey League champions, took the best-of-seven series 4-2. They lost the first two games in Thunder Bay April 16 and 17, then won four on home ice.

The Red Wings, who won 20 of 24 playoff games, now will meet Montreal Canadiens or Quebec Remparts in the Canadian final at the home of the eastern winner.

Canadiens and Remparts open a best-of-five eastern final Thursday night in Quebec City.

Batting—Reggie Smith, Red Sox, hammered a single, triple and a tie-breaking homer in the eighth inning as Boston edged Oakland Athletics 4-3.

Pitching—Joe Decker, Chicago Cubs, checked Pittsburgh on six hits for 8 1-3 innings as the Cubs nipped the Pirates 1-0 for their 11th consecutive victory.

Paduano Wins Decision Over Midriff Bulge

NEW YORK (CP) — Donato Paduano, holder of an 18-fight victory streak, has just won another big battle—against midriff bulge.

The undefeated welterweight is scheduled to meet Marcel Cerdan Jr. of France in a 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden May 11. He revealed on his arrival in New York Monday his victory over excess poundage.

The Italian-born Canadian welterweight champion from Montreal likes to eat and on a recent visit to his hometown of Rippabotomi, Italy, he soared to 177 pounds.

"I will eat anything," Paduano said Monday. "Italian, Canadian or kosher.

"I spent 15 days in Italy and went up to 177 pounds. But I lose fast. I'm already down to 154, and I'll be 147 to 148 at fight time."

Paduano, 21, is undefeated in 18 fights, including two victories over Joey Durelle for the Canadian welterweight championship and a win over Irish Pat Murphy. It was Murphy's first defeat in 28 fights.

Cerdan, 28, is undefeated in 47 pro fights, but Paduano is unimpressed.

"The name Cerdan doesn't scare me," Paduano said, referring to the fact his opponent is the son of the late Marcel Cerdan, former world middleweight champion.

"I have never seen Cerdan, but I know he is a tough guy. I like to fight tough guys. If I beat a tough guy, that makes me a tough guy."

Paduano resumes training at the Concord Hotel, Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., where Cerdan also is working out.

Cerdan's handlers objected to the fighters training at the same site. As a result, Paduano will stay in quarters a mile from Cerdan's, the Canadian will train at 4 p.m., while Cerdan trains at 4:30 p.m. and they will eat in different dining rooms.

Hildebrand Wants Terriers Hitting In Second Allan Cup Instalment

SPOKANE, Wash. (CP) — Coach Ike Hildebrand said Monday his Orillia Terriers will have to continue hitting and solve problems caused by players sidelined by injuries and job commitments if they are to keep the Allan Cup, symbol of Canadian senior hockey supremacy, in Canada.

The Terriers' coach said his club missed the services of four regulars in its opening-game 5-2 loss to Spokane Jets in the best-of-seven final. The second game in the series will be played tonight.

Missing from the lineup were Mike Draper, Gary Millroy, Ray Dupont and Peter Speyer. Dupont and Speyer are with the team but out with injuries. Draper and Millroy were unable to make the trip because of job commitments but might arrive for Thursday night's third game.

With Draper and Millroy out of action, Hildebrand was forced to go with only one experienced defence combination — which hurt his club in the third period when the Jets romped in three unanswered goals.

Hildebrand said he was pleased with the Terriers' hitting—except it didn't continue through the third period when his players "quit checking."

Spokane coach Al Rollins, a team-mate of Hildebrand's when they played junior hockey in Vancouver and with Chicago in the National Hockey League, was also impressed with the rugged Terriers.

He said they were a "pretty tough club," meaning his Jets will have to use their fast-skating style of play to offset the body work of the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A champs.

The fourth game in the series, first to be played in the U.S. in the competition's 62-year history, is scheduled for Saturday night. If necessary, the fifth game will be played Sunday and the sixth and seventh for May 5 and 6.

Spokane Brings in Reserve Muscle

SPOKANE, Wash. (CP) — Spokane Jets will have more muscle up front tonight when they meet the hard-hitting Orillia Terriers in the second game of the best-of-seven Allan Cup senior hockey final.

Jets' coach Al Rollins said Monday he would add forwards Jim Chow, a 35-year-old veteran of the Jets, and Brian Stribbiski, a six-foot-two 195-pound rookie, to his lineup to offset the body-work of the Ontario team.

After his team's opening-game 5-2 victory Sunday night, Rollins admitted the Terriers were "a pretty rough club."

Missing in the opener were Mike Draper, Gary Millroy, Ray Dupont and Peter Speyer. Dupont and Speyer are with the club but injured. Draper and Millroy were unable to make the trip because of job commitments, but they could be on hand for Thursday's third game.

Fourth game of the series, first to be played in the U.S. in the Allan Cup's 62-year history, is scheduled Saturday night. If necessary, the fifth game will be played Sunday and the sixth and seventh May 5 and 6.

Supreme Quality on Trial Against 10 Other Derby Hopefuls

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (CP) — Walter Kitchen of Toronto will find out today if his three-year-old colt Supreme Quality is good enough for Saturday's running of the Kentucky Derby.

Supreme Quality, who has won three in a row racing in the United States, takes on 10 other top three-year-olds in the $15,000 Derby Trial Stakes, a prep to the 36th running of the Derby.

Supreme Quality's latest win came April 17 when the offspring of Swaps won the Forerunner Purse at Lexington... upsetting Nashua, one of the early favorites to win the Derby.

Kitchen, a Toronto businessman, purchased Supreme Quality at the Kentucky yearling sale in 1956 for $40,000. The colt was not raced as a two-year-old because of a shin ailment.

Trainers expect today's one-mile test at Churchill Downs will produce four starters for Saturday's rich Run for the Roses, first jewel in thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown.

Competition for Supreme Quality came mainly today from High Echelon, California Derby winner George Lewis, Gotham winner Native Royalty and Admiral's Shield.

High Echelon, trained by John Jacobs, is a sure Derby starter coupled with stable-mate Personality.

Other starters in today's trial are Panicum Repess, Brown's Fathom, Fish Market, Tort Passer, Air Song and Frank 'o' Jesse.

Brown's Fathom will be trying to earn a Derby berth for female jockey Diane Crump. She would be the first female rider in the history of the premier U.S. horse race.

Air Canada jets you to Switzerland daily. Sample the fare.

Air Canada's Switzerland.
Come to Switzerland with Air Canada. And do it this summer. Come and catch a cable car high up into the Swiss mountains for your first fondues of the Alps. And pay the piper with a kiss should you drop your bread. Stroll amongst the handicraft markets of Montreux and paddle on Lake Geneva on a water-cycle. Climb the Matterhorn and pick wildflowers in Spring. Or ski on a glacier even in summer. Drink in the sun at St. Moritz. Shop for exquisite lace and superb timepieces. And don't resist the bittersweet chocolates. Let Switzerland get to you. But get to Switzerland first, Take Zurich as your gateway to all Europe. And take it with us. Air Canada. Farm Marketing Plan Comes Under Criticism

OTTAWA (CP) — The government's bill setting up a national council for the marketing of farm products came under heavy criticism in the Commons Monday as opposition MPs warned in on the proposed composition of the council.

Douglas Harkness (PC—Calgary South), an agriculture minister in the Diefenbaker government, said members of the council would be little more than "Liberal hacks of one kind or another."

Mr. Harkness said the members of the council would be "responsible to no one but the government and completely under the government's thumb."

Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) said the farmer would be "little more than the hired man of the agency" if farmers were not allowed to be council members and take part in decision-making.

The charges came during second reading debate on the bill designed to set up the council and national marketing agencies for farm products.

The House today will consider a Conservative motion of non-confidence in the government for its handling of inflation and unemployment.

The bill provides for a council of from three to nine government-appointed members to advise on the establishment of marketing agencies.

Marketing agencies for interprovincial or export purposes could be established for all farm products except grain and dairy products.

Mr. Harkness said the government's proposal would lead to a "completely state-controlled industry, a complete removal of freedom."

Members of the council would be "Liberal hackers"—defeated Liberal candidates and that kind."

Mr. Gleave, a former president of the National Farmers Union, said the bill "makes no provision for producer participation."

Farmers should have the right to elect the majority of members of any marketing board or agency set up under the legislation, Mr. Gleave said.

TORONTO STOCKS

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market fell sharply today to its lowest level since August, 1959.

The market has gone through several consecutive sessions of erosion, interrupted briefly Friday by a modest rally.

On index today, industrials were down 1.76 to 188.63, base metals .74 to 101.9 and western oils .10 to 153.29. Golds were up .45 to 146.31.

Industrials and base metals were at lows for the year.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 976,600 shares, compared with 255,000 at the same time Monday.

Losers overwhelmed gains 222 to 83 with 192 issues unchanged.

Denison Mines was down 1 to 21. Premier John Robarts told the Ontario legislature Monday he would consider a suggestion that a Crown corporation be established to purchase 25 per cent of the company.

Company officials have said that the mine, which is Canada's largest uranium producer, might have to be closed if a buyer is not found for the shares.

The federal government blocked a sale of Denison shares to American-controlled Hudson's Bay Oils and Gas Co. of Calgary earlier this year.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 23

Your birthday today: The coming year is one of experiments, mostly successful concerning finer points of your regular chosen activities. Next year comes the application of the results, expanding responsibility and power that goes with it. For the present many interesting and productive surprises are also in store, including some in personalities and emotional commitments.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): You are now free to let up a bit on the constant pressure and get enjoyment out of your work instead.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): You are your own sternest supervisor today. Push yourself a little more to get a really satisfying amount done.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Make more detailed plans for a longer range future. Correspondence is at hand awaiting your attention.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): You are likely to find yourself low in energy. This is easy enough to correct if you will remember how much depends on and what you stand to achieve by doing the work right the first time.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Your willingness to co-operate turns out to be the most important factor today.

VIRGO (Aug. 23—Sept. 22): Cookinus on with a clearance project; get all neglected and confused matters set to rights.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Family concerns take some of your attention on this quiet and highly productive day. Budget your time so as not to waste a minute.

SCORPIO (Oct. 22—Nov. 21): Preparatory to a coming change of policy, put forth consistent and persistent efforts in your regular work. Family affairs are increasingly important to attend this week; so get on with whatever is needed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): You are somewhat freer to concentrate on what you would like most to do. Much now falls readily into place where nothing quite fitted before.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Collect all you can of whatever is due you and add it to your savings accounts. Straighten out any recent errors.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): Private concerns should be explained to nobody. Just attend to them quietly and thoroughly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Welcome a dull day in which you can finally clear away various matters in proper order.

REAL ESTATE

WHAT IMPROVEMENTS WILL HELP YOU GET MORE FOR YOUR HOME?

Ed McKinney
E. K. McKinney Realty Ltd.

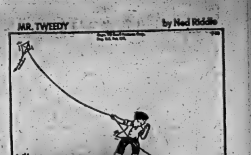
Some may make a drastic difference in the selling price. Others may make none. How do you tell the difference?

You must be in constant touch with the market. The buyer is the final boss of what will sell best and for how much. Like any other product on the market, house competes for the buyer's dollars with their desirable features.

It happens frequently, that home owners who are thinking of selling spend quite large sums on home improvements and end up with features that do not particularly improve the selling price of their home. In some cases they may even depress it.

How does this happen? Because the "improvements" were more important to the owner than the buyer. The professional Realtor's term for this is "overimprovement". It's like putting a Rolls Royce engine in a small compact automobile; you still end up with a small compact worth little, if any more than originally.

If you are thinking of making an addition or alteration to your home, seek the advice of a competent Realtor before you decide on what and how much.



His modest fee on the final sale may be the wisest investment you'll make.

All Expect Largest Vote in Quebec History

QUEBEC (CP) — All five parties contesting the Quebec general election expect the largest turnout of voters in Quebec history Wednesday in a battle between federalism and separatism.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand spoke to his largest campaign turnout Monday night as 5,000 persons jammed a Quebec City recreation centre, and Parti Quebecois Leader Rene Levesque harnstormed through several Montreal-area ridings and met at least 25,000.

Meanwhile, Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa spent the day in Northern Quebec where he was enthusiastically received by close to 2,000 persons.

Recent election polls forecast the Liberals would get the largest, percentage of votes, followed by the separatist Parti Quebecois and third-place Union Nationale.

Mr. Levesque has had by far the largest turnouts in the campaign since the election was announced March 12.

At a wind-up rally of three large meetings he said the tide of enthusiasm for his party must be maintained — "a tide the likes of which has never been seen in the modern history of Quebec."

Mr. Levesque said his separatist party has already reached its objective, even if it is not elected to office Wednesday.

"The old ice of our minority complex is broken," he said.

The Parti Quebecois might not emerge victorious from its first election campaign, but it was certain to get a "substantial" share of the vote—"a first big step ahead" in the march toward independence.

Mr. Levesque started with a crowd of nearly 5,000 that packed the community sports centre in Laval north of Montreal.

In suburban Montreal North the arena was jammed by about 7,000 people, while hundreds more were unable to squeeze in.

The night's campaigning ended with a capacity audience of about 8,000 in the east-end Paul Sauve Arena. Crowds outside tied up traffic for blocks around.

"We are 20,000 here, according to police," Mr. Levesque told the final rally, his voice being carried via a radio link to rallies in seven centres outside Montreal: Rouyn, Hull, Trois-Rivieres, Sherbrooke, Quebec, Jonquiere and Rimouski.

Premier Bertrand told his carnival-like meeting in Quebec City his party walks the middle of the road between extreme federalism and outright separatism.

"The Union Nationale wants to maintain all reasonable elements of negotiation (for Confederation) conducive to the real needs of Quebecers.

"We will do all in our power to aid Quebecers and other provinces too," the 59-year-old chief said after he was carried on the shoulders of party supporters to the speaker's podium.

Mr. Bertrand also criticized Prime Minister Trudeau on a French-language CBC television broadcast, saying Mr. Trudeau violated the Quebec Election Act by interfering in the campaign.

He blasted Ottawa for what he said was the government's distribution of a newsletter last week that said Quebec receives more money from Ottawa than it contributes.

"This is false. It is Quebec which loses out to Ottawa . . . to the tune of $536,000,000 a year."

The premier also blasted the French-language network of the CBC for broadcasting what he called an unverified story last week that one of his top cabinet ministers had resigned.

Mr. Bourassa told his audiences that a Liberal government would abolish electoral Feuds. The 36-year-old economist continued his accusations of mismanagement by the present government.

He called on Premier Bertrand to explain the purchase of a downtown Montreal hotel for use as a student residence in which the government allegedly paid $1,800,000 more than it should have.

He linked the transaction to the governing Union Nationale's electoral fund and said:

"That's where it ends up . . . with hundreds of millions are wasted."

Camil Samson, leader of the Creditiste party, told about 2,000 supporters in his home constituency of Rouyn-Noranda that after the election Quebec will not only have a new driver at the political helm, "but also a new car."

The 35-year-old automobile salesman said he would be the driver of the new car, a 1970 model which would be a Creditiste Mark I.

All five leaders made optimistic forecasts in a CBC French-language broadcast Monday night of their parties' shares of the 108 seats in the legislature.

The forecasts:

—Premier Bertrand, 63 seats and 45 per cent of the popular vote.

—Mr. Bourassa: 55 to 70 seats and 40 to 45 per cent of the popular vote.

—Mr. Levesque: 15 to 25 seats and possibly a third of the popular vote.

—Mr. Samson: More than 60 seats.

—Roland Morin, leader of Quebec's New Democratic Party: Two to six seats and 10 per cent of the vote in the 12 ridings where the NDP has candidates.

Standing in the national assembly at dissolution was Union Nationale 85, Liberal 48, Independent 6, vacant 3.

Another for a Quebec referendum on independence was also given short shrift.

A third and intriguing proposal was that all Liberal MPs from Quebec resign their seats so that a little general election could be conducted strictly on the issue of federalism.

However, this proposal, like the others, was set aside, at least for the time being.

Mr. Trudeau still plans to leave May 19 on a six-country, three-week Asian tour.

His aides have already announced that Mr. Trudeau is unlikely to have any comment Wednesday night on the Quebec election results.

No Proof Is Found Of Kidnapping Plot

LONDON (AP) — Scotland Yard says it has found no proof of a plot to kidnap Princess Margaret's son, but police are still investigating.

"Police have not been able to obtain corroboration of any of the allegations made."

Viscount Linley, eight-year-old son of Queen Elizabeth's sister, was to return to Aldenham House Preparatory School today after an Easter vacation. The school is in a heavily wooded area 35 miles south of London, and London detectives checked its security precautions.

Princess Margaret and her husband, the Earl of Snowdon, heard rumors last week of a plot to kidnap the son and hold him until the government freed Reginald and Ronald Kray, twins who are serving 30-year sentences for murder.

Lord Snowdon called in Scotland Yard.

Election 'Semi-final in Separatist Playoffs'

OTTAWA (CP) — Within the federal government, Wednesday's Quebec election is regarded at least as only the semi-final in the separatist playoffs.

That is, there will have to be another confrontation between the federalist and separatist forces before the matter of Quebec independence or otherwise is settled, at least for a while.

Government informants say the current Quebec election campaign has clarified the issue but that, in the opinion of the cabinet and national Liberal federalists, the decisive battle is still a few years away.

These sources predict that the new Quebec administration, no matter what its political stripe, will have a difficult term and that the separatist showdown will come at the next election, which might not be more than a year or two away.

Informants say this is one reason Prime Minister Trudeau is playing it cool during the current flap about the separatist movement.

There have been suggestions on how Mr. Trudeau might launch a counter-attack on the separatists if they make a big showing Wednesday.

One suggestion—a snap federal election—was quickly dismissed.

Stanfield Hits White Paper

THUNDER BAY (CP) — Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield took his campaign against Finance Minister Edgar Benson's taxation white paper into this Lakehead city Monday night and urged citizens to spread the opposition at the neighborhood level.

"Point out to your neighbors how this white paper will affect them," Mr. Stanfield said. "It will tie up their homes in red tape. It will mean higher taxes for the majority of Canadians. . . .

"It hurts small business men more than big corporations . . . and it means more income tax for the single man who earns $4,000 per year, and less income tax for the $50,000-a-year executive."

". . . you owe it to yourself and to your family to look at the white paper," Mr. Stanfield said.

Ontario Considers Broadening Controls Over Credit Firms

TORONTO (CP) — Bert Lawrence, minister of financial and commercial affairs, told the legislature Monday his department is studying credit companies with a view to broadening the province's power over their licences.

He said most agencies are willing to tell a person, on request, what is in his file. But he added:

"I am still uncertain as to whether the private individual is getting the whole file, as distinct from a selected portion of that particular file."

Mr. Lawrence said his departmental study will stress "aspects relating to the divulging of information."

In other business:

—Premier Robarts said he "would be happy to give some consideration" to the establishment of a Crown corporation to purchase part of Denison Mines Ltd. James Renwick, New Democratic Party deputy leader, had asked about the possibility of a corporation "with provision for participation by the people of Ontario" to purchase 25 per cent of Denison.

—Provincial Secretary Robert Welch said the government is considering legislation to grant collective bargaining rights to the civil service. He said the legislation is expected to provide for compulsory arbitration —a denial of the right to strike.

—Fred Burr (NDP—Sarnia-Riverside) asked the province to sponsor a fishing contest for sport fishermen in Lake St. Clair and the Detroit River, wiped out this year because of imported sports publicize. He said tagged fish valued from $1 to $1,000 could be released in the waters.

—Development Minister Stanley Randall said a new rental scheme for publicly-assisted housing will go into effect as soon as the Ontario Housing Corp. completes the necessary bookkeeping. The new schedule broadens the base on which rents are scaled according to family circumstances.

Ten Cities Will Get Housing Funds

OTTAWA (CP) — Plummeting 1970 housing construction figures were met Monday with a Commons announcement that $56,000,000 will flow into 10 cities for dwelling units for those in the $4,000-$6,000 income bracket.

The money will go for 1,800 units in Toronto, 1,450 in Montreal, 300 each in Hull, Que., and Vancouver, 200 in Calgary, 150 in Moncton, N.B., 60 in Halifax, and 50 each in St. John's, Nfld., Kitchener, Ont., and Regina.

New York Stocks Lowest in Six Years

NEW YORK (CP) — With investors showing increasing concern over inflation, a slump in business and dimming Southeast Asian peace prospects, the New York stock market dropped Monday to its lowest level in six years.

Despite the gloomy news, two top U.S. economists predicted their would be a real slowdown in inflation in the fall.

In making this assessment in speeches to the United States Chamber of Commerce in Washington Monday, Walter W. Heller, former economic adviser under president Johnson, and Beryle W. Sprinkel of Chicago supported Nixon administration contentions that over-all price rises will slow sharply in the autumn.

Farmers Union Quits Canada Grains Body

WINNIPEG (CP) — Charging fragmentation of farmer power, Roy Atkinson Tuesday led the National Farmers Union out of the Canada Grains Council.

His walk-out as a one-man delegation came during a closed session of the first annual meeting of the council.

The NFU president's declared reason for withdrawing the organization from grains council membership was the council's decision to admit two new members to its already broad representation as a co-ordinating and advisory body.

They are the Saskatchewan Association of Rural Municipalities and the Carman Farm Business Association, an organization of southern Manitoba farmers whose emphasis is on farm management and crop science.

"The effect of seating these kinds of groups is to fragment farm unity and break down farm power," Mr. Atkinson said later in an interview. The NFU withdrawal is a permanent decision as far as he is concerned.

THE WEATHER

Synopsis: Skies will be variable today over Ontario and a few showers or thundershowers are expected in the southern portions of the province. Mild afternoon temperatures today will be about 70 in the south. The prospects for Thursday are for sunny and very warm weather across southern Ontario with showers and thundershowers later in the day.

Potter Replaced

Woman Heads Health Group

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Belleville's Dr. Richard Potter today heads back to Queen's Park to keep appointments as MPP for Quinte.

Among them is membership on the Legislature's health committee, which until yesterday he directed as chairman — a role which launched him as one of the province's most controversial politicians.

Tuesday that appointment ended — but not before its conclusion had also stirred controversy.

The Robarts government minus members as it installed 69-year-old Ada Pritchard, Hamilton Conservative, to succeed the blunt-talking Belleville physician as chairman.

Dr. Potter was back in his constituency organizing a Trenton public forum, and was not there to see Mrs. Pritchard elected on a 9-3 vote after two earlier ballots ended in a tie.

But, even had he stayed at Queen's Park for the committee meeting the Belleville physician, first elected to the Legislature in 1967, made it clear his presence would not have changed the outcome.

Dr. Potter said today he would not have accepted a nomination for chairman anyway.

Agnew Hits College Faculties

HOLLYWOOD, Fla. (AP) — Blaming campus violence on faculties that fail to guide students, Vice-President Spiro T. Agnew has singled out Yale University and called for the replacement of its president.

The vice-president said American universities have become a spawning ground and sanctuary for revolution and rebellion.

He proposed a nine-point program for handling what he called "the criminal left."

Agnew's proposals included:

—Establish a clear set of rules for campus conduct with immediate expulsion for serious violations.

—End open door enrolment policies for unqualified students.

—Eliminate amnesty for lawlessness or violence.

—Bar campus organizations which publicly declare intention to violate the rules of an academic community and then do so.

Agnew said campus radicals are the offspring of "affluent, permissive upper-middle-class parents who learned from Dr. Spock and threw disciplines out the window—when they should have done the opposite."

Cambodia To Receive More Arms

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — President Nixon was reported today to have authorized a second shipment of between 4,000 and 5,000 rifles from South Vietnam to Cambodia.

A shipment from Saigon to Phnom Penh of 1,500 captured Soviet and Chinese AK-47 rifles was announced last week.

A state department official refused comment on the reports of a second shipment, but noted that when the first delivery was announced, further supplies were not ruled out.

Record Quebec Vote Seen

QUEBEC (CP) — Bread-and-butter issues and separatism were expected to bring a record number of voters to the polls in today's Quebec general election.

The weather outlook was for mainly sunny skies, except for some cloudiness and scattered showers in western regions.

Polls opened at 9 a.m. and close at 7 p.m. for the 3,481,599 eligible voters.

CJBQ Plans Full Coverage Of Quebec Vote

Coverage of the Quebec election on CJBQ Radio will begin tonight at 8 p.m. with an hourly 10 - minute report and from 8 p.m. direct, uninterrupted coverage will be offered on the AM network.

The CBC had originally scheduled hourly reports but due to the dramatic occurrences concerning the Quebec election, continuing coverage was considered the best answer.

CJBQ's FM network will offer regular music programming until 11 p.m. when the newscast will feature The Quebec election proceedings.

Israel Says Russians Fly Out of Egypt

TEL AVIV (Reuters) — Israel charged today that Russian pilots are flying military missions from Soviet-controlled installations in Egypt and termed their involvement a "grave development."

(In Moscow, a Soviet foreign ministry spokesman said he had no information on the Israeli charge.)

An Israeli government statement said Soviet pilots have not yet flown over ceasefire lines or become involved in air combat.

Three Laymen Table Report

TORONTO (CP) — Health services are a right of all residents of Ontario, they must be available regardless of geographical location, income or other social circumstances and the Ontario government must guarantee standards of quality. The medical profession must get in tune with the times.

That was the message of the committee on the healing arts and it came through clearly in the Ontario legislature Tuesday when what possibly was the most comprehensive report on health services in the history of Canada was tabled.

In down-to-earth language, pulling no punches, the three-man committee of laymen noted that when a person is ill, the first one he turns to is his family doctor—and there are not enough family doctors. It made recommendations which it thought would attract more medical students to that field.

Then the patient worries about his bill—and the committee said there should be a limit. It said the man who does the repair job should not have a free hand in setting compensation.

And, said the committee, there should be a commissioner —a sort of health ombudsman —to investigate and adjudicate complaints between patient and doctor and between one branch of the medical profession and another.

Product of 3½ years' study, the report made 331 other recommendations on the control and practice of every profession and occupation which affects the health of Ontarians. While it dealt only with Ontario, its implications are applicable throughout Canada.

It weighed more than 10 pounds—13 volumes, including three volumes of comment and recommendations.

Premier John Robarts told the house:

"The government of Ontario has not yet had an opportunity to study the report in detail. Consequently, we are unable to comment on any of the committee's recommendations at this time."

For other stories on report of committee on healing arts see Pages 21, 22, 23 and 24.

The committee was set up in June, 1966, with wide terms of reference: "To inquire into and report upon all matters relating to the education and regulations relevant to the practice of the healing arts."

It was composed of Chairman Ian R. Dowie, a businessman; Prof. M. C. Urquhart of Queen's University, Kingston, and Prof. Horace Krever of the University of Western Ontario, London.

Public hearings were held,

Liberal Opposes Government Bill

Senator Urges Hate Bill Be Sent to Supreme Court

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Daniel Lang, an Ontario Liberal, Tuesday night urged other Liberals in the Upper House to force the cabinet to refer the hate propaganda bill to the Supreme Court of Canada for a decision on whether it violates the Bill of Rights.

The Lang motion marks the first serious Senate attempt to turn back a government bill since 1961, when the Liberal majority in the Upper House revolted against a Conservative government bill to remove James Coyne as governor of the Bank of Canada.

The difference this time is that a Liberal senator, with some support, is opposing a Liberal government bill.

Senator Lang pleased with other Liberals to support his motion and establish the Senate's "true image", as a parliamentary bastion of rights and freedom.

He said that if Liberals voted the party line, "then I question the worthwhile continued existence of this body."

His speech, with the bill before the Senate for the fourth time, drew a steaming reply from Senator Harper Prowse (Alberta), also a Liberal.

Senator Prowse said that "we would be wasting the time of the court and making ourselves look like fools" by referring the hate bill to the court.

Polish First Secretary

Diplomat Describes Tug-of-War Land

Because it lost 6,000,000 people in the hostilities, Poland's population is the same today as it was at the outbreak of war in 1939 (some $2,000,000).

Despite this handicap and the fact it ended the war with a serious lack of skilled personnel, Poland has added to its basically agricultural economy a high level of industrialization.

With Soviet aid it has built a large steel industry, coal production is fourth in the world and copper mining is another important part of the economy.

In the past 20 years housing has been provided for 150,000 people.

The reference to Soviet aid was one of the few political observations in a speech to Belleville Rotarians Monday by Wacław Tomkowski, first secretary of the Polish embassy in Ottawa.

Mr. Tomkowski emphasized that Poland had always stood at the crossroads of east and west. It was a country with a long and troubled history, one with no stable boundaries, a land which had absorbed facets of the culture of neighboring lands yet exhibited its own distinctive culture.

Mr. Tomkowski claimed that for political, economic and strategic reasons Poland had not been receiving enough help from the West. The situation was improved now, but still what he described as "complicated."

"Unfortunately our socialist neighbors are in the same situation, so we cannot get help from them."

As a result Poland had had to depend a great deal on its own resources and its technological progress, in consequence, had not been as high as it might have been.

Poland ranked high in the arts, said Mr. Tomkowski, noting the excellence of Polish accomplishments in the graphic arts and in music. There were more conductors of Polish origin in New York than in Warsaw.

A graduate in law from the University of Warsaw, Mr. Tomkowski was formerly a representative on the International Control Commission in Vietnam (a duty shared also by Canada and India) and served in Iraq and Afghanistan before coming to Ottawa.

A film presented by Mr. Tomkowski reflected many aspects of Polish life, from traditional folk dances and rock by musicians looking and sounding very much like their Western counterparts, to progress in the industrial sphere and education, with young people taking an active history lesson amid countryside fought over by Polish partisans during the war.

Modern apartment blocks of interesting design and containing the housing shortage and busy city streets with traffic guided by modernistic policewoman were other reflections of modern Poland seen to the film.

'Every Litter Bit . . .'

Prince Edward County fairgrounds littered with papers, broken glass and small boards, is unprotected by municipal bylaws effective in Picton against littering. Town police can patrol the fairgrounds and lay charges under the criminal code but cannot charge litterbugs.

Picton Fairgrounds Litterbugs' Haven

PICTON (Staff) — Litterbugs abused from town streets by members of the Picton police force appear to be swarming to sanctuary at Prince Edward County fairgrounds.

Although Picton residents are protected from "litterbug vulgaris" under a municipal bylaw prohibiting the deposit of refuse, dirt or rubbish in any street, police can seize at the fairgrounds gates.

Since the fairgrounds op Main Street, East are county owned property, Picton police chief George Pitts said that the town police cannot charge persons dropping bottles, cans or small debris there. He added that only charges falling under the criminal code can be pursued by Picton police on the fairgrounds.

President of the Prince Edward County Agricultural Society Walter Demille, observed yesterday that fair board members are "definitely concerned" with the problem of broken glass scattered on the fairgrounds and they would like to take steps to eliminate it. Although the problem is obvious, a solution seems difficult to find.

County solicitor R. E. Moore noted, "The town police force is obligated to enforce any section of the criminal code on the fairgrounds but littering doesn't fall under that code. The fairgrounds is property owned by the county and it is the county's obligation to deal with the situation."

Asked what course of action the county or members of the fair board might take to curb littering Mr. Nourse replied, "That is a good question."

He continued, "If the county could learn who is doing the littering on the fairgrounds proceedings could be taken to stop it."

In excellent condition for last year's fall fair, the half-mile race track situated in the centre of the grounds today is covered with broken metal, small boards and papers. Land surrounding buildings on the grounds is also littered with bottles, cans, papers and cardboard. A large paved area inside the main gates was cleaned this week by a street sweeper to remove jagged pieces of glass smashed there recently.

At county council's last meeting it was agreed to hire James Latchford, R.R. 1, Picton, to act as a maintenance worker on the fairgrounds from June 1 to October 1. He is employed by the arena caretaker during the remainder of the year to operate the county centre. Council has not yet disclosed his summer duties, however.

Motorbike Hits Truck

PICTON (Staff) — A Prince Edward County youth is reported in serious condition in Kingston General Hospital today after the motorcycle he was driving collided with a parked truck early last evening.

Gordon Dale Norton, 18, of R.R. 2, Picton, was driving his motorcycle east toward Demorestville on county road 8 when he collided with a parked pickup truck owned by Stanley Peeling, R.R. 2, Demorestville.

A spokesman for the Picton detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police said Norton collided with the front end of the truck and was thrown from his motorcycle.

He was taken to Kingston with broken legs, a broken arm, other broken bones and possible head injuries. The police spokesman said that Norton was expected to undergo surgery this morning.

Potter Replaced

"If I had been there I'd have refused to take it," he said later.

He said he refused to operate a committee under the present parliamentary system where politicians "put on an act" for public benefit.

"I would have said (to yesterday's committee meeting) quite frankly I can't chair a committee under these rules and regulations."

"The point is: "I don't want it under those terms."

"There's no point in fighting your way into committee when they don't want you."

However, he again stressed his argument was not with the government, but with the parliamentary system and rules of behavior laid down for its committees.

The role of committees s e e s a politician "going through the manoeuvres and pretending," he said.

"It's really putting on an act for the benefit of the public which I don't agree with," added Dr. Potter.

"I wouldn't have handled the committee any other way because I went there (Queen's Park) to get some badly-needed changes in our health and welfare departments.

"I didn't go to jump up like a trained seal and ring a bell and I'm not there to do just that. I didn't go to be a 'yes man' and hope to get a cabinet post. . . ."

Dr. Potter emphasized he was still a member of the committee and could still "continue to ask questions."

His replacement as chairman was finalized by a fellow Conservative who arrived to break the earlier tie votes.

Leonard Reilly, member for Eglinton, cast the ballot breaking the deadlock.

Opposition members of the committee — including the NDP's Dr. Morton Shulman and the Liberals' James Trotter, MPP for Parkdale — charged the Progressive Conservative members with playing politics by forcing the ouster of Dr. Potter to avoid further embarrassment to the government.

Denying the charge, Alex Carruthers (PC — Durham) said Dr. Potter was replaced because he was "not prepared to co-operate."

Mr. Reilly

Report On Health

starting in December, 1968, briefs were submitted and studies on all aspects of health were commissioned.

The report's recommendations included:

—The government should decide whether drug and pharmacy services should be included in publicly-financed health insurance.

—Compulsory examinations should be abolished for immigrants from countries where medical standards meet Canadian requirements.

—Disciplinary boards of medical colleges should include enough lay members to ensure effective public representation.

—Educational programs for the healing arts should be placed under the jurisdiction of provincial education authorities.

The committee noted that there is a decline in the number of doctors entering general practice and recommended:

1. Adoption of educational programs to make physical or family practice a specialist category with appropriate recognition.

2. Alteration of the existing structure to provide financial inducements to prospective GPs.

3. Hospital association be made available to all GPs.

4. Development of new forms of practice such as groups and community centres.

The report added:

"Finally, the committee recommends that the development of a higher grade medical worker such as a nurse with post-graduate training to assist the general or family physician in many of the routine tasks would be desirable."

On medical fees:

"With the advent of publicly-financed health insurance, the committee believes that no longer can professional fees be established unilaterally. There must be a continuing liaison between government and the professions to ensure that fees for health services are acceptable both to the practitioners and to the public."

It recommended establishment of a fee negotiations committee to advise the minister of health on fee schedules "for groups in the health service system whose incomes are derived primarily from fees for service." Such a committee "should use the counsel of professional health personnel."

Other recommendations included:

Mental hospitals: Increased spending on research; diversification of treatment and rehabilitation programs.

Laboratories: Clinical laboratories should be licensed and be supervised by physicians.

Administration: To streamline the operation by amalgamating existing services.

Regulation: Public controls should be imposed on the self-regulatory authority of senior health professions.

Education: Educational programs in the field of health should be put under the jurisdiction of provincial education authorities.

Group practice: This should be encouraged as one means of improving working conditions of doctors and help alleviate the shortage of general practitioners.

Quackery: Boards should be set up to control the certification of psychoanalysts and psychologists.

Hospitals: The increase on spending of public funds on hospitals is "alarming;" this can be controlled by cutting down "unwarranted utilization" of hospital services.

Dentistry: It should be mandatory for dentists to give patients itemized accounts for fees and dental appliances.

Nursing: Diploma and degree-level courses for nurses, enabling them to become specialists, should be introduced.

New Zealand Is Travel Topic

On Thursday evening, April 30, the Belleville Kiwanis Club will present a pictorial trip through New Zealand. The program will take the viewer through scenes such as Napier and its famous gardens at the height of spring, closeups in the Kennedy Rose Gardens, the jet speedboats of Auckland, steaming thermal valleys, lovely lakes and waterfalls, volcanoes and alarming country.

This is the club's last program of the "Travel and Adventure Series" and will be held in the Belleville College Institute Auditorium at 8.15 p.m.

Bringing the beauties of New Zealand to Belleville will be photographer Kenneth Richter, who has travelled the world with his camera.

Flowers That Bloom Indoors in the Spring

Mrs. Ethel Knight last night shows members of Junior Horticultural Society how to make flowers bloom indoors in Spring. What's required is plenty of colored paper, wire, paste — patience and talented direction.

Tax Deadline Tomorrow

The hourglass sands have almost run through on any other income tax season as the last date an income tax return may be filed without penalty ends at midnight tomorrow.

Any returns postmarked before that time April 30 will be accepted without penalty. Any received after that date will result in a five per cent late filing penalty on unpaid taxes.

But there are indications that this year may prove that fewer and fewer people are having difficulties with filing their income tax.

John Lennen, public relations officer for the income tax office, said that questions asked by the public about filing their income tax were more complex this year than they had been last year.

"I think we're getting the message to the general public," he said. "The public relations program has been intensified."

Mr. Lennen said, for example, that he had 14 hours of radio time himself and one hour of television time.

Statistics echo Mr. Lennen's words, showing that questions to the income tax people have dropped since last year.

At the Belleville District Office, personal interviews at the counter have dropped to 7,317 this year from 4,942 last year. Telephone questions have dropped from 4,969 last year to 2,843 this year.

At the temporary office in Peterborough, personal interviews have dropped from 2,178 to 1,582. Telephone queries have also fallen, from 1,404 to 794.

"Most people have their own returns is already," Mr. Lennen said.

Again, statistics would bear this out. The intake of returns up to April 20 this year was 3,152,597 T-1 shorts and 625,838 T-1 generals.

Last year at the same date, the figures were 4,698,521 T-1 shorts and 408,494 T-1 generals.

Even refunds are up this year. In 1970 refunds so far have totalled $315,757,031. Last year saw refunds amounting to $230,129,231 at the same time.

"Everything looks good this year," Mr. Lennen said. "The trend indicates that things are going well. People are not having as many problems."

Hastings Education Board Vetoes 'War Chest' Levy

The "war chest" now being stocked by the Ontario School Trustees' Council for a public relations campaign in the event of board - teacher disputes will get no contributions from Hastings County Board of education Monday night voted against sending 1.1500 of one per cent of its 1969 budget ($500 to $1,000) to the Council.

Trustees first nixed the request as part of a new "tight money" attitude as a result of this year's curtailed budget.

After rhearsing a presentation from superintendent L. A. Kelly, they seconded their original motion on the added grounds that the council's policy was "retrograde".

The Council's request amounts to establishing a war chest," Mr. Kelis said.

The money would be used to mount a publicity campaign in the event of teacher-board salary negotiation breakdowns anywhere in Ontario.

Most boards in the province agreed to the request, trustees were told.

But the Ontario Teachers' Federation and its branches can reach agreement across the table better them by advertising in newspapers, Mr. Kelis said.

He cited the friendly relations between Hastings county board and its teachers as an example of the value of "conversations" instead of confrontations.

"The method the Council suggests is retrograde in nature, in effect, that boards set up funds for battling," asserted Mr. Kelis, with the local trustees' agreement.

Till Real Thing Comes Along

A group of young Bellevillians, waiting for good gardening weather passed the time last night — by cutting out paper flowers.

However, the process is more intricate than it sounds, demanding patience and artistry as members of the city's Junior Horticultural Society discovered last night.

Under the direction of a skilled practitioner of the paper art — Mrs. Ethel Knight — more than 40 society members, from six to 16 years, discovered how to make colored paper, glue and wire blossom into fetching floral designs.

The flower - cutting project was part of the program at the group's regular monthly meeting at the city's recreation centre.

It was the last in a succession of indoor events that chilled away the winter months while the youngsters awaited the return of spring.

Now with warm weather settling in they can move outdoors and be about their gardening chores.

The organization is the offspring of the 26 - year - old Belleville Horticultural Society, now preparing for its big annual rose festival in late June.

The event also sees participation of the junior branch whose members will have a chance to demonstrate their talents — including paper flower designs.

Fires Continue In Tweed Area

TWEED (Special) — With last year's barred over acreage already exceeded, two more fires broke out in the Tweed Forest District yesterday as a temperature of 81 degrees was recorded.

The two new fires were in Hunkingdon township (two acres) and in Faraday township (5) - acres with both blazes reported under control.

Since April 1 no less than 36 fires have been reported in the Tweed area with 388 acres burned over in 81 fires.

Tweed district forestry officers reported all of this year's fires are now out with the exception of the two that started yesterday.

OPP Report

A report for the week of April 19 to 25 released by the Belleville Detachment of the OPP has shown 61 convictions registered in Provincial Judge's Court.

The report also showed that 57 charges were preferred under the provisions of federal and provincial statutes.

Officers spent a total of 38 hours engaged in court activities and offered 49 warnings for minor infractions under the Highway Traffic Act.

Even Silent Majority Getting Restless

Ottawa Beginning to Jump as Protest Becomes 'in' Thing

OTTAWA — A strange, new mood seems to be languishing the National Capital in these far from tranquil times.

More than anything it shapes up as a reconciling with, even an acceptance of lawlessness.

Once was that Bytown - on - the - Rideau, as the place got so long ago was known, really was not more than just another Ontarian town, with nothing to set it apart from the rest except the Peace Tower.

It was an oded you could almost hear the Spring grass sprouting on the lawns of Parliament Hill.

But no longer, not since confrontation became the increasingly fashionable way of political action.

Now ceremonial Wellington street, at the foot of Parliament's gates is filled with protesters, seldom marching for but almost always against something.

There can be two demonstrations on the same day.

Whereupon streets are broken, streets littered, traffic disrupted, peaceful pedestrians pushed off sidewalks, obscenities screamed and even the sunniest day darkened by the mounting tension and threat of violence.

And what happens?

Industry Trade and Commerce Minister Jean Luc Pepin, one of the ornaments of Pierre Trudeau's Cabinet, makes a speech in which there is a sound of helplessness.

He does not condone, but concedes, even seems to suggest accommodation.

Hear him as he spoke the other day to the Montreal Chamber of Commerce.

Why, like them (the square . society), he asks, when you can beat them?

He gives this new twist to an old adage to underline the increasing cave-in to confrontation.

"If your views are not accepted," he says, "you pick up your marbles and go home."

Or you demonstrate.

You have your hippies, drug - addicts, mystics, political and apolitical separatists, your radicals, anarchists and student extremists.

"There is a general and widening feeling of discontent, contestation, confrontation."

He equates it as an increasing cop-out from society.

So what is to be done?

"There must be priority," he says, "for programs with which these people can easily identify.

"Even the Silent Majority is going into the action and has begun to agitate. Its voice, so long stopping short of mentioning that this agitation might be against the rising tax price of appeasing this March - of - Protest.

The disturbing thing is that events as they have been unfolding in the National Capital seem to be bearing out his contention of more and more people subscribing to the political proposition that there is profit in protest and victory in violence.

Item: The Mandate and pensioniks can line Parliament Hill's roadways with buses while they confront prime ministers, presidents and American tourists with vile insults, but let a taxpayer park his car on those same driveways and he gets a $5 traffic ticket.

Item: For years, Ottawa's traffic-free Sparks Street pedestrian Mall, just a block off Parliament Hill, has been closed to the gentle, law - abiding - conscious, but protesting ladies of the community selling daffodils in aid of the Cancer Fund, or collecting for the Heart Fund, the Boy Scouts, or any other worthy cause. Yet, less bigotry, by protest and confrontation, can compel freedom of this same Mall to a continuing camp - in and the peddling of their pornographic underground newspaper dedicated to the cult of four-letter wordism.

Item: Unrushed and stinking, the looks and weirdos, by the simple process of crowding on Centre Block thoroughfares, can drive off taxpaying tourists, often depriving them of the tour of Canada's greatest city of power.

Item: Racists - in - reverse can cause traffic chaos with a parade of cattle-bearers through the heart of the Capital to the South African Embassy there to abandon the caskets.

All this and more can be done with impunity in the name of tolerance and freedom and perfressed good intentions.

Taking issue with Jean-Luc Pepin's ignored rationale of this confused cave-in of confrontation, Parliament's leading law-and-order spokesman, Ontario MP Wallace Nesbitt warns that down this road of accommodation with protest lies disaster for everyone.

"These storm - troops of tolerance and tyranny of the march in the name of tolerance and freedom must be shown by hard way that the new politics of - protest can be practised - in two ways.

"For if we concede as the Ultra Left has done that confrontation and disruption can be justified by pleading good motives and professing worthy causes, we begin a slippery slope that can only end in destruction of our liberties."

Trenton Issue

Fluoridation once again is in the public eye in Trenton and while we express no opinion on fluoridation per se we do take issue with town council's apparent attempt to by-pass the public through a closed committee-of-the-whole meeting.

Such a meeting was held April 20 when the clerk was instructed to prepare a by-law authorizing fluoridation of the water supply for presentation to council last Monday night. This suggests council in closed session was setting the stage for a quick approval of fluoridation a week later. As it happened the by-law was given two readings, and before it gets a third and final reading a full meeting of council will be held at which the public will have an opportunity of voicing its opinion.

The question must be asked however, would such an opportunity have been afforded without the publicity given the matter by the news media prior to council meeting Monday evening?

This is not the first time Trenton council has considered important issues behind closed doors. No matter that ostensibly they come up for discussion in open council later, it still means there is dialogue that may never reach the ears of the public yet is of public concern.

Other bodies show an encouraging trend away from this kind of secretiveness. In the past year Hastings county board of education has agreed that fewer items will go on its committee-of-the-whole agenda (and these will be made known to the Press); Belleville General Hospital board of governors similarly has opened its doors and the board of directors of the YMCA has decided on a similar course.

At a time when the trend is toward more communication with the public, Trenton council appears to be heading in the opposite direction.

The Bored Ones

Toronto columnist Richard Needham has put his finger on one of the great problems of youth today. It might be termed the "nothing-to-do-syndrome" or is it that their mental capacities are so under-developed they know no better?

Needham notes that he wrote a story in one of his books about a city which was overrun with teenagers and didn't know what to do with them.

He goes on: "This has actually happened in London, Ontario. On Saturday and during holidays, they take over downtown London and especially the Wellington Square shopping plaza. They are not fighting or rioting or anything. Just there by the hundreds — I've seen it — standing around, loitering in small and large groups, and doing some drug trafficking while they are at it.

These sons and daughters of the affluent society can't think of anything to do with their free time; they are plain bored out of their minds, and I must say they look it. Death warmed over."

Belleville offers similar scenes, mercifully on a smaller scale but an unhappy fact of life here just the same.

Move on There!

A sunny Saturday like we had last week brings out the shoppers and we have all heard those complaints about the youngsters who congregate on the sidewalk and hold up pedestrian traffic. But what about the adults? Yes, the older folk can park themselves in similar fashion in the middle of the sidewalk; they are having a nice chat of course and everyone else had better just get out of the way. You see the same sort of thing in the supermarket where such manners are often conspicuous by their absence. There is room for improvement in these areas of public behavior.

Dog Bites

The letter is unsigned, but we will pass on this message from a reader anyway. The letter agrees with Dr. Lenk's words about dogs running at large "and as a parent, how I would feel if my child were bitten by an unleashed dog."

"However, I feel he should have gone one step further in his warning — to parents who do not teach their children to stay away from dogs tied in other people's yards.

"The child can still be bitten and seriously, but where do we then put the blame and the guilt?"

South of Highway 7 and the village of Actinolite is this scene of rural tranquility. The spring water is coursing through a gorge on the Skootamatta River and it is spanned by a stirdy concrete bridge. The Elsevir township scene is typical of the pleasant countryside that abounds in Hastings county.

Men's Fashions Set for An "Adventurous Decade"

Toronto Globe and Mail

Our fashion adviser says that current trends in men's dress styles are going to lead us into "an adventurous decade." And after inspecting pictures of some of the examples we have concluded that this is a most conservative assessment.

A dangerous decade might have been more accurate. The trend is said to be toward blatant zestiness expressed by such features as plunging necklines, beads dangling on bare chests, and stirdy white pants. One of the promoters of a show at which these were displayed suggested that the styles were attuned to "leisure living and the life styles of the Seventies".

Mind you, this may turn out to be a great leveller if everybody makes the change at the same time. The advice has been offered that if anyone tends to be over-ingenious, a vivacious or frightening (bosses, school principals, head waiters and the like) a return to a self-confidence can be accomplished by imagining the great one in his underwear.

If the fashion trend continues, the imagination will not be required.

High-Speed Police Chases

Kingston Whig-Standard

For many years this newspaper has protested the high-speed chase which some policemen seem to believe is the best way to apprehend certain suspects. It is a dangerous practice on today's busy roads and highways and too often innocent persons suffer as a result.

The issue was raised in the Ontario Legislature recently by New Democratic Party Leader, Donald MacDonald. Mr. MacDonald told the legislature of a 105 - mile per hour police chase which led to the arrest of a suspect for theft. It also caused an accident in which 12 people were injured.

Speaking in reply to Mr. MacDonald, Attorney - General Arthur Wishart said that police should not engage in high-speed pursuit of suspects in minor offenses. But the Attorney-General went on to say that he would not attempt to lay down any hard and fast rules about when the police should or should not exceed speed limits. The police must exercise discretion." Mr. Wishart said, but high speeds may be warranted in cases of serious crimes such as holdups, shootings or killings.

The high-speed pursuit of suspects by police has become a well-accepted police institution. We do not believe that the police have to be hamstrung in any case. The end simply does not justify the means. Remember, the Provincial Police Automotive Safety Committee of the American Medical Association reports that, according to studies, most pursuit scenes in connection with minor traffic offenders, but the results are often "massively destructive."

We agree that at least 25 per cent of such chases end in death while 75 per cent end in accident that is often serious.

We live in a day of sophisticated communication systems. There are other ways of apprehending suspects — ways which do not directly endanger the lives of innocent persons. What is needed is uniformity throughout Canada is a careful reassessment of the responsibilities of police in this regard and a more definite policy which would apply to all police forces.

Half-A-Million Unemployed

Quebec Le Soleil: The last statistics on unemployment furnished by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics give two brutal pieces of information: in Canada, the month of March saw an increase of 16,000 in the number of jobless, bringing the total to 542,000, or 6.7 per cent of the work force. In Quebec . . . the increase brought the total to 8.8 per cent (8.7 per cent of the working population).

In the main, Quebec at present is moving toward having 50 per cent of the unemployed in the whole country, which should happen in exactly 18 months, if the present trend continues at the same rate.

Regulations Vital

Snowmobiling Took 82 Lives

Montreal Gazette

A comprehensive law regulating the operation of vehicles that can move over all kinds of terrain should be enacted as soon as possible in the next session of the Quebec National Assembly.

The unregulated snowmobile has already proven itself a menace. At least 82 persons died in snowmobile accidents during the past winter in Canada, 34 of them in Quebec.

There have also been numerous instances of damage to private property and to trees, plants and wildlife in forest and wilderness.

As if the snowmobile were not enough of a problem, it will soon have warm-weather counterparts. There is a growing interest in wheeled vehicles, such as a snowmobile chassis mounted on a wheel frame, that can ride over fields, hills and woodland paths.

It is important to license the ownership and operation of all such vehicles and to designate areas where they can be driven. Potsession of a snowmobile or dune - buggy should not entitle the owners to drive anywhere he pleases.

As these vehicles become more common, it will be useful while to establish specific routes and trails that they can use in populated areas and parks.

Jobs and the French Fact in New Brunswick

Moncton L'Evangeline: The federal and provincial governments came to a rare agreement (two weeks ago): They agreed upon the regions designated as special regions for the purposes of industry and economic expansion. This agreement is special because of the fact that all the governments agreed on the proposed region. . . .

It is evident that the Atlantic region will be best to profit from these new agreements on the condition, however, that these agreements take into account the financial situation of this depressed region.

If what is involved is the expense of sums of money on projects which will not create new jobs or which will not lead to anything, this is not a permanent solution. . . .

The programs of aid to industries must lead to concrete results. It is becoming more and more evident that the large urban centres are attracting the industries. In New Brunswick, these large centres are recognized as being Saint John and Moncton. There are other subcentres which can be identified as the other cities in the province — Edmundston, Campbellton, Bathurst and Fredericton.

If these federal programs, connected with provincial programs, are oriented toward Saint John and Moncton—and that is the case at least for the Saint John region—it is important that the local and provincial authorities favor by all means such a rapid expansion of those regions but also the development and training of the population which will be attracted there.

It must be taken into account that if all the projects considered for the Saint John region are realized, the population of this city could increase rapidly and, inevitably, a large number of the workers who will be attracted there will come from our French-speaking regions. And that is a new social problem.

There now are several thousand French-speaking persons in Saint John who are literally deprived of any form of French culture. Short of being constantly on guard, it is becoming almost impossible for a French-Canadian to "live" in such an atmosphere. He is constantly threatened by assimilation and it is only a question of years before he becomes completely assimilated. . . .

The danger will remain the same with the expansion expected for this region. Surely, economic progress must not be halted but neither must French-Canadians from all other region of the province be discouraged from coming to profit from a more favorable economic climate in Saint John. Those who want to participate in the progress of a region should not have to do so to the detriment of their mother language and culture.

Third Week in May Deadline for Belleville's 1970 Tax Rate

City Manager J. R. Reynolds is working toward a third week in May deadline for striking of Belleville's 1970 tax rate.

Two city department estimates are in but a total of 10 must be approved before this year's levy can be decided.

There is still no indication of what this year's mill rate increase will be, although it is known that police and fire department requirements will be up as will labor and clerical costs for the public works department and for city hall.

The Hastings County Board of Education school estimates are decided with the over-all levy to city property owners down about one-quarter of a mill from last year.

"It looks as though any city tax increase will be for strictly city purposes," commented the city manager.

Mr. Reynolds said the third week in May deadline for setting the city tax rate was necessary to allow time for processing and mailing of tax bills, which must be in property owners' hands 14 days before the June 20 deadline for the first of three regular tax payments.

City property owners have already received their interim tax bills with payments due Feb. 28 and April 30.

The regular tax bill to be mailed following setting of the tax rate will be divided into three instalments, the first due at the end of June.

Sub-division Control Discussed by Council

TWEED — Council met at the call of the reeve, (Elzevir Township Council) to take action on sub-division control.

All members present, reeve Kenneth Smith presided. By-law 310, passed, is to put sub-division control of all of Grimsthorpe Township and on all lots 25 to 32 inclusive, concessions 1 to 11 inclusive in Elzevir Township.

Crown lots, MRCA lots and Dept. of Public Works lots to be excluded from sub-division control.

It was moved that council adjourn.

The April meeting was held with all members of Council present, except E. Alexander who was ill. Reeve K. Smith presided.

The board of Management for the community hall will be reappointed for a two-year term. A number of accounts will be paid. The reeve will check with Department of Lands and Forests regarding location of a hunting camp claimed by owner to be on township road allowance at lot 20, concession 3, Grimsthorpe township. If the camp is on road allowance, a registered notice will be sent to the owner to have the camp removed by July 1, 1970, or the camp will be removed at owner's expense.

Council has no objection to a tent and trailer park being operated on lot 4, Elzevir Township, provided County Health Unit regulations are adhered to.

Council adjourned and the next meeting will be in May, at 8.30 p.m.

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "Jenny, you know Grandma doesn't like you to bring food into her living room. You sit down and be careful and don't spill that hot chocolate. Don't jiggle or you'll spill on the rug."

Even if the child doesn't spill, Grandma may be nervous and apprehensive about her rug. A considerate mother does not permit a young child to act in an inconsiderate way.

Mother: "You sit here at the kitchen table while you drink your hot chocolate and have a cookie. We wouldn't want to spill anything that might stain Grandma's rug. When you're through, Grandma and I will have our tea."

Pembroke Woman Raises 1000 Budgies

PEMBROKE, Ont. (CP) — If the chirping sound of a pair of budgies annoys you, think of what it would be like to have 500 pairs of them in the basement of your home.

Lois Boldt of this Ottawa River town says it doesn't annoy her at all—in fact she finds it gratifying.

Mrs. Boldt started her bird-breeding hobby from scratch with one pair, in 1962. Then "a chap in Petawawa," the neighboring armed forces base, decided to sell his stock. That gave her 37 pairs, and she hasn't looked back since.

Even with 1,000 birds, "I consider my endeavors hardly anything more than a paying hobby," she says. "You could not make a living from bird-breeding unless you had in the neighborhood of 5,000 to 6,000 birds."

She finds her present stock present something of a space problem in her basement, but we hope to build an outbuilding at the back of the house where I will be able to expand considerably."

She has contracted to sell 1,200 birds this year to a large bird supply company, but says she doesn't get as much for the birds in a contract sale as she does from individual buyers who come to her home. However, there is an advantage in selling by contract because the buyer has to purchase every one of them.

"You achieve a good color combination by placing two budgies of different colors together," Mrs. Boldt says. "For an example, if a light yellow bird is bred with a blue one, the harlequin or mottled specimen would end up being a turquoise color.

"The actual breeding process does not require much work on my part. It is the feeding that requires more attention."

The birds are fed twice daily. "Feeding time in the morning takes a good hour and a half, while it requires about three-quarters of an hour in the evening," she said.

"I don't always have to do all the work myself. I get my husband to do the heavier work such as repairing the cages and erecting new ones.

"I get him to bring in the feed; just recently I got a ton of bird feed. It's a good thing it comes in 98-pound bags."

She feeds the birds the regular budgie feed mixed with vitamins and a laying mash purchased from a local feed store.

Mrs. Boldt noted a peculiarity in the feeding habits between the mother and the young. "After the mother has eaten, she then enters the nest containing the chick and rolls it over on its back, then drops the food into the young bird's mouth. The baby bird has to get on its back because of the shape of its beak."

At the age of four, weeks they are able to take care of themselves, and "are eligible for sale," she said.

"To get your budgie to talk, you stick to teaching it two words at a time, then branch out to two more words. Keep following the pattern of teaching it two words at a time, and never group the bird—let it come to you.

"You will never get a budgie to talk if you have more than one in the house. They will only stick to bird talk. By keeping one bird only, you can get it to pay more attention to you."

She also finds that the budgies are "more low-key" with each other in the morning when they have been kept apart during the night.

Ann Landers

Foreign Objects Source of Ear Troubles

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Since you are read and quoted by millions of people will you please say something to the thousands of ignorant fools who are wrecking their ears? As an otologist's nurse I can vouch for that old saying, "nothing smaller than the elbow should go into ears"—but hardly anyone listens. People insist on "cleaning" their ears with cotton swabs, hairpins, keys, pencils, pens, wires, etc., etc. As a result we get several calls a day from people who are suffering the tortures of the damned. The doctor gives them a lecture and prescribes medication but they keep coming back time after time for the same old thing. The most pathetic cases are infants who are brought in for treatment. Cotton swabs not only pack the ear wax tighter and clog the canal but carelessly used, they can scratch the fine lining of the canal and start infections.

ANN LANDERS

Infections can lead to chronic draining and a loss of hearing. Please tell your readers that the normal ear cleans itself and does not require anyone digging in it. If, by chance, the ears do not secrete their own wax and debris, they should be cleaned by a doctor, not an amateur.

You do a lot of good in this world, Ann. Do a little more and print this. — OFFICE NURSE.

* * *

DEAR NURSE: Here 'tis and I hope somebody listens.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Glad you printed the letter from the guy who never looked sideways at a certain girl but who attached herself to him like a suction cup, pestered his family and busted him down all over town. I thought I was the only one.

There's this woman, Ann, whose name I couldn't even spell. Suddenly she picked me out for her husband. If she spots me in public I am finished. She has eyes like a hawk and can find me in a stadium that holds 30,000 people. She sent me a birthday gift, Christmas gift, a Valentine gift, cards for Lincoln's Birthday, George Washington's Birthday and Columbus Day. She has told my family she's going to marry me — as soon as I come to my senses and realize I'm in love with her.

The sad part of it is I might have married her if she hadn't chased me. She is rich and attractive — until she puts on her track shoes. Why are some women so stupid? They spoil it for themselves. — OKLAHOMA.

DEAR OK: It's not so much stupidity as insecurity propelled by aggressiveness. But you are right about spoiling it for themselves. They certainly do.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I worked hard for 30 years. We built a good business and although it seemed as if we were killing ourselves, we enjoyed it. When we received an offer to sell out at a handsome profit, we took it — thinking the time had come to take it easy. So my husband went on a job from 9 till 5.

We are both restless in our new life. My husband is depressed because he doesn't have enough to do. I hate having him around the house so much. We used to be busy and happy. Now, from 5:15 till midnight, we sit around and look at each other.

Are we too old at 54 to start a new business? We have the money, good health and energy. What do you say? — HAUNTED BY DOUBTS.

DEAR DOUBTS: Obviously you both need a challenge in order to feel useful and productive. Neither you nor your husband are happy out of harness so my advice is to get back into business — on a smaller scale. You'll be glad you did.

Physicians' Wives' Association Will Change Procedure

For an experimental period of one year the Belleville and District Physicians Wives' Association will have only a purely social organization. This motion was carried by a majority vote at the April meeting held last Thursday evening.

The doctors' wives feel that since they are already heavily committed as individuals to community work and to charitable organizations their own association should be an undemanding one where they can relax together. Hope was expressed, however, that means will be found to continue donations to some of the charities which have had the long standing support of the medical wives.

Donations from the past year's work of the doctors' wives include $300 to the Salvation Army's Summer Camp Fund, $50 to the Ontario Medical Association's Bursary and Loan Fund, replacements will be made to the recreation equipment supplied to the Mental Health Unit of Belleville General Hospital and again a needy family will be given help at Christmas.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mrs. E. Green, the hostess, served refreshments.

Refuse Entry

MEXICO CITY (AP)—Mexican immigration authorities say they'll refuse entry to "flower lovers and proponents of free love" and evict those already in the country. Officials at Ensenada, Baja California, said they had deported nearly 20 young American "hippies and scandalously dressed girls."

Practice Makes Perfect

Judy the mannequin played a big part in the training of 22 women involved in Red Cross home care course which ended last night. Among graduates were Marilyn Woods (left), the youngest at 16, and Mrs. Mary Clifford, who scored highest examination marks of 96 per cent.

Home Care Certificates Presented

Belleville's Red Cross organization today can call on more than a score of additional willing helpers in its home care programs.

Last night 21 graduates of a 12-week course on care in the home received their qualifying certificates at a special ceremony at Belleville General Hospital's Education Hall.

Placing first in final examinations marking the end of the course was Mrs. Mary Jane Clifford, a mother of three.

Her examination papers brought her marks totalling 96 per cent.

The 12-week session included first aid and bandaging courses from St. John Ambulance representatives, lectures from Quinte district emergency measures co-ordinator Angus Duffy and city obstetrician Dr. Patrick Kelly.

Supervising the schedule were Joyce Badgley and Marion McGee as nursing directors and Mrs. Joan Young, Red Cross home nursing supervisor in Belleville.

Graduating last night were: Diane Barrigar, Gwyn Bell, Victoria Bignoske, Betsy Brenner, Nettie Brownlee, Carolyn Carr, Edna Casey, Mary Jane Clifford, Elaine Dickens, Ann Douglas, Norah Evans, Verna Fraser, Evelyn Goodfellow, Sarah Kent, Ruby Lott, Rose Lott, Ruth Nisbet, Joanne Percival, Mary Robinson, Dionna Tiessen, Margaret Wallbridge, Marilyn Woods.

DISTRICT WOMEN'S INSTITUTES

MELROSE WI

It was reported that $50 will be sent to the Cancer Fund at the April meeting of Melrose WI held April 23 at the home of Mrs. Ken McMechan with Mrs. Harold McMechan as hostess. The fund will, however remain open for some time.

Information regarding the prizes set for catering has been requested and this will be transferred to the interested party. Further plans were made for the May meeting to be held at the township school and an announcement was made in connection with the district annual to be held at Empey Hill, May 6. Delegates appointed were president, Helen McLaren; district director Genevieve McLaren; chairman of resolutions, Ruth Long and Lois McMechan with alternate Ruth Pascoe. Several members will take part in the DA program.

A donation was received from a former member, Mrs. J. C. Milligan.

The matter of the WI linking with other organizations doing work of a similar nature was brought up and reference was made to the winter issue of Home and Country in which the provincial board approved a motion that the FWIO would not affiliate with outside organizations. A motion passed that Melrose WI will not renew its membership this year in outside organizations to which it has previously paid membership fees.

After the conveners' reports were received, the election of officers was conducted by Mrs. Roy Badgley. The slate has been only slightly changed. Mrs. Jack Macfarlane replaced Mrs. N. Demille as 1st vice-president; Mrs. Dorothy Meiburn is convener of home economics and health and Mrs. Betty Summers is replaced by Mrs. Charles Bains Jr.

Mrs. G. McLaren reported on the year's work with the 4-H clubs and invited the women to attend achievement day at Moira Secondary school, May 9.

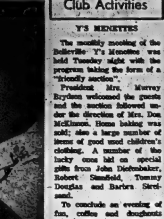
Y'S MENETTES

The monthly meeting of the Belleville Y's Menettes was held Tuesday night with the program taking the form of a "friendly auction".



President Mrs. Murray Rayburn welcomed the guests and the auction followed under the direction of Mrs. Don McKinnon. Home baking was sold; also a large number of items of good used children's clothing. A member of the lucky coca bid on special gifts from John Diefenbaker, Robert Stanfield, Tommy Douglas and Barbra Streisand.

To conclude an evening of fun, coffee and doughnuts were served with Mrs. L. Cumming in charge in the kitchen.

New Method In Teaching Tots to Read

TIMMINS, Ont. (CP) — A new method of teaching children to read is meeting with success in Joseph H. Kennedy public school at Mathews, a small Northern Ontario community about 45 miles east of here.

Principal Frank Kinsella said he feels the new method of using only upper-case letters for reading and writing practice is a major breakthrough in this area of learning.

From September to December, 1969, the group that was having difficulty, approximately seven Grade 1 pupils, managed to read only 16 pages in a pre-primer work, at an average of one new word per page, their progress was slow.

Now, using the method which has been in use since Christmas, they have finished the pre-primer, the primer, and now are well into the Grade 1 reader.

Mr. Kinsella said the system operates on the theory that when children start writing at home, most of them begin printing in capital letters. This results in less writing-muscle co-ordination, which could be a cause of frustration for the child who cannot form his lower-case letters well.

Beginning in January, all pre-primer readers were changed. Texts were typed with a machine which types only in capital letters. The stories that were typed were pasted into the texts, under the pictures.

"Once the door was unlocked, and they started to read, their enthusiasm just snowballed," said Mr. Kinsella.

Potatoes Make Many Tasty Dishes

By MARY MOORE

To their everlasting credit readers are writing asking for different ways to serve potatoes. One girl had a 75-lb. bag and it is beginning to sprout through the mesh! "Please Mary save my sanity and print some new ways to serve potatoes!"

I hope you all will make and enjoy Fresh Potato Onion Puff, sprouted or not. An added dividend is Savoury Carrots.

FRESH POTATO ONION PUFF (serves 6)

3 lbs. (about 6 med.-large) potatoes pared and quartered
½ tsp. salt (first amount)
½ cup fresh onions finely chopped (I used Spanish)
¼ cup melted butter or margarine
1 cup milk
½ tsp. salt (second amount)
3 eggs — yolks and whites separated

Cook potatoes in small amount of boiling water with ½ tsp. salt until very tender. Drain and mash until there are no lumps. Gently sauté onions in butter or margarine until limp but not brown. Add onions and butter, milk, salt and egg yolks to mashed potatoes and beat thoroughly. Beat egg whites until stiff and fold in until blended. Pile into greased six-cup casserole and bake at 375 deg. Fahr. for 30 min. or until well puffed and gold tipped.

WEDNESDAY

Dinner Menu

Chilled Vegetable Juice; Broiled Pork Chops; Glazed Apple Slices (see Tuesday); Mashed Turnip; Brussels Sprouts; Ice Cream; Banana Cake; Tea.

SAVOURY CARROTS (Serves 4)

NOTE: BE sure to give these a try.

2 cups shredded carrots (packed — about 3 large)
2 tbsps. butter or margarine
¼ tsp. garlic salt (or powder)
1 small onion chopped
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ cup water

Melt butter in heavy frypan. Add onions; garlic salt (or powder) and cook until yellow. Add shredded carrots, salt, pepper and water. Cover and cook gently 10 min. Remove lid and continue cooking until crisply tender and water evaporates — about 5 min.

Six Students Compete in Public Speaking

Six students from Ameliasburg township public schools competed for public speaking honors at Ameliasburg township home and school's April meeting Monday night in Keene school auditorium.

The students were Kevin Coulter, grade 5, Redeersville; Rosemary Farmer, grade 5, Keene; Mary MacDonald, grade 4, Keene; Brent Bird, grade 4, Redeersville; Susan Wilson, grade 5, Ameliasburg; Janice Nelson, grade 4, Massassaga.

Ameliasburg Reeve Russell Thompson acted a schairman for the event and judges were Miss Helen Wilhelmy, who taught in the Arctic for 12 years and now does occasional supply teaching in Prince Edward County; Miss Linda Rack, who is a kindergarten teacher at Wellington Consolidated School, and Mrs. Barie Simmons, who has been involved in many activities with young people and spent four years in Australia before moving into the county.

Winner was Susan Wilson, who accepted the large cup to be displayed in her school from Ameliasburg trustee George Flower. He also presented her with a replica as a permanent memento of her success. Mr. Thompson presented each competitor with a silver dollar contributed by Ameliasburg township council.

Following the presentations, the regular business meeting was conducted with president Mrs. Marion Anderson in charge. The annual fee, was increased from $1.25 per family to $2 per family.

Mrs. Mary Marshall, chairman of the nominating committee, chaired the meeting for the election of officers, with the new executive being as follows: president, Herb Murray; 1st vice president, John McIntyre; 2nd vice president, Mrs. Pat Balcaen; recording secretary, Mrs. Marie Morton; treasurer, Mrs. Carol Wilson; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Anne Ayre; membership, Mrs. Margaret Lott; publications, Mrs. Carol Reed; bulletin, Mrs. Faye Wetherall; social convener, Mrs. Norma Noyes and program Mrs. Mary Marshall.

Director of education for Prince Edward County John McNeil informed the members that the board has purchased adjacent land at Keene for the new high school at a cost of approximately $10,000. No formal statment has been forthcoming from the Department of Education regarding the proposed school.

Ameliasburg township trustees George Flower, Harman Montgomery and Jerald Anderson, together with Reeve Russell Thompson and councillor Norman Post participated in a discussion period pertaining to the new K-13 school proposed for the Keene site.

In reply to a question from the floor, Mr. Montgomery explained that although Ameliasburg residents have in the past contributed large amounts of money to assist in construction of Hastings county secondary schools (where township high school students have received education for over 18 years) our equity in the secondary schools we have helped to build is "negligible."

A letter indicating the support of the home and school members was presented recently to Ameliasburg township council by a delegation of members. Letters were also written to Norris Whitney, MPP, Dr. Potter, Minister of Education William Davis, Prince Edward Board of Education, and the Hastings ondary schools in Belleville Board of Education. A motion was passed that a request be directed to Prince Edward County Council of Home and School asking that they indicate their support of the proposed school by submitting a letter to the department of education in Toronto.

During the social hour, much discussion took place among the members and guests regarding the school.

Society Tends to Forget Aged Citizens

By DORIS CLARK

The fact that society seems so much geared to the young makes many of our aged citizen feel superfluous. All advertising holds up youth as desirable. We hear talk about youthful figures: about being young at heart. Why do we treat "old" like a dirty word?

Other cultures have found ways to value old people. In some, the older you are the more revered you are. We, too, value some of our older people: our statesmen, our teachers, the doctors in whose hands we trust our precious young ones.

Let's take another look at the seniors we hold dear. Let's not be found guilty of causing an older person to become artificially senile — simply because he no longer has a useful role to play.

• • •

Dear Doris: What does parole mean? I have always thought that it was a way of letting a criminal off easy: that is, after he has been sentenced to a certain period, parole makes it possible for him to get out much sooner, because of his good behavior in jail. — Questioning.

Dear Questioning: Parole is thought of not as clemency, but as a method of gradual release. His actual sentence is not changed, but the way he serves it is.

We who are free to come and go can only guess at what it does to a personality to be confined within four walls. After a while, a prisoner may be merely existing, in routines which are laid on and rigidly unchanging. He may lose all initiative.

In parole arrangements he may be permitted to leave prison daily, or overnight. This may happen for a period of, say, three months. He may be permitted to attend church, a ball game; may take a part-time job.

Then when he is "released on parole" he must not: change job or marital status without consultation, nor purchase a car; must report regularly to parole officer. And other things, depending on the merits of the case.

Rehabilitation is the ultimate end in view, in our more or less enlightened age.

• • •

Dear Doris: How could I start a wig shop in my own home? I am a housewife and my life seems so empty. I've tried working away from home but something always happens so that I have to quit. I have a son who will be 10 and a daughter 13.

Maybe a wig shop is not the answer. I have no professional training so I would have to start from scratch. Where do I start? — Heads Up.

Dear Heads: Wigs are the "in" things, and that's for sure! They provide ready-made hairdos, are a dandy disguise for a too - thin head of hair, and are often more manageable than human hair.

But you do have to know how to handle them, which calls for almost as much training as a professional hairdresser. Besides selling the wigs you are expected to shape and style each wig to suit each customer; to clean and set it and take care of it. No reason why you shouldn't take the training, of course; and it might just be the right answer for you.

Where to start? Visit or write to a good hairdressing school.

(Are you in doubt about the proper etiquette to use for your special occasion? Ask Doris, enclosing a stamped self - addressed envelope for her reply.)

SIDNEY SOUTH W.I.

The April meeting of the Sidney South W. I. was held at the home of Mrs. F. Scrimshaw with a good attendance.

Mrs. J. Tomalty presided over the various items of business and stated that Mrs. D. Douglas will be the delegate to the officers' conference in Corbyn.

Ohio Asks Supreme Court Aid to Clean Up Erie

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state of Ohio appealed to the United States Supreme Court Tuesday to safeguard Lake Erie from mercury contamination by two chemical companies, one in Canada and the other in Michigan.

Ohio Attorney-General Paul W. Brown said the companies have been feeding poisonous mercury and mercury compounds into the lake for years.

Brown said the Supreme Court should order them to stop, clean up the lake and pay damages for harm to the people of Ohio, fish, other wildlife and vegetation.

The targets of Brown's suit are the Dow Chemical Co. of Canada and the Wyandotte Chemicals Corp.

Dow, said Brown, has been discharging mercury into the St. Clair River since 1949 in its manufacture of caustic soda and chlorine near Sarnia, Ont.

He said Wyandotte Chemicals has been making similar discharges into the Detroit River for several years. The waters of the two rivers feed into the lake.

Also named in the suit is the Dow Chemical Co., which owns all outstanding shares of capital stock of Dow of Canada.

Brown asked the court to assert original jurisdiction—to take the case on directly rather than leave preliminary action to lower courts.

He said the situation is urgent and that Ohio has no speedy legal remedy other than to ask the Supreme Court for a permanent injunction against the alleged contamination.

"The potential for deadly consequences from the continued mercury pollution of Lake Erie cannot be overstated," he said.

Brown recalled that 116 people were killed or severely disabled from 1953 to 1960 after eating fish caught in mercury-polluted waters of Minamata Bay, Japan.

"There must not be a Lake Erie tragedy repeating the Minamata Bay tragedy," he said. "Action by this court now can avoid this threat."

Action by the Supreme Court on Ohio's motion is expected next month.

Air Pollution Priority

OTTAWA (CP) — The health department is making a special drive on cleaning up air pollution, Dr. Stanley Haidasz (L—Toronto Parkdale), parliamentary secretary to Health Minister John Munro, told the Commons Tuesday.

In an adjournment debate, Dr. Haidasz said the government is working to produce clean air legislation as soon as possible.

An air pollution control division was set up in the department last week.

Index Hits Record

TORONTO (CP) — Twenty-five industrial sites here were issued advisory warnings Tuesday as the air-pollution index reached a record high of 49.

Colin McFarlane, regional engineer with the air management branch of the energy and resources management department, said that about 20 firms reduced operations as a result.

He said the co-operation his department received from the various industrial sites was "very commendable—they did this quite voluntarily."

The government can issue advisory notices at index readings of 32 or more but a level of 50 must be reached before plants can be ordered to reduce operations.

If a reading of 58 or higher is sustained for a period of hours, officials say, people suffering serious bronchial conditions feel some discomfort.

Plastic May Solve Bottle Problem

TORONTO (CP) — A method that makes some plastics disintegrate in sunlight has been devised by University of Toronto chemists and may lead to a solution to the problem of disposing plastic containers that now cause pollution.

Studies by the group, under Dr. James E. Guillet, professor of chemistry, indicate some plastics show substantial disintegration after exposure to sunlight for less than a month.

If the method can be applied commercially, it could lead to the end of using glass as disposable beverage containers.

The chemists discovered that if during chemical synthesis of plastics, groups of atoms sensitive to ultraviolet rays are introduced into the molecular chains, the chains will break apart when exposed to the sun's radiation.

The plastic then loses its physical strength, becoming brittle and easily broken down by natural erosion.

The resulting small particles can then become part of the soil in a form susceptible to attack from micro-organisms.

Dr. Guillet said in an interview Tuesday the discovery was made during a basic study of the interaction of light with large molecules of the type found in plastics.

The chemists originally discovered how to make plastics more stable in light and applied the knowledge to get the reverse process.

Patents filed on some of the more-promising plastic compositions have been assigned to the university.

Collaborators in the research included several now in Russia, India and Czechoslovakia.

Seek Heavy Mineral Pollution Research Aid

WASHINGTON (CP) — The Interior department announced Tuesday it will seek funds for a complete investigation of the effects of heavy minerals, including mercury, on fish and wildlife in the Great Lakes.

The investigation, ordered April 21 by Interior Secretary Walter Hickel, follows a Canadian government report in late 1969 that fish taken from the lakes contained dangerous amounts of mercury.

Intensive study is needed to identify sources of contamination, its effects on fish and wildlife and ways to eliminate it, said Assistant Secretary Leslie Glasgow.

"We do not know how widespread this contamination is, and it is urgent that we find out," he said.

The Canadian government report said fish taken from Canadian waters in the Great Lakes contained mercury readings of five to 10 parts for each 1,000,000. The maximum allowable level in both countries is 0.5 parts.

Since that finding, more than 700,000 pounds of fish have been confiscated and destroyed in Canada and various restrictions on commercial and sports fishing in Lake St. Clair and Lake Erie have been instituted.

The department estimates U.S. industry dumps more than 500,000 pounds of mercury in the Great Lakes each year. Canada's share is estimated at 250,000 pounds.

Government Challenged to Justify Anti-inflation Measures

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition parties challenged the government Tuesday to justify continuing its fight against inflation in the face of rising unemployment.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield opened the attack with a motion condemning the government's methods of combating rising costs and prices. The motion was vigorously debated but some House rules it did not come to a vote.

Was it necessary for the government to intensify its efforts to cool down the economy when the unemployment rate for the month had reached 6.7 per cent on the labor force, Mr. Stanfield asked?

No, he went on. The government's restrictive economic measures were "incorrect and unnecessary."

Finance Minister Edgar Benson plunged into the debate, saying the federal government has taken numerous measures to assist the unemployed.

No one wanted unemployment, but a certain amount was inevitable as the anti-inflation fight began to have effects. The opposition had been crying just a few months ago that the government was not taking strong enough action against inflation.

New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas said the government's anti-inflationary methods have been awkward—"like a hippopotamus trampling through a field of daisies."

By applying the same policies to everyone, the government had hit the poor particularly hard. "The poor are hit twice as hard because the cost of living is going up and many are thrown out of jobs."

Mr. Benson said there are a few "hopeful, if still only tentative signs" that inflation may be easing. Consumer, wholesale and industrial prices had levelled off during the last two months.

Gerard Laprise (Creditiste—Abitibi) urged the government to put more money into the hands of consumers so they can consume more. This would mean increased production to meet increased demand and all Canadians would be called on to work to their full capacity.

Mr. Benson said continuing inflationary pressure in the U.S. and escalating wage demands in Canada are two of the strongest forces contributing to inflation in Canada.

The government is trying to make labor the scapegoat for continuing inflation, Mr. Douglas said.

But what has really happened, he said, is that the government's policy of voluntary price and wage restraints has failed. Such restraints could not be adopted by labor unless because they become binding when written into contracts.

The government should now force industry to accept price levels consistent with the anti-inflation program, Mr. Douglas said. Along with this, investment capital should be funnelled into areas such as housing to promote work and provide shelter for the people.

Mr. Stanfield said he sees no reason for the government to continue following policies that will increase unemployment.

"The government has no right to throw the weak out of work and convince the comfortable majority that this is necessary to beat inflation," Mr. Stanfield said.

■ Many economists believed that inflation could be controlled while maintaining acceptable levels of unemployment.

"The government is so obsessed with its own preoccupation that it simply doesn't react to the hardships of the country."

Prime Minister Trudeau remained in the Commons for only eight minutes of Mr. Stanfield's 22-minute speech opening the debate.

"Promise me you won't go into my kitchen—it's an absolute disgrace!"

ALASKA by Norma Spring

Alaska is a wonderful travel book, bursting with the history, legend, culture, and customs of the Northernmost state. It is the largest state with the smallest population. Picture a land green as Eden, as white as snow, volcanically rich, and as barren as tundra; a land of boundless wealth, and infinite variety, of glaciers and gold, of Eskimos and oil barons. This is Alaska, the vanishing frontier.

THE SEVENTEEN GUIDE TO TRAVEL by Mark Scott Welch

Then-age travel is a thing of its own, unlike anything adults know in their day. Now is the time to travel — now, when you are still young enough to have access to the excitement of new places and new people. This sensible book takes the bewilderment out of dealing with arrangements, decisions, the mechanics of travel. It makes a summer abroad easy to manage as a weekend in Canada and shows you how to apply basic travel techniques to any trip, anywhere anytime.

SPAIN by Stephen Clissold

The unprecedented post-war tourist boom, the investment of foreign capital in Spanish industry, the migration of Spanish workers to other European countries, have all in their different ways greatly influenced the character of Franco's Spain. Mr. Clissold describes Spain's extremely varied geography and outlines the centuries - long struggle between Moslems and Christians.

AUSTRALIA by Ward McNally

Australia is the history of their great continent from the early settlement by the English at Botany Bay up to the present. It is land of many complexities and much about this country is unknown to us. Mr. McNally tells in detail the story of the growth of the continent to its 11 million population today. Geologists say Australia is the oldest land mass on earth and the anthropologists claim the Australian aborigine is the last stone-age man still alive, and that he migrated from Europe thousands of years ago.

GOLDEN ICELAND by Sam Ivel

Iceland is almost half the size of the British Isles, with a landscape of great variety and colors of unequalled magnificence. Iceland is nature's wonderland, a land of crystal lakes and mighty rivers and towering waterfalls, of myriads of birds and teeming seas alive with seals and whales. It is, moreover, the island of the Vikings, of epic sea adventures. Now, the island has emerged from its long hard-ships. The Icelander today has fine houses, boats of sheep, a great fleet of ships. He also has a bank account, cars, aeroplanes, newspapers, radio, television, refrigerators — in fact, everything this century demands.

THE HIMALAYAS: A JOURNEY TO NEPAL by Takehide Kazamai

The Himalayas. The very words evoke the majesty and grandeur of this rugged and beautiful area of the world. Nepal, country bordering the southern fringe of this mountainous barrier, has until recently been a closed land. The author of this book, Takehide Kazami, is also a skilled photographer and his magnificent photographs of Nepal and the Himalayas are indescribably beautiful.

SMALL BOAT TO NORTHERN GERMANY by Roger Pilkington

Roger Pilkington is well known for the delightful books which have come from his many years of voyaging through the waterways of Europe. Like his earlier voyages, this is an unhurried journey. It does not matter where the ship will moor for the night or when she will move on again, and the hustle and speed of the land around her might not exist at all as her captain steers her doggedly onward through one intriguing waterway after another.

Two Billion 'Lost' In Stock Price Slump

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The New York stock market slump, which has wiped out an estimated $200,000,000,000 in paper values during the worst 17 months of declining prices, is the largest since the Second World War.

Although there is little optimism on Wall Street that the slump will end soon, President Nixon Tuesday predicted that the U.S. economy will pick up steam this summer after a painful levelling off process, and that it is hoped to help stock prices.

"Frankly, if I had any money I'd be buying stocks right now," Nixon told a visiting business group in Washington in an informal chat.

The president told the group he will make a major report to the American people dealing with the economy and other matters in about two weeks.

Catholic Rules Changed

No Priest Needed at Wedding

WASHINGTON (AP) — New papal regulations will permit Roman Catholics to enter mixed religion marriages without the presence of a Roman Catholic priest, the U.S. National Conference of Catholic Bishops said Tuesday.

The conference said 17 norms on mixed marriages are contained in a 2,400-word letter to be issued Thursday by Pope Paul "motu proprio"—meaning "on his own initiative."

A statement by the conference said two major developments found in the papal letter are:

—"Diocesan bishops now may permit mixed marriages involving Catholics to take place without the presence of a Catholic priest, provided there is some public form of marriage service. This dispensation from the required form of Catholic marriage may be granted only for serious reasons.

"In recent years such concessions had been made on an individual basis, but only by the Holy See. The new rule recognizes the local bishops' authority. . . .

"The 1966 instruction on mixed marriages, now in force, asked that the non-Catholic party to a mixed marriage 'be invited to promise sincerely and openly that he will in no way impede' the obligation of the Catholic 'to guard, preserve profess his (her) own faith and to baptize and educate the offspring in that faith.'

"The new regulation . . . eliminates any demand for a promise on the part of the non-Catholic. Instead it first affirms the Catholic party's responsibility: '. . . the Catholic party shall declare that he is ready to remove dangers of falling away from the faith.

". . . at an opportune time the non-Catholic party must be informed of these promises . . . so . . . he is cognizant of the promise and obligation on the part of the Catholic."

The council quoted the papal letter as saying that mixed marriages involving Catholics "do not, except in some cases, help in re-establishing unity among Christians" and are discouraged by the church.

However, the council said, the letter notes that there has been "a great increase in the number of mixed marriages" and thus the pastoral duty of the church to establish norms for them.

Cash Is Moved to Cornwall

CORNWALL (CP) — Uncertainty over the outcome of the Quebec election has led to transfers of cash and securities to banks in this city near the Quebec border, bank spokesmen confirmed Tuesday.

Of five bank managers checked, three agreed that the deposits are linked to the outcome of the provincial election.

'Chosen of God' Won't Bend

TORONTO (CP) — Eugene Cardinal Tisserent, dean of the College of Cardinals in Rome, said Tuesday night he could see no hope of peace negotiations in the Middle East because both sides believe they are the "chosen of God."

He told a press conference that because Arabs and Israelis consider themselves "preferred of God" they will do nothing to deviate from what they see as the will of God: to maintain and increase their own status.

He said he didn't believe either side would take any peace steps that would degrade their position in their own eyes.

The cardinal, 86, has been in the Middle East several times since his first visit in 1984. He is Grand Master of the Equestrian Order of the Knights of the Holy Sepulchre of Jerusalem, the ancient order of chivalry in charge of Christian shrines in the Holy City.

Death Car 'Toyed' With Police Cruiser

STRATHROY, Ont. (CP) — A coroner's jury was told Tuesday that a Komoka youth died when his car ran into the side of a moving train after a high-speed chase involving as many as seven police cruisers.

Larry McBeth, 18, his brother Brian, 15, and Tim Hood, 17, all of Komoka, died in the April 4 accident just north of Komoka, five miles west of London.

Provincial police constable Thomas McKenna, who was involved in the chase which reached speeds in excess of 100 miles an hour, told the hearing it was "obvious the vehicle had been toying with us."

Const. McKenna said Larry McBeth's car cut in front of police cruisers during the chase, forced other cars off the road and went through police roadblocks.

Strathroy is 15 miles west of London.

Methemphetamine Deplored

WINNIPEG (CP) — Methemphetamine, the basis of diet pills called speed on the drug scene, should be taken off the market, Dr. E. Kirk Lyon of Leamington, Ont., said Tuesday.

Dr. Lyon, former president of the Canadian and Ontario Medical Associations, said these pills "never took a pound off a woman, they just made her happier while dieting."

"They're completely useless as far as diet is concerned. I wish they would take them off the market."

CITY OF BELLEVILLE NOTICE — REVISED LOCAL IMPROVEMENT CHARGES

TAKE NOTICE THAT:

1. The Council of the Corporation of the City of Belleville has constructed as a local improvement the following sanitary sewer at a higher cost that estimated in the notice of intention published February 10th and 17th, 1969, and has been directed by The Ontario Municipal Board to publish a further notice of intention with respect to the additional expenditure and increase in special rates, and intends to specially assess a part of the revised cost upon the land abutting directly on the work and the balance against the Corporation at large as follows:

Provincial Tax Experts

Quinte district residents got an opportunity last night to discuss taxation with a panel brought to Trenton Community Gardens by Quinte MPP, Dr. Richard Potter. Panel members, from left to right, were moderator Ted Parker of Trenton, revenue minister John White, finance minister Charles MacNaughton and Dr. Potter.

Taxation Meeting

Lack of Response Disappoints Potter

TRENTON (Staff) — The response to Wednesday evening's civic night at Trenton Community Gardens drew mixed reactions from the evening's panel members.

Quinte riding MPP, Dr. Richard Potter, organized the meeting to allow Quinte voters to debate tax and finance issues with Ontario treasurer Charles MacNaughton and revenue minister John White.

Dr. Potter stated his reaction in the small turnout — slightly more than 10 people attended — at the completion of the two - hour session.

"I'm not too pleased with the turnout, but the response from those present was good," he said.

"The people say they want an opportunity to discuss policy with government representatives but this proves to me that the people in this area are not too concerned with our taxes," he concluded.

Noting the small group, Mr. MacNaughton suggested that, "We didn't choose a very glamorous topic — there's really nothing glamorous about taxes."

"No, but it certainly is expensive," quipped moderator Ted Parker.

Last night's session was the second organized by Dr. Potter in an attempt to better communication between his constituents and the provincial government.

A similar forum, held last year in Belleville with municipal affairs minister Darcy McKeough, drew an active public response.

Factors which might have influenced the size of the crowd were Thursday night's live CBC television broadcast of the St. Louis - Pittsburgh Stanley Cup game and live coverage of the session by CJBQ radio.

Regional Tax-spending Balance Could End Local Inequities

By MALCOLM JOHNSTON
Staff Reporter

TRENTON (Staff) — Provincial revenue minister John White told a Trenton audience Tuesday evening that sorting taxes must be combated by a co - ordination of spending responsibilities and revenue capacity across Canada.

Mr. White, a panel member for the Civic Night arranged by Quinte MPP Dr. Richard Potter, expressed the hope that expenditures and revenues can be reconciled at the various levels of government.

"A meeting of provincial minds is needed," he commented. "But we will have difficult times until we balance the taxation in each area with the revenue required."

Mr. White said that a small area had been made despite the federal government's reluctances for fear that the provinces might abandon their general government's fiscal and money power.

"Programs will be accelerated each year on the various jurisdictional goals conflicting with each other," the revenue minister added.

Ontario treasurer Charles MacNaughton noted that it was the provincial government's decision to abandon the establishment of regional government to give unconditional grants, to these regional government bodies.

Hand-in-hand with the unconditional grants will be local fiscal autonomy allowing each region to determine its own spending emphasis.

Belleville alderman Robin Jeffrey asked whether municipalities such as Belleville will also qualify for the unconditional grants.

Mr. MacNaughton replied that unconditional grants are not new and that every municipality gets some now, but the idea is to expand.

The proposal will be tested at the higher regional government level rather than at the local municipal level, he said.

Regional government units would have the administrative qualifications and expertise to better determine their needs than smaller municipalities, Mr. MacNaughton said in explaining the decision to centre the unconditional grants at the regional government level.

"I'm not being critical of smaller units of jurisdiction, but I hope the municipalities get away from conditional grants, which tend to direct their thinking," he added.

However, he conceded that some smaller municipalities may never get unconditional grants.

Revenue minister White explained that the purpose of unconditional grants was not defined specifically, whereas the criteria for the grad (for example lack of assessment) was defined.

Existing educational grants are largely unconditional at present he added.

In reply to a question from Trenton clerk O. W. Larry, Mr. White rejected the elimination of sales taxes as a "beguiling idea" but unworkable.

He said the division of sales tax system wasn't working well elsewhere, citing Quebec as an example. He asserted that this system exaggerates the existing disparity between wealthy and poor municipalities.

Treasurer Charles MacNaughton also favored the unconditional grant system, which he said, channels funds through a single outlet in an attempt to provide even distribution.

Before throwing the discussion open to the floor, the provincial cabinet ministers explained the functions of their departments.

Mr. MacNaughton, who is also chairman of the treasury board, said that establishment of taxation policy was the essential purpose of the treasury department, while John White cited tax collection as the prime duty of the revenue department.

Ontario's A Big Source of Taxes

TRENTON (Staff) — Ontario's contribution to the federal treasury was outlined last night by provincial treasurer Charles MacNaughton.

Participating in a civic night panel discussion at Trenton Community Gardens, Mr. MacNaughton claimed that, "Ontario is pretty well pulling its weight in the Canadian family."

He said federal government aid to other provinces comes largely from money taken from Ontario, which provides 35 per cent of the federal treasury department's revenues.

In 1968, federal contributions to Ontario were $1.4 billion less than the amount taken out and the figure will rise by about $2 billion in 1970.

Revenue minister John White noted that Ontario has one - third of Canada's population, 40 per cent of the country's gross national product and more than 60 per cent of the nation's industry.

Belleville alderman Robin Jeffrey asked Mr. White what effect the Ontario's revenues would be if Quebec left Confederation.

Mr. White hedged his reply by saying "I hope that the federal government will be able to accommodate Quebec's social and economic needs."

However, the revenue minister said the federal government should review its "get tough policy" if Rene Levesque and his separatist Parti Quebecois gets more than 30 per cent of the vote in today's Quebec general election.

"If Mr. Levesque gets 30 per cent, all governments should consider a more accommodating stance towards Quebec," he asserted.

"The government don't have to give anything away, but rather let Quebec develop without too many restraints," he concluded.

His Final Bow

Auditorium at Queen Mary School was crowded last night for final public concert staged by young school students trained by Alfred Cooper. Mr. Cooper has been teaching music in local public schools for 30 years.

Alf Cooper's Last Concert

Alfred Cooper faced the music for the last time in public last night.

Each year for three decades he has stood before a band of Belleville's youngest musicians and conducted them through a concert to the most appreciative audience possible — their parents.

The events have been a traditional annual highlight of his professional practice as music teacher in Belleville and Trenton schools.

Now Alf — as he's known in the teaching profession — is retiring in June after 30 years of introducing youngsters to the art of music.

Last night's annual concert at Queen Mary public school was the last of his teaching career.

And, to give him his due, parents of his young protegee packed the auditorium to give the music teacher a standing ovation at the end of an hour-long program.

Music has been with Alf most of his life — beginning with his service as a youngster in the British Army.

It was during that time he was introduced to Canada — in 1923 he was the bassoon player in the Norwich Regiment Band when it played the Canadian National Exhibition.

During that tour he received an offer from a Toronto orchestra and returned to Canada.

He came to the Quinte area in the 1930s and began teaching high school music students.

From that starting point he went on to teach in public schools, bringing music to youngsters at ah early age.

In all, he estimates, he teaches an average of 100 young students a year in the schools.

In 30 years students registered have totalled several thousands.

Some professional musicians today date their start from his patient, painstaking efforts in their early years.

One, recalls Alf, even went on to become a Canadian Army bandmaster, graduating to studies at Britain's renowned Kneller Hall school of band music.

The great majority of them, of course, don't follow through with it," he said last night. "But at least the classes give them an appreciation of music."

A fellow teacher in last night's audience agreed.

These classes give the youngsters something few other teachers can impart," he said. "They learn something they can take home with them — use for their own pleasure."

In retirement, the veteran music teacher says he likely will take some private students.

But, his concern still is with the programs he started in the schools even after he has left.

"I hope it's carried on," he says.

Stewart-Warner Out

Local Labor Scene Relatively Quiet

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

Workers at Stewart-Warner Corp. of Canada are on strike today but are the only union to take such action after a series of recent strike votes taken by Belleville-area organized labor.

The walkout — by members of the United Auto Workers Local 1538 — was called yesterday after negotiations broke down between the company and union.

Not all recent strike votes have had so final an ending in the city area.

In other recent developments:

At Northern Electric, office workers — legally entitled to strike since midnight Monday — entered the third day of wooing the source of wage talks—in Toronto.

In the Deseronto - Napanee area, carpenters organized in a Kingston - district local also have taken a strike vote. But a union representative said today it would only be used as "a last resort."

And at Union Carbide in Belleville, company and workers have reached agreement following a strike vote last weekend.

Meantime, post office workers in Belleville are marking time before receiving a national conciliation report on negotiations with the federal government. The report is expected in the city early next week. A vote to accept or reject the report will follow.

The Stewart-Warner action ended long - drawn negotiations launched earlier this year and a strike vote taken in late February.

The end came at lengthy discussions Monday and pickets went on patrol around the MacDonald Avenue plant yesterday in a walkout involving close to 160 workers. 40-50 of them women.

No immediate end to the strike was predicted by a union spokesman.

"It could be a long strike. They (the workers) have been told that," said UAW district representative Tom Green from Oshawa yesterday.

Stewart-Warner manager F. C. Ehler said in a statement today the union was seeking a 30-cent hourly wage increase and the company offer was 15 cents.

Mr. Green claimed starting rates now were $1.37 for women and $1.43 for men.

The company statement issued today said both sides met with a labor mediator April 27 "to try to avert the strike."

It added: "While the company and union had each made submissions on economic matters on March 31, the mediation discussions were confined only to contract language by the union and the negotiations broke down on these issues alone.

"The economic submissions of March 31 remained unaltered at 30 cents per hour by the union and 15 cents by the company.

Workers are maintaining a 24-hour picket of plant premises.

Also represented by the UAW are 126 office workers at Northern Electric, part of a 1,300 work force at company plants in Belleville, Brantford and London, now waiting for word on a contract talks in Toronto.

Last report from the talks was yesterday, when a UAW spokesman described them as "stalled."

Also equipped with a strike vote are negotiators for the Kingston local of the Carpenters and Joiners Union — a district that reaches west of Napanee to Deseronto, and north to Denbigh.

Local business agent Angus Frosts, of Kingston, today was hopeful of reaching "a settlement with building industry representatives.

"I don't expect too much trouble," he said. "The men voted to strike if necessary. We don't want that — only as a last resort."

Carpenters now earn $4.35 an hour, he said, and are seeking a settlement close to a 25 per cent increase. Deadline on the strike vote is May 11.

In Trenton, Harold Blakely, business agent for Local 572 of the Carpenters Union — representing a territory from west of Deseronto to Colborne, said there was "no problem" in his district.

Meantime, the conciliation report involving postal employees could arrive in Belleville as early as Sunday, one union member indicated today.

D. M. Matthews, president of the Belleville local, Canadian Union of Postal Workers, said today the report may be available by May 6. The local union will vote — possibly two days later — on its terms.

The Union Carbide settlement — with the United Rubber Workers Local 613 — was confirmed by plant manager George Tickle today.

The local had voted to strike if necessary late last week.

"We did settle — to our mutual satisfaction," he said.

The two - year contract, said the manager, includes an increase of 23-25 cents plus some "inequity adjustments" the first year, and an 18-cent across - the - board hike the second year.

Warm Work

Picketing in an early heatwave makes for warm work. However, Barbara Lafee (left) and Lynda Hayes, partly solved the problem by sipping cooling drinks as they strode with placards outside strikebound Stewart-Warner plant on MacDonald Avenue yesterday.

Makeshift Line, Martin's Goaltending Put Orillia 2 Down

SPOKANE, Wash. (CP) — "We played a good game, but there is no doubt about it, Seth Martin was the difference."

Jim Hildebrand, coach of Orillia Terriers, was assessing his team's 4-0 loss to Spokane Jets Tuesday night in the second game of the Allan Cup senior hockey final. And Martin was the difference with a capital D.

The 23-year-old goaltender blocked 34 shots for his 16th victory in 15 playoff starts this year. He has allowed only 34 goals in that stretch.

"He played a whale of a game," said Hildebrand, whose club trails 2-0 in the best-of-seven series which resumes here Thursday night.

"We had better scoring opportunities in the first period but we didn't take advantage of them. Then in the second we opened up a bit and they scored."

Martin had the support of a flying makeshift line made up of two forwards picked up from other Western International Hockey League teams and a rookie who brought the Spokane team to life after a scoreless first period.

Peter Vipond, recruited from Nelson Maple Leafs, Ron Huston, star centre with Cranbrook Royals and the WIHL's leading scorer during the regular season, and rookie Brian Strimbitski each scored once for the Jets.

Ken Gustafson and Don Scherer scored the other goals for Spokane.

Vipond, 21, who played junior hockey with Oshawa Generals, finished fifth among WIHL scorers with 38 goals and 26 assists and was rookie of the year. Although he played centre with the Leafs, he was converted to right wing when he joined the Jets.

The Orillia coach said it was the first shutout his team had suffered all season on their way to the Eastern Canada senior hockey championship.

Another thing the Jets had going for them was 6,100 screaming fans. Hildebrand said.

"You get that many people on your back in a small rink and you feel like you are in a 12-ho 12 room."

Hildebrand said he will not do anything different for Thursday's game—just "the same old thing, only better."

He said he hoped defenceman Mike Draper would arrive in time for the next game. Job commitments kept him in Orillia for the first two games.

Blank Penguins 5-0

Blues Knocking On Door to Final

ST. LOUIS (CP) — St. Louis Blues are on the doorstep of the Stanley Cup final entries for the third season in a row, thanks to a 41-year-old record-setting goalie and a 36-year-old centre.

Goalie Jacques Plante collected his 16th career shutout in playoff action while centre Frank St. Marseille provided three goals in a 5-0 Blues win over Pittsburgh Penguins Tuesday night.

The win gave the Blues a 3-3 lead in the best-of-seven National Hockey League West Division final. The Penguins face elimination should they lose the sixth game of the series Thursday night in Pittsburgh.

A seventh game, if necessary, will be played here Sunday. But if the Blues can win Thursday they will start the final here Sunday against Boston Bruins, the East Division winners.

St. Marseille, who sat out the fourth game of the semi-final at Pittsburgh after suffering a cut over the right eye, scored his first three-goal performance with the Blues.

"Chances came, and you put them in," he said after the game. "I liked the way we played tonight—this is the best game we've played against them yet."

After a day when the outside temperature reached 92, the ice got soft in the sweltering arena, packed with 16,872 fans.

"The ice was a little heavy," said St. Marseille, "but that works against both teams."

St. Marseille's first goal came midway through the first period when he carried in on the right wing and fired the puck at Pittsburgh goalie Al Smith from about 20 feet out. Smith viewed too late and the puck bounced off his shoulder into the net.

"That first goal was a hell of a shot, and it was a big one," said Blues coach Scotty Bowman who praised his players for their strong checking.

St. Marseille scored his second and Blues' 15th playoff power-play goal in the second period when he took a pass near the side of the Pittsburgh net and fired from a sharp angle.

Early in the third period, Bill McCreary moved in directly in front of the Penguins netminder and slipped a quick pass to St. Marseille who flipped the puck over Smith's shoulder to wrap up the scoring.

Mahr Beadries got one of the other St. Louis goals when he took a perfect pass from Terry Gray. Tim Ecclestone counted the other goal in the second period when the Blues' Ab McDonald was sitting out a minor penalty.

Plante stopped only 21 Pittsburgh shots to score the record-setting shutout. Plante had held the previous record of 13 playoff shutouts with Turk Broda, the former star of Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Blues, unhampered by the fierce checking the Penguins had displayed in the last two games at Pittsburgh, took 25 shots at Smith, who came up with several outstanding saves.

Despite the Penguins' inability to generate any dangerous offensive drives, coach Red Kerely was optimistic about his team's chances of staying alive in the series.

"I don't think they outskated us so bad. We just let them skate around unchallenged.

"We've bounced back all year. We're not a team to fold. We started off pretty well, but those three early penalties killed us."

Two of the Penguins' three early p-p penalties were easily killed off but St. Marseille's first goal came during the third power play. Referee John Ashley called seven minor penalties against each of the teams along with a misconduct to Picard of the Blues.

Bruins to Belt In Practices, Risk Injury

BOSTON (AP) — Coach Harry Sinden says his Boston Bruins will hit hard in practice, even at the risk of injury, in order to remain sharp for the Stanley Cup final.

"The problem is physical," Sinden said of the layoff his team is having while St. Louis and Pittsburgh battle for the other berth in the final series.

"We certainly can't cruise through several days of practice. We must have some hard work and some good contact work. We certainly don't want anyone hurt at this stage of the game. But we have to take the risk to stay sharp."

The Bruins, who wound up their swoop over Chicago Black Hawks in the East Division final last Sunday, will have been idle from competition at least a week before playing the Cup final.

If the Western series goes the full seven games, the final will start on Tuesday night, the site depending on who wins in the West.

St. Louis will get the home ice advantage if it is the Bruins' opponent, but Boston will have the home edge if Pittsburgh makes the finals.

Hawks' Ivan Vague On Hull Trade Rumor

CHICAGO (CP) — A report that Chicago's superstar Bobby Hull may go to Toronto—or Vancouver—as part of a multi-player current today and general manager Tommy Ivan of the Black Hawks said "nothing is farfetched" when asked for comment.

"We will all sit down one of these days and discuss the past season and start laying plans for next season," the National Hockey League manager said Tuesday. "This is a possible thing we always do about two weeks after a season ends.

"I can't make any comment now on trades. Is the report about Bobby farfetched? Well, nothing is farfetched today."

A Chicago sports columnist wrote Tuesday that the Black Hawks will make a major trade before the NHL meetings in June and that one of their super players—Hull or Stan Mikita—may be involved.

"The overwhelming consensus is that the super player who shall go is Bobby Hull rather than Stan Mikita," wrote Bill Gleason of the Sun-Times.

Wakely Was Tops

Did Habs Lose Another Tony?

ST. LOUIS (CP) — Montreal Canadiens are beginning to earn a reputation for letting go of outstanding goalienders, and their latest mistake is becoming apparent here in the form of a 20-year-old rookie named Ernie Wakely.

The Canadiens last summer left Tony Esposito off their protected list and he was snapped up in the National Hockey League draft by Chicago Black Hawks.

Esposito went on to win the Vezina Trophy as the league's top goaltender this season with 2.17 goals—against average in 63 games.

At the same time, Wakely, who was traded to St. Louis Blues by the Canadiens shortly after last summer's draft, record a 2.11 average in 30 games.

Wakely, along with veterans Jacques Plante and Glenn Hall and rookie Gary Edwards, put together a 2.36 goals—against average during the season. It was second only to 2.24 total, which won the Vezina Trophy.

But Wakely's individual goals-against average was the best among the St. Louis goaltenders and, in fact, tops in the league.

"He's our goalie of the future," says Blues' coach and general manager Scotty Bowman.

Bowman started Wakely against the Penguins at Pittsburgh during last Sunday's Stanley Cup playoff and the Flin Flon, Man., native kicked out 49 shots.

The Penguins still won the game to even the best-of-seven semi-final series at 2-2 but Bowman had nothing but praise for Wakely.

Wakely is happy to be out of the Montreal organization where he spent most of his 19-season minor-league apprenticeship.

"I really like it down here and I've learned a lot from these other two guys," said Wakely.

The other two are regulars Hall, 38, and Plante, 40, both of whom may not see many more seasons with the Blues.

McDonald Climbs Rung

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ab McDonald picked up an assist Tuesday night and moved into third place in Stanley Cup scoring.

McDonald's point increased his total to 14 on five goals and nine assists as the Blues downed Pittsburgh Penguins 5-0 to take a 3-2 lead in the Stanley Cup semi-final.

Cowan Moves On

PINEHURST, N.C. (AP) — Gary Cowan of Kimberley, Ont., 1966 United States amateur champion, defeated Richard Hepf of Sterling, Va., 3 and 2 Tuesday in the second round of the North and South amateur golf tournament.

Another Canadian, Leo Bradshaw of Toronto, was defeated 2 and 1 by Marvin Vinny Giles of Richmond, Va. Giles edged Bradshaw with winning pars on the 18th and 19th, sealing up three over par.

Veteran Dr. Ed Updegraff of Tucson, Ariz., was eased out of the tournament by Frank Resume, 22-year-old substitute school teacher from Ypsilanti, Mich., who scored a 1-up victory.

Trenton Waters Hold Keys to $600

By ELMER BONTER

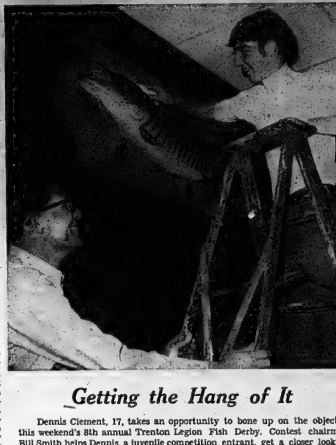
TRENTON — Before another weekend is history the luckiest of the anglers who enter the 8th annual Trenton Legion Fish Derby will learn there's gold, as well as big pike and pickerel, in "them thar" waters.

Cash awards amounting to $600 are up for grabs this year along with an armful of impressive trophies, vouchers for local goods and services and numerous other prizes.

The contest running from 12:01 a.m. Saturday, May 3 through to 4.00 p.m. Sunday, May 3 is open to adult men and women and youth 19 and under.

The area for fishing is restricted to the Trent River and Bay of Quinte from No. 1 dam to Baker Island (in front of CFB Trenton) on the east and Twelve O'Clock Point on the west.

As in other years, weights of prize catches will be officially recorded at the Legion building, 29 Quinte Street, Trenton, with final weigh - in time 4.00 p.m. Sunday.



The judging of fish for prizes will be by weight and will be certified by the official recorder. In the event of a tie by weight, the length and girth of the fish will be the deciding factor. Fish may be opened if required. The decision of the judges will be final.

To be eligible for competition a contestant must be in possession of a Fish Derby official entry form and an Ontario fishing licence.

In the adult class the first prize for the largest pickerel is $150.00 cash, free mounting of trophy fish and a trophy for gracing the recreation room mantel. Second prize is $100 for the largest pike caught during the contest, mounting of trophy fish and beautiful engraved trophy is also included. Third prize for the second largest pickerel and fourth prize for the second largest pike earns the lucky entrant $50 in each case.

Boys in the juvenile class can win $50 for the largest pickerel registered and $25 for the largest pike. The same cash awards will be made available to girl entries catching the largest of each species.

In order to assess the genuine interest in promotion of the Trent River and Bay of Quinte by Bill Smith's Branch 110 committee, attendance at the smelt fry and dance in the Trenton Legion on Saturday night is recommended. All that is needed for admission is an official entry form in the Derby and the ability to eat and dance free the rest of the night.

Getting the Hang of It

Dennis Clement, 17, takes an opportunity to bone up on the object of this weekend's 8th annual Trenton Legion Fish Derby. Contest chairman Bill Smith helps Dennis, a juvenile competition entrant, get a closer look at the muskie trophy hanging in the Trenton Branch 110 lounge.

Baseball Bantams Lack Coach

Belleville Minor Baseball appears to be in excellent shape to answer the "Play Ball" call this spring, with one outstanding exception.

The bantam all - stars are still in need of a coach and manager for the upcoming season to join the city's other three all - star squads in ECBA competition. Minor Baseball Association president Garth Bradshaw is temporarily filling the vacancy in order the pre - season conditioning can get under way.

"It's too bad that with over 1,300 kids involved in minor sports you can't get enough parents interested enough to help with the coaching," says Bradshaw.

The Branch 99 bantams, Eastern Ontario Baseball Association winners last summer were Ontario finalists two years ago.

House league convenor John Emerson reports that while the 18 teams involved in minor baseball play are still short about five coaches, he feels the vacancies can be readily filled.

Both peewee and midget all - star teams held open practices last night at the Parkdale diamond with excellent turnouts in both sections.

Peewee coaches Darwin Hoskin, Larry Lapeontie and Jim Hall had a turnout of over 30 players including 10 newcomers from last year's all - star team.

Augmented by a number of graduates from last year's tyke squad, the team figures to be a strong contender in the 11 - strong ECBA peewee loop. The team opens its 18 - game schedule May 22nd.

In the midget division, Belleville Lions Club coaches John Emerson and Ron Lapcombe were both highly optimistic of the club's prospects for this season.

Holdovers from last year include Rick Meagher, Stan Brooks, Eric Cooper, Doug Dersnah, Barry Culkin and Paul Wolfe. "We think that we've got a lot of outstanding ballplayers right now," says Lapcombe, "but we'd like to stress that all positions are still open to anyone wishing to try out."

Among the newcomers to the midget club are bantam graduates Bill Coughlin, Eric Tagmutt, Dave Smith, Danny Lapenette, Brian Cousins and Steve Rushlow. Three players from last year's Ontario finalist Carmel bantams who will be trying for a spot on the team are Carman McCaffery, Dale Bamber and Dale Van Volkenburg.

"Our pitching looks like it could be exceptionally strong" says Lapenette. Possible pitching candidates include Brooks, Smith, Bamber, McCaffery and Dersnah.

The Lions Club midgets open their 22-game schedule on May 17th when they take on the Oshawa entry. Oshawa, along with Peterborough and Cobourg are expected to be strong contenders in the midget division.

Billy Cooper Says:

BE SMOOTH WITH LONG IRONS

Many golfers find it difficult to hit long irons because these clubs have such relatively small heads. Because of this, you may think that it's necessary to give the ball an especially hard "smack" to make it fly.

Well, your thinking is wrong. And that's often the reason behind a missed shot with these clubs. When swinging a long iron, keep your swing as naturally long and smooth as possible. Take the clubhead back on a comfortably wide arc and follow that path down-swing. Don't be afraid of it. Then you'll be more consistent, and it's easier to get the clubhead into the ball for more or less level arc. Take only a slight divot in front of the ball's original position.

New Major League Mark

Perez Pokes 10th Homer This Month

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Defending National League batting champion Pete Rose has a simple explanation for Cincinnati teammate Tony Perez's current record-setting homer pace:

"He's hitting everything and everybody," said Rose Tuesday night after Perez had poked his 10th home run of the month as the Reds dumped Houston Astros 4-2.

Elsewhere in the league Tuesday night, Pittsburgh Pirates slugged Chicago Cubs 6-1, Atlanta Braves edged St. Louis Cardinals 3-2, New York Mets dropped San Francisco Giants 5-2, Philadelphia Phillies edged Los Angeles Dodgers 3-2 in 18 innings, and Montreal Expos swept a doubleheader from San Diego Padres 4-2 and 7-3.

Perez' two-run shot shattered the 48-year-old record for home runs in the month of April established in 1922 by Ken Williams of the old St. Louis Browns who tagged nine. Perez earlier had broken the National League mark of eight shared by Lee Walls and Wally Moon.

In addition to his homer, Perez had an RBI single and boosted his major league-leading batting average to .461. He has 36 RBIs.

Gary Nolan rode Perez' heavy hitting to his fourth straight victory with Tom Collett providing ninth inning relief after a pinch homer by Astros' John Mayberry.

Montreal bunched all its runs in the eighth inning of the opener. Ron Fairly hammered a two-run homer and Bobby Wine's single drove two more across for the Expos. Steve Rogers bounced for the losing Padres.

Fairly homered again in the nightcap and Steve Renko pitched a six-hitter as the Expos completed the sweep and extended San Diego's losing streak to six games. The Expos have won three straight.

Claude Raymond pitched the last two innings of the opener for the Expos to save the victory for reliever Howie Reed, 1-1, who pitched only one inning.

In the second game, the Expos traded off three double plays to help Renko gain his first victory in three decisions.

The Pirates ended Chicago's 11-game winning streak with two home runs by Manny Sanguillen and combined three-hit pitching by Luke Walker, Bruce Dal Canton and Dave Giusti.

Canton rescued Walker from a fifth inning jam, then left the game with a pulled muscle and Giusti finished up.

Cleo Boyer unloaded a two-run homer in the ninth, giving the Braves their victory over St. Louis. Mike Torrez had been riding a 3-1 lead produced by Richie Allen's fifth homer of the year for the Cards before Boyer struck.

Hank Aaron tagged his seventh of the season for the Braves in the first inning against the Cards.

Dave Marshall, an ex-Giant, exploded a first inning grand slam homer and gave the Mets enough of a cushion to beat the Giants.

Marshall's shot keyed a five-run May first end Gary Gentry-west eight innings to earn his second victory of the year. He gave up six hits including the 462nd home run of Willie Mays' career.

Larry Blair's two-out homer in the ninth tied the game and then a pinch homer by Rick Joseph leading off the 18th gave Philadelphia its sixth straight victory and beat the Dodgers.

AL East Cleans Western Clocks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The American League's Eastern Division teams rose up and smote the West Tuesday, winning all six inter-divisional games scheduled.

Cleveland Indians started it with a 3-1 triumph over Minnesota Twins in the only day game. At night, Detroit Tigers took an 8-6 victory over Kansas City Royals, Baltimore Orioles were 4-2 winners over Chicago White Sox, Washington Senators beat Milwaukee Brewers 9-6, New York Yankees won 7-5 over California Angels and Boston Red Sox edged Oakland Athletics 2-1.

With the six victories Tuesday the Eastern Division took an 18-4 edge over Western opponents this season.

Tony Horton, who said "I was just looking for the first ball that looked good to me," slammed a two-run ninth-inning double and gave the Indians their victory over the Twins.

The slugging first baseman got his chance when after one out, Twins third baseman Harmon Killebrew dropped a foul pop hit by Ted Uhlaender. Uhlaender then slapped a single to centre. One out later Vada Pinson singled, setting up Horton's game-winner.

Al Kaline's first homer of the season keyed a four-run third inning in the Tigers' rally triumph, pinning the Royals with their sixth straight defeat.

Detroit pitcher Joe Niekro, 3-0, lost his shutout on homers by Kansas City's Lou Piniella and Paul Schaal in the sixth inning.

Boog Powell knocked in all four runs in the Orioles victory. Powell, who belted White Sox pitchers for eight homers and a .429 batting average last year, quickly got started this season, slamming a three-run homer in the opening inning and adding a run-scoring single in the fifth.

Co-holder of last year's Cy Young Award, Mike Cuellar, benefited from Powell's belting, gaining his third victory while scattering eight hits, including a homer by the Sox' Bill Melton.

Frank Howard, Ed Stroud and Aurelio Rodriguez poled home runs in the Senators long-ball battle with the Brewers. Ted Savage and Danny Walton connected for Milwaukee. It was Walton's seventh of the season, best in the league.

Fritz Peterson bounced in three runs with a single and his first major league homer and Ron Woods added a two-run shot for the Yanks over the Angels.

Peterson, 2-2, was sailing along on a four-hitter and was one out of achieving New York's first complete pitching performance of the season when Ken McMullen socked a two-run homer. With two men on base, Steve Hamilton relieved the left-hander. Another run scored before the victory was secured.

Tony Conigliaro and Mike Andrews rapped solo homers to back the pitching of left-hander Bill Lee in Boston's narrow triumph.

Lee had a one-hitter through seven innings before he ran into trouble and needed relief help.

The A's Frank Fernandez slugged after two outs and singles by Bob Pena and Bert Campaneris made it 2-1 before Ray Jarvis came out of the bullpen to put out the fire.

Province Urged to Control Health Education

TORONTO (CP) — Educational programs in the field of health in Ontario should be under the jurisdiction of provincial education authorities, not the professions, the legislature was told Tuesday.

Also, the report of the committee on the healing arts said, regulatory agencies no longer should have the responsibility for the education of future practitioners. Decisions on curriculum and standards should be made by the educational institutions.

The quantity and quality of education now being provided for most groups of health workers is adequate, the report said. Some groups are being over educated. There is a tendency for professions and occupations to lengthen their educational programs and to increase entrance requirements, it said.

Entrance requirements and curriculum should be realistic and relate to the role the practitioners will play in the health system, the committee added. A continuing review of these standards should be made.

The committee said the department of health must ensure that manpower needs for health personnel are met. Establishment of a co-ordinating committee of the cabinet on education of health personnel, to consider the needs of all agencies, was recommended.

The report added:

The committee believes it useful that as many of the health disciplines as appropriate be educated together in the emerging university health science centres."

There was a need for measures to ensure the continuing competence of health practitioners. Particularly in the senior health services, practitioners should be required to provide periodically, perhaps every five years, evidence to the appropriate licensing body that they have maintained their competence in the area in which they normally practise.

Incentives Needed for Family Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — Incentives must be developed to make the practice of family medicine more attractive, says the committee on the healing arts.

Reporting to the Ontario legislature the results of a four-year study of all aspects of health care in the province, the committee noted that there is a decline in the numbers of doctors entering general practice. It recommended:

1. Adoption of educational programs to make personal or family practice a specialist category with appropriate recognition.

2. Alteration of the existing fee structure to provide financial inducements to prospective GPs.

3. "Hospital association be made available to all GPs.

4. Development of new forms of practice such as groups and community centres.

The Ontario government should take the initiative in negotiating higher fees for doctors as family medicine would be "more remunerative and attractive than it is now," the report said.

Under the 1969 Ontario Medical Association fee schedule, general consultations cost $5.50 to $15 while consultations with specialists in internal medicine and neurology cost $8 to $25.

The report added:

"Finally, the committee recommends that the development of a higher grade medical worker such as a nurse with post-graduate training to assist the general or family physician in many of the routine tasks would be desirable."

In a minority report, Committee Chairman Ian Dowie disagreed with some of the recommendations, especially that on specialty status in the field of family medicine.

While this might make general practice more attractive to the medical student it would not solve the problems of the GP already engaged at the non-specialist level. He added:

"On the contrary, they (the recommendations) may well speed the flight of such practitioners into specialties, if they cause them to feel that the establishment of specialist status recognizes two levels of medicine in family practice—a recognition emphasized by the fee-schedule and hospital-privilege provisions of the recommendations."

The committee also recommended development of another medical school in the province —there now are five—to ensure an adequate number of physicians.

Present requirements of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario for entry to the practice of medicine, and present practices of the college, were in no way "discriminatory on the basis of race, religion or sex," but procedures used at times presented unnecessary difficulties. One requirement is that all applicants, despite their qualifications, must write Medical Council of Canada examinations.

The committee recommended that these examinations be abolished for graduates of approved schools who are qualified by law to practise in their own jurisdictions and whose medical education is considered equivalent to Ontario standards. Such examinations were not necessary, "for the foreign, well-trained, practising, physician when other effective measures exist."

York County Will Seek Tax Relief

NEWMARKET, Ont. (CP) — York County council, apparently angered by a soaring residential tax rate and a greatly reduced industrial tax assessment, voted unanimously Tuesday night to send a delegation to Queen's Park to seek immediate relief.

Leaders from municipalities within the county sharply criticized the department of municipal affairs regarding the tax burden which has shifted heavily to residential and farm properties from industry.

Close Watch Urged on Church of Scientology

TORONTO (CP) — There is not sufficient evidence of harm being done to the health of Ontario residents by the Church of Scientology, but its activities should be kept under close and continuing review, the committee on the healing arts said Tuesday.

The committee, in a report winding up a study on health that began in 1968, reserved its most scathing criticisms for Scientologists who, it said, were "not only unco-operative but hostile and libellous attacks on members of the committee."

The Scientologists declined to give information on grounds that they are a religious institution but "the committee did find adequate evidence to indicate the church is directly involved in healing processes."

The centre of the church in Ontario is a Toronto downtown house where lectures and Sunday services are held. The committee learned that charges of $650 are made for a course of training through levels that run from zero to four, when the member becomes a "clear" or a person in "an advanced state of spiritual awareness."

Leaders of the group had to be subpoenaed when they refused to attend committee hearings willingly on grounds that it was a "witch hunt."

The committee "views with skepticism" the claim that Scientology is a religion, the report said. Such claims conceal "more than they reveal concerning the real, nature and beliefs of the organization."

Despite its denials, the committee found "the Church of Scientology does in fact attempt to engage in healing and makes explicit claims to heal."

However, "there was a point beyond which we would not go in restricting the rights of mentally-competent individuals to seek treatment from health practitioners of their own choice, unless we found evidence that the practice might be harmful."

Although the committee could not recommend that Scientology be banned in Ontario, "we believe the Church of Scientology should not be excluded from the prescriptions of the practice of medicine under the Medical Act on the grounds of being a religion. . . ."

Death Said Due to Neglect or Faulty Equipment

HAMILTON (CP) — The Jan. 5 death of Evelyn McAleney, 54, Hamilton mother of six, in Chedoke General Hospital was caused by "neglect, faulty equipment, or both," a coroner's jury found Tuesday.

Mrs. McAleney died of a massive embolism—an air bubble in her blood stream—the jury was told.

She entered the hospital Jan. 5 and was undergoing intravenous insertion of a drug, solucortef, before being x-rayed for gallstones. X-ray technician Sheryl Wickers said she was using an air pump, at the direction of Dr. P. H. Pak, the radiologist, to speed the flow of the drug.

While Dr. Pak was out of the room, she said, Mrs. McAleney said "Oh, I can feel that running through me," and collapsed. Attempts were made to revive her, including external heart massage.

An autopsy report revealed that the woman suffered eight broken ribs, a ruptured liver and torn spleen as a result of the massage.

Coroner Dr. Harold Bulford criticized Dr. Pak for using the "outdated" air pump technique and complained that his investigation was hampered by the disappearance of the needle and the bottle used in the incident.

The jury recommended that use of the air pump be discontinued and that in similar cases in future, the equipment that was used be kept for inspection.

Miss Wickers said the needle used was thrown out, as usual, after use. The disappearance of the bottle was not explained.

Report Says Increase in Hospital Spending Can Be Checked

TORONTO (CP) — An "alarming" increase in spending on public hospitals can be restrained without sacrificing the steadily-improving quality of hospital care, the Ontario committee on the healing arts said Tuesday.

It said this can be done by controlling "unwarranted utilization" of hospital services and the per diem cost of hospital services.

More persons are entering hospital and staying longer once they get there, the committee found.

Those who can do something about it are the hospital administrators representing a local population; the Ontario Hospital Services Commission which finances hospitals; physicians, who "control the utilization of hospital services by the population"; and the consumer, a "relatively passive figure" subject to the actions of the others.

"The very availability of a hospital bed appears to ensure that it will be utilized," the committee said in its report.

There are reasons to believe that this is a case in which supply creates its own demand."

The physician has the greatest control over use since he "authorizes admissions, determines length of stay and authorizes discharge." The dilemma of the physician can be partly overcome if society provides insured care in more chronic-care hospitals, the report said.

In an obvious reference to chronic hospitals and nursing homes, the report said: "If we are slow to provide such facilities the utilization of our short-term general hospitals will continue to grow simply because they are the available alternative."

The committee recommended three steps to help cut down on the over-use of hospitals:

Reconsideration by doctors of a tendency to conserve their own time and resources by concentrating their activities in the hospital; consideration of incentives to reward doctors who effect lower per diem rates by efficient utilization of hospital beds and intensified efforts to provide convalescent and chronic-care beds, improved home care, more nursing homes, expansion of outpatient and home-care facilities (possibly on a prepaid insurance basis) and group practice by doctors.

Public Control of Health Professions Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario committee on the healing arts Tuesday recommended that public controls be imposed on the self-regulatory authority of senior health professions and that a new disciplinary board be formed for other groups.

Almost all professions and occupations now in the health field have self-regulatory powers bestowed by the province on the colleges or boards which direct each profession.

The colleges and boards operate under provincial legislation but are relatively independent of the department of health and some of them make regulations controlling conditions of entry into practice, discipline and education. There is little if any review by provincial authorities, a point which caught the attention of the McRuer royal commission on civil rights two years ago.

The healing arts committee said it would not be practicable to remove self-governing privileges from senior professions, such as physicians and dentists, although its members held reservations about them.

It recommended that lay members be appointed by the government to the governing bodies of all colleges and boards "in sufficient numbers . . . to ensure effective rather than nominal representation of the public."

Existing regulatory bodies "in some cases may be unable . . . to discern objectively their responsibility to protect the public interest and may have a tendency to see the public interest in terms of the interests of their constituents."

Professions and occupations, other than long-established senior ones, should be regulated by a new health disciplines regulations board, the committee said.

Nurse-midwives and Other Nursing Specialists Said Needed

TORONTO (CP) — Nurse-midwives, psychiatric nurses and other nursing specialists should be developed in Ontario, the Ontario committee on the healing arts said in a report released Tuesday in the legislature.

The committee recommended graduate and post-graduate courses for nurses to become specialists. Any professional group recognizing such specialists should also consider the problem of nurses practising for many years in a specialty without official recognition.

The Ontario department of education could consider the development of a pilot project for a two-year program in psychiatric nursing similar to those offered in Alberta and England, it said.

Student nurses should be able to specialize in psychiatry while undergraduates and nurses trained outside Ontario in psychiatry should be registered in Ontario and given the same status and pay as registered nurses.

Nursing midwives would work in a hospital under the direction of physicians, as well as giving mothers pre- and post-natal care.

The committee recommended legislation to set up collective bargaining for nurses, either through a union of their choice or through the Registered Nurses' Association of Ontario if they wished.

Such legislation should provide for safeguards to maintain essential services and the machinery for compulsory arbitration of disputes, it said.

A study done for the committee by Prof. V. V. Murray of York University's sociology department, pointed out the wide diversity in working conditions from one hospital to another.

Despite a "traditional reluctance among nurses to form unions, 1967 saw a burgeoning of bargaining activity in the province, he said.

"As collective bargaining becomes established on a province-wide basis and one key employer organization negotiates for the great majority of nurses . . . uniformity of conditions will appear," he predicted.

The committee recommended that salaries and working conditions be improved to attract more students into schools of nursing.

Ontario is still heavily reliant on registered nurses coming from outside the province, the committee said. With a growing number of patients in chronic, rehabilitative and convalescent homes, the department of health should set up training courses for these fields, meanwhile it should try to bring qualified nurses not in practice back to work. The department should consider salary differentials, attract part-time nurses and encourage nurses to take holidays in off-season.

Put Drugs On OHSIP Proposal

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario government should immediately review its policy of excluding drugs from the health costs paid by Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan, a major health committee said in its report Tuesday.

The study is needed to make sure that when patients pay for drugs out of their own pockets there is not "a resulting distortion in the provision of health care," said the report of the Ontario committee on the healing arts.

The report also recommended a second faculty of pharmacy be set up at an Ontario university. The only one now is at the University of Toronto.

The committee said all pharmacists in the province periodically should be required to obtain a certificate of competence from a faculty of pharmacy. It suggested similar evaluation for doctors and dentists.

It recommended repeal of the Pharmacy Act to terminate the control of the Ontario College of Pharmacy over education, leaving it responsible for licensing and discipline of the profession.

It suggested a pilot course at a college of applied arts and technology to set up a training course for pharmacy assistants.

Dental Mark-ups Opposed

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario committee on the healing arts has recommended that it be mandatory for dentists to give each patient an itemized bill for his professional fees and charges for dental appliances.

Any mark-up on dental appliances should be based upon professional conduct by the Royal College of Dental Surgeons of Ontario, says the report tabled Tuesday in the legislature.

The committee did not recommend that dental fees be included among benefits paid by the Ontario Health Services Insurance Plan, although it recommended authorities study the inclusion of drugs and pharmacy services.

The committee asked Prof. R. E. House of the economics department of York University to study the field. He found that in Canada, Ontario is an enviable position in the number of dentists—to population—only British Columbia has a lower ratio. Internationally, compared to the United States, Sweden and Germany, Ontario has few dicare.

Prof. House said a shortage of dentists could be lurking in the future.

Group Practice Advocated

TORONTO (CP) — Group practice of medicine should be encouraged as one means of improving working conditions of doctors and helping alleviate the shortage of general practitioners, says the committee on the healing arts.

In its report to the Ontario legislature Tuesday, the committee said 55 per cent of Canada's physicians in 1967 were solo practitioners, 14 per cent were in two-man partnerships and 31 per cent were in some form of combined or group practice.

Group practice is more widespread in the western provinces than in other parts of Canada, the report said, but in Ontario it "appears to be gaining a significant degree of acceptance."

The committee defined group practice generally as a formal association of three or more physicians providing services in more than one field, with income pooled and re-distributed according to a pre-arranged plan.

A Clean Story

In this day and age of so many thousands of 'brands' there are some which enjoy the greatest popularity of them all.

For good reason.

They haven't been among the most advertised and we think it's time we unfold the facts. Facts about our own brands. Some of the real benefits of shopping at Dominion.

Why Dominion Brands?

There's only one reason: to give you more choice, plus outstanding quality at a better price than what you pay for other brands. No point going into all the many reasons to explain how come we can sell top quality Dominion products for less.

Except to say because we buy such fantastic quantities we can make a mutually beneficial arrangement with leading manufacturers. It keeps their plants working to capacity. Gives us superb products. Saves you money.

Wherever we can, we give you Dominion products, providing our exceptionally high standards of quality can be met at a lower price to you than national brands.

What About Quality?

We just don't bring out a brand helter-skelter you know. We go at it with extraordinarily high "specs" (product specifications), independent lab-testing. The works! When we're satisfied we can give you the quality you're accustomed to and price the product below national brands – it's in! For us. For you!

No! Lower priced company brands that drag in quality aren't our bag. No way!

Domino Liquid Detergent

Here's the best example of quality, performance and value you can find. A capful or so of this no-phosphate pleasantly-scented product will wash your family's dishes, with power left over for the pots and pans. Who makes it?

Why, just the world's biggest company in the soap and detergent field. That's who. And don't let the low price fool you. The shoppers who buy 1½ million Domino bottles each year know the Liquid Detergent score. There are four sizes of "Domino" savings, too! 12-oz. – 24-oz. – 32-oz. and 64-oz. Try the 32-oz. size this week, at a lower-than-usual price of only 49 cents!

Domino Bleach

Believe it! Our bleach is an unqualified equal to the best bleach on the market. No phosphates in here either! And the savings on 'Domino' are beautiful. Compare the price on the shelf. Everything you need to know about our bleach and its many uses is on the label. Just do this for us: take a bottle home. Follow directions. Then smile. You've discovered another shopping bonus. Domino Bleach, at a price you can't afford to ignore. Especially, at this week's extra-special price of 49 cents for the big 128-oz. container!

Value it up – this week at Dominion ... doing the right thing in the right way!

Values effective until closing Saturday May 2nd 1970

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto stock market was down moderately in light, mid-morning trading today.

On index, industrials were down .31 to 168.38, golds .10 to 145.06, base metals .08 to 122.69 and western oils .37 to 147.76.

Western oils were at a low for 1970.

Volume by 11 a.m. was 632,000 shares compared with 576,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Losers outnumbered gains 109 to 39 with 208 issues unchanged.

The market has been on a severe decline for four consecutive trading sessions.

Analysts attribute the downward trend to disappointing first-quarter corporate earnings reports and investors' cautious mood trading at the eroded level.

Volcan Containers, which said first-quarter net earnings were 22 cents a share compared with 17 cents in the corresponding period of last year was unchanged at 7%.

Denison Mines was up ¼ to 23¾. Premier John Roberts told the Ontario legislature Monday he would consider a suggestion that a Crown corporation be established to purchase 25 per cent of the company's stock.

The New York stock market plunged 10.82 points on the Dow-Jones industrial index to a six-year low of 724.35.

That was the lowest level for the Dow Jones since the assassination of President Kennedy on Nov. 22, 1963.

On index Tuesday at Toronto, industrials were down 2.39 to 167.81, base metals 1.17 to 122.77 and western oils 4.62 to 148.37. Golds advanced .30 to 145.95.

Industrials, base metals and western oils were at lows for 1970.

Analysts say the extremely weak market is caused by unfavorable first-quarter earning reports and concern over inflation, along with pessimism about the lengthy period of market decline.

Volume was 2,686,000 shares, compared with 1,911,000 Monday.

Losses outnumbered gains 401 to 126 with 248 issues unchanged.

Denison was down ¾ to 23¾. Premier John Roberts told the Ontario legislature Monday he would consider a suggestion that a Crown corporation be established to purchase 25 per cent of the company's stock.

Company officials have said that the mine, which is Canada's largest uranium producer, might be forced to close if a buyer is not found for the shares.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

"I'm kicked for an early coronary attack," said a 38-year-old delicatessen owner. "It's in my blood. My father died of a coronary when he was only 45. This past year I lost a 42 - year - old brother with a heart attack. "What's the sense of my taking especially good care of myself? I like to eat. I like to smoke. Why shouldn't I enjoy myself? You can't run away from a bad heredity."

I agreed with him that heredity is important. However, I also said that fatalism was a sure way to surrender without a fight. In many cases, a poor hereditary history is a warning for survival. "Forewarned is forearmed" is an old proverb but true nonetheless.

I convinced him to cut out his habit of smoking three packs of cigarettes a day. He lost over 40 pounds to come down to a normal weight. In doing so he had cut down on his fat intake and had lowered his high cholesterol to normal levels.

He took more frequent vacations. He relaxed on week-ends. Instead of playing 27 holes of golf on a Sunday, he settled for 18 leisurely holes (nine in the morning, nine in the afternoon). His daily exercise consisted of a brisk mile walk to the office.

He learned how to take an afternoon nap every day. This way of life became a habitual pattern. Except for having given up smoking, he said he did not feel as if he had been unduly restricted in his daily activities.

Yearly checkups showed that his blood pressure was normal; so was his cholesterol, blood sugar, uric acid and other blood tests.

Recently, this man "ticketed for an early coronary attack" celebrated his 60th birthday. If there's a moral, it is this: Don't be fatalistic; don't surrender to a poor family history. Use it, instead, as a welcome warning against danger. You'll live longer than you think.

For Mr. U.: Of course I agree that moderate exercise is not only harmless, but probably good for you. What I continue to warn against is overexertion, and exercise engaged in by those who are not physically fit to withstand excessive strain.

I go along with a recent statement by the American Heart Association: It should be remembered that unusual, strenuous physical exertion may precipitate a heart attack and should be avoided. Exertion that induces pain or dyspnea (shortness of breath) should be avoided. In general, unusual exercise shortly after a large meal, when experiencing emotional stress, or in extremely cold or extremely hot weather should be discouraged."

* * *

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have suffered through many tragedies. For example, a gall bladder operation, an appendectomy as a child, a horrible auto accident, an operation for ruptured disc in my spine.

Yet, I hardly recall any of these painful experiences. Shouldn't I have an unpleasant reaction such as anxiety or extreme nervousness? Is all this working in my unconscious? Will it suddenly erupt and cause a breakdown in the future? — Mrs. G.

Comment: Don't borrow trouble for the future. We have all we can do to take care of our conscious. Let your unconscious take care of itself. Just be grateful that you feel all right.

Coronary Attack Delayed 18 Years

I know many readers who will say... "A few operations and an accident? What's she bragging about? She hasn't seen anything compared to what I've gone through in my life."

Two Tugs Seized By Ohio

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The Free Press says two Port Stanley fishing tugs carrying eight men were seized by Ohio Wildlife officials on charges of fishing illegally in the Ohio waters of Lake Erie.

Fish catches, fishing nets and other equipment were seized.

The vessels, the B-and K and the Donna Gay II from Port Stanley, a town eight miles south of St. Thomas, were boarded about 10 a.m. by officers of the U.S. Coast Guard and Ohio State Wildlife Division officers.

Jailed were David Ryerse and James Greenslade, both of Port Dover and respective captains of the B and K and Donna Gay II.

Two crewmen on Capt. Ryerse's vessel, Jack Macdonald, of London, and Henri J. Roperch, of West Lorne were also jailed at the Lake County Jail in Painesville, Ohio along with the second tug's crew: John R. MacLeod, Tom Haigh and Gordon Cook, all of Port Stanley and Leonard Fields, of Port Dover.

A spokesman at the Lake County sheriff's office in Painesville said he was "under orders" to give no information about the seizure.

Sydney J. Harris Says

Politics Uses Old Tags

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Almost every subject except politics changes its vocabulary with the times. In the field of medicine, for instance, physicians no longer speak about "the four humors" but about the processes that make the physiological types were once thought to be divided.

But we still retain the same tired and outworn vocabulary of politics, even though most of the key words have lost or changed their original meaning. We still speak unthinkingly of "conservatives" and "liberals" and "radicals" as if these were devices for labeling people or policies than as tools for examining and describing reality.

Political science and the social arrangements of our time have so changed in the 20th Century that most of the old terms are nearly meaningless. Economists of both the left and right now both generally agree that the poor should be given some kind of "guaranteed income"; is this a liberal, radical or conservative measure?

What we call "capitalism" in the Western countries no more resembles the idea of its founder, Adam Smith, than what we call "socialism" in other countries resembles the idea of Karl Marx. There is no pure capitalism in the world, because it doesn't work well, and there is no pure socialism, because it doesn't work well.

Everything is a mix — and the particular mix depends upon the stage, the development, the needs, the resources, and the goals of the particular economy and the particular country. Ideology may serve as an excuse for certain actions or practices; it is rarely the cause.

We desperately need an entirely new, and realistic, vocabulary of political and economic science — one which reflects all the new things we have learned, and dispenses with "the four humors" and all their associated correlatives.

As an individual, for example, I consider myself a "radical" in my approach to some socio-economic problems: a "liberal" in my approach to some others; and a conservative" in my approach to still others. To be doctrinaire, and to have one monolithic attitude toward all our diverse problems, is what turns conservatives into stupid reactionaries, radicals into blind fanatics, and liberals into frustrated sensitivists.

To sustain the medical analogy, modern therapy knows that some cases call for radical surgery, some for a conservative regimen, and others for a delicate equilibrium. But in treating the body politic, we persist not only in retaining the old words, but also in applying them rigorously to conditions their founders never dreamed of.

Jeane Dixon's Horoscope

For April 30

Your birthday today: In a year of normal progress, direct your life in the most practical, able manner within your own set of people and its resources. From large families in thrifty communities individuals have a great range of opportunity. Others have to create their own advantages as they go.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): Wind up your month-end business details with little fuss and flutter. Patience will bring you a chance to improve finances and money matters in general. Hoping for results is needed more than ever.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Diplomacy with both friends and career contacts is needed more than ever.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Much help and advice is all around you. Be discreet and very selective in what you accept of it.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Apply for position, improvements, better situations at home and at work. Settle any differences with relatives, friends, neighbors.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 22): Aggressive acquisitions are striving to rush you into unwise expenses.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Patience and tact are as important as your steady drive today.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 22): Find some way to get other people together for important cooperative or group efforts.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 22): Instead of squabbling, simply attend your health care; supply saving, investment, shopping and other routines.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 22): Take a middle course today, neither overbuying nor speculating.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Travel requires continued caution. But old and other factors seem to be looking up.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 19): Your mood is more toward extravagance, a test of your limitations. Accept matters as they are: you will last longer and feel more satisfied.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): If you will only refrain from impatience with things and people, benefit you and those you care about. Put in a good word for them.

Federalist Liberals Win 71 Quebec Seats

Separatist Vote Second Largest

MONTREAL (CP) — "It's only a beginning — continue the struggle."

This student activist slogan resounded through the east-end Paul Sauve arena Wednesday night as about 1,000 supporters of the separatist Parti Quebecois cheered the seven members the party elected in the Quebec general election.

It arose from the apparently optimistic mood of the party's young supporters regarding the future of the Parti Quebecois and the cause of Quebec's political independence.

It also may have quieted party officials' private fears that disappointing results in the election would cause the young to resort to more radical action in support of their ideals.

In speeches to the crowd, most of whom appeared to be students or young workers, vanquished party leader Rene Levesque and the elected candidates said the Parti Quebecois had done well in its first election and would continue its work.

Mr. Levesque said the party has made "a first spectacular break-through in the national assembly."

For Other Stories On Quebec election, see Pages 32 and 33

He said the party had fought "the power of money and the power of the status quo" and had succeeded in drawing wide support.

He noted that the party received the second-largest share of total votes and referred to the Parti Quebecois as "the official Opposition party in the eyes of public opinion."

Creditistes Got Rural Backing

QUEBEC (CP) — The Creditistes slapped together a provincial political party in January, elected a leader in March and won 13 legislature seats in April.

But they don't exactly pop up from nowhere.

Their performance in Wednesday's Quebec general election was in effect a rerun of the Creditiste success story in federal politics.

Their entry into provincial politics cost Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's Union Nationale party 12 seats directly and several more indirectly.

PM Says Quebecers For Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau said today the Quebec election results were without doubt that Quebecers are overwhelmingly in favor of federalism.

This was shown not only in the "huge landslide" for the Liberals, he told reporters, but also in the vote for the Creditistes.

Mr. Trudeau, on his way to a cabinet meeting, said a lot of people who voted for the separatist Parti Quebecois were not voting for separatism but for a change from the old party.

The essence of the election was a united Canada and a strong mandate to one party which believed in federalism.

UN Swept From Office

QUEBEC (CP) — Quebec voters overwhelmingly swept the pro-federalist Liberal party into office Wednesday in one of the province's most crucial elections since Confederation.

Robert Bourassa, leading the Liberal party in his first campaign, defeated the Union Nationale government of Premier Jean - Jacques Bertrand which had governed the province since 1966.

After a campaign in which Quebec independence was a major issue, Rene Levesque saw his separatist Parti Quebecois gather about 24 per cent of the popular vote, although he suffered personal defeat.

Final standing when counting ended for the night, compared with the results of the June 5, 1966, general election:

	1970	1966
Liberal	71	50
Union Nationale	16	56
Creditiste	13	—
Parti Quebecois	7	—
Independent	1	2
Doubtful	1	—
Total	108	108

The election of a strong majority government at a time when Quebec is in the midst of economic uncertainty brought jubilation to the business and financial community.

Growing separatist strength in recent years was blamed by business leaders for a slowdown in the economy of the province, currently plagued with a level of unemployment only surpassed in the Atlantic provinces.

Leading business executives said the result will set an improved climate which they hope

Kennedy Said Negligent

BOSTON (CP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy's claim that a wrong turn led to his plunge from a narrow bridge on Chappaquiddick Island has been disputed by an inquest judge who said the senator was negligent in the accident that killed Mary Jo Kopechne.

Kennedy said he rejected as unjustified the inference and the finding of Judge James A. Boyle, whose inquest report raised new questions about the accident that altered U.S. politics.

And with his statement, the last of the Kennedy brothers said Wednesday he would speak

Nixon Woos Public in Cambodian Crisis

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon will go on television tonight to explain the deepening U.S. involvement in Cambodia and to seek public support for a policy that has put American forces on a new Southeast Asian battlefield.

Alarmed congressmen reacted angrily Wednesday to disclosure by the Pentagon that U.S. military advisers were in Cambodia helping South Vietnamese forces destroy Communist border bases.

In a test of congressional reaction, the House of Representatives scheduled a vote today on an amendment by Representative Ogden Reid (Rep., N.Y.) prohibiting the United States from sending ground troops into Cambodia.

Although the defence department said the U.S. tactical air and ground support was to help South Vietnamese forces and not Cambodian government troops, congressmen from both parties fear that only a little push will turn Cambodia into another full-scale war front.

A White House spokesman said Nixon's address at 9 p.m. EST would deal with the entire situation, as it relates both to Cambodia and U.S. forces in Vietnam.

Nixon was expected to emphasize the U.S. view that about 40,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong personnel in Cambodia constitute a foreign invasion.

U.S. military advisers have told the president that the current Communist drive against the new government in Phnom Penh threatens the safety of U.S. forces in Vietnam.

New Battlefront

Generals Have Long Been Tempted

SAIGON (AP) — The bland, unscarred landscape of Cambodia that stretches westwards beyond the cratered rice fields and blackened jungles of Vietnam long has tempted U.S. military commanders.

Many an American general has shaken his fist in frustration, cursing Viet Cong and North Vietnamese sanctuaries across the border that fed men and supplies into South Vietnam.

"If only we could go in," we could cut their jugular vein," said one general hovering over War Zone C in his helicopter earlier this year.

"Just look at those hills," said another in the central highlands. "Perfect for our fire-bases, if only we got the word to go."

This week Washington gave the word.

South Vietnamese Take Towns

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese armored force supported by American planes and artillery pushed 24 miles into Cambodia today and occupied towns from which the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese drove the Cambodian army earlier this month.

With U.S. advisers accompanying them, more than 15,000 South Vietnamese troops were pushing across a section of eastern Cambodia in a pincer operation to smash North Vietnamese base camps.

South Vietnamese spokesmen reported 435 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed, many of them by American planes.

Field reports said South Vietnamese casualties so far were 32 killed and 188 wounded. Fifty-five of the wounded, their commander said, were victims of U.S. helicopter gunships which fired by mistake on a battalion of government troops.

A Cambodian government spokesman in Phnom Penh said the Americans and the South Vietnamese had not informed his government of the invasion, and Cambodian forces were taking no part in the operation.

"He told a questioner that since "Cambodia is a neutral country," the Phnom Penh government "does not approve this type of intervention by foreign forces."

The Rush Is Over

The rush of flood waters is nearly over for another year in Quinte — as this scene on the Salmon River shows. Waterways are growing calmer as dry weather continues, with streams and creeks receding from flood-marks set only weeks ago with the end of winter.

In-Home Teaching Separate School Issue

A request to the Hastings Public School Board to provide school board for home teaching of a handicapped child generated debate on home teaching at the board meeting last night.

Superintendent T. R. Aikens told the board five or six people have contacted the secretary of a teacher for the deaf in Toronto for home instruction for their children. But the board has no formal home teaching program.

In some cases, the classroom teacher goes to the home for the pupil to work on music or other activities, with the teacher making weekly calls, where possible, to give home supervision. This is done on a voluntary basis by the teacher.

"Experts on home care say a minimum of 120 minutes a week of formal teaching on a daily basis is required to keep a home - bound child up to the academic level of his class," said Mr. Aikens said. "From the new methods and programs of study, personal contact is of much help and the child soon loses interest."

Because of the size of the county, trustees decided an itinerant home care teacher would be impractical.

"She would be on the road most of the time, travelling from one home to the other," commented a trustee.

Ben Krouse suggested the one-teaching principals should take over the classroom for an hour a day to free a handicapped child's teacher to go to his home for lessons.

"This (taking a special home teacher) is ridiculous," he said. "Teachers have it too busy."

Two trustees, R. J. Lucy and James Lesage suggested that the separate school board buy the services of a home instruction teacher from the Hastings county board in some districts.

But Mr. Krouse objected on the ground that the separate school board is trying to provide Catholic education and it should provide the necessary care within its system.

"Leave religion out of it and keep the child up academically," retorted Mr. Lucy.

Mr. Lesage added that the public board might at some time in the future buy home instruction from the separate school board.

"This would be a good exercise in virtue for teachers to take an interest in the child and do something for him on his own time," said Rev. William Hamilton. He remarked that the board should not have to pay extra to the classroom teacher for going into homes.

The board decided to ask the superintendent to discuss the matter with the principals and arrange a system of providing home teaching for the children in their school districts.

The Hastings county board has one full time secondary school classroom unit in Belleville and uses supply teachers to give home instruction in the home and hospital.

Under provincial legislation, the board may authorize home instruction for students at the rate of a minimum of 120 minutes a week given in three periods.

In the case of pupils in hospital in other communities, as Kingston and Toronto, the Hastings board buys home instruction from the county board in those centres. It is now buying instruction from the Frontenac county board for a student in a Kingston hospital.

Fireworks Bylaw Means Business

The approach of the Victoria Day holiday has once more sparked concern by the Belleville Fire Department that concern due to firecrackers and the danger they represent.

Belleville Fire Inspector Paul Stephenson, told The Intelligencer yesterday that already the fire department has reported firecrackers had been the cause of a couple of grass fires.

Insp. Stephenson also mentioned reports that young people were throwing firecrackers at people from cars and that firecrackers were being thrown to young people under 16 years of age.

The fire department has reminded Belleville firms and citizens of the ban and of charge of fireworks bylaw in Belleville.

As far as supply is concerned, the bylaw states: "No person, firm or corporation within the City of Belleville shall give or furnish or supply to a minor any fireworks or materials intended to be used for the works whether for his own use or not on any day or days during the year."

The foregoing does not apply to persons supplying fireworks to their own children for use under their own supervision."

In a nutshell, stores may not sell fireworks to someone under 16 years of age, or if they have a note from their parents. The only way a minor can get fireworks to be supplied by his parents.

To hold a fireworks display, an individual has several rules to observe to remain within the boundaries of safety and the bylaw.

Groups or persons must obtain a permit, not only after the site of the display has been inspected and approved by the fire chief.

Five displays also require at least two operators on duty at all times and the audience must be kept at least 150 feet from the point of fireworks discharge.

Any wind at the time of the display exceeds 30 miles per hour, the display cannot be held.

All fireworks that fire a projectile have to be set up as vertical as possible and a hose a body of water they should be available as to aid how the residue to fall into the water.

At least two fire extinguishers of at least two and a half gallon capacity are also required at the scene of the display.

It is also illegal to throw lighted fireworks from moving cars or to throw them on any public thoroughfare or high fire risk area.

A breach of the bylaw could result in as much as $300 fine.

Record Set By Moira

Moira Secondary School went on short this week — and drew a bumper crowd.

A record 1,500 people throughout school facilities Moira held its ninth annual Display Night Tuesday.

Spectators watched classes in action, observed films and viewed a wide-range of education displays including science, technology, arts, crafts and occupations.

It was also the last public event of its kind at Moira for principal Linton Read. Mr. Read recently was appointed principal of the new Hastings County Bayside school.

Enrolment Up

Applications for prospective day students at Loyalist College have doubled from the same time last year.

More than 180 students so far have applied to register with various college courses starting next fall, Loyalist registrar William Ellis reported today.

"They've been coming in fast and now are up about double from this time last year," he said.

Technology, survey, environmental science and business administration are among classes drawing much attention from the applicants, he said.

The stepped - up pace of applications may indicate a college enrolment around 6,000 in the 1970-71 college year, Mr. Ellis estimated.

Appeal for Volunteers To Search for Boy

An appeal is made for a minimum of two hundred volunteers to assist in an organized search this Saturday, May 2, for Billie Belvers, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thos Belvers, who has been missing from his home in Marmora since October 13th. Any able, willing persons are asked to meet at Marmora Town Hall, weather permitting, at 8.00 a.m., Saturday, for instructions as to routes and procedure. A knowledge of the area is not necessary as there will be a leader in each section.

Ray Black, local outdoorsman, has agreed to help organize a systematic search party, in co - operation with the OPP, Minden, and firemen. An intensive, thorough search can be made only if there are enough men and young adult volunteers to cover the areas at twenty - yard intervals.

IN MEMORIAM

PARES — In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, Bertram Pares, who passed away April 30th, 1969.
After the winter comes the spring,
After the sorrow comes the sting,
But memories live on forever.
Sadly missed.
Flowers always received divinely
Fleuriste
Flowers by Herbert, the work of Artists
Sent and cut the seasons that come and go.
When the flowers of spring lay down to rest
Let the flowers of autumn
A special everlasting of new and dear memories
And the sweet flowers sleep in a

BRADLEY — In loving memory of a dear husband, Godfrey J., who passed away April 30, 1968.
Remembrance is a golden chain,
Time cannot break a single link,
Love keeps it bright and memory strong,
In the greatest sorrow of one's heart,
Lies the memory of a loved one
Dining,
But time heals, yours out never.
Sadly missed by wife, family, days.
When we were all together
Always remembered by wife

CARDS OF THANKS

Mr. and Mrs. Bert Morgan of Frankford wish to express their sincere appreciation to all relatives and who helped to make our 40th anniversary such a happy occasion. Special thanks for the beautiful gifts and cards received from friends and the lovely mirror from the staff of the Bell Telephone in Mrs. Roberts' office. It was and decorated a lovely cake. The prize of our many friends made it a happy day long to be remembered.

I wish to thank my relatives, neighbours and friends for their visits, cards and flowers, while I was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital. Special thanks to Dr. Ahern and Dorry and the nurses
Mrs. Elizabeth Hurst.

Clergy A Major Bar to Church Union

Clergymen pose one of the greatest problems encountered by the movement seeking a union of Anglican and United churching members of both denominations were told in Belleville last night.

Content with running their own local pastorates, clergymen are not concerned with union and don't stimulate its local among the congregations, claimed United Church theologian, Rev. Dr. R. B. Craig.

With Anglican Canon Ralph Latimer, Dr. Craig forms a two-man combination charged with promoting unity of both churches across Canada.

Both men yesterday spent the day in Belleville meeting first with local clergy at St. Thomas Hall Lester, at Eastminster United Church they debated with local commission from both churches which have been discussing union.

"Clergy are not concerned," he said. And that's the greatest difficulty," Dr. Craig said. "They don't want the apple cart moved."

Clergymen are concerned with their own pastoral charges and are not encouraging examination of church unity by the laity, he explained.

And, he warned, much of the laity is "bored stiff" with the vast majority of discussion on church unity that centres around clerical issues."

So much so that lay people could lose enthusiasm for the union issue.

A crucial part of the commissioners' role is to disseminate information on the unity issue.

In fact, groundless fears have been caused among local congregations by lack of knowledge on the issue, said Canon Latimer.

"Most of the fears and most of the concerns of the clergy and lay people alike are based on lack of information, misinformation or myth-information," he said.

"Where you can get the facts to the people a lot of their fears disappear."

Many misconceptions exist on unity which Canon Latimer called "foolish fears that have no valid basis."

One myth, said Dr. Craig, is that unity will create a "monolithic" church. But union does not mean uniformity.

"It is not a whole body of people walking in step and doing things the same way. There must be diversity," he said.

And, he emphasized, union is not an end in itself.

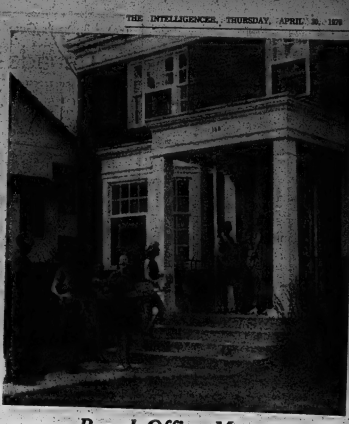
"The goal is one church renewed in Christ for mission," he said. "Unity is not a goal in itself. Church unity will not end when those two churches come together. Then, it is only beginning."

Both commissioners indicated chagrin that the Eastminster meeting was not open to the public.

"Next time we come," said Dr. Craig, "let's open it to the public. Let's open one of the halls and have a wrig-ding."

Nonetheless Canon Latimer described the discussion as "very profitable."

He appealed to the groups to become more active in discussion and criticism of unity issues. Since the movement began in the late 1920s, no information had been received from Belleville-area church groups.



"I plead with you to become involved, no matter how difficult it may be and to involve as many (other) people as you can."

Clerical Confrontation

Canon Ralph Latimer (right) and Rev. John Neal, Deseronto (left) are deep in debate over union of Anglican and United churches, after meeting at Eastminster United Church last night.

Taking stock are Rev. Dr. R. B. Craig, and Rev. Peter Tetz, St. Thomas' Anglican Church. Canon Latimer and Dr. Craig are a two-man commission appointed by both churches on the unity issue.

Board Office Moves

Today was moving day for Hastings-Prince Edward separate school board as it took over new quarters in the house it purchased at 158 George St. J. J. Pouring Concrete For Four Seasons

With the arrival of spring weather, construction of the $1½ million Four Seasons Motel and Bell training school on the city's waterfront is now well under way.

Pouring of concrete for the three-storey building plus underneath ground level parking got under way late last week and a February completion date is planned by the general contractor C. A. Johanson and Sons, Ltd., of Ottawa.

Last week a huge mobile tower crane was brought in to facilitate the pouring of concrete for the structure.

The new motel, to be used mainly by Bell Telephone as a training school, is being constructed on concrete pylons sunk deep into the subsoil.

During the winter power augers were used to sink holes for the pylons which were later filled with concrete.

First announced in June, 1969 a construction start on the motel was delayed by the need of a zoning change. This was opposed by Sam Goodwin, proprietor of the Sun Valley Motor Inn in North Belleville and an Ontario Municipal Board hearing was called.

The insertion on the zoning change was held on Nov. 11 with the OMB giving immediate approval.

Site of the new motel is on East Zwick's Island, east of the Bay Bridge Road on property formerly owned by Marsh Manufacturing.

Bell Telephone will use much of the facility for its training school which operates in Belleville for nine months of the year. The school is now conducted at Bell's Pinnacle Street building and at the Sun Valley Motor Inn.

During the summer months, with courses ended, the motel will be used strictly as a resort.

Shoplifting Seminar

Shoplifting is an ever-increasing graph on business that steadily pushes up prices to compensate for the millions stolen each year.

Advanced detection devices, the use of special mirrors, street-dressed security staff, are just some of the methods employed by firms in an attempt both to discourage and to catch the shoplifter.

Belleville's Downtown Business Association in conjunction with the Police Department will be conducting a series of seminars on shoplifting, May 11, 12 and 14 at the police gymnasium.

Besides discussing preventive measures, liability and security will form a large part of the seminars.

Indian Education

The crux of the Indian problem, if it may be so termed, is not so much economic or material but spiritual and psychological. For thousands of Canada's Indians the "problem" is that of two worlds and two cultures, being caught between them and in the process not really belonging to either.

Those who have acquired a good education, one which at least fits them for the white, materialistic world, and have adjusted to it, while not losing sight of their own culture and traditions, are fortunate. For life in the white world does offer opportunity for personal fulfillment through occupation and the economic development of skills. There is of course the problem of adapting to the white culture, as well as that of acceptance by the latter, but once these are overcome the Indian can look forward to the same prospects of personal advancement as the white.

Significant in this context is the fact that 68 Indian students from the Tyendinaga Reserve are enrolled at Mohawk secondary school, while a substantial number of Grade 7 and 8 elementary school pupils from the same Mohawk reserve attend schools here.

However, as was pointed out in a recent Intelligencer report, the people of Tyendinaga prefer to keep their pupils on the reserve for all their elementary schooling. To this end, after an addition is constructed at the Quinte Mohawk school — in two or three years' time — the youngsters in those grades will go there.

One reason for this is that teaching of the Mohawk language, with a view to increasing awareness of Indian culture, is anticipated next year. Another — and this is interesting — has to do with discipline. According to Chief Earl Hill of Tyendinaga, there is stricter discipline on reserve schools than in what he calls "the provincial schools."

This, however, could bring other problems in its train. We appreciate the desirability of young Indians being versed in their own culture and language, but must this be at the expense of providing them with opportunities for making their way in the white man's world which, like it or not, is the one that offers them the most chance. We read for example that Indian girls from Ontario, Saskatchewan and Cape Breton, training as nurses aides and secretaries in Toronto, gradually become accustomed to city life and stay there. In fact most find it difficult to return home.

This is a common phenomenon; it is not peculiar to the native population, but the contrast between life on the reserve and the big urban world is so marked that it must hit them with greater intensity. Nevertheless Indians should be afforded the same opportunities as white youngsters and there should be more contact between students of both races. As it is, it is interesting to note Moira principal Linton Read's observation that the relationship between the students at his school is excellent.

Meanwhile, the Victoria Times has commented on Indian Affairs Minister Chrétien's proposal that Indian languages and culture should be part of the curriculum of schools attended by a significant number of Indians. The newspaper suggests this is too restricted, and that the subjects should be of general interest to Canadians," meaning presumably that it should be part of the general curriculum.

In any event, let whites and Indians strive for greater understanding of each other and come to know each other better. Each has much to gain from such an understanding. What is being achieved in this regard locally is cause for satisfaction.

Russians Help Arabs

One would think that the Soviet Union would have profited enough from the American experience in the growing threat in similar involvements like the plague. But no, Russian pilots are reported to be flying operational missions for the Arabs against the Israelis.

Since the Israelis, in terms of military sophistication and staying power, are to the Middle East what the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese are to Southeast Asia, this could mean trouble for the Russians if they are said to have been killed already in Israeli bombing raids). Whether the Soviets would expand their role into something comparable with Vietnam is another matter. The fact is however, they may live to regret entering the conflict directly.

President Nixon, meanwhile, is to speak to-night on the growing threat in Cambodia. The prospect of further U.S. involvement there, on top of the Vietnamese conflict, and despite U.S. troop withdrawals, is a dismal one.

All in all, with the Soviets entering the Middle East fray and the U.S. in Vietnam, the international situation must be regarded as getting worse rather than better.

Travel Bureau's Gem

Canada—Land of Away-from-It-all, Color and Beauty

By RICHARD JACKSON

OTTAWA — To hear the lamentations in Parliament, the weeping in the provincial legislatures, the whining around municipal councils — to read of the woes and worries in the newspapers — is to hear the cries of alarm and sorrow on radio and television . . . you might think that nothing is right in Canada, that everything is going to rot and ruin, that the land is one great ugly human disaster area.

You must have seen it and heard it and read it and you'll get sick up to here of the moaning and groaning.

And then out from the federal Department of Industry Trade and Commerce Canadian Travel Bureau comes Canada's showpiece tourist and holiday brochure.

Fifty-six beautiful pages inside a striking red and white cover, lolling in text and color photographic gems just to the great and glorious and stonking by beautiful the nation city and country —really is if you only look and think about it.

You should see the photographs! Something to dazzle every eye. Some beauties you have never seen before.

And the text is kind of pride-making, too.

Sample it, and feel good.

. . . Of the whole sweep of the land: "Nowhere in all the world can one find so many places to stay . . . so many joys and pleasures . . . a vacationland for all seasons . . . every province alive with the happiness of spring festivals, summer pageants, fall fairs and winter carnivals . . . for forest and lakeland, snow spangled mountains and meadows filled with flowers . . .

Just like a choir of 100 student voices ringing out "O Canada" in Memorial Hall at Trenton under the Peace Tower make Parliament come alive.

"There! No one can accuse the government of not taking action in dealing with mercury pollution."

Moira Lake

Fertilizer Not Pollutant Says Quinte Agrologist

Editor,
The Intelligencer.

I would like to point out some inaccurate and extremely misleading statements contained in the report on the Moira Lake pollution, on April 22. Anyone who blames commercial fertiliser for phosphate pollution just does not understand anything about soil science, chemistry or modern agriculture.

When phosphorus is applied to the soil, it quickly reacts with the other soil nutrients to form insoluble compounds. When phosphorus is tied up in this way there is no way for it to move into watersheds except for any land erosion that may occur. The small amount of land erosion that does occur would contain such a small amount of phosphorus that the concentration that might develop in streams would be almost negligible.

When we realize that even if all the phosphorus that is used as fertilizer in Ontario farms did find its way to surface water the concentration of phosphorous would only be 1-10th of that needed to support algae growth, we realize how ludicrous it is to blame agriculture for any significant part of phosphate pollution.

Pollution is a serious problem in Canada. Agriculture, more than any other industry, is concerned about the correction of the pollution problem. Agriculture depends on a healthy environment. To correct the problems, it is essential that all of society knows the true facts, so that effective solutions can be obtained.

An MP's Fringe Benefits

Barry Mather, MP, in a letter to The Ottawa Journal

MPs sometimes compare their economic status to that of lawyers, doctors and dentists, people who have substantial costs.

I think this is a fair comparison, but there is one considerable difference.

Aside from my $12,500 salary and the $6,000 annual expense fund MPs also receive fringe benefits totalling, in my case, up to $30,000 a year.

Unlike doctors, lawyers or dentists, the cost of my supplied me with a rent-free office, furnished, lighted, heated and air conditioned. The taxpayers have also given me a secretary and sometimes a secretary's aide. They have provided me with free air transportation, which, in my B.C. case, can be worth up to $18,000 per annum. (I use $2,500 of it in an average year.)

I also have: free long-distance phoning, free mailing rights, free stationery, considerable Xerox printing. A share of a research service.

I have as an MP free parking at airports, an excellent mileage allowance for car use in my riding, very good meals on Parliament Hill at the commercial cost.

In addition, I have now been provided with a pension. The annual income for life after six years' service and quite reasonable contributions.

The Nature of Modern Youth

Alienated Generation in Search of Common Humanity

Hamilton Spectator

The nature of modern youth—which seems constantly to be on the dissecting table — was further analysed at a meeting of 250 women Ontario public school teachers the other day. Dr. Douglas Heath, of Haverford College in Pennsylvania, told the teachers that an increasing number of young people find they cannot make friends and are lonely even in a crowd.

Dr. Heath's views are based on U.S. experience, but there is no doubt that they have some application in Canada particularly in bigger cities. Many have become so big and de-personalized that they are little more than education factories, treadmills for grades. This is an unavoidable result of increased population; it is hard to cultivate individualism in a crowd, particularly when that crowd is being thrust forward through an educational machine.

In such conditions, any show of individualism is apt to be regarded as rebellion. The sole object is to get through the program in the time laid down for it by some remote body.

Dr. Heath said students have thousands of words spoken at them in the classroom and via television, and they have never learned to play, to laugh, to develop imagination and express their feelings.

This may be true of big schools attended by thousands of students, for in the measured stampede those who wish to linger, to dream awhile, perhaps are thrust on one side.

It is easy enough to blame the schools, but in the ultimate they are only the reflection of public attitudes, indifferent or otherwise. Some parents would like to foist the whole responsibility for their children onto the shoulders of school teachers. Already these often over-worked individuals find themselves in the roles of advisers, confessors, psychologists, attendance officers and disciplinarians. It is too much.

In high schools today is the first total TV generation. From childhood many of them have spent more hours gazing at the living room screen than they have out playing with their contemporaries. Hence so many of them have a yearning for "human" things passively is mistaken for "kindness" and "peace"; a willingness to share what they have for "friendliness." These are feeble substitutes for outgoing happiness, for the shared experience of laughter that releases inner tensions and is the sign of emotional stability.

Because these natural expressions of youth are foreign to so many, substitutes are found in wondering about with placards pleading — in different ways — for more humanity and a better world, or causing a commotion. These are not the symbols of happiness.

The answer rests — where it always has been — in the home. There lies the significance of individuality.

Bourassa Leads Liberals to Victory

will attract capital and encourage growth.

The Liberals and the pro-fed-eralist Creditiste party together won a total of 86 seats and about 55 per cent of the popular vote. the Liberal share of the vote being about 44 per cent.

The Parti Quebecois, meanwhile, received about 24 per cent of the popular vote, nearly three times the support separatist parties got in the 1966 campaign.

Mr. Levesque, 47-year-old journalist and cabinet minister in the former Liberal government of Jean Lesage, did not indicate who might lead the Parti Quebecois in the legislature or whether he would seek a seat in one of the ridings captured by his party.

He had quit the Liberal party while in opposition to form the Parti Quebecois which brought together various separatist factions. This was the first real test of the Parti Quebecois.

Mr. Levesque hopes to establish an independent Quebec in an economic association with the rest of Canada.

A total of 666 candidates contested the 108 seats in an election that resulted in the arrest of at least 29 persons for alleged election irregularities. Most of those arrested were released.

Estimates were that the 73-per-cent turnout in the 1966 election was surpassed. There were 3,611,536 registered voters.

The Liberals took 27 seats away from the Union Nationale, defeating eight cabinet ministers.

The Parti Quebecois took five Montreal Island seats from the Union Nationale, defeating two cabinet ministers in the process.

Defeated cabinet ministers included Finance Minister Marie Beaudoin, regarded as leadership material for the Union Nationale.

Mr. Levesque was defeated by one of his former election organizers, Liberal Andre Marchand, a 43-year-old printer.

All 13 candidates of Quebec's New Democratic Party were defeated.

Mr. Bertrand himself was re-elected while Creditiste leader Cyrill Delanay, a 35-year-old ex-salesman from Rouyn-Noranda, taking a seat away from the Union Nationale.

Several ridings taken from the Union Nationale by the Liberals was Trois-Rivieres, held by the Union Nationale since the late premier Maurice Duplessis captured it in 1936.

Prime Minister Trudeau did not comment publicly, but aides made it clear in Ottawa there was considerable satisfaction with the Liberal victory.

At the same time, Ottawa sources said it was not considered that relations between the federal and Quebec governments will be any easier now than they have been in the past, particularly on economic issues.

Mr. Bourassa, 36-year-old lawyer-economist who was virtually unknown until six months ago, described the landslide victory as a challenge to prove Quebec can remain in Canada.

"And we will face that challenge taking into account that Quebec is not a province like the others. And we are confident that we will succeed."

The new Liberal government would devote its first efforts to the province's serious unemployment problem, he said, recalling his campaign promise to create 100,000 new jobs in 1971.

Mr. Bertrand, a 52-year-old lawyer, said he would remain as leader of the Union Nationale in opposition for the time being.

Visibly moved, Mr. Bertrand recalled that he had asked Quebecers to give the province a majority government.

"They did so, and it's a good thing for Quebec."

Mr. Samson said the election demonstrates that Quebecers are not separatists and prefer to taste prosperity within Canada rather than risk the economic effects of independence.

Mr. Levesque described the election as "extraordinarily comforting for the next step." He said the Parti Quebecois has become the leading opposition party in terms of the popular vote.

The Liberals should not interpret their election victory as a mandate for the constitutional status quo "because this is not so."

Judge Skeptical of Story

no more of the fateful night on Chappaquiddick.

"The facts of this incident are now fully public," he said, "and eventual judgment and understanding rests where it belongs."

Kennedy's inquest testimony gave no clear account of his reasons for failing to report the accident to police until more than 10 hours after it happened. He denied any personal involvement with Miss Kopechne and said that at no time the night of the accident was he under the influence of alcohol.

In his lurid police report on the July 18 accident, and in his testimony to the secret inquest last Jan. 4, Kennedy said he turned by mistake onto the dirt road that led him to Dike Bridge and the accident. He said he and Miss Kopechne were headed for the ferry from Chappaquiddick back to Edgartown, on Martha's Vineyard.

In the major surprise of the inquest papers, Boyle said he didn't believe it. The judge, who retires from the bench at midnight tonight, recited the inquest evidence, then declared:

"I infer a reasonable and probable explanation of the falsity of the above facts is that Kennedy and Kopechne did not intend to return to Edgartown at this time; that Kennedy did not intend to drive to the ferry slip and his turn onto Dike Road was intentional."

That road leads away from the ferry crossing, across the bridge to a lonely, undeveloped beach on the easterly shore of Chappaquiddick.

Boyle's report described the bridge this way:

"Dike Bridge is a wooden structure 18 feet, six inches wide, has timber curbs on each side four inches high by 10 inches wide, no other guard-rails, and rises at an angle of 27 degrees to the left of the road. There are no signs of artificial lights on the bridge or its approach."

"A speed of even 20 miles per hour, as Kennedy testified to, operating a car as large as his Oldsmobile," the judge declared, "would at least be negligent and, possibly, reckless. If Kennedy knew of this hazard, his operation of the vehicle constituted criminal conduct."

The judge said Kennedy had been driven over the bridge twice on the day of the accident.

"I believe it probable that Kennedy knew of the hazard that lay ahead of him on Dike Road but that, for some reason not apparent from the testimony, he failed to exercise due care so he approached the bridge," the judge said.

He concluded:

"I, therefore, find there is probable cause to believe that Edward M. Kennedy operated his motor vehicle negligently on a way, roadway or in a place to which the public have a right of access and that such operation appears to have constituted the death of Mary Jo Kopechne."

Boyle's report, dated Feb. 18, did not explain why no additional charge was filed against Kennedy, who pleaded guilty July 25 to leaving the scene of the accident. Boyle sentenced him to two months in jail and suspended the sentence.

The possibility of new charges remained among the unanswered questions.

A new Dukes County grand jury goes into session next month, and a top Massachusetts legal official says there is nothing to prevent it from reopening the case.

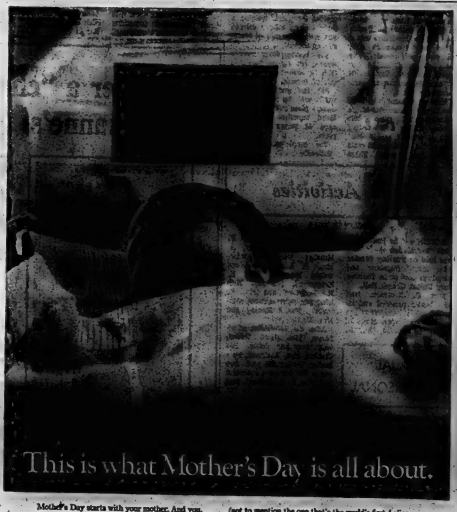
All-year Activity For Quinte Club

Quinte Field Naturalists has become an all-year club rather than calling a recess for the summer months.

Normally the club holds no meetings during June, July and August, but this year field trips will be arranged for the Vandervater, Price and O'Hara Mill conservation parks operated by the Moira River Conservation Authority. Dates for the field trips will be announced later.



"Water, Water . . ." was the title of a film shown at the April meetings of the local field naturalists. The film showed some of the uses and abuses of water stressing the importance of a pure supply and the maintenance of its purity.

Following the film John Wulet, technical adviser to the Moira River Conservation Authority, spoke about Authority work, mentioning the club's part in making a nature trail at the Vandervater park and requesting assistance in marking an additional trail.

Mother's Day starts with your mother. And you.
We at Panasonic get sentimental about things like that. So this year, we'd like to help you do a few things for your mother to make Mother's Day more than just a token.
We'd like you to give her a Panasonic appliance.
Why? Because, while it's the thought that counts, we think that what you give her should also make her happy during all the other days that aren't Mother's Day.
Our toasters will toast her bread automatically (not to mention the one that's the world's first 4-slice, self-lowering toaster).
Our blenders will blend her recipes automatically (not to mention the one that's the world's first blender with push-button timing).
And our electric coffee-pots and ice-crushers will make life even easier for her.
So you see. We think there's more to Mother's Day than what the calendar and the greeting cards say.

MR. AND MRS. DAVID COLE

Cole – Shorey

College Hill United Church, Belleville was the scene at the recent wedding of Barbara Shorey, daughter of Mrs. W. G. Shorey of Belleville and the late Mr. Shorey to David Bruce Cole, son of Mrs. K. Cole of Trenton and the late Mr. Cole. Officiating at the ceremony was Rev. R. Veney.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, wore a dress of imported peau de soie fashioned in empire A-line collar of wide embroidered Venice lace and the sleeves and bandles were trimmed with the same lace. The chapel train was trimmed on all sides with Venice lace and the headpiece was a fitted cap of peau de soie, trimmed with pearls. The veil was edged in lace to match the gown. She carried a cascade bouquet of pink sweetheart roses.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Patricia Devine, sister of the bride, wearing a gown of turquoise chiffon over taffeta with a trim of Venice lace around the neckline and cuffs of the long sleeves. Those was an heed of the same in the empire waistline.

Bridesmaids were Miss Beth Shorey, sister of the bride and Miss Cheryl Cole, sister of the bridegroom. Each gown was berry pink with lace trim around the collar and cuffs of the long sleeves. The bridesmaids and matron of honor carried bouquets of pink roses tinged with pink sweetheart roses.

Best man was Keith Cole, brother of the bridegroom and ushers were Randle Cole and John Devine.

For the reception held at the bride's home, hot mother greeted the guests wearing a three - piece salmon colored suit with a corsage of cream colored orchids.

For the bridegroom's mother wore a two - piece navy suit with a corsage of cream colored orchids.

For the wedding trip to Montreal and the bride chose a three - piece suit in turquoise blend Terylene with a corsage of yellow sweetheart roses.

The couple will reside in Belleville.

Solution Sought for Troublemakers at School

TORONTO (CP) — Perhaps chronic troublemakers should be allowed to leave school when they are 14.

Teachers say some solution will have to be found for dealing with them. They contend that in the climate of increasing freedom in schools, such students are expensive. They cost the time of other students, the money that time costs taxpayers, they are responsible for theft and destruction and sometimes for moral and physical damage to other people.

Teachers say allowing them to leave is not the irrevocable act it once was. They may be able to go back to school later. Some have been considered interesting people to have in a classroom.

Two teachers and an administrator in the Metropolitan Toronto school system talked in anonymous interviews about what it is like to be a teacher now.

They agreed that in a comparatively permissive social and school atmosphere, the disruptive student looms larger than he did in a strict, authoritarian school setting.

The teachers say they enjoy the new freedom and the students, but with less authority invested in the teacher and school staff, they feel some way must be found to deal with the problem children.

"The normal kids are fine, I like the kids. They object as strongly as we do to the small group of self-declared outlaws. Letting the run loose allows a small minority to make the whole system run scared.

"It poses a threat, a reaction to a newer, freer system of education. We don't want to go back to strapping the kids.

"The time to talk about it is when you can do something modest. You don't wait until someone has been killed in his crowded troublemakers should be allowed to leave school when they are 14.

"Parents don't realize what they are doing when they leap to the defence of some of them."

The administrator says the problem is real, but he does not think an earlier leaving age is a solution.

"We must develop approaches, strategies that will get kids. We must find out what it is they're having trouble with. Is it the bells, the boredom, their families?

"We must find some way in which the child can continue to learn. Maybe he's removed from classes or the school structure, but he's still engaged with a counsellor, still learning."

The teachers' professional association has been discussing the problem with the intention of talking it over with school administrators and with the hope of making the public aware of how severe it is.

"They say they feel they get little backing from school boards or administrators. If they want to remove a student and a parent howls that his child's right to an education is being threatened. They say they get no backing from most parents of problem students because these are usually problem parents.

Without a return to heavy-handed authoritarianism, they say they would like a clearly defined policy.

They feel there must be some revision in the "hall-en-cret percentage of passes necessary."

"The student has a certain amount of freedom now, and the teacher has no authority to make him keep up in his work.

"Surely with this goes the right also to sink or swim. Don't force teachers to pass 85 per cent of the students. The kids know we must, and it's a joke. Most teachers have the experience of a kid saying, 'Aw, you can't fail me anyway.'

"In our society everybody's conscious of freedoms, but surely the value of gaining privileges on the basis of demonstrated ability has been proven.

"Freedom should have some relation to the people to whom they are given."

Points for Parents

By MARY BRYSON

Mother: "I was so upset when Tommy knocked the lamp off the table that I blew my top and spanked him. It seemed so unnecessarily careless. I'm sorry now but I guess he's forgotten all about it."

Mother: "I'm sorry I spanked you about the lamp. I know it was an accident and you didn't mean to break it. I shouldn't lose my temper like that."

Timmy: "I'm sorry I broke your good lamp."

If you lose your temper and punish a child unjustly, don't be afraid to apologize when things have calmed down. He knows when you are unfair, and he will have more respect for you if he realizes you know it too.

Members Entertain Wives

The members of Moira Lodge No. 11, AF and AM entertained their wives at a banquet held at the Masonic Temple on Saturday, April 25. The event was chaired by the Worshipful Master, George C. Stratton with the invocation given by Wor. Bro. W. A. Marner, filling in for Bro. Alf Cooper.

Entertainment was provided by Mrs. Sandra Valks and Martin Hawsons' accompanied her on the organ. They were thanked by Bro. Keith Elliott.

Wor. Bro. Stratton proposed a toast to the women and the District Deputy Grand Master of Prince Edward District, Rt. Wor. Bro. Tom Lloyd was then introduced by Bro. Stan Reid. The DDGM brought the best wishes of the Grand Master of Ontario, Most Wor. Bro. Bruce Foster.

The junior warden's toast and dancing, bridge and euchre brought the evening to a close.

Leather Craftsmanship Award

Mrs. John Harwood, Octavia Street, Belleville was elected a fellow in the Canadian Society of creative Leathercraft. To win this award, she submitted five articles showing various techniques of leather craftsmanship.

The annual meeting of the Ontario Society of Creative Leathercraft this year was held jointly with the International at the Park Plaza, Toronto. During the three days workshops in technique of leather craftsmanship were held.

It was at this meeting that Mrs. Harwood was elected.

The Belleville Leather Guild has ten active members who are also members of the Arts and Crafts Association of Belleville.

'Lay Down the Law' Advice from Teenager

ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Here's a message for "Tired It," the mother of a teen-age Cop-Out. "Keep yourself clean. Respect older people. Accept responsibility. The world doesn't owe you anything. Get moving. Make a contribution." These are the same rules I was raised by and I'm 14 - - - a member of your son's generation. Apparently you believe all teenagers are alike. You are mistaken.

It's obvious from your letter that you and your husband have given your son too much freedom and too much of everything. You probably feel guilty because you have let him walk all over you. You also let him mouth off and be obnoxious. You say your son has been kicked out of two schools for smoking marijuana but you would send him to a third school if he can get in someplace. Why? I'll bet he wouldn't have been out for smoking marijuana if it was his own money going down the drain. Why make the same mistake a third time?

Quit asking yourself where you failed and start to make some demands on that spoiled son. Don't let him give you that ugly stare of inheriting a lousy world. Your generation inherited a lousy world, too. It's what we do with that lousy world that counts. Smoking marijuana won't help.

Lay down the law to your son, which is what you should have done years ago. If he rebels, kick him out. I know you love him, but maybe being forced to make his own way in this world will make a man out of him. - M. W. OF PHOENIX.

* * *

DEAR ANN LANDERS: We live in a four-family flat. The people below us work crazy hours — when they are on the night shift they sleep during the day. When they are on the split shift they sleep at unpredictable hours. We never know if they are in or out.

We have a six-month baby who makes a lot of laundry. My washing machine is directly above our neighbor's bedroom. I have to run at least two loads every day. The neighbors complain that this interferes with their rest.

Like most women I do my vacuuming in the morning and this also bothers them. Twice last month when we had guests they pounded on the pipes with a monkey-wrench and beat on our ceiling with a broom handle. This can be very embarrassing when you are trying to carry on a conversation.

Yesterday the baby cried and woke them up. They called on the phone and screamed, "Don't you know this is Sunday?" My husband told them we knew it was Sunday but the baby didn't.

We have never had any trouble with neighbors before and we would like to resolve our problems with these people because we cannot move. Will you suggest a solution? — PEOPLE WHO WANT PEACE.

DEAR PEOPLE: Invite the neighbors for a cup of coffee and let them know you want peace: Offer to do your laundry and vacuuming when they are at work. Explain that you can't control the baby's crying but you'll do your best. When they see you are interested in a better relationship the chances are good that they will co-operate. The solution is a word is — communication.

* * *

Confidential to WANT TO HELP THEM: Your letter suggests that you might be getting vicarious kicks. If you really want to help suggest that they go to a doctor.

* * *

DEAR ALICE: That "fortune teller" did a cruel piece of mischief. She must be a sadist, as well as a charlatan. I suggest professional help. You need to talk out this obsession until you are free of it.

Observation Pays Off at Committee Meetings

By DORIS CLARK

Next time you sit in a committee meeting, or a do-something council, try to notice how things get done: who does the talking, who sits back; who sees the danger spots, who guides discussion to conclusions.

The best chairman is the one who holds back about things until he has drawn out all ideas; who gently prevents one determined soul from holding the floor; and knows when and how to bring the talk to a reasonable end.

Are you making your contribution? If you hold back and wait for someone else to put into words what you are thinking, don't! If you are inclined to talk too much, stop! If you are the chairman, take over! If you railroad through all your own ideas!

There's more in this fascinating topic of group dynamics than easily meets the eye.

DORIS CLARK

Dear Doris: Reading your article about "Bad or Mad".

I must ask how one determines whether it was a bad or a mad act. Are there sure ways to find out before the damage is done?

I have always been worried about my own mental health and would like to find out for sure where I stand. Where do I go? My doctor is no use there was nothing wrong with me.

But whenever pressure is put on me I break down: be it the children, my husband or visitors. I am only 35 and would like to know the truth.

If I took neurotic maybe some drug would be helpful. There is a mental health clinic in Hamilton. Would this be the place to go? — Sorrel.

Dear Sorrel: Bad or mad? Even the experts in crime and in mental illness have trouble with that one. But during the clear - blanket criminal boy lost his sense of true values somewhere along the way; hasn't he? But isn't this the beginning of getting out of the beam, mental health wise?

To judge from your long, well - expressed letter (only partly reproduced here), you are clicking along on all cylinders, mentally. But your emotional state leaves something to be desired. If slight pressures can break you down, then you need help. The person who cried loudly is tired, or too frail, or too unprepared, to meet the challenge her days are putting to her.

A complete physical check-up and a visit to the mental health clinic might well bring enlightenment and relief.

Now French chateaux have been added to the tours one can take. But there is one with a difference. Ancestral chateaux are converted into gracious hotels where you can stay overnight but the dining room is the main attraction for it can and often does take up more space than the guest rooms.

There are 65 in all and you can visit all, some or one. When I have time some year this is one tour I am going to take for I am told a car and driver will meet me when I land in France. I will order French Onion Soup until I find the best.

Meanwhile I — and possibly you — will have to be happy

Broiled Beef Cakes; Fresh Potato Onion Puff (see Wednesday); Tomato and Eggplant Casserole; Cole Slaw; Apple Pancakes with Maple Syrup; Coffee.

SUNDAY
(Guests)

Butter-Baked Chicken (see Friday); Buttered Noodles; Savoury Carrots (see Wednesday); Salad Greens with Roquefort Dressing; Fresh Orange Jelly; Sponge Cake; Tea.

FRENCH ONION SOUP

3 Spanish onions
3 tbsps. butter
½ tsp. Worcestershire sauce
1 drop Tabasco sauce
6 cups water
10 beef bouillon cubes
Salt and pepper
¼ cup (or more) grated Parmesan cheese
Toasted French bread

Slice the onions thinly, and over them pour 1 qt. boiling water and let stand ½ min. Drain well. Melt the butter in the soup pot and saute gently the blanched onions in it until they have absorbed it. Roll 2 cups of the required water and pour it over the bouillon cubes, and stir to dissolve them. Add to the onions and add the remaining 4 cups of water, Worcestershire sauce, Tabasco sauce and some salt and pepper. Simmer covered for 1 hr. Toast slices of French bread, sprinkle each generously with Parmesan. Pass under hot broiler to melt cheese. Take soup to see if it needs more salt and pepper. Pour into bowls, top each with cheese covered toast and serve. Pass more Parmesan cheese at the table. This is supposed to serve 10, but I would not be enough for 10 Frenchmen.

Longer Waiting Period For Marriage Urged

By JEAN SHARP
Of Women's Editor

It should be more difficult to get married. There should be a six-week waiting period between licence and wedding, and compulsory pre-marital counselling. The state should take at least as much interest in marriage as it does in divorce.

These ideas were part of a private member's bill drafted in British Columbia. The bill has not been presented in the legislature—and may never be—but it reflects opinions held by many people alarmed at the divorce rate and at current suggestions that the traditional family unit is outdated.

In a Cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press, social workers, clergy, lawyers and people married or about to be were asked what they think of an enforced, counselled pause for thought on the way to the altar.

The consensus is that it might be a good idea, but would never work.

Dr. Frank Fidler of Toronto, marriage secretary to the province council of the United Church of Canada, says a long waiting period "could be an advantage."

"It does eliminate the impulsive marriage program that some people embark on. But there would have to be some provisions for waiving it under adequate authority."

Asked if he thinks making marriage more difficult would cut the number of divorces, Dr. Fidler says he thinks it might, but not necessarily for the best reasons.

"Some people wouldn't bother to get married at all. They'd just live together. That's a speculation, of course, but observing what has happened in other cultures. I think if you make marriage difficult, people just won't bother."

Waiting periods now vary from none to eight days.

Newfoundland has no waiting period, unless one is imposed by a church, but an examination of the provincial laws relating to family life is in progress. A justice department spokesman says legislation should be drafted in one or two years, and may include a waiting period of 30 days.

Quebec has no marriage licences as such, but a couple wanting a civil marriage service must collect certificates proving marriage eligibility and wait 30 days while the intention to marry is posted in the courthouse. A civil marriage costs $75 during the week, $100 on weekends.

A married couple in Montreal say people wishing to be married should be able simply to sign a paper saying that for purposes of children and property they are to be considered husband and wife.

If they decide to dissolve the marriage, the courts should not be able to veto their divorce application.

Lawyer Raymond Ayoup says the state should be permitted to legislate marriage requirements if it has the power to legislate divorce laws.

"However, there is a fine line between that and interfering with a person's civil rights. For example, a man could hypothetically be refused permission to marry on 39 different occasions during his lifetime."

A British Columbia lawyer, Neil Fleishman, says:

"I welcomed the changes in the law last year, and I think the state should get out of divorce altogether.

"All marriages are a gamble—people are either going to get married or they're not. Ninety-five per cent of counsellors and psychiatrists used examining themselves. Who would watch the watchers (if counselling were compulsory)?"

In Edmonton a social worker and a minister are on the other side.

Donald Storch of the Family Services Association says: "Before you can get a licence to drive a car in Alberta you have to take a course. Why not the same for marriage?"

Rev. Ian Macmillan of St. Paul's United Church says he believes the divorce rate would drop if marriage were more difficult to achieve. He says people should be charged for getting married and be given divorces for nothing.

An engaged man in Saskatoon says it probably wouldn't hurt to make people wait a month to get married. He says it takes two weeks to a month to get out invitations and otherwise organize the wedding anyway.

He says he thinks counselling would be a waste of time.

"If I wanted to get married to a girl badly enough, all the counselling in the world wouldn't change my mind."

Lawyer John Barry in Saint John, N.B., agrees in principle.

"Pre-marital counselling should not be made compulsory. They've taken away too many rights of individuals.

"However, there should be some institution of this sort for those wanting it."

Canadian churches are officially on record as being in favor of provisions for effective preparation for marriage and counselling for those in marital trouble. Six denominations presided a joint statement on divorce law reform in 1967, to that effect.

The conference of Roman Catholic bishops in Canada presented a brief to the government committee on divorce, saying: "Social science confirms that the majority of family problems that end in divorce have their roots in the levity and lack of forethought with which many, especially younger people, approach marriage.

"It is the responsibility of civil authority to seek by appropriate laws to prevent such situations."

Gordon Killeen, an Ottawa lawyer, says he approves of counselling, but there are not enough counsellors to go around.

"The provision in the divorce law regarding reconciliation is more or less a dead letter because of this."

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM

TAIPEI (AP) — The government announced a birth control program to cut Formosa's population growth rate to less than two per cent a year. The already dense population now is rising by 2.4 per cent annually, a spokesman said.

Libby Graham, left, and Lynette Burgess, right, students at Albert College who will be among the students modelling new teen fashions at Albert's "Glow and Sparkle" evening program, Saturday evening, May 2. Miss Graham, Grade 12 student whose parents are serving with Canada's diplomatic mission in The Cameroons is wearing a crimpolline mini-dress with belt buckled on the hipline. The ensemble comes with matching slacks. Miss Burgess, a Grade IX student from St. Georges, Bermuda, models a white-ribbed mini-length dress with long torso and full ribbed skirt. The fashions recall the "flapper style" era of the 1920's.

College Open House to Be Held on Weekend

Residents of Belleville and district will have an opportunity to see the varied program of activities in which Albert College students participate when the College building and girls' residence manner will be open to the public on Saturday evening, May 2.

"Glow and Sparkle" is the theme of the event. It will feature events of interest to both adults and young people in the Quinte area. Students and staff are busy preparing the program which will be held from 7 until 10 p.m.

"We hope that residents of the community who may not have been in The College before will avail themselves of this opportunity," said headmaster Lionel L. Shrubb in announcing the event.

A highlight of the program will be a fashion show, Bonfire grill model the latest teen styles and present colorful spring fashions with the assistance of Miss Shelah Nash, Fashion Co-ordinator with McIntosh Brothers of Belleville. This event is being co-ordinated by Mrs. Ruth Christensen, Dean of Women.

There will be a film depicting the history of the College which dates from 1857. Other activities will include a performing pool team staged by the boys who will also be presenting special laboratory demonstrations.

An international atmosphere will greet guests of the College when they visit the Manor. The decor will be in keeping with Albert's new international motto — "The world comes to Albert College" — chosen by the student body this year in honor of the many students from countries around the world who came to Canada to obtain their education at Albert College.

Students will be serving punch, light refreshments consisting of French, Italian and Spanish cuisine which they have prepared themselves.

Student guides will show visitors around the school and direct them to events of particular interest. These will include a display of handicrafts at which Albert girls have been developing their talents during the year.

Brisk Demand Still Exists For Single Family Housing

By ROY PEACOCK

High interest rates and the shortage of mortgage money may have slowed down new construction, but there is still a brisk demand for single family housing by those who long for a "place of their own."

Local realtors admit that new housing starts are down but, they don't go along with the suggestion this is affecting over-all sales.

Multiple listing sales statistics show the opposite is true for Belleville and area where in the past year property sales have shown an increase of more than 28 per cent.

Kenneth Burkitt, secretary of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board reports that multiple listing sales for the first three months this year totalled 22 as compared to but 15 in the same period last year. Value of properties sold jumped from $238,559 to $374,-950 in the same period.

The district included by the Belleville and District Real Estate Board for its statistics includes Hastings as far north as Highway 7 and all of Prince Edward County.

Exclusive listings and sales by individual members of the district board are not divulged by the individual realtors, but multiple listing is generally accepted as the barometer for the industry.

However, one of the reasons for the apparent increase in home sales is the fact that the number of real estate brokers and sales people has increased.

A year ago there were 11 offices and 79 sales people dealing in real estate. This year the number has risen to 18 offices and 101 sales people.

But, judging from the number of new housing starts, a considerable percentage of the sales have to be for older units.

At city hall, Building Inspector Grant Sickle reports the number of permits issued for new single family dwellings totalled only 11 for the first four months this year. This compared to 25 permits in the same period last year.

At the same time, however, there are two sizable housing subdivisions under way in the city — one at Palmer Heights where 33 single family homes started last fall are completed or nearing completion, and on Village Drive where local builder Charles Lambert last year took out permits for 11 new homes. Four or five of the houses in this subdivision are all but completed.

The 33 homes in the Palmer Heights subdivision are the first of more than 150 planned for the area by Cornerbrook Ltd. of Toronto.

In addition isolated houses by other builders are under way in various parts of the city. One of these areas is Tracey Street where a half dozen new units are under way.

Local realtor, Alderman Gerald Joyce says that the current high interest rates are doing two things in respect to present sales' — causing reservation in the minds of people who can afford a new home, — making it next to impossible for low and medium income families to qualify for a mortgage.

But in the case of families able to afford a new house now, but delaying because of high interest rates, Mr. Joyce feels there are advantages to buying now.

"These people are not being prudent in waiting," he says.

His feeling is that by waiting for interest rates to level off or drop, potential house buyers are leaving themselves open to further inflated housing costs.'

Mr. Joyce feels that possible increased house costs in five years would more than outweigh any increase in interest rates.

In any event NHA housing mortgages are now open for re-negotiation every five years with the new agreement based on the current rate of interest.

"In the meantime a buyer purchasing a house now has the edge on possibly even more inflated housing costs."

After the Building - - Levelling

Backfilling and levelling operations are under way at Palmer Heights where the first 33 of about 150 single family houses are now on sale. The initial group of houses is either completed or in various stages of construction. Subdivision plans call for a senior citizens building and several high rise apartment structures.

Multiple Listing Pays Off

Want to see the best buys in houses across the city, without even moving out of your chair? Then shop the Multiple Listing Service Way.

MLS is a photo-listing service, offered by members of the Belleville and District Real Estate Boards. Under this system the houses are photographed. The photographs, together with the pertinent information on the house, are distributed to all brokers in the local board area.

In this way, anyone who lists a house for sale on MLS has many enthusiasts working on the listing and anyone buying a house has a much wider choice than they would have otherwise.

How successful is the MLS system? "Any system that can sell over a billion dollars a year worth of real estate across Canada has to be successful," said Frank Fothwell, president of the board.

"Today the MLS service is offered by over 69 real estate boards across the country. In spite of the growth of MLS from 259 million in 1958 to over one billion dollars a year, it is still in its infancy," said the spokesman.

Evergreens Should Be Picked To Add Beauty to Landscaping

Garden Notes from The Plant Research Institute, Ottawa,
by A. R. BUCKLEY

Every year, there are hundreds of thousands of conifers, evergreens sold in Canada to home owners who are landscaping their property or renovating their plantings.

Because these plants grow rather slowly, the nurseryman must keep them for many years before they are large enough to sell, a factor that makes them very expensive. They are very valuable plants for use in garden design for they give a sense of permanency to home plantings and provide much wanted contrast to the deciduous trees and shrubs.

Coniferous evergreens are best treated as shapes when considering them for ordinary garden use. We speak of them as broad pyramids, narrow spreading and vase or urn-shaped types. For most of Canada the following shapes are most suitably among those most generally available.

Broad pyramidal types are those usually placed at the corners of the home or to accord the entrance to the driveway. The forms most acceptable are the blue-green Burk's juniper, the deep Green Cannert's-juniper, the silvery-blue Hill Juniper, the Springbank Juniper, and the very flat and opulent dark green Mountbatten Juniper. A more unusual but extremely beautiful silver broad pyramidal type is the Hedrewed false cypress.

Most of these plants will grow from 15 to 20 feet high if they are left unpruned and from six to eight feet wide. They will take pruning very well, so if they get too tall their leading shoots can be cut back in early June or late August. Smaller forms are the Spartan juniper with silvery foliage and the Spicy Greek juniper with prickly grey-green foliage.

The globe types or the ball-shaped evergreens are quite useful for planting near entrances or steps as accent plants. There are many kinds of arborvitae for this purpose, the best being the globe arborvitae and the Woodward, Little Gem and Little Champion cultivars.

The most popular plant though for this use is the dwarf maglio pine that can be kept in perfect shape by cutting the newly developed candles in half in late May or June. Some globe-shaped yews are sold and can be satisfactorily set as globes if clipped each year; these are unsuitable for planting in the home.

There are two types of home planting, the large bushy type and the low spreading type. Of the former, the Pfitzer Juniper is the most popular. There are two forms, the common Pfitzer Juniper and the golden Pfitzer Juniper, both growing to the heights of four feet. There are many other cultivars of this same type that provide a variation in background to the lower kinds. All Pfitzer type junipers will grow fairly well in the shade.

The Hetz Juniper with its silvery-blue foliage provides contrast and is very vigorous. The Grey Owl juniper is quite similar but with a greater preponderance of silvery - blue very bowing.

Lower spreading types that cling more to the soil and are useful for ground covers are usually found in cultivars of the Savin Juniper and the creeping juniper.

In the Savin juniper group are the skinny, deep, green Tamarix juniper, an extremely beautiful form with pendulous tips to the spreading branches that give a cascading effect; Arcadia, that hugs closely to the ground and has fresh green foliage; Hicksi with a spreading habit and yet upright branches, and the Ramdeon juniper, a cultivar that was selected from forms obtained from Sweden and grown at the Plant Research Institute for many years.

Of the prostrate junipers belonging to the creeping juniper group, the most noteworthy are the Waukegan juniper with light blue foliage; the Andorra juniper that turns to bronze or purplish-bronze in the fall, the Bar Harbor and Jade with silvery foliage and the Wiltoni juniper, a vigorous growing, soil hiding, cultivar with dark green foliage.

To conclude these notes, I would urge you to bear in mind that all evergreens, particularly those grown near the house, will need ample water at all times. During September, October and even November, water the plants well as that they will go into the winter quite moist.

One Answer

Necessity is the mother of decorative ingenuity. Where lack of space or special wiring prevents having a dryer, a corner of a bedroom, dining room or living room can be converted into an attractive, useful niche. This dryer holds about half a standard size dryer load and operates from any adequately wired 115-volt outlet and doesn't require venting.

From Horticultural Society

Well-kept Grounds Get Trillium Awards

Home beautification may be its own reward. But, in Belleville there's a bonus — thanks to the city's long - established Horticultural Society.

Each year the society selects various properties around the city, views them for design and how well both home and garden complement one another.

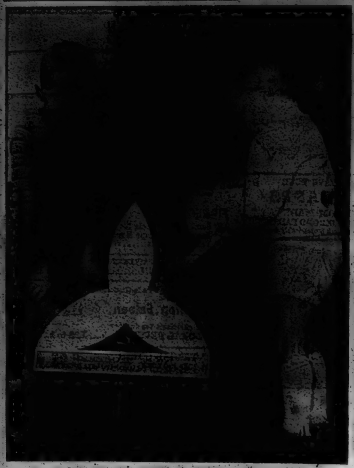
To the winners go commendation certificates symbolized by a trillium emblem which may be proudly planted in any flower bed visible to the entire neighborhood.

About 45 such trilliums will be awarded this year — likely after August when homeholders return from summer vacations and have a chance to spruce up their holdings in time for judging.

Another award go - to industry which shows initiative in landscaping appearances.

The trillium award is one way the society aims at achieving an over - all beautification effect for its hometown.

Started about four years ago, it is one of the community projects of an organization first started in 1884.



Now 86, it is one of the oldest horticultural groups in the province, and one not discernibly showing its age. At one stage its activities declined but now its membership totals about 350 — one of the largest in the province.

It also has some notable achievements which have not fully registered with the public at large.

For instance: Its annual Rose Festival has been attracting more and more attention. The event is considered the biggest and best of its kind outside Toronto. This year the festival has been increased to two days — June 17-18.

African violets raised by horticulturists total in impressive display not yet matched east of the Rockies, say society members.

The society also has its junior offspring — a group of about 40 city youngsters interested in herbalism, who have already made their mark in a number of community flower projects.

Watering Down the Prize

Two-year-old Brian Patterson — watched by brother Ross, six — is not that far out in watering big metal trillium, Horticultural Society soon will be dusting off many similar emblems for presentation to award-winning homeholders later in year.

Battered Pots and Pans Spoil Remodelled Kitchen

You're remodelling your kitchen, and you had a great time picking out the wall covering, your color scheme and all the colorful accessories that make a modern kitchen a room to live in. Now your kitchen is magazine cover pretty, except for the top of the sparkling automatic range where battered old pots mock the new surfaces. And the inefficiency, too.

Most new ranges have an automatic surface unit which brings the foods to a pre-selected temperature and then supplies exactly the right amount of heat to maintain that temperature. You have to set the control and only once. But in order for the automatic unit to operate correctly it requires the proper sort of cookware.

It is most important for your utensils to have flat bottoms that make proper contact with the heating unit, and old cookware often is dented and out of shape. Moreover, pie and electric utilities and manufacturers of commercial cooking units recommend aluminum cookware because it gives the most accurate results.

Aluminum spreads heat very evenly and quickly. This means that the entire cooking area in the pan is at the desired temperature. A "hot spot" in the center of a pot will cause the center to rise first before the whole utensil is heated to cooking temperature. The various tapered heat ratings recommended by range manufacturers are based on the use of quick heating, medium weight aluminum utensils.

Another point of efficiency for aluminum cookware is that when you turn off the heat, cooking stops immediately. Other metallic utensils hold heat and continue unwanted cooking of the food beyond the time specified in your recipe. When you're doing a roast or a delicate sauce, for instance, it is important to have complete control of the heating time.

Tight-fitting covers for such pots are very important to proper cooking. A collection of old, dented pots covers which don't quite fit your utensils and allow steam to escape when it shouldn't, can spell the disaster of recipe. Here's a hint in storing the covers which come fitted to your new cookware: file them in a rubber rack of the kind used to hold dishes. They're a cinch to find this way.

Once your family sees your new kitchen installed they are going to expect some tip-top dishes to come proudly off that automatic range. The best way to see they're served that is to use the utensils that are made of the finest grade of your pots and pans as carefully as you would the dishes in which they're served. Often the cookware as well as the food can take the honor as an excellent gourmet meal.

Guard Your Assets

Hardwood Floors Should Be Protected

An asset is any home in pleasing hardwood floors. But proper maintenance is necessary to keep them that way. For routine cleaning of an oak floor, don't use soap and water warns Henry Morrison of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board.

"Water if used frequently on the floor will raise the grain and cause a rough surface. If water should be spilled on the floor, wipe it off promptly with a dry cloth," said the spokesman.

"To keep floors at their gleaming best they should be cleaned with wax, at least two or three times a year. One of the good basic points of maintenance is daily sweeping with an untreated dust-mop."

"With little time and effort the home owner eliminates loose dirt and dust that would otherwise dim the lustre of the floors," said the spokesman.

"An occasional polishing with a soft cloth, weighted floor brush, or an electric polishing machine will keep the floors glistening. An electric polisher eliminates a great deal of labor in main, taining your oak floors and does the polishing job as well as, if not better than, if done by hand."

Ordinarily the finish of an oak floor, which has received reasonably good care will last many years before beginning to show signs of wear. Then, with simple refinishing, it will regain its full beauty.

"Even if an oak floor has received extremely heavy wear or has been neglected for many years, its original gleaming beauty can be recaptured by means of sanding and refinishing."

"If the existing finish is floor seal or lacquer, it may be necessary merely to retouch worn spots with the same type of finish. This is not advisable with other finishes, for when the worn areas are large, numerous, or in particularly conspicuous parts of a room. More pleasing results can be obtained in such cases by refinishing the entire floor.

"Before applying new finish, sweep the floor clean and remove all wax and spots. Recommended cleaning agents for this purpose are mineral spirits and naphtha, either of which can be secured at most large paint stores. An alternative is to use a water-dampened cloth and mild soap. To remove grease spots, laundry soap containing lye may be substituted for mild soap. It is important that use of such soap be restricted to the spots."

"Especially stubborn spots which do not yield to soap, treatment, mineral spirits, or naphtha usually will disappear when rubbed with steel wool. When the damp cloth - and - soap method of cleaning is employed, only a small area should be worked at a time, immediately after the area has been cleaned, it should be wiped dry so that the grain of the wood will not be affected," said the spokesman.

From the first glimmer of a home decorating idea to the completed project is the scope of a new guide — "How to Install Factory Finished Paneling."

Design and decorating tips with emphasis on style, color and texture are included in the amply illustrated guide with its numerous installation tips.

Barbecue Harbinger Of Warm Weather

Along with the robin and the lilac, a sure harbinger of Spring is the unveiling of the barbecue grill.

Better results can be obtained in outdoor cooking with a few preliminary steps.

First, put the grill in condition with a thorough cleaning, as you would the range on which your indoor menus are prepared. Wire-brush any rust spots, and touch up barnacled with paint.

Check the grill motor and clean related tools and hardware.

Find a location where smoke will not blow directly into the house to be offensive to neighbors, yet is accessible for serving.

Now you're ready to test your culinary skill. The Zonolite Division, W. F. Hyde and Co., Ltd., which suggests these simple steps for more successful barbecuing results.

1. A layer of extra coarse vermiculite, such as Bar-B-Sorb, should be spread on the bottom of the grill. The material absorbs drippings and protects the grill, while providing a better draft beneath the coals. Because it insulates, the grill stays cooler, then safer.

2. Centre the charcoal briquets on the vermiculite. Spray fire lighter fluid across the coals, and ignite. Vermiculite acts as a wick to provide uniform burning.

3. Tap coals frequently with a tool or utensil to remove ash. Ash insulates the coals, and retards the heat.

4. After the guests leave, pour a layer of vermiculite over the hot coals for safety's sake. You'll be able to save the charcoal for the next cookout — both the briquets and Bar-B-Sorb can be reused.

When you do decide to change the vermiculite in the grill, it's easy. The lightweight mineral can be dumped in the garden as a soil conditioner.

The coarse grade of vermiculite recommended for outdoor cooking is usually found wherever charcoal is sold.

Good Quality Roofing Worthwhile

This distinctive two-storey house was designed by architect D. G. Halford of Oakville, Ontario. Two secluded court gardens highlight the design, the garden walls adding interest to the exterior appearance and ensuring privacy in the outdoor areas off the family and living rooms.

The interior is conveniently arranged and all rooms are of generous dimension. Placing the carport within the space of the house provides covered and easy access to both the front and back doors. The front entrance should face north.

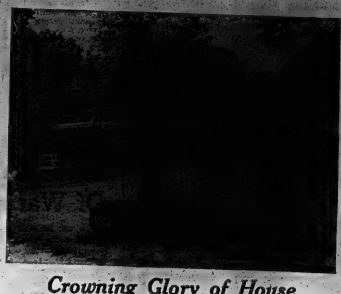
The floor area is 1,481 square feet, excluding the carport, and the exterior dimensions are 32 feet by 27 feet seven inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 532, can be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at a moderate cost.

Are you remodelling — or just repairing — your home? Remodelling implies modernization and any homeowner who undertakes repairs (except for very minor jobs) should take the opportunity to update the house in terms of new materials, new applications, new beauty and low maintenance.

The emphasis on modernization is especially important if remodelling plans include the roof. Today's quality roofing materials, such as asphalt shingles, offer a variety of benefits not available in the past. By taking advantage of them, you can repair, modernize and upgrade the value of your home all at the same time.

Here are some modern roof qualities you should look for:

Durability — Heavyweight asphalt shingles (those weighing 280 or more pounds per 100 square feet of roof area) are designed to provide up to 25 years of hard weather service with little or no maintenance. This means greater home protection without the bother and expense of periodic upkeep. The initial cost of heavyweights is somewhat higher than standard weight shingles. But installation costs are about the same, and the longer life of heavyweights "equalizes" the cost in the long run.



Color — Not long ago, the choice of colors in roofing was greatly limited. But today's emphasis on color as a design "tool" is reflected in a wide choice of asphalt shingle colors, including black, white, browns and "forest" greens. A colorful roof not only updates the entire house exterior, but allows color co-ordination of the home and its site.

Fire - Resistance — Now home materials offer greater home protection from the advantage of it. For instance, any roofing material that bears the Underwriters' Laboratories fire-resistance label. This shows the material has passed stringent tests for resistance to flame exposure. Some, termed, out for hazard of burning brands.

Wind - Resistance — Asphalt shingles which carry a UL label for wind - resistance provide protection in high wind areas. Even on homes not normally subjected to wind blows, these shingles (with a factory - applied adhesive that bonds each shingle to the one below) help keep the roof tighter and newer - looking longer.

As an insulator, wood is six times better than brick.

When scissors are dull, run blades across neck of small bottle in same position as though cutting off neck bottle. Or cut through a sheet of sandpaper a few times.

Crowning Glory of House

Planning to reroof? Then take advantage of roofing materials which offer modern benefits of beauty, long life and maximum protection. This distinctive-looking roof of heavyweight asphalt shingles, which enhances the entire house exterior, is designed to provide up to 25 years of service with little or no care.

WONDER WEEDER

For people who don't dig dandelions...

If you Dig dandelions, they'll grow again before your back has stopped aching. Spray them with Niagara Wonder Weeder, the deluxe lawn weed killer and they're gone for good. And so will Plantain, Chickweed, Creeping Charlie and all those other lawn weeds. Niagara Wonder Weeder kills right down to the roots and leaves nothing to sprout again. It won't harm your valuable lawn.

If you only have a few dandelions or small weed patches, spot kill them with the handy aerosol spray form of Wonder Weeder. Unless you 'Dig' dandelions.

Tasteful Deception

The "oak" beams are really lightweight polyurethane, and the "Franklin" stove is backed by plastic wall tile that looks and feels like aged, weathered brick.

Fake More Practical Than the Real Thing

Women who've been wearing wigs successfully for years are beginning to apply the same principle to beautify their homes. It's called tasteful deception.

Simulated oak beams, fireplaces, waterfalls and brick are often more practical and always less expensive than the real thing.

Easy-to-install ceiling and wall beams molded from high-density, lightweight polyurethane are exact reproductions of hand-hewn timbers. A panel adhesive will attach them to any dry, clean surface. Hollow channels conceal wiring for installation of lights, stereo units and other facilities.

Just as the look of oak beams no longer means costly remodeling, an indoor waterfall doesn't require plumbing. A new fiberglass corner model, which has the appearance of stone and driftwood, includes a redecorating pump and built-in lighting.

You don't need a chimney to have a fireplace either. Wall-hung fireplaces have no-mess, flame-effect logs. Other fireplaces come equipped with adapter and chimney kits. One model is a functional replica of an early Franklin stove.

A good backdrop for that new fireplace would be plastic wall tile that looks and feels like aged, weathered brick. Its adhesive contains coarse grit to give the appearance of brick-layer's mortar.

Multi-purpose Windows

Today's wood windows offer more than visibility and ventilation. They are also designed for beauty and particular room functions. These stylish ponderosa pine casements, which open with the turn of an easy-to-reach handle, are ideal for locations (such as over kitchen sinks and countertops) in which other style windows would be hard to reach and operate.

Modern Window Treatment Gives House A Facelift

Are old-fashioned windows out-dating your house? Then give it a whole new image with modern high-style wood units.

Unlike their predecessors which provided only the basic window necessities — visibility and ventilation — today's wood windows also offer beauty, low maintenance and convenience features. Additionally, the windows come in a variety of styles suitable for particular room functions and decors.

For instance, quality windows of ponderosa pine (obtainable in stock sizes at local lumber dealers) are available in the following designs:

Casements — Ideal for hard-to-reach areas, such as above kitchen sinks and countertops. They swing outward at a 90-degree angle with the turn of a handle. Used singly or in series, their uninterrupted glass area affords welcome outdoor views.

Awnings — Open upward and outward for maximum ventilation. Often used with fixed-sash to create a picture window with ventilating capacity. When stacked atop each other, wood awning windows provide a handsome wide-view arrangement, appropriate for dining rooms, family rooms and enclosed porches.

Hoppers — Similar in style and use to awning, except that hoppers open inward and down.

Sliders — They slide open horizontally, offer excellent ventilation, and — because there are no crossbars — give a good view. Large units, used in series, create a striking wall of windows in rooms adjacent to patios, decks and terraces.

Bays — Originally associated with Colonial styling, these elegant wood windows are now used extensively in contemporary homes, enhancing visibility, sunlight and distinctive window treatments are an asset. The bay window (sometimes confused with the bow) is straight in the centre and angled at each end.

Bows — These units, with a graceful outward curve, generally have two or more operating panes for ventilation. All ponderosa pine styles are now available with insulating glass, eliminating the need for storm sash (especially awkward for bows and bays). Insulating glass is weather-stripped wood sash also provide maximum protection against heat loss through large glass areas.

Other low-care, convenience features of modern wood windows include: pivot and jalousie sash for easy cleaning of both sides of the glass from inside the house; multi-purpose removable grilles that snap-out for each window washing; rust-slick metal and plastic hardware; factory - applied weatherstripping to cut air seepage and preservative treatment of sash and frame to guard against weather abuse.

Bigger Homes Wanted

"People today who are looking for homes, want them bigger and more luxurious than did their counterparts of a few years ago," said Ed McKinney, Regional Vice-president of the Ontario Association of Real Estate Boards.

"I noticed a strong trend toward two-storey houses in the middle and higher price brackets. No longer is it uncommon to see a two-car attached garage," said the spokesman.

"A new styling development, that will be seen more and more in the future, is the mid-level, which is now being built in the United States. Basically it is a two-storey house with no basement and the entrance level is split between the two floors.

"In spite of this demand for houses in the middle price ranges, the greatest need is still for low-cost housing. I believe that a mixed community of single-family dwellings, apartments and row-housing is the best answer.

"Depending on how it is built, row-housing units can be individually owned, without any changes in legislation. The only problem, then, is the care of the grounds. In some areas, owner associations for the management and control of the jointly - owned property have been highly satisfactory."

"Will low-cost row-housing cause many people to abandon the more expensive and larger houses?" the spokesman was asked.

"There is more in owning a fine home than just providing shelter," he said. "The busy executive, who all day long must face the pressure of his work, wants a comfortable and luxurious home in which to relax. As long as such pressures exist, there will be a demand for homes in the middle price range," the spokesman concluded.

Both front and back entrances are protected from the weather in this three bedroom house designed by architects Debicki and Lomaire of Vancouver.

Features which will appeal to the family with young children, are the clothes closet at the back door and its direct access to a basement with ample space for a playroom.

The kitchen is open to a good-sized family room, and in addition there is a dining area adjacent to the living room.

The bedrooms are well segregated, with the master bedroom having its own bathroom in structural form, the house is straightforward post and beam construction on six foot six inch centres. Either the front or back elevation may face south to obtain the most advantageous orientation.

The floor area is 1,261 square feet, excluding the carport, and the exterior dimensions are 45 feet 2 inches by 28 feet. Working drawings for this house known as Design 2265, can be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at a moderate cost.

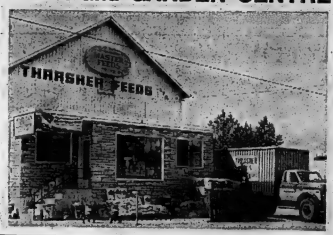
ANAF News

A half-dozen members of Unit 365 from Barrie were welcome guests of the Unit of Edinburgh Unit a week ago. They will be hosts to the 1971 Provincial Convention and Provincial President, Leo J Murphy, suggested to their president, Stu Robertson, that a talk with this Unit's convention committee for 1969 might be very helpful and make the trip worthwhile.

Almost a year ago, the ANAVETS, at the invitation of the American Legion and West Point, selected two youths from across Canada for a trip to Washington and a week's study at West Point. One of these was a Belleville boy, Doug Nickle, son of Comrade Bill Nickle and a lad from Toronto went with him. They made such a good impression that another invitation was received and one boy was selected from Winnipeg and the other, a member of the only Allied Boy Scout troop in Canada, is from Calgary. Good luck to them both.

A request has been made by J. Smith, 311 Haig Road, Belleville, to ask any veterans in the Quinte area who were decorated by Queen Wilhemina of the Netherlands, to let him know or send him their names and addresses for his records. He has two but thinks there are more.

Lt. Col. Ross Allan, O. C. Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, received a very gracious letter from the Burgomaster of Appeldoorn in Holland, a name that became familiar at the end of World War I when Kaiser Wilhelm fled there for sanctuary when his forces were defeated. The letter recalled that on April 17, 1945, the Regiment succeeded in finally capturing the town and was joyfully welcomed by the inhabitants after more than five years of hardship and suffering at the hands of the Germans. They held celebrations every year and honor the men of the Regiment who fell in this action and, this coming 25th anniversary, the burgomaster felt he must write the present Regiment to let them know that the people of Appledoorn will always remember with devout thanks their Canadian liberators.



All veterans are asked to attend the drumhead service on the Armory lawn on Sunday, May 3. Fall in at 1.30 p.m.; dress, berets and medals.

The men's social evening was a big success with plenty of fun, entertainment and prizes. Winner of the big prize was Cdr. J. Howis, while the following also took nice prizes: Cdsr. K. Wager, R. Bird, R. Garvin, E. Brooks and Greg Ackerman. Ticket No. 18 also won a prize and he can pick up his prize from stewards, on or before next Saturday.

World War I veteran, Cdr. A. Brown died last week. Dom. Pres. J. C. Lundberg read the ANAF funeral service and members formed a guard of honor.

In EGH, T. Decock and R. Wood. In BGH, R. Bates and A. Austin. At home J. McNaught, S. Fuse and B. Foster. All have been looked after.

Apartment Living Trend Apparent in Quinte

Today's trend is toward apartment living!

At least it is for many families in the low and medium income groups who feel they cannot afford the high interest rates involved in purchasing a home of their own.

With today's prices they find it difficult to come up with the required down payment, and the regular monthly payments.

And in the first place they may not ever qualify for an NHA mortgage with which to purchase a new home.

In any event the trend to apartment living is clearly indicated by the number of apartment units being constructed in comparison to single family dwellings.

For several years there has been an influx of apartment construction with six - plexes and 12-plexes springing up in different parts of the city.

Currently under construction is the new 82-unit apartment atop the hill on Bridge Street West. Completion is scheduled for some time during the summer.

Also under construction at the moment is an apartment structure on King George Square. Several 12-plex apartments have been constructed in the Progress Avenue area immediately west of Sidney Street and north of the CN double tracks. And more apartments are planned for the same area.

Also planned for construction this year are two new senior citizens' apartment buildings.

One of these will be built on Turnbull Street adjacent to the present senior citizens' residence and the other in Palmer Heights where an 88-unit building is expected to start shortly.

And unless costs for serviced land can be reduced to allow for lower housing costs the trend to apartment living is almost certain to be increased.

Quinte Home Builders have been able to make a slight dent in land servicing costs by having the local planning board and city council approve smaller building lots and reduced set-backs for some subdivisions.

This means that more houses can be built in a given area allowing for servicing costs being reduced accordingly.

The idea is that with smaller building lots and smaller houses a young family in the low and medium income group will be able to afford a new home of its own.

Another way of reducing the cost of serviced land is to construct more duplexes. Also condominiums could be constructed with occupants making arrangements to purchase the units in which they are living.

This like apartment construction would lower the servicing costs and at the same time allow occupants to own their own homes.

Low Rental Town Housing

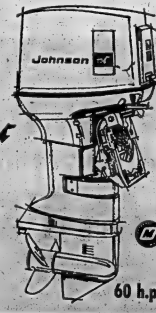
Six town houses with a total of 39 apartment units are currently under construction on North Park Street by Ontario Housing Corporation, which is also building similar accommodation on the Pine Street extension. Each townhouse contains from five to eight apartments with rentals on a geared to income basis.

Buying Home

Equity Is the Key

In recent times, any drop in prices is but temporary. Prices — and those of houses and land in particular — have shown a constant upward trend.

"With the increasing urbanization of the Western World, there is no reason to see any change in this trend," said Gerald Joyce, a member of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board.



Say that, for example, today a man buys a house and obtains a mortgage with a 25-year amortization. Amortization simply means that at set monthly payments, the mortgage will be retired within the indicated term.

"In other words, 20 years from now, he would still be making the same monthly mortgage payment, while all other goods and services would have greatly increased," said the spokesman.

"To give you some idea of what can happen even within a 10-year period. Consider for a minute that a dollar invested about 10 years ago would now, return about $2.00. The same dollar if, for example, it were hidden away in a sock, would be worth 20 per cent less than it was then.

"By buying a home, you are creating equity in real estate. Your monthly rent payments do not at any time build equity. At the end of the mortgage term, you will not only have had adequate housing at a lower price than you can otherwise obtain, you will also own a solid investment whose value will slowly increase as the years go by," said the board spokesman.

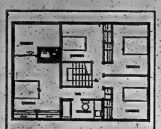
Location Is Vital in House Selection

Of all the factors involved in selecting a home, perhaps location receives the most consideration.

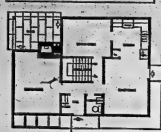
This is one factor about which very little can be done once the property is purchased. A one-storey house can be turned into a two-storey with alterations, and a garage can be added.

According to Gordon Woods, Vice-president of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board, the owner of a potential dreamhouse would be unhappy if the neighborhood was not suited to his likes and needs.

To avoid this mistake the spokesman suggests, "When selecting a home, try for an overall impression of the neighborhood. Does it seem the sort of place in which you would like to stay for any period of time? Are the grounds well maintained? Do the houses have a neat appearance?



"Do the houses on the street look as though they go together? They need not all be the same, but should be roughly within the same price range and have compatible styles. For example, do not make the mistake of purchasing a $25,000 home in a $15,000 area. On resale, the owner could lose money.



"One cause of wide variance among houses in the same neighborhood is overimprovement. This is where the owner spent more money on the house in recreations and additions than can be regained on a resale. Rather than buy a $15,000 house with $5,000 worth of improvement for $20,000, most people would prefer to buy a $20,000 house," said the spokesman.

"You should also consider the areas adjacent to your neighborhood. For example, is it necessary to pass through very unplanned areas to reach the house? Also, is there any likelihood that your neighborhood is in the path of new developments which will make radical changes in the communityt?"

"Families with children must consider additional factors. What is the traffic flow like past the house? Children are particularly heedless of traffic and you would not want to expose them to unnecessary hazards. Both public and high schools should be located within walking distance."

"Before buying, be sure that you are familiar with the various zoning bylaws that could influence your district. If there are any large undeveloped areas close by, find out just what sort of development could be built on them. Zoning bylaws can also be important in you for your own property. You may buy a home with the intention of certain renovations and find that the zoning bylaws make these impossible," realtors point out.

The larger family will appreciate this four-bedroom, two-storey house designed by architect G. E. Hacker of Vancouver.

The main bedroom, which features the luxury of its own fireplace and balcony, is well separated from the children's bedrooms. A kitchen-family room, directly accessible from the carport, is also well separated from the living room.

Ample space is provided in the basement for a recreation room, workroom, storage and laundry. The exterior is simple yet, attractive. The best lighting will be obtained if the front entrance faces north.

The floor area is 1,680 square feet, excluding the carport, and the exterior dimensions are 36 feet six inches by 36 feet four inches. Working drawings for this house, known as Design 614, can be obtained from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation at a moderate cost.

Board Can't Afford Filling School Position Vacant Year

The pinch of a hold-the-line educational budget for 1970 is already being felt.

Monday night, Hastings County Board of Education decided not to go ahead with hiring a controller of plant — a position vacant for almost a year.

The board had recently interviewed several candidates for the position and found several promising applicants.

The official reason administration gave for recommending that the position not be filled was that "none of the applicants appears to be appropriate for the present conditions."

Trustee Everett Fairman translated this to mean that "there's so little money the right man would be frustrated."

"A good man can save his salary several times over," commented Macdonald Smith of Belleville.

Director of education Eric Ramsden told the board it still needed a controller of plant, but "it's a matter of priorities."

He said the present staff, under assistant controller George Umb, could handle the department under the new low budget for plant operation and maintenance.

But hiring a controller would have to be reconsidered in October or November.

Mr. Fairman called for saving some of the proposed salary for the controller (about $18,000) "to get work done that we've already approved."

He gave widening of the door of the auto shop at SCI to permit getting modern cars into the building as an example.

Although the board voted against hiring a controller, it sanctioned hiring an additional secretary for the plant department and agreed to engage consultants from time to time for specific purposes if the need arises.

Conservation Authority Suggests Litter Cleanup Day in June

A litter labor day with schools, boy scouts and girl guides invited to take part, will be sponsored this year by the Moira River Conservation Authority.

Conservation Week this year runs from June 13-21.

Plans for the Conservation Week program were outlined recently by Mrs. Robin Jeffrey, chairman of the authority's education and information advisory committee.

Mrs. Jeffrey said the litter labor day would initiate the week - long program. School children, scouts and guides in the watershed would be invited to clean up litter in their own areas.

Also in the planning stage as part of the week's program is the visit of senior citizens to the old O'Hara Mill site northwest of Madoc.

Boy scouts camping facilities at Camp Sagamanda in the Col. Vandervoort conservation area park near Thomasburg, will be used this year for overnight use by schools taking part in conservation school activities.

Belleville public school principal Bert Frink told the information and education advisory board of the Moira River Conservation Authority last night that at least four schools would use the scout camping facilities at the park.

To date arrangements have been made for approximately 1,500 public school children to visit the Vandervoort Park during the one-day conservation school visits. Another 200 pupils will visit the old O'Hara Mill site northwest of Madoc.

Pupils from four schools, Parkdale, Prince Charles and Queen Elizabeth in Belleville and from one school in Trenton will stay overnight in semi-cabins the night prior to their conservation school visit.

Bruce Thompson, representative of the Belleville and District Boy Scout Association which owns the scout camping facilities at the Vandervoort Park, said the association was happy to permit use of the scout facilities by school children.

"It means that they would be in use throughout the week instead of just on weekends," he said.

Take Training

SHUBENACADIE, N.S. (CP) — Thirty-seven Micmac men and women on the Shubenacadie Indian reserve here are taking basic training for skill development courses in the village school. The courses in mathematics, science and English communications are designed to provide the necessary academic standards for future skill training. They are sponsored by the federal and provincial governments.

Red Shield Blitz Night

TWEED — An organizational meeting for the Salvation Army's annual Red Shield Campaign took place last week at the Tweed Canadian Legion Hall.

Reeve Barbara Allen, the treasurer, Red Shield chairman, chaired the meeting, and present were: Mrs. George Cope and Mrs. Ballantyne from the Kinette Club of Tweed; Leg Brady, Canadian Legion representative; Harry Thompson of Rivards Club, Tweed; Rev. V. Ennis of the Anglican Church, Brig. H. Sberg [Dir. Commander of the Salvation Army, mid - Ontario Division]; Mr. and Mrs. Archie Sinclair, Junior and Captain D. May of the local Salvation Army Corps.

It was decided that a "Blitz" would be held in Tweed and Elzaden June 1, 1970, for the campaign. Canvassers are needed and anyone willing to help out in this way is asked to contact Mrs. George Cope or Leo Brady.

The campaign committee also includes general chairman to be announced later; residential chairman, Mrs. George Cope; industrial and business chairman, Leo Brady; campaign treasurer, D. Lindsay and campaign director Captain D. May.

Five Pitfalls

Avoid These Mistakes in Buying Home

Many of the mistakes made by first time home buyers can easily be avoided. According to Tom Bennett, a member of the Belleville and District Real Estate Board there are five areas, familiar with anyone purchasing a home without professional help.

New home buyers often:

● Overestimate the size of mortgage that they can comfortably carry. They forget that room allowance must be made for later maintenance.

● Do not call the questions that, get right down to specific details. They discuss vague possibilities and leave with no more information than they had upon arrival.

● Buy a home too small to start with. They practice this when economy by purchasing a home too small for them and find themselves forced to move to a much shorter time period than they would otherwise.

● Assume that the house is in good shape, simply because it appears so. The new home buyer tends to take far too much for granted.

● Buy a house as far out of the city that any resale is extremely difficult. "All these mistakes are completely unnecessary," said the spokesman.

"When purchasing any home always consult a member of your local real estate board. They are all trained professionals, who daily deal with problems that keep the inexperienced," said the spokesman.

Not Quite in Perspective

Sanitary sewer tiles seem out of proportion in above picture of Village Drive housing subdivision. Six houses in new subdivision, west of Sidney Street are now nearing completion.

Medic Alert Campaign Undertaken

The Quinte Life Underwriters have taken on a life saving project.

They are sponsoring Medic Alert in this area — a worthy system designed to alert police and first aid personnel of potentially fatal afflictions that after treatment in emergency situations.

A person with a chronic disease, or who is exposed to an occupational hazard such as deep diving, or who is taking certain medications, registers the details of his condition with Medic Alert. He is issued with a warning bracelet or "dog tag", to wear at all times. An accompanying record card, detailing treatment in case of emergency, is also issued for carrying in a wallet.

The procedure - with Medic Alert's premises already served countless lives, and the underwriters are beginning a campaign to see that all eligible people in the Quinte district are accorded the same protection.

Maintenance-Free Windows Eliminate Many Chores

In the remodeling vernacular, modernization has come to mean low - maintenance.

This benefit has long been sought by the consumer. Now thanks to advanced engineering, technology and manufacturing techniques in the building products industry, such that emphasize beauty and eliminate upkeep are readily obtainable.

A good example is the availability of maintenance - free window units in most popular window styles. Windows featuring a rigid vinyl cladding over a preservative-treated wood core are marketed. Exterior surfaces do not need painting, and will not pit, rust or corrode. Welded insulating glass is standard — eliminating the need for storm sash, and reducing window washing chores by half.

A rigid vinyl glazing bead (which does away with reputtying) and removable vinyl grilles (which don't need painting and simplify window cleaning) complete the low-maintenance picture.

Of particular interest to home remodelers in the range of styles. Included are: casement, awning and fixed - sash windows, gliding glass patio doors, and the latest addition — the Perma Shield Narrowline (a double hung unit with the look of wood that doesn't need painting for at least ten years). This design variety makes easy - care windows practical for every room and any house style.

The Eureka Vibra-Beat makes other vacuum cleaners look like brooms

A true canister cleaner should do more than just clean the surface of your carpets.

Which is why we think our Vibra-Beat feature is a big deal.

Simply, it vibrates 2,210 times each minute. So it shakes and beats out deeply embedded dirt. And it fluffs and raises the nap.

The adjustable brushes then take over and whisk up anything on the surface.

And that's not all. When the Vibra-Beat's bag is full, a buzzer rings and an indicator shows red. There's a power suction selector, a two-speed motor, a step-on toe switch, easy-roll wheels and automatic cord rewind.

We make a number of models. The Vibra-Beat is one of them.

You'll like it . . . unless you prefer to sweep your carpets.

The very best in vacuum cleaners

City Program Desirable

Now Is the Time to Spruce Up Household

By HARRY MULHALL
Staff Reporter

The time is now for declaring war on homefront shabbiness and springcleaning householders are answering the call.

In coming weeks homeowners will divert much of their energy to the chore of sprucing up their domestic holdings.

But what about the community?

Asit Lloyd Syer, As superintendent of Belleville's city parks system, he has the most involved springtime spruce-up task of all.

But, he believes, the community could benefit from a slight diversion of the annual energy output citizens spend on their own properties.

If residents of a community volunteered just one day of their time to a general clean-up campaign of their hometown, the results could be startling.

"The ideal is to have an over-all 'Cleanup Day,'" he explains, "where we could get down and tidy up creeks and river banks and so on.

"We could stand thousands of people just picking up bits of paper and wood."

Landscaping and greenery layouts aren't the sole means of improving the looks of a company, he indicates.

"Even if you haven't got trees or anything else planted, if you just get your surroundings cleaned up it does so much to improve the appearances of the city," says Mr. Syer.

Such a project might strike a more responsive common chord among the population these days.

The upswing in public concern over western adenas of environment might make such a project more feasible today than years ago.

Stepped-up public involvement with environmental issues is a welcome sign for officials like the parks superintendent whose profession is closely linked to preservation and restoration of nature's own landscaping designs.

"The next 10 years could be fantastic for our environment," believes Mr. Syer.

"We've found that carelessly we are going to have to use our intelligence and education to live a little bit tidier and cleaner from now on."

In that decade the city's park system also will see much expansion; more parkland will be necessary to balance increased urban and industrial growth.

Greenbelt growth has not been exceptional in Belleville until recent years. City parks now total about 220 acres — although the acreage is slowly spreading.

At first glance the problem might seem historically eccentric.

After all, the Belleville area was originally pioneered by United Empire Loyalists, people with an affinity for the land and pastoral surroundings.

But, points out Mr. Syer, such a tradition might actually discourage greenbelt planning in smaller urban areas.

Once upon a time the country was only a few blocks away. Bellevillans had little need for park areas, he says.

Today, the countryside still is available by car — although it is receding and changing rapidly as urban living transforms forever natural topography.

"But when the day comes when we have to drive for half an hour or an hour to reach rural spaces then we'll start to feel our necks," believes the superintendent.

Hence, continued purchase of land for park areas is a necessity, he believes.

"Places like Toronto, for instance, have let a situation like that go on over the years. Now they have to buy parkland at high prices, and often in non-preferred locations."

Eventually, says Mr. Syer, regional planning would create the ideal situation for spotting parklands.

Lack of such planning is not confined to Ontario, but is a "world-wide deficiency," he says.

Pressurized Roller

Give your walls a new look the easy way with this new roller. A harmless gas pressure forces the paint from the can through a plastic hose to the roller, eliminating dipping, stooping and dripping.

Rock Drilling on Village Drive

Rock makes a good base for housing foundations, but it runs up costs for installation of services. Here a pneumatic drill bores into rock on the north extension of Village Drive where a new subdivision is taking shape.

Stocks Up Sharply On New York Mart

NEW YORK (AP) — After three straight days of stiff profit taking, the New York stock market hardened yesterday in its biggest gains of the year in heavy trading by brokerage firms.

The Dow Jones industrial average advanced 12.66 points to 727.39 for the best day since March 25, when the Dow jumped 14.37 points after the country's biggest banks cut their prime interest rate.

However, a morning rally ended with news that the United States would provide advisers and tactical air strikes for South Vietnamese operating in Cambodia. In the next hour the average fell nearly 11 points before it turned around again.

"The market is as damned nervous that it blows these things out of proportion," said analyst Charles M. Lewis of Treves and Co.

New York economist Pierre Rinfret, a former Nixon campaign adviser, warned that set escalation of the war in Southeast Asia would mean worsened inflation and "the end of the American economy as we have known it."

Two little-noticed indicators gave a further clue to troubled U.S. business conditions—a rise in factory layoffs and a drop in help-wanted newspaper ads.

Rinfret's view was challenged by Treasury Undersecretary Charles Walker, who asserted at a seminar both attended:

"I believe this administration is about to pull off the hat trick of economic history—restoring price stability after four years of inflation, without an old-fashioned recession or an unacceptable level of unemployment."

The labor department said factory layoffs during March rose to a seasonally adjusted rate of 18 per 1,000 employees—the highest in six years.

Only the name was changed to protect the famous maker!

Once A Garage

Now a bright and sunny garden room, thanks to the homemakers' use of three inexpensive materials: free-standing louvred screens, a fabric wall at right, and an outdoor carpet (beautifully at home indoors) installed over the concrete slab subfloor.

Transform A Room

If you are like many homemakers, you may have a "white elephant" of a room which can be transformed into a room more suited to your needs. One couple wanted a garden room, warm and welcoming.

Three homemakers used three inexpensive materials to finish the interior surfaces of what used to be a garage. The result: treated new living space, a bright and sunny garden room. Free-standing louvred screens, a fabric wall, and an outdoor carpet installed over the concrete slab subfloor complete the transformation.

An all painting set to the mood of the room. Bold in scale, arresting in treatment of its subject, its colors are subdued, yet rich . . . earth tones combined with slate blues and grays.

The fabric used on the lawn furniture is bold, too. Oversblown hibiscus in blue and white repeat the colors of the painting. This floral fabric, the fresh-cut flowers on the see-through table, and the potted yucca add a reminder of the outdoors which is appropriate to the use of the room.

The fourth element also has an outdoor aura to it. That is the weatherproof carpet on the floor. It has been designed to be rugged enough for the outdoors, but elegant enough to be used anywhere indoors, too.

The ruggedness required for outdoor use comes from its ribbon-type poly propylene pile yarns, the color-fast, sunproof dyes and the all-synthetic high - density foam back that eliminates the need for extra underpadding.

Cassettes Are Convenient

Remember Music When Remodelling

If you're remodeling the family room, den or home entertainment area, don't forget an accessory that can bring hours of convenient pleasure — a stereo cassette deck for your music system.

Cassettes, the newest phenomenon of the entertainment scene, are tiny plastic boxes about the size of a pack of cigarets and half as thick. They hold up to an hour of recorded music on each side.

And, versatile cassette recorder/players are easy to use. You just pop a cassette into the machine, press a button and you have music. Some decks hold several cassettes and play them one after the other for several hours of uninterrupted music.

Cassette decks play through existing stereo systems.

Many AM/FM tuners have connections for decks, making it convenient to add components, like decks with no holder. With a cassette deck you can also record favorite sounds or family voices.

More and more entertainment is happening on cassettes as manufacturers license their cassette music libraries. So you can get music that ranges from complete operas to solid rock to popular ballads.

Styling is important for that new room, and cassette decks come in handsome compact cases designed to fit most any decorating scheme.

Get your own bandwagon with a cassette deck. Prices are moderate for quality equipment. Cassette is the today way to good music and convenience.

A room as attractive as this is bound to be enjoyed — and cared for — by the youngster who's lucky enough to own it. Prefinished hardboard wall panels create a contemporary atmosphere — and take hard abuse. Functional built-in furniture and easy-care fabrics complete the high-style, low-care look.

Make A Beatnik Into A Neatnik

Want your son to be a neatnik? Give him a room he can relate to. If a young man's room is "square" lacks space for record collections, sports equipment, and hobby paraphernalia, or just doesn't turn him on, chances are he'll spend as little time as possible there and have no interest in keeping it clean.

But if the room's attractive, comfortable and contemporary, he may actually want to live it looking that way.

Here are some hints on converting a beatnik pad into a neatnik room:

Give him a voice in the room decoration — he's the one who has to "live" with furnishings and color schemes.

Use attractive materials that can take the hard use they're bound to get. Prefinished hardboard wall panels, for example, come in a variety of handsome woodgrains, interesting textures, and colors with youth appeal. They also resist dents, mars and scuffs and can be cleaned with a damp cloth.

Provide plenty of storage space. Youngsters tend to be "collectors", so storage is essential for neatness. A good idea is to install a section or two of perforated hardboard paneling, which accepts hooks from which all sorts of items can be hung and brackets on which to mount shelves. The panels also make excellent display walls for special treasures a youngster will want to "show off."

Use built-in furniture where feasible. It's functional, modern, and generally more appealing to youngsters than heavy conventional furniture.

Use easy-care floor coverings, and curtains, bedspreads and chair covers you can throw in the washing machine. A youngster's room is no place for fragile fabrics.

Make your bathroom a beautiful place to be in and make sure of a beautiful complexion by regularly using antibacterial soap.

Pamper Yourself With Bathroom Accessories

Bathrooms have certainly come a long way since the Greeks and Romans perfected the bathing ritual about 2,000 years ago. Yet even today, bathrooms all too often are drab, cold and uninviting. There's really no excuse why the bathroom shouldn't be a haven for relaxing, dreaming and, most important, a place where you can pamper yourself with "delicious" beauty routines.

The bathroom has become the most talked - about room in the home. There are innovations that can change the pattern of your entire life!

You can buy baths and basins in almost any shade of the rainbow; toilet seats decorated with brightly colored flowers, and you can cover the walls with tiles from mosaic to modern art.

You can relax in a whirlpool bath, or soak in the bubbles while manicuring or reading with a fold-down tray that hides all the accoutrements of a true bathing centre.

French designers have been called upon to design such exciting goodies as see-through shower curtains and space-age looking towels and bathmats. In keeping with the trend you can fill your bathroom with gadgets like electric toothbrushes, lighted make-up mirrors, instant hair-setters and facial saunas. The cosmetic counters overflow with wonders for washing and bathing—from scented bubble beads to tempting talcs.

But there's one basic necessity that no well-dressed bathroom can be without — soap! Nowadays, with such a wide range of toilet soaps to choose from it's often difficult to know which one to buy.

Every member of the family needs a soap that is best for his or her particular needs. The solution is available in the form of an anti-bacterial and deodorant soap.

It will also help reduce the likelihood of externally caused blemishes (perfect for teenage complexions), and it is also an effective deodorant. Lightly perfumed, it is mild and has a soft creamy lather; comes in complexion and bath size, in beige, pink and white.

So if you haven't, start transforming your bathroom into a really special place, then get "with it" and make it not just a beautiful room, but a room that you can become "beautiful" in.

Boeing Boeing A Boff

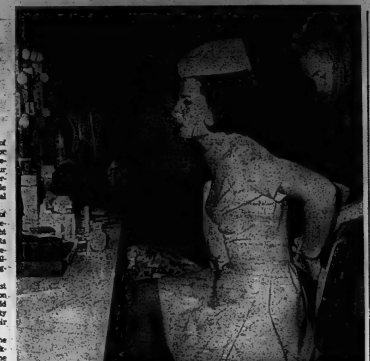
By BARRY GRILLS
Staff Reporter

It was the beginning of the end — last night for Arts Festival '70, but the beginning of a sparkling four nights of theatrical entertainment by the Belleville Theatre Guild at Centennial Secondary School.

The guild's presentation of Marc Camoletti's "Boeing Boeing, which opened last night as the final event of Arts Festival '70, was, as previously publicity stated, hilarious — subtly and outrageously.

The lively comedy was just another cultural contribution to Belleville by the guild that testifies to the vitality and professionalism of their productions.

Boeing Boeing courted the audience at first with snickers and then sent them home with roars of laughter. The enthusiasm of the performers made it the most hilarious comedy of the season.



On top of that, Belleville Theatre Guild produced artistic director Roy Higgins, who directed the production with co-director Claude Marquis, added some new technical wrinkles that testified once more to his aptitude for creativity.

Mr. Higgins organized the installation of a two-level screen over the actual set on which two slide projectors cast pictures germane to the play.

The slides gave the credits at the start of the play and throughout, during scene changes and intermissions, kept audience interest high showing informal flying lithostones and stories of the actors themselves.

All this was coupled with the theme music for the play, "Got a Feeling", by the Mamas and Papas.

Even the music served to centralize the plot of the play. John Phillips' lyrics, Marthe Farag, who plays the French airline stewardess in the Belleville Theatre Guild's play, Boeing, Boeing, receives some sipper assistance from makeup artist, Gail McDermott.

"Got a feeling that you're playing games with me, babe" exposed the plot in a nutshell.

The story surrounds a handsome playboy — played by Peter Hicks — who has set himself up as the fiance of three different airline hostesses. He ensures the safety of each as set by being engaged to hostesses from three different airlines and maintains his polygamous security by keeping an airline timetable.

Playing the stewardesses are Sheila McIntyre, the American, Marthe Farag, the French girl, and Sandra Forte the German.

Rene Robertson is outstanding as the bedraggled and allto involved housekeeper.

Producing the play was Lois Summerville with Bob Lawton and Nick Doorlous acting as stage manager and assistant stage manager.

The set was designed by Scenemgd.

Lindsay Hallam and Ted Demorest and constructed by Friday and Saturday nights at Great Maidment and Frank Centennial Secondary School.

STOP KILLING YOURSELF

By Peter J. Steincrohn, M.D., F.A.C.P.
Author of "The Doctor Looks At Life"

Nibbling Suspect In Overweight

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I last my husband quite suddenly about three years ago. In about 2½ years I have gained 40 pounds. When I told my doctor how little I eat he smiled and said, "Sure you do." I know he doesn't believe me.

I work in an office and in my home and never stop running. I am as active as any 46 - year - old can be. I look awful and have never been so heavy as this in all my life. Please tell me what to do! — Mrs. H.

Comment: Your doctor undoubtedly knows what he believes that when there is a weight increase the reason is usually an increase in calorie intake. Some people eat more than they realize.

They will use their will power when they sit down for their regular meals, but unconsciously nibble themselves between meals. In plain words, they gobble all day — and all the time they think they're on a diet.

I recall a thin woman who put on over 75 pounds within one year. She was a widow and had received word that her only son had been captured during the Korean War. She used to come in for visits to Jess, but kept on gaining.

She swore that she ate very little at mealtimes. However, she admitted that she nibbled between meals because she was the lonely and nervous about her boy. She didn't know the proverbial dance made on my diet and medication.

One day she received word that her son was exchanged and was returning home. From that time on she lost weight steadily, and within six months was back to her former normal weight.

Perhaps, Mrs. H., you are a nibbler, too. The sudden death of your husband, like an explosion, set off a daily, recurring tension which caused you to eat the same load of calories which pile on the excess weight.

You can't blame tell me what to do." From way back here, this is my first suggestion: look at the most complete food intake during the 24 hours. Your 6 pounds of extra weight can come only from excess calories.

Not until you overcome your tension will you stop nibbling. This is only a guess, but I have observed it often enough to be quite sure that you are correct to such an extent though you still think you are a light eater.

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: My doctor said, "You've got shingles. It will last a while and the older you are the less nerves it is." I'm 53. I guess he's right. It hurts like the devil. Is there any medicine that will help? — Mrs. Y.

Comment: Your doctor is right. Shingles (herpes zoster) can be quite painful and stubborn in the elderly. There is no specific treatment; although your doctor will prescribe medication that will diminish the burning and pain until the caused affliction leaves.

• • •

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: Isn't cigar smoking as bad as cigarettes? The doctor told my husband he'd have to quit cigarettes. He did quit, then he used snuff for a while and he quit that.

Now he is smoking cigars all day because he has heard that cigars are not bad. He clears his throat and coughs now just as much as when he smoked cigarettes. I'm worried. What do you think? — Mrs. M.

Comment: Instead of saying better give up cigarettes I think we rather should say, "Give up smoking." Too many think that cigars are the lesser of the two evils — or not as evil at all.

Many cigar smokers inhale more than they realize. Too many cigar smokers are too heavy for their own good. In spite of reassuring statistics, I believe that cigars are "bad," too.

Questions and Answers On Highway Travel

Ontario Motor League
Eastern Ontario Club

QUESTION: At what age do you require a fishing license in Ontario?

ANSWER: As of January 1, 1969, any male 19 years old or older requires a fishing license to fish in Ontario. This costs $2 and is good for a year.

QUESTION: Is it against the law to hitch-hike across Canada?

ANSWER: The western provinces including British Columbia, but not the Yukon, allow hitch-hiking at present, but perhaps not for long. Such restrictions are unlikely in Ontario, Quebec and all Maritime provinces frown upon pedestrians walking on certain roads. Many roads have "no hitch-hiking" signs posted. In Ontario it is prohibited on the Queen Elizabeth Way, 400 and 401. A would-be hitch-hiker would be advised to check with the department of highways of each province and follow routes upon which pedestrians are not forbidden.

Anyone driving to the Maritimes this summer will be struck by the number of highway driving by taking a ferry from Portland, Maine, to Yarmouth, Nova Scotia.

The Prince of Fundy, which should be in operation in June, will carry 1,000 passengers and 300 cars. It has sun decks, cafe, a cafeteria and bar, a dining room and a duty-free gift shop. Cost of a one-way trip will be $32 for a car and one passenger. Berth rates run from $4 to $16. The ferry trip will take 10 hours, which is faster than the route it will be driven.

QUESTION: We heard there was a game farm near Hamilton, where there are lions roaming free. Could you tell us how to get there and the hours it is open to the public also, admittance fee for adult and children?

ANSWER: This is called the 450 acre African Lion Safari and Game Farm, a few miles northwest of Hamilton near Rockton. You and the children can drive right in among the lions in your family car and watch the lions from there, in a way. The only precaution is to keep your windows rolled up and your doors locked. Anyone stepping out of the car could be killed very quickly. Convertibles are not allowed. From the safety of your car you can watch them going about their lives as they would on the plains of Africa. Many of the 52 lions at African Lion Safari are young and frisky so you can see them fighting, have food, wrestling and free climbing. They expect to have other animals there this summer such as a tiger, zebras, giraffes and cheetahs. There is the pet's corner where you can pet lion cubs, goats, sea lions, deer, etc.

The park is on the 401 north and at least before 2 p.m. They feed the lions about that time and the action can be frantic.

Cost of taking a car full of people through the lion section is $4. The park is open weekdays from 1 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. and on Saturday and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. but later in the summer the hours will extend from 10 a.m. to 6:30 p.m.

Take the 401 west from Toronto to highway 24, turn south through Galt to highway 8, then turn east to highway 52 and north to the park: it is about 70 miles west of Toronto.

"Laid lightly into the land" is the way the National Park Service describes the road systems which make Canada's parklands accessible to the public.

This means that even the newest roads were different — and call for different driving considerations than others in the country.

Cuts and fills necessary to construct level, high - speed highways ordinarily are not made in natural resources lands. Park roads are designed to do minimum damage to landscape. Such roads are winding, often hilly, and they narrow unexpectedly from place to place.

Frequently the roads are routed off a straight line simply because a change in direction will open superior view or natural curiosity closer for the motorists' appreciation.

Because road features are complicated and because there is so much to see, drivers go slow on park roads. These roads are for leisurely driving. Drivers in a hurry would do better to take another route and come back to enjoy the park when there's more time. Scenic roads are not constructed for high speed travel. Change in conditions from freeway to park road is very noticeable, and the slower traffic is frustrating to hurried drivers, who then can become annoying to other road users.

National Park Service urges drivers entering a park to be prepared to travel slow, slow down and enjoy the surroundings."

Jean Dixon's Horoscope

For May 1

Your birthday today: This is a year of normal, healthy striving for all ages. Material resources must be earned and distributed with greater than usual care. Plans must be emotionally revised to fit changing conditions. Some of them very fast-breaking, some of them in surprising new areas of effort. Emotional needs change and friends grows and is returned in kind.

ARIES (Mar. 21 — Apr. 19): In a morning of complicated decision-making, look at the facts and expose secret conditions. When unforeseen opposition arises, don't let the matter stand on its own merits.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 — May 20): Friends bring you an unusual controversial information there is no way of knowing for sure what to believe at the moment. Make plenty of notes; compare stories later.

GEMINI (May 21 — June 20): Put your main energy into your work early. When family and personal issues come on later to distract you, enough should have already been done for the day.

CANCER (June 21 — July 22): Patience with friends and relatives will be well rewarded. Many favorable agreements are now under way; give them time to take form.

LEO (July 23 — Aug. 21): Consultations on all subjects except money run smoothly. A material issues much tact is needed. Get all deals settled as early as you can.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 — Sept. 22): Intellectual pursuits absorb all your attention today. Offering unasked information or explanations may start a limited difference between people, make bad blood between you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 — Oct. 23): It becomes clear that you have two other talents: reading minds and energy in argument makes matters worse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23—Nov. 21): Your own people are with you closely. Join forces to present a sound group impression. Correspondence, publishing, advertising activities, at whatever level you try to use them, all become important and sensitive to your efforts.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 — Dec. 21): Home and personal affairs take more of your time and energy than is convenient or profitable. Your satisfaction with attending to the settlement of small but long-standing disagreements makes it well worth the patience and energy needed.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 — Jan. 19): Close relations become tense and edgy. Use your mental talents; deal with more distant matters and people in farsighted ways.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 — Feb. 18): With just a little extra exertion a great improvement can begin. Long awaited information is near at hand; problems come true belatedly.

PISCES (Feb. 19 — Mar. 20): Nobody seems to be pleased today, but it is largely a matter of pausing enough and superficial appearance. Just do the best work you are capable of under the circumstances.

Virtue Likes Its Reflection

By SYDNEY J. HARRIS

Thoughts at Large:

One easy way to distinguish a virtue from a vice is that a virtue only becomes self-reflected in others — as generosity appreciates generosity — but a vice reseeks seeing itself reflected in others — as egotism cannot stand rival egotism.

Schreyer Rejects Opposition to Government Auto Insurance

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba's entry into compulsory government-run automobile insurance appeared all but certain Wednesday after Premier Ed Schreyer stood up to thousands of demonstrators at a rally on the legislature grounds.

He did not say so in so many words, but left little doubt in the minds of the crowd estimated by police at between 7,000 to 10,000 who turned out at the urging of the Insurance Agents' Association of Manitoba.

At one stage he told them, in effect, the only thing left to discuss is aid and retraining for those suffering dislocation in the private industry. "At another point, he seemed to indicate the New Democratic Party government is prepared to fight an election on the issue.

A promise to investigate the feasibility of government insurance was a platform plank of the NDP when it upset Walter Weir's Conservatives in last June's general election.

Last week a committee headed by Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley recommended a plan somewhat on the lines of that in Saskatchewan. There should be compulsory, government-operated basic coverage with supplementary coverage left to private firms.

A bill about automobile insurance has been placed on the legislature's order paper but contents have not been made public.

After the demonstration, the Conservative opposition sought unsuccessfully to adjourn the legislature for an emergency debate with a motion that also asked the bill be made public immediately.

Speaker Ben Hanuschak ruled it out of order and was upheld on a challenge by a vote of 27 to 24. Independent Gordon Beard (Churchill) and Liberal-Democrat Larry Desjardins (St. Boniface) voted with the 25 government members present.

Premier Schreyer told the crowd Wednesday there is general agreement insurance should be compulsory as a condition of driving, leaving government with the obligation to provide it as cheaply as possible.

"After considerable study and consideration we have reached the conclusion that there is no question but that under a public universal automobile insurance plan, it can be without any doubt at least 15 to 20 per cent cheaper."

Intelligencer Sports

BELLEVILLE, ONTARIO, THURSDAY, APRIL 20, 1972

by Maurice Switzer
Sports Editor

Facilities are what crowd out the wheat from the chaff when cities start bidding for major sports events.

Take away Montreal's Pan-Am stadium and regardless Olympic pool and she might as well let Minden for all international athletic organizations count.

The fact that Belleville has not been able to consider herself in the running for any major sporting events in the past should be a cause for this city's recreational concern.

Neighboring Kingston, meanwhile, may soon join the ranks of centres who can boast hiding hosts to international competitions.

* * *

Kingston is being linked with Montreal's bid for the 1976 Summer Olympics as a potential site for the Games' sailing program.

The Limestone city is fortunate in two respects. Firstly, they have one of the acknowledged fine yachting areas in the country. An established Yacht Racing Committee of spokesmen gave Kingston hopes a shot in the arm with his favorable comments in a Monday visit.

Also, Kingston has, in the sprawling Royal Military College and Queen's University campuses, a natural Olympic Village site, and Games organizers admit accommodation is almost as important a consideration as competition facilities.

Kingston's sailing appeal was no doubt boosted by the rousing success of last summer's CORK (Canadian Olympic-training Regatta, Kingston) which drew some 500 sailors to the Kingston Yacht Club waters.

This sort of news travels fast in sporting circles, and will undoubtedly stead Kingston in good stead, not only for her '76 Olympic bid, but for a crack at the 1973 Canada Summer Games.

* * *

Kingston city council is piling up the ammunition for that one, too. For openers, the federal and provincial governments have declared a policy of reserving the Canada Games for medium-sized centres, when possible.

The fact that 1973 happens to be the year Kingston celebrates her 200th anniversary will do no harm to her bid, either.

And the city's sport credentials — the athletics Memorial Centre, a handful of community arenas, not to mention the impressive Kingston Canoe and recreation facilities of Queen's and RMC — speak for themselves.

The benefits derived from a reputation as a good host can't be over-emphasized. Expo '67 changed Montreal's cross-Canada image as just another city in Quebec to one of the world's tourist capitals.

* * *

One thing that Kingston city councillors are realizing is that any hesitancies they might make towards a top-calibre competition would be as good as money in the bank.

The senior levels of government, federal and provincial, heartily subsidize host cities for the construction of new recreation areas or hosting fees for competing athletes.

And they don't tear them down when the competition is over.

Most Canadian cities, including Belleville, have received invitations to make their pitch for the '73 Canada Summer Games.

Belleville probably doesn't stand much of a chance at this stage in her recreational development, but the notion it can ever should be given more future consideration by city fathers.

Almost miraculously, two city groups have managed to land Belleville the first major sporting events in her history.

Saturday, May 13th, the British Commonwealth Games weightlifting trials will be held in the Centennial Secondary School auditorium. The selection of a meet as small as Belleville for the event — deciding on the Canadian Weightlifting Championships — is unprecedented and largely the result of persistent efforts by Apollo Barbell Club coach Ken Carr-Brainz.

* * *

Carr-Brainz, who has been named coach of the nine-member Canadian team to July's Commonwealth Games in Dublin, has given Belleville a name in weightlifting circles by producing a healthy number of provincial and national champions.

A month later, 60 of the continent's top small-circuit sailors will unfurl their mains and jibs off the government dock for the North American Albacore Championships.

Bay of Quinte Yacht Club Commodore Richard Bird is heading up the committee for the June 19-21 regatta, expected to draw entries from as far afield as Florida.

But both these athletic coups result from individual efforts on the part of two Belleville groups.

Who knows what can be accomplished by, as they say these days, "coming together".

Picton Foursome Top Roadrunners

TRENTON — A Prince Edward Collegiate quartet outdistanced a record field of 21 teams on Wednesday afternoon to score a successful title defence in the annual Belleville - to - Trenton high school relay race.

Lead Chris Crosbie, second Larry Ferguson, third Steve Bennett and anchor man Paul Cory led from start to finish to register a time of one hour, six minutes and two seconds.

They were just 26 seconds off the record they set last year despite a cool wind rain and 76 - degree temperatures, which hampered their efforts.

"I'm very pleased and surprised," said Picton track coach Pete Mowatt, "I didn't think they'd all run that well."

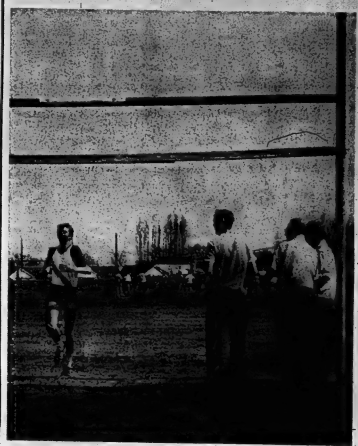
Picton anchor man Paul Cory agreed: "The heat slackened off the times, which would have been fast on a cooler day."

Crosbie held a narrow lead after the first three - mile leg, while Ferguson opened up a 600 - yard gap as Trenton and Quinte battered for the place positions, which Trenton eventually won by a one - minute and five - second margin.

Bennett held the Prince Edward lead in the third leg giving way to Cory who led the field trailing in his wake, stretching the Picton margin of victory to two minutes, 25 seconds.

Cory will be aiming for a triple when he enters Belleville's Ken Colling run.

Last year, he captured the annual race in his first attempt. Successive three-time Ken Colling winners keep the trophy.



Both Picton and Trenton teams have been training all winter, a fact which no doubt influenced their performances.

In all, 16 district high school were represented in the field of 21 teams.

Campbellford placed fourth, Norwood fifth, Cobourg East seventh, Belleville's Moira ninth and BCI tenth.

Brighton's best effort was 11th, while Albert College edged out another Brighton entry for 20th spot.

Trenton's "C" team and Quinte "B" squad came sixth and eighth respectively.

Prince Edward Collegiate anchor man, Paul Cory, reaches his goal — the goal line of Trenton High School — to cement his team's second consecutive victory in the annual Belleville-to-Trenton high school relay race. Cory and his teammates paced the 13-mile distance in a time of 1 hour, six minutes and 10 seconds, just 26 seconds off the record pace they set last year.

Dixie Ousts Mountain Bees

TORONTO (CP) — Vic Stanfield, who is to Dixie Beehives what Bobby Orr is to Boston Bruins, was in top form Wednesday night as Dixie defeated Hamilton Mountain Bees 7-4 to win the Ontario Hockey Association Junior B title.

Dixie took the best-of-seven series 4-1, with one game tied.

Stanfield averages 40 minutes of ice time a game. In addition to taking his regular turn on defence, he plays the point on power plays and is used at killing penalties.

Stanfield scored one goal and had two assists to lead the Beehives last night.

Birds Do Hitting with Bats, Red Sox, A's Play Beanball

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

It was just about a tossup which baseball team would be the first to get into a beanball game. Then Chicago White Sox pitcher Tommy John decided the issue.

John, who was the first pitcher to throw at a batter in the Baltimore Orioles-Chicago White Sox game Tuesday night, was the first to throw at a batter in the Boston Red Sox-Oakland Athletics game Wednesday night.

The Orioles contented themselves with legitimate hitting, using five home runs—three by Paul Blair—to bury Chicago White Sox 10-3.

The Red Sox and Athletics aimed at each other instead of the ball, with Boston pitcher Sonny Siebert and Oakland slugger Reggie Jackson the main participants in an old fashioned bean-ball war. When they got back to baseball, the Sox beat the Athletics 5-3.

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday, Detroit Tigers trimmed Kansas City Royals 8-2, Minnesota Twins blanked Cleveland Indians 1-0, Washington Senators shutout Milwaukee Brewers 4-0 and California Angels topped New York Yankees 3-2.

Blair, Ellie Hendricks and Boog Powell all walloped three-run homers for the Orioles, who sprayed 20 hits around Comiskey Park.

Siebert struck out nine batters in the first five innings but got himself thrown out of the Boston-Oakland game in the beanball melee.

It started when Oakland's Chuck Dobson hit Siebert with a pitch in the Red Sox's fifth, relieved Jackson.

Jackson was restrained by Umpire Bill Haller but the Oakland bench charged the mound and decked Siebert. Players poured on the field from both dugouts and bullpens and just when order seemed restored, Jackson charged through a crowd of players at Siebert and both went down in another brawl.

Siebert, Jackson, Oakland pitcher John Odom and Boston coach George Thomas all were thrown out of the game.

Veteran Willie Horton and rookie Elliott Maddox ripped home runs easing Detroit past Kansas City as the Royals suffered their seventh consecutive loss. Mike Kilkenny, who had worked only 1 1-3 innings all season before Wednesday, got credit for the victory with ninth inning help from Fred Lasher.

Stan Williams balked Jim Kaat out of a ninth inning jam and Minnesota added Cleveland on an unearned run.

Williams came in with runners on first and second and two out in the ninth and picked Tony Horton off second base to end the game.

Aurelio Rodriguez and Frank Howard hit homers and Dick Bosman mastered seven hits as Washington trimmed Milwaukee.

California beat New York with Andy Messersmith, Paul Doyle and Ken Tatum combining to limit the Yanks to seven hits.

Ken McMullen, who came to the Angels from Washington, drove in the deciding run with an eighth inning single as the Angels won in New York for the first time since Aug. 27, 1968.

Carty Makes It 19

Rico Carty claims he is not a streak hitter but National League pitchers haven't stopped the Dominican Dandy in three weeks.

Carty, whose ninth inning double got Atlanta a tie before the Braves exploded four more times in a 10-4 victory over St. Louis Cardinals Wednesday night, also extended his hitting streak to 19 games.

"I'm not a streak hitter," the 29-year-old Braves' left fielder said. "I don't know what kind of hitter I am."

Cards reliever Chuck Taylor found out in the ninth when Carty drilled a double to right, tying the game at 6-6 before Richie Allen's error on Felix Millan's bounder sent across the lead run.

Before the losing was over, Nelson Briles had wild pitched another run across and winning reliever Bob Priddy drove in the last pair with a single.

In other National League contests, Chicago Cubs belted Pittsburgh Pirates 10-5, Cincinnati Reds downed Houston Astros 5-3, Los Angeles Dodgers stopped Philadelphia 6-1, San Diego Padres thumped Montreal Expos 10-0 and San Francisco Giants edged New York Mets 8-6.

Billy Williams, playing in his 995th consecutive game, slammed a homer and single as the Cubs battered the Pirates, who had stopped their 11-game winning string Tuesday. Willie Stargell of Huntington, W. Va., is the quarter-finals today.

Campbell, Dale Morey, Bill Hyndman, Lanny Wadkins, Mike Kallan, Peter Green and John Birmingham advanced to the quarter-finals with two victories each in Wednesday's rounds. Morey meets Kallam, Wadkins faces Hyndman, and Green plays Birmingham in today's quarter-finals.

Hyndman and Wadkins were the only U.S. Walker Cup team members from last year left from a starting group of eight. Four went down to defeat in Wednesday's rounds.

Smith added a homer for the Cubs, his first. Williams' blast was his seventh of the season.

Cowan Moves Into Quarter-final With Two More Match Wins

PINEHURST, N.C. (CP-AP) — Gerry Cowan of Kitchener, 1966 United States amateur champion, won two matches Wednesday to move into the quarter-finals of the North and South Amateur golf tournament.

Cowan was five under par over the par-72, 7,051-yard Pinehurst Country Club course in his 4-and-2 victory over Jerry Courville of South Norwalk, Conn., in the fourth round.

In the third round, the Canadian defeated Jack Van Ess of Grand Rapids, Mich., 4 and 3.

Cowan goes against Bill Campbell of Huntington, W. Va., in the quarter-finals today.

Campbell, Dale Morey, Bill Hyndman, Lanny Wadkins, Mike Kallan, Peter Green and John Birmingham advanced to the quarter-finals with two victories each in Wednesday's rounds. Morey meets Kallam, Wadkins faces Hyndman, and Green plays Birmingham in today's quarter-finals.

Hyndman and Wadkins were the only U.S. Walker Cup team members from last year left from a starting group of eight. Four went down to defeat in Wednesday's rounds.

Knicks Need Overtime to Sink Lakers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York's Knickerbockers overcame a 55-foot last-second basket by Jerry West and went on to beat Los Angeles Lakers 111-108 in overtime Wednesday night to take a 2-1 lead in their best-of-seven National Basketball Association championship playoff.

Former Laker Dick Barnett proved the big man for New York's Eastern Division champions as he scored 11 points in the final quarter, then slammed home the final basket in the extra session that spelled defeat for the Lakers before 17,500 fans at the Forumdom.

New York appeared to have the game won in regulation time when Dave DeBusschere sank a field goal with less than two seconds remaining.

West, who scored 34 in defeat, lofted a truly desperate throw from backcourt that dropped through the basket as the buzzer went off for a 102-102 deadlock, sending the game into overtime.

Willis Reed, the game's high scorer with 38 points, was the man who finally sent the Knicks' backers into a 109-108, lead when he sank a free throw after Elgin Baylor's sixth personal foul of the game. It came with less than one minute left.

The Lakers missed their opportunity bringing the ball down court and Barnett popped in the key basket for his 18th point of the game and victory for the New Yorkers.

Los Angeles grabbed a 26-20 lead at the end of the first quarter and soared to a 56-42 margin at the half.

DeBusschere, Reed and Walt Frazier brought the Knicks back in the third quarter when they scored 26 points to 17 for the home club.

Chelsea Rally Wins FA Cup

MANCHESTER, England (CP) — Leeds United, described as "the greatest team in England not to win a trophy this season," was left with nothing but bitter memories today after being nosed out of the Football Association Cup after London's Chelsea crew.

In the first replay of a final for Britain's top soccer trophy since 1912, Chelsea came from behind here Wednesday night to edge Leeds 2-1 in a 30 minute overtime match. The teams had battled to a 2-2 draw at London's Wembley Stadium April 11 after a full hour of extra time.

Leeds' loss was the final frustration in a season of disappointments. At one time they seemed a cinch not only the FA Cup but the English League championship and the European Cup of Champions.

But they finished as league runners-up, and Glasgow Celtic upset them in the semi-final of the European tournament.

And there was double blow for Leeds' star centre-half Jack Charlton. He pulled a leg muscle in the game, making him uncertain as a starter for England's squad that leaves Monday for World Cup play in Mexico.

Charlton's injury may have cost Leeds the game. The winning goal 16 minutes before the end came on a long Chelsea throw-in near the Leeds goal. Charlton got his head to it but couldn't clear and David Webb headed it in as it bounced high in front of the goalmouth.

The Londoners had to come from behind three times—twice in the first game—before this clincher.

The Yorkshiremen were on top through most of the first half of regulation play and led 1-0 at its close. Mick Jones took a pass through from Allan Clarke, carried the ball between two defenders and fired it high into the net.

A few minutes before, Chelsea goalie Peter Bonetti had been felled in a mid-air collision with Jones and played the rest of the game with a knee heavily bandaged.

Chelsea got the equalizer with 15 minutes of regular time left as Peter Osgood ran in at high speed to take high centre from Charlie Cooke and head it low past young goalie David Harvey, replacing an injured regular.

Junior Guns Cocked

QUEBEC (CP) — A pair of potential pro hockey stars of the future will be on view here tonight when the best-of-five Eastern Canada Memorial Cup playoff gets under way.

One—Gilbert Perreault of Montreal Junior Canadiens—can already smell the pro money as he is eligible to be drafted by a National Hockey League club during the annual amateur draft in June.

The other—high-scoring Guy Lafleur of Quebec Remparts—still has another year of junior hockey left to improve on the 103 goals he scored during the Quebec Junior A Hockey League's 56-game regular schedule.

ANDY CAPP

Being Down Nothing New to Orillia Terriers

SPOKANE, Wash. (CP) — Being behind the proverbial eight ball is nothing new to Orillia Terriers, who will attempt to get in front tonight in the third game of the Allan Cup senior hockey final.

"We were down in every series we played," said Orillia coach Ike Hildebrand. "The boys seem to play as well as they have to."

The Ontario team is down 2-0 in the best-of-seven series. Spokane Jets took the first game 5-4 and Tuesday won 5-8.

Orillia was down 2-0 to Victoriaville, Que., Tigers and bounced back for a 4-2 victory in the best-of-seven playoff for the Eastern Canada senior title.

Other than possibly getting back two missing regulars, Hildebrand said he had nothing special planned for tonight's game.

So far, Orillia has been unable to play a regular defensive pair. Tonight the coach expects to get one of these back in action with the arrival of Mike Draper, who had job commitments back home.

Hildebrand also said he hoped Gary Millroy, all-star centre last season in Ontario, would be dressed. He too had job commitments back home.

The fourth game in the series is set for Saturday. Other games, if necessary, will go Sunday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

Penguins Playing It Cooler

PITTSBURGH (CP) — The stakes are still the same but the payoff now is in sight for St. Louis Blues when they meet Pittsburgh Penguins tonight in the sixth game of the Stanley Cup semi-final.

"They've got the hammer on us now and it's going to be a tough game," said Penguins left-winger Val Fonteyne as the team returned Wednesday from its 5-0 defeat in St. Louis.

The Blues' victory Tuesday night, bolstered the shutout goal-tending of Jacques Plante, put them in a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven series which decides the National Hockey League finalist to meet Boston Bruins for the cup.

"It's just like when we had the edge on Oakland," said Fonteyne. "We went in there knowing we had them where we wanted them. And that's the way the Blues are going to be."

The Penguins eliminated Oakland Seals in the quarter-finals with two victories here and the next two in Oakland.

But Pittsburgh started this series at a disadvantage, losing the first two in St. Louis, winning the next two at home and losing the fifth on Blues' ice.

And to add to the Penguins' discomfort, their two wins here were only by one-goal margins, while the Blues won their home encounters by two, three and five goals.

"We'll just have to get out there and get the jump on them," said Fonteyne, a veteran of five playoffs with Detroit Red Wings before joining Pittsburgh.

The Penguins will at least arrive at the arena a little more refreshed than they were Tuesday when the temperature in St. Louis hit a high of 92 degrees.

In an attempt to change the team's luck, Kelly took them to a different hotel from the one they usually use in St. Louis but after they checked into their new accommodation they found the air conditioning had broken down.

The forecast today was for a temperature in the low 80s which should leave the arena slightly cooler than the steamy atmosphere which players and fans suffered through at St. Louis.

If the Penguins win tonight, the seventh and deciding game will be played back in St. Louis Sunday afternoon. But should the Blues eliminate Pittsburgh tonight, they would start their best-of-seven final series with Boston, the East Division survivor, at St. Louis Sunday.

Tonight's game is scheduled for 8 p.m. EDT and will be televised across Canada by the CBC.

Both Federalists and Separatists Cheered by UN Collapse

QUEBEC (CP) — The sudden collapse of Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand's Union Nationale party has given both federalists and separatists something to cheer about.

It remains to be seen who will have the last cheer.

Robert Bourassa's Liberals, Quebec's most federalist party, won 71 of the 108 legislature seats in Wednesday's general election as the Union Nationale's representation sank to 16.

But Rene Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois attracted nearly a quarter of the votes, a moral victory for his new party. Seven separatists were elected.

In terms of popular vote the separatist party is far from the minuscule Prime Minister Trudeau once said it was. The Parti Quebecois has become the leading opposition party in this regard.

Mr. Bourassa's 71-seat victory pales somewhat when regarded in terms of popular vote. The Liberals got about 44 per cent of the vote, less than in 1966 when they won only 50 seats.

In effect, the Liberal landslide is explained by a combination of the party's own strength, the Union National's weakness and the Creditiste and separatist vote in several ridings.

The question now is whether some kind of a coalition will form between the urban-based Parti Quebecois and the rural-based Union Nationale, a disabling electoral force in Quebec since 1956.

A number of Union Nationale members, including Education Minister Jean-Guy Cardinal and Intergovernmental Affairs Minister Marcel Masse, have flirted with separatism and may try to line up their party with Mr. Levesque's growing group.

This political situation will keep up the pressure for constitutional change, despite what could be regarded as an emphatic rejection of separatism by Quebec voters.

As a referendum on independence, one might argue that the election showed at least two thirds of Quebecers in favor of keeping Quebec within Canada. This assumes that some who voted for the Parti Quebecois are not separatists, and that some who voted for the Union Nationale are not federalists.

Mr. Bourassa had pledged to make federalism work for the prosperity of Quebecers. He wants money from Ottawa and says he will conduct "tight-fisted" constitutional negotiations.

The Liberal leader may be able to siphon away some of Mr. Levesque's youth support by rejuvenating the public service at Quebec City, demoralized under the Union Nationale.

His immediate tasks include the making of a cabinet. He has 71 legislature members to choose from, but most are, like himself, without cabinet experience.

Only One Woman Elected

MONTREAL (CP)—Only one of the nine women candidates in Wednesday's Quebec election won a seat in the Quebec national assembly.

Both posts who entered also lost.

Claire Kirkland-Casgrain, only woman in the last session of the Quebec national assembly and former transport minister in the Liberal government of Jean Lesage, was re-elected with a whopping majority in Montreal Marguerite-Bourgeoys.

In the process she defeated Roland Morin, leader of the Quebec New Democratic Party.

Bertrand Glad Verdict Clear

COWANSVILLE, Que. (CP) — Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Wednesday night he accepts the verdict of the Quebec people who crushed his Union Nationale government at the polls.

"I am too democratic not to accept the verdict of the people," he said of the provincial general election result which gave a majority to the Liberal party of Robert Bourassa.

Mr. Bertrand, visibly moved, recalled that he had asked Quebecers to give the province a majority government.

"They did so, and it's a good thing for Quebec."

He pledged that he and his colleagues will co-operate with the government Mr. Bourassa forms and will "continue to work harder than ever for Quebec."

Mr. Bertrand, re-elected in the riding of Missisquoi which he has represented since 1948, said the Union Nationale was defeated by the protest vote and the English-speaking vote.

"I predicted that there would be a sweep for us or for the Liberal party. There is discontent in Quebec, and this is shown in the Creditiste vote. The English-speaking people went to the Liberals, 100 per cent.

"In my own riding, the English-speaking people who make up 20 per cent all voted against me."

The former premier said he will call a cabinet meeting for 11 a.m. Friday and meet Mr. Bourassa later.

As for his own political future, Mr. Bertrand said he will sit in the house as Opposition leader and consider the more distant future lat?.

Separatist Loss Pleases Crediteste

ROUYN, Que. (CP) — "The people of Quebec showed that they are not separatist" by the votes they cast in Wednesday's general election, Creditiste Leader Camil Samson said Wednesday night.

"I note with pleasure that the so-called separatist wave is a big balloon which has lost all its air," he said, referring to the fourth-place finish of the separatist Parti Quebecois.

Mr. Samson, a 35-year-old car salesman who personally took the northwestern riding of Rouyn away from the Union Nationale by a margin of more than 5,000 votes, described his party's election performance as "marvelous."

He noted that the provincial Creditiste party "did not even exist three months ago, and despite everything we will have 14 or 15 members."

Mr. Samson offered his co-operation to the victorious Liberal leader, Robert Bourassa, and said Creditistes will be vigilant to see that Liberal campaign promises—such as the creation of 100,000 new jobs—are carried out.

In addition, the provincial Creditistes were sure to have at least part of their own program adopted.

"There is a Trudeau government in Ottawa, and the Creditistes there are still able to act," Mr. Samson said.

"I would like to see the man who can paralyze me in the Quebec legislature."

Liberal Task

Must Prove Quebec Can Stay in Canada

MONTREAL (CP) — A jubilant Robert Bourassa told shouting supporters Wednesday night that the landslide victory by his Liberal party is a challenge "to prove Quebec can remain in Canada."

The new premier told an election rally:

"It is obvious that the challenge of the Liberal party in the next few years is to show that Quebec can stay in Canada.

"And we will face that challenge taking into account that Quebec is not a province like the others. And we are confident that we will succeed."

Mr. Bourassa described the victory as "extremely encouraging" and more than he had hoped for.

"As you know, we gambled on the political maturity of Quebecers, on their good sense.

The new Liberal government would devote its first efforts to the province's serious unemployment problem, he said.

Mr. Bourassa's campaign promise that he would try to create 100,000 new jobs in 1971.

This objective was a real challenge, but the Liberals were "well equipped to meet it."

Mr. Bourassa thanked the voters of Montreal Mercier for giving him a majority six times larger than that he received in 1966.

He urged Quebecers to support the Liberal party's efforts to inject life into the province's economy in the "difficult years" ahead.

Popular Vote Forecast Was Right on Target

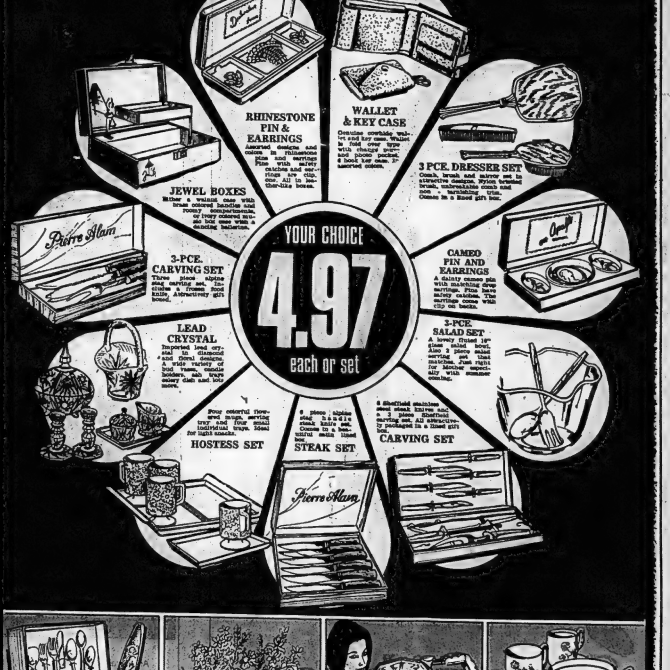
MONTREAL (CP) — Surveys published in three Montreal newspapers last weekend showing the Liberals with the largest segment of the total vote in Wednesday's Quebec election, won the Parti Quebecois running second and the Union Nationale third were dead right in the order they placed the parties.

With 68 per cent of the polling stations reported—12,276 of 18,075—the Liberals had captured 44 per cent of the vote. The Parti Quebecois won 24 per cent, the Union Nationale had 20 per cent and the Creditistes 11 per cent. The figures, however, did not correspond with the number of seats picked up in the national assembly.

The leading Liberals won a whopping 71 seats in the 108-seat legislature while the separatist Parti Quebecois, second in the total vote, had only seven seats, lowest of all four parties.

Strong in the rural ridings favored by Quebec's electoral distribution, the Union Nationale won 16 seats and the Creditistes 13.

The newspaper surveys predicted only the total vote distribution, not the number of seats.



La Presse predicted the Liberals would win 49 per cent of the vote; Parti Quebecois 19; Union Nationale 15; Creditistes 10; New Democratic Party 1; others 1; and undecided 35.

The Gazette gave the Liberals 32 per cent; Parti Quebecois 23; Union Nationale 13; Creditistes 9; NDP and others 1; undecided 19.

The Montreal Star did not provide a breakdown of the vote but did predict the order of parties.

Bourassa as Surprised as Anyone by Sweep

MONTREAL (CP) — Robert Bourassa was as surprised as anyone else Wednesday night in the news that his provincial Liberal party had won a stunning victory in the Quebec general election.

The 36-year-old lawyer-economist, who took the Liberal helm about three months ago, admitted that the outcome—at least 71 Liberal members elected—was more than he had hoped for.

Less than four years ago, he first walked into the national assembly, as freshman member for Montreal Mercier. As the party's financial critic, he got a reputation as "a nice, shy guy."

But his image changed radically in the last few months.

Just last September, after Jean Lesage announced his retirement as Quebec Liberal leader, a survey conducted by a Montreal newspaper indicated so little interest in Mr. Bourassa as a potential leadership candidate that it could not even be expressed in percentage points.

But by the time the leadership convention was held in mid-January, the frail-looking lawyer had developed into a politically popular enough to win a decisive-first-ballot victory over two seasoned veterans.

He was never a sensational speaker, but his platform style showed sharp improvement during the three-week election campaign.

During the leadership campaign and in the election that followed, Mr. Bourassa concentrated on bread-and-butter issues.

He made the promise of new jobs his political trademark in a province with chronic unemployment, and his judgment was borne out by newspaper opinion polls indicating that this problem was uppermost in the minds of the voters.

He took a firm stand on the side of federalism, opposing Rene Levesque's separatist Parti Quebecois, but made it clear that he intends to put the squeeze on the Ottawa government for "a better share of Canadian prosperity."

He told cheering party workers in his Montreal campaign headquarters Wednesday night that the promised attack on the province's economic problems will begin immediately.

A first priority would be the appointment of a cabinet committee to look into Quebec's financial situation.

"As a matter of urgency, we want to reduce unemployment substantially, increase capital investment and control government fiscal commitments.

"With the co-operation of the federal government, and the provinces of the west, we want to give Quebecers a better share of Canadian prosperity."

She Likes Politics

QUEBEC (CP) — Andree Bourassa is fortunate she is an early riser and a "late-to-bed person." It helps if you decide to accompany your husband during an exhaustive month-long provincial election campaign.

And it helps, too, if you like politics.

"Politics appeal to me," Mrs. Bourassa says. "They interest me and I get involved."

She asked her husband, Robert, 36-year-old leader of the Quebec Liberal party and new provincial premier, for only three days off in the gruelling four-week campaign schedule preceding Wednesday's Quebec general elections.

Result Pleases Businessmen

MONTREAL (CP) — The Montreal business and financial community greeted with jubilation Wednesday's election of a strong Liberal government in the province of Quebec.

There was unanimous agreement that the results of the hard-fought election campaign indicated the people of Quebec have thrown their support in favor of federalism.

However, they felt the election of a federalist government in itself will not solve the massive problems facing the Quebec economy, and that much work will have to be done to iron out these problems.

But they said that a majority government in Quebec City will enable the tackling of the financial and economic problems, although it may take at least a couple of years before the picture improves appreciably.

Robert C. Scrivener, president of Bell Canada, said the results of the election should lead to "a rebirth of the province of Quebec."

"The results are a tremendous indication of the people's desire to remain a part of Canada. The people looked the problem right in the eye and decided they wanted to be Canadian in a strong Quebec economy."

Gerard Filion, president of Marine Industries Ltd., said he felt certain that the financial and business community are equally pleased in the province will have a majority government.

"The worst thing that could have happened would have been the election of a minority government. Many people had taken a wait-and-see attitude."

Charles Neapole, president of the Montreal and Canadian Stock Exchanges, said the province needed a strong majority government to restore a sense of stability which is necessary for economic growth.

V. O. Marquez, president of Northern Electric Co. Ltd., said the election of a stable government in Quebec should encourage investment and remove the cloud of uncertainty that has had a bad effect on the province's economy.

Gordon W. Hodgson, executive vice-president of the Montreal Trust Co., foresaw a restoration of some confidence in the province "in areas where there has been concern because of the threat of independence."

He said that national companies will be satisfied with the pro-federalist posture of the people of Quebec, and this should help the province's economy.

"The fact that Canada is not facing a prospect of disruption is a most desirable thing. It should bring co-operation from outside Quebec."

Robarts Happy, Offers Support

TORONTO (CP) — The election of a majority Liberal government in Quebec Wednesday was looked upon by Ontario political and business leaders as the first step in that province's return to political and economic stability.

Ontario Premier John Robarts said he was "delighted that separatism has been really dealt with," adding that he would offer Quebec Liberal Leader Robert Bourassa "every co-operation and assistance as we go about solving some of the problems that face our country."

Mr. Robarts said he is happy the people of Quebec have "so forcibly rejected the concept of separatism."

"And for the rest of us I can only say, thank God."

Robert Nixon, leader of Ontario's Liberal party, said the election results "shows people in all areas of the province are prepared to support strengthening of federalism."

Donald MacDonald, New Democratic Party leader, said he believes "all Canadians will be pleased with the election of a stable majority government which firmly favors remaining with a strong Canadian government."

Mr. MacDonald did, however, predict an immediate clash between Ottawa and the Quebec Liberals on economic issues.

R. J. Wilson, senior vice-president for the Ontario region of Royal Trust, said he was "elated" by the election result which was "a great thing for Canada."

As for the securities transferred to Toronto by "skittish" Quebec investors earlier this week, Mr. Wilson said the company expects "to receive instructions shortly to move them back to Montreal."

Michael Bell, executive director of the Canadian Mutual Funds Association, said the election of a majority Liberal government "should now give the province of Quebec the political stability needed for confidence in domestic economic progress, increased employment and retain the necessary flow of foreign and domestic investment capital."

Howard R. Bennett, partner, Richardson Securities of Canada, said the election of "a majority government in the hands of one of the traditional parties ... will make for stability and growth in the province."

Roger Seguin, president of the French-Canadian Association of Ontario, said that with a strong federalist government in Quebec it will be easier to bring the cause of Ontario's French-Canadian residents before the Ontario government.

He also predicted a rapid upturn in Quebec's economy.

Confidence Restored --- Lesage

QUEBEC (CP) — Investors will regain confidence in Quebec's economy now that the Liberal party has been elected to office, Jean Lesage, former Liberal leader, said Wednesday night.

Commenting on the crushing defeat of the former Union Nationale government, Mr. Lesage said:

"It is a victory of good sense, which shows that the people of Quebec want Quebec to return to stability and get back on the road to economic progress.

"Through this victory, the confidence of investors will be re-established."

Mr. Lesage stepped down as provincial Liberal leader last August after leading the party since 1958.

Legislature Gives First Reading to New Corporations Act

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario legislature Wednesday gave first reading to a new Business Corporations Act, which has been more than five years in preparation and study by legislature committees and the business community.

The bill is a redrafting of legislation first introduced in 1968, by Premier John Robarts after a select committee completed more than a year of study.

Bert Lawrence, minister of commercial and financial affairs, said the new legislation follows the principles of the 1968 bill but makes about 35 changes.

Work on a new Corporations Act began in 1965 with the appointment of a select committee, headed by Allan Lawrence, now minister of mines. The committee made an interim report in 1967. A bill was introduced and submitted for public discussion, but was never passed by the legislature. Later the same year a committee composed of senior civil servants was formed to draft a new act, which was introduced by Mr. Robarts in 1968, as a forerunner to the one introduced Wednesday.

Mr. Robarts said at the time that the Business Corporations Act 1968 was a complete revision of the Corporations Act, dealing with incorporation, operation, management and dissolution of corporations with share capital.

The 1968 bill was sent to legislature committee for discussion and reaction from the business community. It was rewritten for the final time after that procedure ended late in 1969.

Mr. Lawrence said there will be no further lengthy delays and the bill will be enacted at this session of the legislature. However, the government "intends to be flexible and will consider all constructive suggestions."

He said the major changes among the 35 proposed deal with purchase of common shares, trust indentures, investment securities, standards for directors and officers, indemnification of directors and officers and a requirement that auditors cannot be appointed receivers or liquidators.

The legislation, where it follows the recommendations of the select committee, contains a code of ethics for corporate directors and a new definition of shareholder rights. It includes disclosure legislation previously covered by securities bills, standards for trustees and provisions to ensure the independence of auditors.

The bill does not deal with special types of corporations, such as insurance companies and loan and trust corporations, since a study of special types is continuing.

Among shareholder rights included in the bill is the right to ask a court to permit them to take action on behalf of the corporation when the directors refuse to do so, to be bought out by the corporation if they disagree with fundamental corporate changes, and to call meetings of shareholders when 10 per cent of the holders want them.

The review of the Corporations Act came at a time when Ontario's financial community was being shaken by a series of business crises and scandals.

Leslie Rowntree had just been appointed minister of commercial and financial affairs while Atlantic Acceptance and Prudential Finance corporations were in the difficulties that led to their collapse, and the scandal over trading in shares of Windfall Mines and Oils still was fresh.

In other legislature business: Energy and Resources Minister George Kerr told the house Ontario will try to persuade bottling companies to switch to "self-destructing" bottles when they become available. The province might also move at that time to prohibit the use of non-returnable glass bottles.

Agriculture Minister William Stewart, replying to a question George Ben (L—Toronto Humber), said Ontario farmers do not use nitrate fertilizers in quantities large enough for them to become a health hazard. He said nitrates are used in amounts "readily adopted by the soil."

THE PICK OF Punch

Ancient Jails Are Criticized

TORONTO (CP) — Only 11 of Ontario's 46 correctional institutions were built in the 20th century, Kenneth Bolton (NDP—Middlesex South) told the legislature Wednesday.

He chided Allan Grossman, Ontario minister of correctional services, for presenting a "rosy" annual report, which failed to outline such problems as "grotesque" institutions, antiquated public attitudes toward prisoners and former prisoners and shortage of trained personnel.

The ancient jails such as Middlesex County jail in London, are not only bad architecturally but reflect the punitive philosophy of earlier days, Mr. Bolton said.

Mr. Grossman said he could print an annual report of 100 pages of problems but in the report "we tell them what we're trying to do about the problems."

Both Mr. Bolton, NDP critic of the corrections department, and Harry Worton, Liberal critic, praised the Vanier Centre for Women in Brampton.

But Mr. Worton (L—Wellington South) said there are so many visitors touring this "showcase," that the women feel as if they are in a zoo.

Mr. Grossman said it was difficult to find a balance. The department used to be criticized for keeping "closed institutions." The tours, even by high school students, were part of public education.

He told Richard Potter (PC—Quinte) the Ottawa-Carleton jail is ready to go to tender but has been held up by the National Capital Commission over a problem of landscaping.

The legislature was continuing debate of the department's estimates of $48,234,000.

Apps Wants Diseased Elms Cut

TORONTO (CP) — Syl Apps (PC—Kingston - The Islands) suggested Wednesday that university students be given manpower jobs cutting down some of Ontario's dead and diseased elms.

Rene Brunelle, lands and forests minister, said the idea already has been proposed to cabinet and was turned down for lack of funds.

He said, however, that the project would create few jobs for students. Cutting trees is a job for experts.

Salaries, Expenses Will Still Be Listed

TORONTO (CP) — Conservative members of the legislature's public accounts committee joined with the opposition Wednesday to reject provincial Treasurer Charles MacNaughton's request to drop details on salaries and travelling expenses from public accounts.

The committee's decision was unanimous on salaries, but Dr. Matthew Dymond (PC—Ontario) supported the treasurer on the travelling expenses.

Syl Apps (PC—Kingston-The Islands) seconded a motion by Hugh Peacock (NDP—Windsor West) to not concur in the proposal to drop individual listings of salaries over $15,000.

The motion regarding travel was placed by the chairman, James Breithaupt (L—Kitchener). By voting down the motion, the committee asked the government to continue showing travelling expenses in detail for all trips costing over $2,500.

Right to Refuse Overtime Upheld

TORONTO (CP) — The Ontario Appeal Court Wednesday upheld a lower court ruling that employees who are entitled to strike but remain on the job can refuse to work overtime.

Mr. Justice John Aylesworth, declaring a unanimous decision by the three-judge panel, said the court has no right to interfere with the lower court ruling.

The case involves David Fogue of Welland, an Ontario Hydro worker who was suspended in 1969 for refusing to work overtime to repair a power line in what his superiors called an emergency situation.

At the time, the Ontario Hydro employees' union was in a legal position to strike but had not yet begun the rotating strike which led to a settlement of the union's last contract with the company.

The union instituted work-to-rule orders and informed the utility that its members would refuse to work unless there was an emergency.

Mr. Fogue and other members of his crew disputed whether the repairs constituted an emergency.

The Ontario Labor Relations Board upheld the union's contention that an emergency did not exist and ordered that Mr. Fogue be compensated for loss of wages for his one-day suspension.

REAL ESTATE FOR SALE

SHAWANO

VACATION HOMES IN THE WILDERNESS.

Explore our planned vacation land now as the lake and forests of the region unfold their classic early spring beauty.

Choice lakefront sites and a selection of quality waterfront homesites are there for your inspection.

An example is the picturesque "Swiss" chalet which offers five rooms, plumbing, wiring, kitchen cupboards and includes the lakeshore lot for a total price of $12,500.00. Terms are as low as $2,100.00 down with one mortgage for the balance.

Our staff is on duty in the area to help you plan your first picnic of the new season and drive up this weekend.

Take Highway 62 north from Highway 7, 4 distance of 25 miles to the St. Ola turn, turn left and follow our signs.

Full color literature telling the exciting story of Shawano is available upon request. Telephone:

$1800.00 down — why not start here? Then work your way to a newer home. Make spoiled meat to see this 1½ storey with Hamilton Road, open plan dining room, kitchen and living room 2-piece bath up, 3 bedrooms, 4-piece down. Fresh-ly painted and heats for $130.00 per year.

6/26/76

Handy! If you prefer to do some finishing inside then here is a large mortgage the rest of the $30s, why not see this large older home today. Located in Marmora, five bedrooms, no plumbing but a good well, an excellent family investment and if your kids are like mine they are just itching to get started on their own home. The owner will carry the mortgage.

Tired of commuting? Move the family to here. Make an inspection eye on things while proceeding down the kitchen overlooking the lovely family room which has sliding glass doors leading to the back lawn. There are five bedrooms and two bathrooms; plus many other features found in a home of this type, walking distance to churches, post office, schools, shopping and the "Y".

Small farm at Springbrook, good land and buildings. Solid brick home taxes only $153.00 per year. Could be made into quite a show place and it's easy commuting distance to Belleville or Trenton.

Fisheries Minister Protests Prosecution of Ontario Fishermen

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis said Wednesday that United States authorities acted too hastily Tuesday in seizing two Canadian trawlers and arresting their crews for allegedly fishing in the American half of Lake Erie.

Mr. Davis said in an interview he believed one of the ships had been warned several times by U.S. Coast Guard officials that it was fishing in American waters. He felt, however, that the U.S. should have consulted the Canadian government before taking action.

Canada's practice, he said, has been to give warnings to U.S. boats in Canadian waters but to leave stronger police action to their own government.

He said the activities of the Canadian vessels were "not reason enough" for the U.S. action.

The issue was raised in the Commons by Harold Stafford (L —Elgin) who said the arrested fishermen could be fined up to $200 each "in addition to the confiscation of boats, nets, equipment and fish by state authorities."

Mr. Davis said his department acted through the external affairs department to have the Canadian vice-consul in Cleveland arrange local assistance for the fishermen. He added that the government has "from time to time reminded the U.S. authorities that their northern limits are on the international boundary line in Lake Erie."

Mr. Davis said in the interview outside the Commons that the government did not plan to retaliate in kind against U.S. fishermen straying north of the boundary line. He suggested the U.S. action was the result of concern that "basically, we're outfishing them on Lake Erie."

He added that the men had complained to Canadian officials that they were treated "like common criminals" after their arrest Tuesday.

PAINESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — The captains and crew members of two Ontario fishing boats seized by Ohio officials on Lake Erie Tuesday were fined Wednesday and had their nets and catches confiscated.

Fines of $200 each were levied against skippers James Greenslade and David Ryerse, both of Port Dover, Ont., and six other fishermen.

The fishermen were hit hardest by confiscation of their nets, valued at a total of $7,000.

Ryerse, master of the B and E out of Port Stanley, Ont., said he would try to replace his nets, valued at about $3,000, but said he could be out of business for the rest of this year.

Confiscation went out with the slogan "Ah," Ryerse protested. He also lost 3,300 pounds of pike worth about $600.

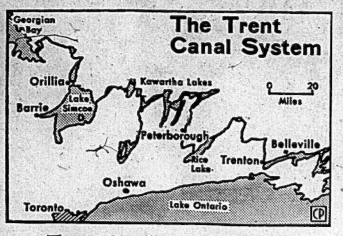
Greenslade, captain of the Donna Mae II, also out of Port Stanley, had $4,000 worth of nets and $600 worth of pike confiscated. He said he had other nets in Port Dover.

Both captains pleaded guilty in Painesville municipal court to fishing in Ohio waters. The two boats were stopped by state agents Tuesday, and the skippers and crew members spent the night in Lake County jail.

The state wildlife division said the boats had been fishing 18 miles off Grand River, nearly 10 miles inside Ohio territory.

Asks Ottawa River Fishing Ban

OTTAWA (CP) — Fisheries Minister Jack Davis told the Commons Wednesday he will ask the Ontario and Quebec governments to ban commercial fishing in the Ottawa River this season because of mercury pollution.



Mr. Davis said recent tests have shown mercury pollution in the river to be "just marginally below acceptable levels."

Outside the House, Mr. Davis said the contamination levels were highest downstream from the Ottawa area and had affected in particular pike, sunfish and one species of bass.

He said he expects Ontario to act today to cancel the commercial licences of the six fishermen on the west side of the river but could not say when action would be taken by Quebec until after Wednesday's provincial election.

The minister said the contamination is believed to have resulted from the use of chemicals by pulp mills on the river to remove slime from logs. The plants have not used the compounds for the last two years, he said, but concentrations had built up over the last two decades.

Loss of commercial fishermen on the river was expected to be "a few thousand dollars" at most, Mr. Davis said.

Trent System to Be Park

The 240-mile Trent Canal System, linking Lake Ontario with Georgian Bay, is to be developed into a federal park. The system will be turned into a series of camping and picnic areas, nature trails and boating facilities under the joint supervision of the federal and Ontario governments.

Consumer Credit Controls Coming

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson said in the Commons Wednesday the government intends to go ahead with consumer credit controls announced in the March 12 budget.

Under opposition questioning, he refused to say whether a change is planned in the prime rate of 8 per cent charged by the Bank of Canada for loans to the chartered banks.

The questions were set off by Tuesday's sag in the stock market, to the lowest level in six years.

Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield tied the decline to "expectations in the business community" and asked what Mr. Benson intends to do about it.

The finance minister replied that the decline is worldwide and is worse in New York than in Toronto.

He told Mr. Stanfield he has consulted foreign authorities, including the U.S. treasury secretary, and they are "relatively optimistic" except for concern about overcoming inflation.

Mr. Stanfield said it looked as though Mr. Benson "might have planned inflation policies in 1929," the year of the great stock market crash.

He asked whether, in view of developments based on the business community's outlook, Mr. Benson still planned credit controls. Mr. Benson said he does.

In his budget last month, Mr. Benson announced credit controls that would affect persons wanting to buy something worth $100 or more on a time-payment plan extended beyond 12 months. They would have to pay off the balance in 24 months.

George Hee (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings) asked whether it is a fact that the governor of the Bank of Canada "always takes his cue and follows" Mr. Benson. "No," Mr. Benson replied.

Report Wrong—Munro

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister John Munro said Wednesday he does not agree with the report by an Ontario committee on the healing arts which says health legislation in Canada is in chaos.

Mr. Munro was replying to questions by P. B. Rynard (PC-Simcoe North), a medical doctor, who asked Mr. Munro whether he was getting in touch with his provincial counterparts in an effort to meet the "grave situation" as outlined in the report.

Among other things, the committee, appointed by Premier John Roberts of Ontario, referred to an acute shortage of doctors and medical schools.

Mr. Munro said there is already "great liaison" with provincial health ministers and that his report would be discussed at the next federal-provincial conference of health ministers.

100-mile Sea Limit Praised

OTTAWA (CP) — A Canadian expert on the law of the sea said Wednesday he thinks Canada is making a contribution to the development of international law with its proposed 100-mile anti-pollution belt in the Arctic.

J. A. Beesley, head of the legal division of the external affairs department, said he finds it difficult to think that Canada's action in this area will shock the rest of the world. He said conservationists agree that the only way to prevent serious sea pollution is for coastal states to take more action.

Mr. Beesley appeared before the Commons external affairs committee to discuss the bill that would extend Canada's territorial sea to 12 miles from the present three. But the anti-pollution bill came up for repeated references.

Mr. Beesley said he doubts whether there would have been general acceptance of the increased territorial sea in 1964, and certainly not in 1958 when the subject was before the Geneva convention of the law of the sea.

Acceptance had come as more and more coastal states moved in this direction.

UNTIMELY ANTHEM

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — The offertory anthem for a recent Sunday morning communion service at Trinity United Church was "Strengthen for service, Lord, the hands that holy things have taken." Before its the first voice was raised in song, Rev. Frank Morgan discovered that a strong hand had lifted a bag containing a silver communion bread tray and four engraved silver lids, worth a total of $125.

Maoists Jailed For Contempt

OTTAWA (CP) — Two of five professed Maoists were given jail sentences Wednesday as Judge Rene Marin of provincial court held them in contempt of court.

They were the third and fourth contempt citations handed down by the court in two days.

The five accused were among 16 arrested April 13 when a demonstration outside the U.S. embassy erupted into violence.

Martin Bracey, 24, of Ottawa, appearing on a charge of assaulting an Ottawa police officer, was handed a 30-day jail sentence for contempt after he refused to apologize for calling the court "corrupt."

His criticism came when he was giving testimony denying he punched the officer in the face during the April 13 fracas. He was found guilty on this charge and given an additional three-month jail sentence.

A second assault charge was withdrawn.

Robert Crubs, 27, of Toronto, charged with causing a disturbance, by fighting and shouting, was cited for contempt for calling the court proceeding "a sham and a farce" and was sentenced to 30 days in jail.

The assault charge was withdrawn.

A third demonstrator, Arnold August, 25, of Montreal, was found not guilty because of insufficient evidence of a charge of creating a disturbance by fighting. However, August's remarks in court Tuesday brought him a 90-day jail sentence for contempt.

Jean-Pierre Cyr, 19, of Montreal and Georges-Henri Rousseau, 20, of Halifax, were found guilty—Cyr, of assaulting a policeman, and Rousseau of causing a disturbance—and sentenced to time spent in custody since their April 13 arrest.

Sentenced Tuesday to 30 days for contempt, in addition to August, was Barry Carlsen, 21, of Winnipeg.

Church of Scientology Says Findings Mockery

TORONTO (CP) — The Toronto Church of Scientology Wednesday called the findings of the Ontario committee on the healing arts dealing with scientology "a mockery of justice and an insult to the civilized world's concept of religious freedom."

The government-appointed committee said in its report Tuesday that while there wasn't sufficient evidence of harm being done to the health of Ontario residents by the Church of Scientology, its activities should be kept under close and continuing review.

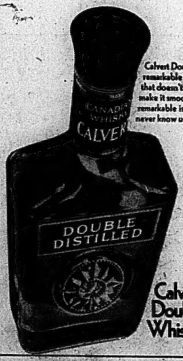
Patient Relation Change Needed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Health care personnel will have to become more public-minded and less self-centred if the recommendations of the Ontario committee on the healing arts are to succeed, a committee member said in an interview Wednesday.

Horace Krever, a law professor at the University of Western Ontario, said there will have to be a greater co-operation and co-ordination among professionals to ensure improved service to the public.

The ways of professional persons "who have thought of themselves as solo practitioners, working by themselves, answerable to nobody, relying on their integrity to their client or patient" are outmoded, he said.

"There's going to have to be a completely different philosophy. It will involve appreciation by one's peers and a greater inspection by society's agencies which are responsible to the public."



Damage Suit Last Resort

TORONTO (CP) — A suit for damages on the basis of negligence filed against the Ontario Securities Commission is a "last resort" for 2,800 Ontario creditors of the bankrupt Prudential Finance Corp., a spokesman for the litigants said Wednesday.

Harry Westlake, president of the Prudential Finance Creditors' Association of Ontario, told a news conference his organization has exhausted every other avenue to recover the investments lost through the November, 1968, collapse of the company.

Mr. Westlake said the creditors allege that OSC was negligent in failing to exercise due care in approving a prospectus issued by Prudential in 1963 at a time when OSC was aware the company was in financial trouble.
